Military Health Units Are Urged By Health Officer

AUSTIN, Tex.—Establishment of health units in areas where military troops are concentrated has a specific responsibility of the State Health Department in the National Defense Program, Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer, announced.

These health units designed to maintain the health of the civilian population in areas adjacent to military reservations have regular public health control of all territory within a radius of one to fifteen miles from the reservations proper.

The personnel of these units, specially trained in the technique of military and public health, are against insanitary practices, the production and distribution of milk and food supplies, and attention is also given to water supplies and sewage disposal within the area. Housing codes have been set up to minimize hazards which might under ordinary circumstances exist. Permits are required for the construction and its new location of retail establishments within the area showing that sanitary regulations have been complied with in all details.

The control of the communicable diseases is the primary objective in the establishment of these health units. The presence of military personnel within the civilian areas necessitates constant control measures to keep communicable diseases under control and avert any possible epidemics inside the reservations or the surrounding area among the military population.

Full-time public health officers are appointed to areas adjacent to military reservations where established around Camp Bowie, Brownwood, Camp Barkley at Abilene, Camp Wolters at Mineral Wells, and in the five-county area surrounding Camp Hulen at Del Rio. Additional public health personnel has been added to the existing health unit at Corpus Christi for special work in the vicinity surrounding the U. S. Navy Base, and to the health unit at El Paso to serve the territory surrounding Fort Bliss.

It is anticipated that within the next few weeks additional health units will be established in areas of the State where military camps are in existence and in areas where ship yards, airplane factories and other defense establishments necessitate the concentration of large bodies of civilian or military population.

Teachers over the 23 counties of the Oilbelt District are showing interest in the convention program as indicated by the fact that more than eight hundred membership fees have been received by the secretary. The first school in the District to enroll 100 per cent in the association was Fair Park elementary school of Abilene, of which L. T. Nance is principal. Dues for this group were paid in last October. The three hundred odd teachers of the Wichita Falls system have sent in their memberships, and the rural schools of Wichita County, of which J. B. Goldea is superintendent, has enrolled 100 per cent.

The entire system of Sweetwater, including the four elementary schools, junior high and senior high, reports every teacher enrolled in the District organization. Sweetwater is the home of Mr. J. H. Williams, president of District 7. Five of the eight elementary schools in Abilene are reporting 100 per cent to date. They are Fair Park, Locust, Travis, College Heights and Lamar.

One hundred per cent lists have been received from Valley View Independent School District near Iowa Park; from Holliday, Necona, Bomarton, Ranger, Burk Burnett, Electra, Quanah, Seymour, and many smaller schools of the District.

District membership dues are 50c per teacher, and is paid in addition to the $3.00 assessed by the Texas State Teachers Association. The state organization returns 25c of each $3.00 membership to the District Association to assist in carrying on the District program. The major part of the district fund is expended in staging the annual convention which is held in March each year.

Tax Bill Given a Preference Over Social Aid Bills

AUSTIN, March 10.—Advocates of the movement to pass a tax bill before taking any action on Gov. W. Lee O'Daniel's proposed $26,000,000 social security appropriation, which he urged be "frozen" from other state assets, scored a victory in the House of Representatives today.

Notaries Public To Be Re-Named As Terms Expire

County Clerk R. V. Galloway is in receipt of a communication from Wm. J. Lawson, Secretary of State, which advises that all existing Notaries Public will be automatically re-appointed, and that it will not be necessary for anyone now holding a notary commission to send his or her name in for reappointment.

When notification of the appointment has been received by County Clerk Galloway from the Secretary of State, each applicant for a commission will be notified by him and will receive full instructions as to what steps to take in order to qualify.

Persons who are not notaries at the present time, are requested to turn in their names to the County Clerk in time for him to have the application in Austin before May 1st.

The letter from the Secretary of State to Galloway, states that applications for appointment received after May 1st will not be acted upon until after June 1st, 1941, as that office will be extremely busy from May 1 on preparing the lists of appointees.

The appointments to be made June 1st are for a two year term, however it is possible now at any time to get an emergency appointment from the secretary of State, but this appointment will expire on June 1st of this year, at which time they will be automatically reappointed, for the two-year term but will have to again qualify by filing another bond with the county clerk and again taking the oath of office.

Freight Rate War Showdown Near WTC of C States

ABILENE, Tex.—What the West Texas Chamber of Commerce calls the showdown in its long campaign for equalizing the Texas freight rate level with the favored North and East apparently is at hand. The Railroad Commission of Texas has announced hearing for further testimony on its order of May 15, 1940, in which the commission prescribed a vertical reduction of approximately 15 per cent in rates on all goods moving within Texas on class rates. The carriers, opposing the order, have asserted it will cost them a minimum of $15,000,000 a year.

The hearing has been set for Wednesday, March 12. At the week-end it was still undecided whether the sitting will be in Austin or Dallas.

J. S. Bridwell, WTCC president, and D. A. Bandeen, regional chamber manager and executive secretary of its affiliate, the Freight Rate Equality Federation, have been in Austin the past week organizing the WTCC-FREE case for retention of the May 1940 order. They have announced the reemployment of Ed P. Byars as rate expert. Byars represented the two organizations in the original two weeks hearing of mid-summer 1939 out of which came the rate reduction order last May.

The commission's prescription for lower transportation charges in Texas was promptly attacked by the carriers—40 rail and 93 motor transport lines, who employed 15 leading law firms and otherwise prepared for battle on a big scale. Last June 26 this powerful coalition won a respite on petition for reconsideration and rehearing to allow them to present new testimony.

The carriers' resistance of the order is based on contention that freight tonnage in Texas has slipped while operating expense has not. The WTCC-FREE plea is that economic changes, if they have occurred, similarly affect the carriers throughout the nation; that if losses have occurred, similar losses are being taken by producers, shippers and consumers of goods moving in transportation; that the only principle is that of reasonableness and equality of Texas rates in comparison with rates in other sections of the country, and that the relationship of unreasonableness of Texas rates has not changed. The WTCC argues that it is, above all else, wrong in principle to fluctuate freight rates with fluctuating charges in business conditions—and finally, that freight revenues, due largely to movement of goods in national defense projects, are now dizzily increasing instead of decreasing.

Locker Storage Would Cut Food Bills $100 a Year

AUSTIN, Tex.—Wouldn't you like to cut your family food budget by $100 a year?

That's the saving University of Texas engineers figure the average family could make by using locker storage for meats, vegetables and fruits.

At a special Food Preservation Conference, to be held at the University March 13 and 14, detailed information on centrally located frozen food depots—locker plants—will be recited by Texas' most experienced authorities in the field.

Equipment will be described, services outlined for large and small users, for rural and urban communities.

Representatives of industrial concerns who will speak are J. W. Stockham, chief refrigerating engineer, Texas Power and Light Company, Dallas; Capt. Bernard Gusselt, San Antonio Public Service Company, San Antonio; C. A. Smith, Whitten Sales Company, Austin; A. F. Ransney, York Ice Machinery Corporation, Houston.

Other speakers on locker storage are Miss Grace I. Neely, extension service specialist in food preservation, A. & M. College, who will discuss "Locker Storage Uses by the Home-Maker"; P. T. Montfort, also of A. & M.; and W. L. McGill, Governor's Industrialization Committee.

Use of modern refrigeration techniques in the dairy industry, in processing, storing and transporting fruits, vegetables, meats and seafoods will also be discussed by authorities in these fields.

FRANCE WARNS ABOUT BRITISH BLOCKADE OF SHIPS BRINGING FOOD

Mrs. Wilson Well Pleased With Her Cooking Layout

Mrs. Cora Wilson, who is conducting the three-day Happy Kitchen Cooking School for the Ranger Times, in conjunction with a large number of Ranger merchants, arrived in Ranger Sunday to prepare for the three days of activities at the Recreation Building.

Immediately upon her arrival Mrs. Wilson contacted Times representatives and asked about equipment that would be available on the stage of the building where she is to conduct the school. She was delighted with arrangements that had been made which, she said, would assure a splendid opportunity to tell the ladies of this part of the state of the latest in cooking technique.

Mrs. Wilson was particularly elated over the stove, the ice box and the flour, which were the first things she asked about.

"Without good stoves, flour and storage space a cooking school cannot really be a success," she stated in explaining her interest in these three items.

Mrs. Wilson found the Roper Range exactly to her liking, as she had used them in many of her schools and knew their merits. She was equally well pleased with the fact that Gold Chain flour is to be used exclusively and that ample storage space has been provided on the stage through the use of a Montgomery Ward refrigerator.

With these three major items off her mind Mrs. Wilson immediately began preparations for the first session of the cooking school, which began this afternoon at 2 o'clock. Other sessions will be held at the same hour Tuesday and Wednesday.

Heroism Without Heroics

Can death be remarkable in a time like this, when men are dying daily in wholesale heaps from Chungking to Cheren?

Yes. What heroisms are hidden between the lines of casualty lists, what unseen deeds of selflessness are daily fare in hall of England's cities, on Albanian mountain slopes, or in the glaring Libyan deserts, we cannot know.

Dr. Matias Duque is dead. He seized the privilege of dying with a difference.

Dr. Duque was a Havana physician, at one time Cuba's director of public health. As a physician, he was accustomed to look death in the face.

His mother, then his wife, died of cancer. Then he knew that he had an enemy more worthy than any who had ever received his challenge.

He volunteered to be inoculated with cancerous tissue, to make of himself a human guinea pig, in the hope that study of a case from its first inception would reveal a means of fighting this dread disease which has yielded so slowly to the assault of the medical profession.

This was three years ago. Soon it became apparent that Dr. Duque's last challenge had been accepted. For three years the fight has gone on, his fellow physicians recording closely every phase of the struggle in hope that the challenged disease would at some point reveal a path to its own conquest.

Death and disease won this victory. Dr. Duque is dead, dying in the tradition of his Cuban colleague who helped defeat yellow fever, and of thousands of other physicians who have knowingly given their lives to save others.

All men must die. But not all are given the boon of dying in the forefront of a battle against the enemies of man.

The 15 tons of metal fence taken from Parliament square in London to be made into war munitions ought to help spike any German invasion.

'What Makes You Think We Might Attack You?'

SERIAL STORY

DRAFTED FOR LOVE

BY RUTH AYERS

COPYRIGHT, 1941, NEA SERVICE, INC.

YESTERDAY, Ann accused April of being in love with Kent. But there is no bitterness in her heart—only admiration for April's attempt to protect her sister's happiness.

APRIL ENLISTS FOR LIFE CHAPTER XXV

"DEAR April—I'm on my way back to New York. Yesterday when you came in from the hearing in court, I was talking on the telephone. It was a call from New York. Vivano told me the night of the audition that I would never make a concert singer, that I didn't have the voice to become a truly great contralto.

"But someone else was at the audition that night who felt rather differently about it. Through this friend, I had an offer yesterday for a contract on a radio program. Oh, I may never be the famous song-bird I hoped but this will mean a career in music, and that's all I ask.

"I wasn't quite sure what my answer would be yesterday but I knew last night. "April, you would have kept quiet the rest of your life to spare me, but there were other things entering into it. Kent's Aunt Elizabeth—a frightening old person, isn't she—let something slip. She liked you, April.

"And Kent himself. When I saw his face last night after we had found you crying, I had the real answer. "I thought I loved Kent, and at first I was jealous because I suspected you had fallen in love with him yourself. But Kent and I had quarreled once about my singing and we would have quarreled again. That's why this chance to sing gives me a way out.

"I've left another note for Mother and Dad because explanations wouldn't have done my good at this eleventh hour. "There's only one request I want to make of you. You must be the one to tell Kent.

"Please believe me when I say this finds me in seventh heaven. My hope is that you'll be there, too—with Kent. Ever your sister—Ann."

FOR a long time, April held the letter.

If it had been written a week ago, a day ago, it would have changed the future. Now it had come too late.

Yesterday she had told Kent she had masqueraded at love—carried through the pretense just as a lark. A lark!

He hated her. He despised her. Nothing could change that.

She went downstairs to telephone him. The quickest way would be the easiest in the end. "Kent?"

"Yes, Ann—I've been up for hours. Sort of thought I'd hear from you."

April steadied the receiver. Kent had called her Ann. All right, let him think she was Ann until she had told him herself that Ann had gone away. He might not even see her if she said she was April.

"I'm taking the roadster out. I'll be by for you in a few minutes."

"Fine," he said. "That will be fine." But he didn't say it in the same glad, ringing voice as on that day when she had phoned him before their drive to the windmill farm.

AS she drove up the hill in the car, the sky was still streaked in the east with copper and gold. And there was a certain fragrance in the air. Almost like spring, she thought, even though the calendar was still at January.

He was waiting at the gate and when he saw that she was April, curlew yellow hair, rakish beret and jaunty coat, he strode angrily to the car.

"Another one of your masquerades?"

"No—no, it isn't."

"Where's Ann?"

"That's what I came to tell you." He leaned hard against the car door. "What do you mean? Has she gone away?"

"Yes—to New York. She left me a letter."

"If this is one of your ideas of charm and cleverness—"

"Please, Kent," she begged, and the way she said it must have impressed itself on him because he stood up and the grim lines left his mouth.

"Tell me the rest, all of it."

"She had a chance to sing. A wonderful contract. She thought it would mean more to her than—well, than marriage. Maybe you can reach her by telephone. Maybe you can get her back. Planes will be flying today and the wedding isn't until 5 o'clock."

Kent kept silent for what seemed an endless time. Then he said, "No, if she wants it to be like that I wouldn't try to get her back. I have a feeling it's for the best."

As she looked at him, April had the impression that Kent wore an expression, almost of relief.

April shifted gears, started the motor. "I'll hurry along," she said. "There'll be things to be done at home. I'm sorry, Kent, it had to turn out this way."

In another instant the roadster would shoot down the hill again, turning its back on Kent and the gloomy old house, this time for all time.

"Don't go yet," Kent said. "There's something else you wanted to say?"

"You might tell Ann when you write that I want her to be happy. And also, that as long as there'll be no wedding, I'm returning to camp."

"Yes, I'll tell her—and good luck, Kent."

"Thanks—and to you, April. You deserve the best. I had you all wrong. April, right from the first when I called you the Gilt-terbell."

Suddenly, April switched off the throbbing engine. "Kent Carter," she said, "we're talking here like strangers, making up polite conversation. I don't want your good luck! I don't want you to say you were sorry or that you had me all wrong!"

The April storm was rising in her at last. She began to pound her hands on the steering wheel. Kent reached over and in some way was beside her.

"What do you want?" he asked. "You! Yes, of course! Last night when I told Hal Parks I could never marry him, he said that with some people love might be slow blooming, but with me it was like lightning that struck once—and fast. Don't you see, Kent? It struck me that night I met you at the train."

"April—April, darling!"

HE kissed her recklessly, dizzily, and right in the full view of the gingerbread Carter house where no doubt the gingery old great-sun could see.

Then he eyed the April of the blue eyes and the daffodil curls with a certain wondering curiosity. "Some day," he said, "you can tell me the whole story from beginning to end."

"I can tell you now," she answered. "It is that I was drafted for love. The end is well, that's just it. The end is well. I've enlisted for... time."

Educator Says the Way of Breathing Brings On Disease

WILMINGTON, Del. — Prof. Godfrey Rodriguez believes he has the remedy to save mankind. Rodriguez wants to revolutionize man's method of breathing. The professor holds that man should breathe like animals. Such method utilizes the stomach as a bellows forcing the air upward and fully expanding the lungs. Rodriguez wants to teach school children his method of respiration. He contends that he himself is immune to all respiratory diseases because of stomach breathing. He has a chest capable of being expanded from 47 to 54 inches. Rodriguez invoked 480 Biblical references to support his theory. He said that they illustrated that correct breathing not only produces good health, but also personal godliness.

Court Holds Man To His Wife's Contract

ATLANTA, Ga.—A Fulton county court decision may result in a series of contracts being signed between wife and husband. Mr. and Mrs. Leland O'Callaghan, of Atlanta, had signed a contract in which he agreed to pay her $200 a month to operate their home. O'Callaghan got behind in his payments and his wife sued him. After eating breakfast together the two appeared in court—each represented by an attorney. Judge T. O. Hathcock ruled that O'Callaghan had signed away his rights as head of the household when he put his signature to the contract and ordered him to pay his wife the arrears money up to date.

Marine Enlistments Will Reach a Peak During This Month

DALLAS, Tex.—Enlistments in the U. S. Marine Corps are expected to reach a new peak during the month of March, Major John D. O'Leary, officer in charge of the Dallas Recruiting Office announced today. It was only a week or two ago that the lid was lifted for recruiting in the Marines and since that time a steady stream of men have been passing through the District Recruiting Office in Dallas. These men are enlisted in Dallas and sent by train to San Diego, California, for their initial training. An opportunity to enlist in the Marines with active duty only during the present national emergency, is being offered now for those young men between the ages of 18 and 30 years, who are single, and have not yet been called for selective service. These men may enlist in Class III (c) of the Marine Corps Reserve, with immediate assignment to active duty, as the regular Marines. Major O'Leary stated they will not be subject to call for selective service while serving in the Reserve. In the event the Marine Corps is enlarged, they will have an opportunity of transferring to the regular service.

When asked how the youths of Texas responded to the call for volunteer enlistments, Major O'Leary said, "When the Marines have landed and have the situation well in hand, you may rest assured that Texas will be represented there." Young men desiring information may apply or write to the U. S. Marine Corps Recruiting Station, 400 U. S. Terminal Annex Building, Dallas, Texas. Other Marine Corps Recruiting Stations in Texas are located in Austin, Fort Worth, Houston and San Antonio.

CHAPTER I

BEATRICE HUNTINGTON DAVENPORT was 20 years old. She had a shining, dark brown silk coat. She had a trim, black limousine. She had a chauffeur to drive it from one night club to another, from New York to Newport and down to the pier when she went off on a cruise.

She had a big white house on Indian Creek, in Miami Beach, Florida. She had a 10-room apartment here in New York, on Park Avenue, where three maids did nothing but wait on Beatrice. She had four room-size closets full of evening dresses, sports clothes, lounging pajamas, costume ensembles. There were racks full of shoes and shelves of hats.

Beatrice Huntington Davenport had stocks and bonds and real estate. And she had an immense, sprawling store that extended in a solid square from Fifth Avenue to Sixth. It was eight stories high, crammed to the doors with exactly the same sort of things Beatrice had at home.

She had a tight-lipped man whose pictures appeared sometimes in the columns of morning newspapers (but she had never bothered to meet him herself) whom the trust company had appointed as general superintendent of the department store. Only this morning she'd seen his narrowed eyes looking out at her from the paper. "The Man Behind Huntington's" read the caption. Beatrice smiled.

The man behind Huntington's had always been—and was now, in his jealously laid down policies

Behind her, the door to Mr. Weeming's office remained a little ajar. She heard a young man's voice. . . "She's the world's most useless object." She was suddenly angry. She wanted to slap that hateful, smug face.

and far-sighted provisions—her other men she knew—the ones who were poor but proud and worked very hard at blueprints so they might eventually build bridges; or grubbed along in some dingy office, so that some day they'd be a third vice president. No, Clarence said, with engaging frivolity, "A million dollars, these is not saved out of a pittance, oh? What I could earn, it would be pathetic. Me, I prefer visiting. My bossesses have invariably been so lovely! How was it, I did not see you in Hawaii?"

The Frothinghams had just returned from Hawaii, where Clarence had been their house guest. Beatrice knew that Clarence was supposed to be the property of Mimi Frothingham. So she said, "I wasn't there, but I'm here now."

And his black eyes looked down into hers while they danced. Mimi Frothingham frowned, from the side lines. And two hours later, Beatrice knew that Clarence was supposed to be the property of Mimi Frothingham. So she said, "I wasn't there, but I'm here now."

RIGHT now, in his office on the 45th floor of a skyscraper on Rockefeller Plaza, Mr. Curtis Weeming was writing a report, rubbing his dry little hands. Mr. Curtis Weeming was pleading, "But Miss Davenport, this is incredible! Miss Davenport, I must protest! Miss Davenport, I simply cannot allow—"

"Not, Mr. Weeming!" said Beatrice Huntington Davenport. She sat in a brown leather chair, with her slim silken knees crossed. The mink coat was carelessly thrown back. A cunningly contrived top-knot of mink perched on her golden curls, and her red lips smiled. "You tell those armed-climbers behind those chromium grilles in that trust company to pay that check—and pay it now! Clarence must have those polo ponies. This delay is silly!"

Clarence, you see, was her fiancé. The rest of his name was Fernando di Grandezzi. Clarence was dark, and tall, and fascinating. "Your grandfather always said positively you had enough of his blood to be practical!" wailed Mr. Weeming. "Oh, Miss Davenport, when I remember how he used to say, 'She's got my chin! She's no weaking, that girl! No pretty-boy's going to flim-flam her—she won't go marrying any counts or

Americas Mark Unity On April 14

By United Press

WASHINGTON.—The 21 American republics will celebrate April 14 as Pan American Day, as they have for the past 10 years.

Commemoration of that event will take various forms in each country, with the theme of peace, friendship and solidarity among the 21 nations uppermost.

The Pan American Union, which is the international organization of the Americas, has prepared considerable material to facilitate the preparation of programs appropriate for Pan American Day. This year it has prepared a series of Poster Stamps, so that our people may better "know the Americas." These stamps feature the extensive list of material which the Pan American Union has announced for Pan American Day, and which includes plays and pageants, biographies, short stories, and literature on different phases of Inter-American relations.

The Poster Stamps, 2 inches by 1 1/2 printed in four-color off-set process, will disclose 24 subjects of interest in the 21 republics.

Depleted are such outstanding subjects as "The Christ of the Andes" towering above the mountainous skyline of Argentina and "Chile; the Mexican Chicken Iza; the silent enigmatic robe of acivilization that flourished before Europe knew of the New World; the Falls of the Angel, mightier than Niagara; the Citadel of Christophe in Haiti, begun in 1806, 3,090 feet above the sea, to defend the Western Hemisphere against encroachments from the Old World and other Inter-American features are depicted.

This 1941 series of 24 Poster Stamps and an attractive descriptive album for mounting will be offered at 15 cents per unit mailed anywhere within the scope of the Pan American Postal Union and Canada, post paid; or at 20 cents each if purchased in lots of 20 or more units at one time. Views of the Press On Safety Needs

"The Senate of Texas has an opportunity to promote the safety of every person using Texas roads and highways, and to cut down materially the frightful loss of life and the terrible toll of property damage occurring annually from motor traffic accidents. . . . By enacting the measure, Texas will join the lengthening list of states placing in effect a uniform traffic safety code. . . . The bill was approved by the House, the fee for drivers of privately owned and operated vehicles would be only 75 cents. This is the equivalent of five gallons, or less, of gasoline, and cannot fairly be construed as a tax upon the poor. . . ."—Austin Daily Tribune.

"If the Texas Senate will just follow through now that the House has passed the more stringent driver's license law, and if both houses will do something about giving the Highway Patrol enough men and money to do its gigantic job properly, then this state will be getting somewhere in long list in the matter of traffic safety."—Waco Times Herald.

"One of this state's primary needs is enlargement of the Texas highway patrol. In recent years accidents on Texas roads have shown a close relationship with the size of this force. When the number of patrolmen was increased, serious accidents were lessened; when the force was cut, accidents mounted. If the legislators place a high value on Texas lives, they will have to double the patrol from its present reduced strength."—Dallas Morning News.

"A number of reasons can be given for this tremendous casualty list in Texas but the underlying cause is the antiquity of our traffic regulations. . . . Texans are paying for the refusal of its legislature to correct this situation with broken bodies and cashes. . . . Texas needs a standard driver's license law with teeth in it. A license law which will sort out the unfit from the fit to drive and one which can be enforced. . . . At least 200 additional patrolmen are needed in the state to insure anywhere near adequate enforcement of highway laws. Twice that many are needed to bring the Texas highway patrol personnel on a par with those of other states."—Hove Messenger.

WHERE WILL LEASE-LEND BILL LEAVE SOUTH AMERICA? PROBABLY WITH NO PLACE TO BUY ARMS

BY PETER EDSON
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON—A few new angles on U. S. relations with South America have bobbed up as the European and Oriental comets of crises move along their orbits with blinding swiftness.

Principally, there is puzzlement as to where the lease-lend bill will leave the South Americans. If South America is to be the big thing, and a large part of the U. S. defense effort is intended to prevent Venezuela, then where, the South Americans wonder, will help come from for them.

Argentina, for instance, not so very long ago decided to abandon German, French and British planes for its airforce, and standardize on American aircraft—because the United States would be able to make deliveries. But the Argentine republic has had an order on file with U. S. plane makers for months, and hasn't been able to get deliveries.

To the charge that South America is being dominated by the Nazis now, the Sud Americans reply that they have more fear of what the fifth column will do in the United States than they have in Latin American republics.

BRAZILIANS SAY THEY CHECK NAZIS
THERE has been particular concern about Nazi penetration in Brazil, but the Brazilians claim that they have a much better "frangibility" on the German menace than have the people of the United States. German pamphletting and newspapers in the United States go practically unchecked, but whenever a German language newspaper in Brazil prints foreign news, it is required to print in the next column a literal translation in Portuguese, Brazilian national language.

Similarly, all radio broadcasts in Portuguese or German, to the German people of Brazil, are restricted almost entirely to music and entertainment. News bulletins they like to tell of the time a blizzard struck Austin during a legislative session and resulted in passage of a law requiring vestibules on street cars.

Something similar happened for the pending bill to strengthen the driving license law at this session. Just as a senate committee had finished a hearing on the bill and members were leaving the capitol they heard a resounding series of crashes.
Around the capitol drive whizzed a water truck, zig-zagging from side to side, crashing against parked cars and curbs at high speed. The truck sped Corriggan-like down a one-way drive and into Congress Avenue, where it barely missed two pedestrians.
Col. Homer Garrison, Jr., director, and Fred Hickman, assistant director of the Department of Public Safety, leaped into a taxi and pursued the truck, but lost it in traffic. They returned to the

Promoter Out To Put Dignity Into Wrestling Game

By United Press
MONTREAL. — Despite the late Rudyard Kipling and his opinion that the female of the species is more deadly than the male, Promoter Eddie Quinn says that women wrestlers are out as far as Montreal and eastern Canada is concerned.
Quinn came out flat-footed and asserted that even if the police morality squad was not willing to frown upon the pastime, he was but give the sport a black eye," announced Quinn. "They neither enhance the beauty of the town nor give a demonstration that can really be called wrestling. Sure it's true that they attract a certain clientele, but those people go just to see something different, not to see first class sport. I know a couple of fellows who are paying alimony who enjoy it for another reason. In their mind they see the ex-wife being tossed for a loop.
"It has been a tough task," he went on, "to bring wrestling in Montreal up to the standard it has attained and as far as I am concerned I am in no mood to promote anything that uses the name "wrestling" as a camouflage for something that really belongs in a sideshow."
Asked what he thought of grapplers strutting their ability in rings filled with mud, Quinn granted, "If people want to see that kind of thing they will go to a picture show where a couple of slapstick comedians are strutting their stuff. As far as the wrestling fraternity in this part of the world is concerned, "mud bath" wrestling also belongs in the sideshow category and I don't think for one minute the sport's loving public has any more desire for it than I have."

"Carpebag" Bonds Bought
By United Press
MONTGOMERY, Ala. Alabama has just purchased another $26,000 in "carpebag" bonds for its sinking fund, bringing the total bought to approximately $75,000 since last year. The state expects eventually to retire $8,500,000 of the bonds, issued during Reconstruction days by so-called "carpebag" legislatures.

Corn Stalks Tested

For a New Rubber

By United Press
PEORIA, Ill.—Automobile tires made from corn stalks sound like a strange dream, but it may become a reality if experiments being conducted at the new research laboratory here prove successful.
Department of Agriculture scientists are investigating the possibility of producing synthetic rubber from the stalks or other fibrous residue of corn. They hope to better both in quality and cost the synthetic material now manufactured from chemicals.

Five Youths Are Chosen On Orchestra

AUSTIN, Tex.—Five young Texas musicians were chosen in a state-wide audition here today to appear before Leopold Stokowski when he visits Dallas March 8 to select members of the 1941 All-American Youth Orchestra...

The State Selection Committee, after hearing 22 contestants from ten cities, chose the following for an audition before Stokowski: Joe Moseley, trumpet, Ft. Worth; Raymond A. Rike, clarinet, Austin; and Alfred Villani, English horn, Vithold Kusheika, viola, and Philmore Gilbert, tympani, all of Houston.

The five Texas contestants will appear before Stokowski together with state audition winners from Oklahoma, Louisiana and Arkansas, Kellam said.

The 22 musicians appearing in the state audition were selected by local committees named by Kellam, who also appointed the state committee, consisting of Miss Nell Farmlay, State Department of Education state supervisor of public school music; Hendrik Baystendorp, Austin symphony conductor; Homer Ulrich, The University of Texas, symphony conductor; and Anthony Donato, associate professor of violin at The University of Texas.

OUT OUR WAY BY WILLIAMS

Magician To Be Presented Here By Local Lions Club

Moreno, "The Merry Magician" who is appearing Thursday night at the Recreation Building under the sponsorship of the Lions Club is considered one of the best magicians in America, with more than ten years as a professional entertainer behind him. During this time he has appeared in every state in the union and in sixteen foreign countries. He has given more than 3,000 performances before more than 1,500,000 people. He has played before many notables, including Presidents Coolidge and Hoover and has given command performances before royalty. One of his oddest performances was in a submarine in Guantanamo Bay in Cuba, and he claims to be the only magician to ever pull rabbits out of a U-boat. Numbered among his friends are every well known magician of the past two decades, including the late Harry Houdini and Howard Thurston.

One of his pet tricks is the famous "Houdini Needle Trick." Some member of the audience places fifteen needles and a length of thread on his tongue. Yes, you guessed it, they all come out threaded and only his tonsils know how! Appearing at the U. S. Naval Hospital in Washington, D. C., with President Coolidge in the audience Moreno borrowed the president's watch. Placing it in a bag he apparently smashed it to bits, the pieces rattled and jingled and then with a flourish Moreno opened the bag and poured the watch into the president's hands—but the flourish died. It just couldn't be but there it was, the crystal was cracked. After suffering a minute that seemed an hour "Silent Cal" broke down and confessed it had been cracked for months. Moreno's entire show moves at a smooth, brisk pace, carefully planned into a program that is sparkling with humor, tinged with mystery and with an abundance of good clean comedy. He is truly entitled to use the name "The Merry Magician." His acts have won unlimited praise from all kinds of critics, the press, school authorities, ministers and influential men in all walks of life. A Jack Gordon, columnist for the Fort Worth Press puts it, "Here is a guy you just can't afford to miss." The Lions are fortunate to be able to bring Moreno to Ranger at this time.

Bang-Up Style

Forward bangs and forward pompadours are hair style news this spring. The coiffure above has a deep shallow wave that softens the Merry Widow pompadour and soft rolls at the sides that fill in that awkward, empty space directly behind the ears—an altogether youthful and especially becoming hair-do to wear with off-the-face hats, such as this Sally Victor rough straw bound with grosgrain ribbon.

Nearly one-half of the twenty-one million American youths between sixteen and twenty-four live on farms or in villages. He searched through the mountains for years but never found a trace of his tribe. Bones found in one of the deserted canyons years later were reputed to have been his. The belief lives among remaining Indian tribes of the sector that the lost chief still strides the mountains in the wind, searching for his lost tribe, wailing through the canyons and screaming from the tops of the peaks into the wind.

Big Bend Mountain Named By Indians

MARFA, Tex.—Chisos, name of the rugged mountains where the proposed Big Bend National Park is to be located, south of here, means ghosts in Indian dialect. The name comes from a curious legend of the ghost of an Indian chief whose haunting of the range adds to touch of supernatural belief to the picturesque scenery of the region. The Indian chief supposedly ruled a mighty tribe, but marauding Indians from across the border captured him. After years of imprisonment and torture the

'Bill for Schools' Is Worked Out By A Regional Group

LONGVIEW, Texas.—The Bill for Schools, a comprehensive statistical study of the important facts about schools and their cost in Texas, compiled by the Tax Department of the East Texas Chamber of Commerce, has just been published in booklet form, and is available for distribution to interested persons on request to the Chamber's Longview office. The report gives a comprehensive picture of the financial and other pertinent figures of the Texas public school system, and the higher educational institutions of the state, over a period of several years. It shows the current operating expense, average enrollment and attendance figures, value of the school plant, source of school revenue, division of revenue between State and local sources, and per capita income payments, and compares each of these items in Texas with corresponding items in other Southern states and with the average for all of the States. It also includes a summary of the recommendations offered by the Governor's special commission for reorganization of the State school system, after an exhaustive study, including such changes as appointment of the State Superintendent by the State Board of Education, with a division of policy-forming and administrative duties; appointment of County Superintendents by County School Boards; division of financial support between State and local
