BRITISH VESSELS MAY GO TO BLACK SEA FOR POSSIBLE ACTION THERE

Britain will send a part of her Mediterranean fleet to the Black Sea under a Turkish agreement, it is reported today, while rumors are being spread that Germany will launch an attack upon Greece tomorrow.

There was no confirmation of the latter report, naturally, and chances were good that it was only a part of the Nazi war of nerves. It is doubtful that Germany is in a position to attack Greece only a week after troops have been moved into Bulgaria.

Diplomatic sources in Budapest reported that Britain is preparing to send a part of the Mediterranean fleet to the Black Sea under a ruse made to Turkey by Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden. Bulgaria is now tightly under German control. The German military restricted newspaper correspondents so severely that trickles

Shuns Licenses Involved In Mishaps

DUNKIRK, N. Y.—James A. Chas was a little put out when he received license plates numbered 1-H 500 instead of 1-H 300, had been receiving the latter for several years and decided to investigate the change. Chas, as a hobby, keeps a record of the license numbers of automobiles involved in accidents in the Dunkirk area. Glancing through his notes, the motorist discovered that the 1-H plates had been involved in 11 accidents in 1939 and 1940, that was enough for Chas. He applied and got a new pair of a number that carried no mishaps, at least according to records.

The party was enthusiastic in their praise of the huge project and highly complimented Major Paul M. Brewer, constructing quartermaster, for his untiring efforts in completing the camp in record time.

Included in the party were: C. J. Rhodes, general manager Eastland, Wichita Falls and Gulf Railway; Norris Wilson, manager Community Natural Gas Co.; Grady Pipkin, manager Piggly-Wiggly Stores; M. H. Kelley, City Manager; C. T. Lucas, City Commissioner; Ed Wellman, City Commissioner; H. O. Saterwhite, City Commissioner; I. J. Lambert, City Commissioner; Albert Taylor, vice-president Eastland National Bank; Frank Crowland, manager Crowell Lumber Co.; H. J. Tanner, manager Chamber of Commerce; R. A. McDaniel, manager Coca-Cola Bottling Co.; W. R. Pickens, Texas Electric Service Co.; and J. E. Lewis, vice-president and general manager Texas Electric Service Co.

CONSERVATION OF OIL HELPS TAX REVENUES

DALLAS, March 7.—The Texas oil conservation program is producing benefit to Texas communities and to State and local taxing agencies, a study completed by the Texas Mid-Continent Oil and Gas Association shows. Conservation has made possible a permanent type of oil development which benefits all Texas and which has greatly increased the ultimate tax revenues to the State and its many local taxing subdivisions, the survey discloses.

Before the adoption of the conservation laws, Texas oil fields were drilled up immediately. Wells were allowed to produce all the oil possible with the result that their output soon fell off. As production declined, the towns which had been built around the fields naturally suffered slumps which cut off the incomes and security of those who had depended upon them. Taxable values collapsed and tax revenues to the State and local taxing agencies dropped to a fraction of the former total.

In ten old Texas oil fields developed before conservation practices became standard, production fell in six years to only 12.1 per cent of the peak output. This 87.9 per cent loss in output was responsible for a decline of $116,122,926 in taxable values in the counties embracing these fields, causing a big loss in tax revenues. In contrast, seven newer Texas fields operated under conservation laws were still producing 66.8 per cent of their top production six years after their peak had been passed. The decline of 33.2 per cent in output, however, was NOT accompanied by any drop in taxable values. So permanent was the new type of oil development that tax valuations in these counties not only did not drop, but actually showed an increase of $109,481,681. Since tax valuations usually on a 50 per cent basis, this represents an increase in actual values of perhaps $218,000,000.

"The Texas public has become accustomed to the many benefits of oil conservation," a statement from the association points out. "Millions of barrels of Texas oil that otherwise would have been lost have been saved for posterity by adoption of sound conservation statutes. In addition, Texas and all its citizens have profited from the new permanent type of oil development. The State government as well as county, city and numerous district taxing agencies have been afforded greatly increased tax revenues which they will enjoy over a period of years. Thus the conservation of oil is of decided financial benefit to the citizen, to the community, and to the State and its many local taxing subdivisions."

Wisconsin Pays An Honor To Teacher

MADISON, Wis.—A little old man with a long white mustache, Dr. Edward Asahel Birge, 89-year-old president emeritus of the University of Wisconsin and biologist, once again has been honored for his long service to the state.

By unanimous vote both houses of the 45th Wisconsin legislature adopted a resolution expressing "sincere congratulations and felicitations" to Dr. Birge, a member of the university faculty for 66 years—7 as president, 27 as dean of the college of letters and science and 16 as president emeritus.

Dr. Birge, whose scientific work on lakes and streams are known throughout the world, paused in his research long enough to tell the legislature "It has always been a source of great pleasure to me—and of some pride—that it has been my good fortune through my active life, to do my part in advancing this commonwealth through its university."

BRITISH PERFECTING A DEVICE FOR LOCATING ENEMY PLANES AT NIGHT

Ramrod Stance Is Passe for Soldiers Of Britain's Army

HOLLYWOOD.—Heads up, chins in and shoulders back is out so far as the training of British soldiers is concerned. Now its "forward and up" for a British soldier's head because that produces the "proper physical coordination," according to Aldous Huxley, British novelist. The new method of physical training was disclosed in an exchange of letters in the correspondence columns of the British Medical Journal between Dr. Andrew Murdoch and Col. Wand-Tetley, inspector of physical training for the British army. Huxley said. It embodies the principle discovered and formulated by F. Matthias Alexander.

"We can summarize Alexander's conclusions," Huxley said, "by saying that in man, as in other animals, there is a certain natural and correct relation between the head, neck and torso—a relationship which, when it is preserved, guarantees that all the organs and parts of the body shall function harmoniously. Animals in a state of nature tend to retain this correct adjustment instinctively. It is only when human beings interfere with it that they go wrong, as they have done by means of the bad postural habits acquired under the stresses of urban and industrial civilization."

"The correct relation of head and neck to the rest of the body can be obtained when the head continuously and progressively obeys the injunction, 'Forward and Up!'"

"If this principle is properly taught, it means that hundreds of thousands of young Englishmen will be shown how to unlearn the bad habits forced upon them by urban and industrial life and will acquire one of the indispensable conditions of health and well-being, a correct and natural use of the body."

Chaplain Lists a Few Items To Go To a New Recruit

FORTORD, Cal.—Chaplain W. V. Morgan of the 13th Engineers has prepared a six-point plan for enabling the "folks back home" to make their soldier boy in camp happy.

- The six suggestions are:
- 1—Mail is a big thing in the life of a young man in camp. He should receive a letter or two every week.
 - 2—Laundry is a difficult problem. Send a handkerchief of a pair of socks now and then.
 - 3—A little nandy now and then is great in oiled paper.
 - 4—A soldier cannot always get to a post office. Send a book of stamps.
 - 5—Send the home town paper.
 - 6—Resolve to send a little package every week. Send one thing at a time—tobacco, razor blades, camphor ice for chapped lips.

Guard Training May Get An Extension

WASHINGTON, March 7.—The war department may ask congress to extend the year the federal training of the National Guard by another six to 12 months, unless the international situation eases, authoritative sources reported today.

Statistician Says Prices May Remain Stable Six Months

AUSTIN, Tex.—Calming the fears of many Texas people, a University of Texas business statistician believes that retail prices will not rise unduly for several months, and predicts that 1941 dollar sales will reach an all-time peak even exceeding those of 1929.

Texas business, according to Dr. F. A. Buechel, assistant director of the University's Bureau of Business Research, will continue to expand until early fall at least.

A composite index of Texas business, compiled by the Bureau from six major industries—employment, payrolls, miscellaneous freight carloadings, runs of crude oil to stills, department stores sales and electric power consumption—is 10 points higher than in January, 1940.

These industries all showed substantial gains: employment, up 6.6 points; payrolls, up to 6.8 points; freight carloadings, up 7.9 points; crude runs, up 12.8 points; department stores sales, up 4.5 points; electric power consumption, up 17.6 points.

Many other Texas business factors charted by the Bureau likewise showed gains over January, 1940:

Passenger car sales—up 39 per cent.
Commercial car sales—up 43.4 per cent.
Southern pine—production up 34 per cent, shipments up 53.4 per cent; unfilled orders at the month-end up 50.2 per cent.

Cement—production up 47 per cent; shipments up 76.2 per cent; stocks down 15.7 per cent.
Postal receipts—up almost 10 per cent.

A few unfavorable trends were noted, however:

Charters—80, down 44.1 per cent; liabilities, $305,000, up 16.4 per cent.
Building permits—down 11.3 per cent.
Purchases of savings bonds—down 19.1 per cent.

Closed World or Open World?

Putting aside for a moment the principal issues of Wendell Willkie's appearance before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, let us look at the last paragraph of his prepared statement. It is worth reading and re-reading, because in it he so succinctly and clearly stated the great issue which divides the world.

We must have courage, we must bravely do what our moral sense tells us ought to be done, said Willkie, and we must prepare ourselves to take part in laying the foundations of a world such as we would want our children to live in.

"That world cannot be a closed world. It must be an open world," he said.

There Willkie put his finger on the broad issue between the free nations of the world and the totalitarian nations. It is not a question of forms of government.

It is fair to say that the rest of the world was maddeningly indifferent when Mussolini seized power in Italy. True, the world gaged a little when the castor oil heroes swept across Italy and shuddered when various freedom-loving people were summarily put to death. But in the main, the world was indifferent, and is indifferent today, to what kind of a government Italy has within Italy.

So with Germany. The rise to power of Hitler was viewed with a similar indifference as long as it appeared to be a purely German matter. Again, the outside world was nauseated by the racial persecutions, the blood baths, the concentration camps. But as long as Germany alone was forced to wallow in the bed she had made for herself, the world remained restlessly tolerant.

Then it gradually became apparent that neither totalitarian system was, or could be, content with that. The nature of both demanded constant interference with the affairs of other countries. All meddling directly in the internal politics of others. Such tolerance as others extended to them was not reciprocated—could not be reciprocated by regimes found and based on intolerance, built on evangelization.

They closed their borders to normal intercourse. They made exclusive trade agreements which effectually barred others from normal markets. They closed their communications, their libraries, their minds, as they closed their borders.

A free world must be an open world. There must be an opening of doors, a lowering of barriers, not their multiplication. That is the road on which every free country, every free person travels today.

SCOUT NEWS

At the last meeting of the Scouts we had the total number of 39 Boy Scouts and boys that are to soon become scouts.

Mr. Campbell, of the Lone Star Plant, gave us a talk on first aid, the uses of it and some of the best ways to use it. It was very interesting and we hope that he will return and talk to us some more about it.

The Boy Scouts are going to organize a First Aid team. We will compete with other troop teams over the district.

Lord Baden Powell, was the Scout of the world until he died about a month ago. He said: A Real Scout is a fellow who is and can do.

A Scout does a good turn to helpful, friendly, courteous, kind, obedient, cheerful, thrifty, brave, clean and reverent.

Scout can obey the laws of the troop, county, state and federal. He can and will obey the National Scout law and oath.

A Scout does a good turn to some one every day.

Boys of the age of scouting should become scouts and I will give you one good reason why. Don't wait till you are a man to be great, be a great boy, and join the Boy Scouts of America. Be at the next meeting Friday at 7.00.

Ants Lead Men In Race For Survival

MINNEAPOLIS, Min.—In a neck-and-neck race for survival, man is lagging behind the ant, according to prof. William T. Heron, a University of Minnesota psychologist.

"It seems to me that up to now the small-brained insects have been winning the race," he said.

The reason for this, he explained has gone in cycles while ants and similar insects—flies, social beetles and bees—have continued steadily for 15,000,000 years.

Their survival is due, Heron said to control of reproduction and strict division of labor, "more organized than man's in some instances." Man's civilization, however, developed because man's brain enables him to adapt himself to new situations, while ants' instinct is sufficient only to meet all situations in the same manner.

1920 Club Has Texas Day Program

The 1920 Club met Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the Blue room of the Gibson hotel at which time a Texas Day program was presented. In keeping with the theme of the program the speaker's table was decorated with a flag scene and cut flowers.

Mrs. C. E. May, second vice-president, presided at the opening, in the absence of the president, Mrs. W. L. Jackson. Mrs. May introduced Mrs. Floyd Killingsworth who was leader for the program which was opened with the assembly singing of the "Eyes of Texas Are Upon You." Mrs. Helen Shaw, accompanied by Mrs. Lee Thompson, sang, "Have You Ever Been to Texas in the Spring."

Mrs. O. L. Phillips introduced Mrs. Leslie Haganan who gave a delightful review of Laura Krey's book, "On the Long Tide." Mayor Hall Walker appeared before the club to seek aid in beautification of the city park at the swimming pool, which project the members voted to accept. Mrs. Eva Hamill also visited the club to make announcements concerning the presentation of "Little Women" at the recreation building, this evening.

A delightful social hour was held at the close of the meeting with Mrs. Phillips and Mrs. Killingsworth as hostesses for a tea. Guests at the meeting beside club members were Mrs. Hoyt Agnew, Mrs. W. D. Conway, Mrs. Roy Jones of Austin, L. H. McLaughlin and Miss Frances Usery.

Society Personals

Miss Mary Jane Dreinhofner has returned to her work in Fort Worth after spending the week in Ragner.

J. H. Stacks is visiting in Springtown.

Mrs. J. H. Stacks is the guest of her daughter in Odessa.

Capt. Herschel E. Angus of Camp Bowie, who is the guest of his family, will leave tomorrow for Fort Benning, Ga., where he will be stationed three months.

Building Will Be Warm for Showing Of "Little Women"

Stoves in the Recreation building were lighted this morning at 9:00 o'clock in order that the building would be thoroughly warmed in time for the presentation, tonight of "Little Women," the play to be sponsored by the Hodges Oak Park Parent-Teachers Association.

It was predicted today that, because of the large advance ticket sale, there would be a big crowd out in spite of the cold weather. The final dress rehearsal was held Thursday night, which was declared a smooth and finished as a professional performance.

For six generations Louisa M. Alcott's "Little Women" has remained the most popular juvenile novel written by an American and the characters of Jo, Meg, Amy, Beth, Marmee, Laurie, Prof. Bhaer and John Brooke have lived in the hearts of millions of boys and girls all over the world. For this classic of American life has been translated into every known language.

It is a story that never has grown old because it deals with the greatest of human emotions—a mother's love for her children and their appreciation of it, and of her.

Because of this great appeal to people of every age, "Little Women" was chosen by the Hodges Oak Park Parent-Teachers Association for the presentation to-night. All proceeds from the play go to the association.

Although many reserved seat tickets have been sold in the advance sale, there will still be some available at the door to-night.

The curtain rises promptly at 8:15.

YESTERDAY: Kent confessed that the girl he fell in love with was April, not Ann. But April cannot betray her sister. She tells Kent that she fell sorry for him, that the whole affair was a lark. He takes her home, leaves, hating her.

HAL GETS HIS ANSWER

CHAPTER XXIII

ANN was alone in the downstairs hall at the telephone when April returned.

"Oh, thank you very much," Ann was saying. "Your congratulations mean a great deal. Yes, I have the message. I'll promise to let you know."

April went on upstairs. Congratulations to the bride! Ann sounded thrilled, elated.

And suddenly April realized that she was more at peace with herself than she had been since the first night she had seen the blinded Kent.

Even when Kent had been ready to jeopardize Ann's future, she had been the one who had saved it. All that was important now was that no one should ever guess the secret, guess the sacrifice she had made.

THE Burnetts had planned a small dance that night for Ann's friends in honor of the coming marriage. Dad, looking handsome in tuxedo, had a few minutes to talk with April before going downstairs to receive the guests.

"You made a fine witness today, Daffy girl," he said.

"And you're the best lawyer I ever had," she tossed back.

"It was Kent and that rookie who brought the hearing to a quick end. Winkie Appleman is a trouble-maker and trouble-makers can be pretty dangerous."

"You don't think he'd dare do any scandal-mongering around town?"

Dad thought not. "At any rate, not for awhile. He's being held for vagrancy and will probably end up spending a few weeks on the county farm."

April was before the mirror, smoothing in flame lipstick, spraying a mist of spiced perfume into her hair. She'd chosen her most dazzling dress for tonight, coral colored velvet with a neck that came high against her throat in front to leave her back a gleaming expanse of opal skin.

"You look mighty sweet," Dad said.

But she knew she didn't. The dress belonged to another part of her life; it set oddly with her white face and frightened eyes.

"I'm celebrating my escape from jail," she said.

"All set for tomorrow?" Dad seemed to be worried about something, anxious to talk to his oldest girl.

"All set?" April answered. "I'm glad Ann dismissed the idea of having a bridesmaid. It would have struck me as funny to have been standing beside the bridegroom in court one day and beside the bride, the next."

Dad looked at her, a question way back in his eyes. But he walked out without saying anything.

DOWNSTAIRS, a white-coated cousin of Octavia's was preparing the punch; clearing the floors; arranging the seats for guests. Three of the boys from the band at Casa Blanca were coming over to furnish the music.

The first person April saw when she went downstairs was Ann.

Ann was the beauty tonight, the shining one of the two sisters. Her dress was of creamy lace, so designed that the neck and shoulders gave a heart-shaped effect. Out of this she emerged ethereal, radiant.

"Ann, our first bride," Mother murmured and it was as if those words expressed Ann's triumph at last from the role of the "plain sister" to that of the glamorous one.

The pianist ran experimental fingers over the keyboard and the accordion player grinned and saluted with the wedding march.

April avoided Kent, danced with young friends and old ones of the family and then, at last, with Hal Parks who hadn't taken his eyes from her all evening.

It was Hal who managed to dance her away to a corner in the hallway. Here, an excellent idea of the florist's had resulted in a small corner, blocked with a fern screen which shut out sight of the guests dancing in the living room and sunporch.

"I think maybe you've danced long enough for your first night out," Hal said.

"Yes, I'm not up to my usual form."

"I was in court today. You came through with what they call flying colors."

"Well, the army saved the day."

"Yes, Hal said with a quick glance, "the army did."

April leaned back against Hal's arm. After while, he looked down at her. "Remember what I said about waiting for you?"

"Yes, Hal."

"Well, I'm still around."

APRIL learned right then that just as two wrongs didn't make a right, nor could a second love take the place of a first.

She had told Kent she was going to marry Hal Parks some day. But she knew now she could never marry him. An empty heart wasn't enough for a person like Hal.

She faced him. "Hal, I never liked any person as sincerely as I do you. I've tried to learn to care for you but that's not love. I wish it were."

Words choked her. She couldn't say anything else. Hal patted her shoulder. He understood as he always did. "If it will make it any easier for you, I've guessed it all along," he said. "I stopped hoping—oh, a long time ago. I think it was the last time we danced together at Casa Blanca."

He tilted her face, brushed his lips lightly across her cheek. Then he stood up. "April, honey, love is slow blooming with some people, but not with you. Love with you is like lightning. It strikes once and fast."

WHEN he'd gone, April still sat in the fern-shielded corner. He bewilderment and not a little unhappiness at the whole uprooting of the house, nosed her out.

April leaned to pat him. "Ever hear those words—'bury the dead'?" Her head began to slump. "Well, that's me, Nip. I've buried it all today."

Kent had said, "You don't know what tears are."

"Maybe I don't," she thought, and felt her hand wet with them. Suddenly, she was on the floor beside Nip, the coral gown as incongruous as a clown's paint, swirled around her. In her soles, she didn't hear footsteps approaching. When she looked up, tears streaking her face, she saw that Ann and Kent were staring at her.

Two good mixers are better than one

There you sit, watching the long road ahead as it dips and rises. Under your feet there's a quiet whispering, to let you know that all eight Buick cylinders are happily on the job.

You're giving not a single thought to what's happening under that long bonnet nosing out in front, but here's what's going on:

Instead of the single, compromise-size carburetor you find on most cars, this Buick FIREBALL eight with Compound Carburetion* has two good mixers on the job.

A single one of them—the front one—keeps you rolling smoothly, easily, quietly, on the very minimum rationing of gasoline.

But the other carburetor is alert and ready for any sudden need. Just tramp down on that accelerator pedal—it goes into instant action, giving you more fuel and more power for any emergency purpose!

It's almost like having two engines—one to handle normal requirements thriftily, another to team up with the first for extra oomph and wallop when you want it.

That kind of teamwork pays.

And owners by the thousand will tell you it's more economical too—as much as 10% to 15% more economical.

If you haven't experienced what it feels like to have that under the bonnet of your automobile, better go have that Buick demonstration now.

Boy Offenders Are Sent To a Ranch

By United Press
SAN FRANCISCO — Juvenile court and probation officials of San Francisco are confident they have found the best solution to date for the rehabilitation of juvenile delinquents in the maintenance of Log Cabin Ranch.

The experiment has been under way for nearly two years. An average of 30 minor offenders at one time work out their "debt to society" on the ranch. From a total of 49, only one, after his return home, has relapsed and become a "repeater." All the others have been living happy, normal lives since.

The experiment was begun in 1939. With funds donated by a foundation, the city purchased a 240-acre ranch near Gualala, in the northern part of the state, located in a woody region. The annual cost of operating the ranch has been about $20,000, including all salaries.

Teachers on Staff
The ranch is supervised by Frank Kelley, who has five assistants, including a junior and senior high school instructor and a recreational director.

"The ranch has provided an ideal outlet for the energy of the boys there," Chief Probation Officer R. B. Miller declared. "Fostering their energy and thoughts are directed to constructive endeavors, and that gives them a financial interest in the success of their own rehabilitating endeavors."

"They perform regular ranch duties and the work of maintenance and the repair of property, and have their own plots of grounds on which to raise vegetables."

"Through bookkeeping transactions, the boys may purchase young calves, sheep or pigs from the ranch, raise them and sell them to the ranch or on the market."

Profits From Stock
"The ranch pays them the prevailing market price for their

COOKING SCHOOL IS A NEW AND STREAMLINED EVENT FOR THE WOMEN

The Happy Kitchen Cooking School, which will present the well known Home Economist, Mrs. Cora Wilson in a series of lectures and cooking demonstrations is a twentieth century streamlined event for modern women.

Every new discovery in the field of home making will be presented to you from the specially equipped kitchen in the Recreation Building where the school will be held on March 10, 11, 12.

Not one item will be overlooked as the lecturer takes you step by step through the problems of marketing, management, short cuts to economy, and new ways to serve meals. Simple, easy little workaday hints will be discussed. New economical discoveries in cookery will be featured. The planning of the kitchen, with modern labor saving devices, to give you more leisure and less work will be presented.

This noted lecturer has spent many years in study and research on the art of home management. She will give each day during the school, the answers to problems in budgeting, marketing, and cooking, which confront our modern homes.

If there are questions concerning the relation of foods or the number of calories to be served each meal; if there are problems of serving new dishes to add variety and balance to the meal, Mrs. Wilson will freely give the answers to the questions during each session of the school.

Don't forget the dates of this outstanding modern event of the year for the home maker, to be held each afternoon in the Recreation Building.

Three cheers! A Portland stick-up man got a dose of his own medicine. He was stuck up for 10 years.
