GOVERNMENT MEDIATORS SEEKING SETTLEMENT OF A MOST SERIOUS STRIKE

By United Press
Federal government mediators redoubled their efforts today to settle strikes at the Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing company, and the Harvill Die Casting Corp. plants, most serious of the 29 labor disputes in progress in national defense industries.

Workers at the Edgewater, N. J., plant of the Aluminum company of America prepared to vote on a request from associate director Sidney Hillman of the Office of Production Management that they return to work on orders for sheet aluminum essential to aircraft production, AFL building tradesmen returned to work on the Wright Field U. S. Army test laboratory construction project at Dayton, O.

Sen. George W. Norris, Ind. Neb., called upon the presidents of the American Federation of Labor and the Congress of Industrial Organizations to condemn publicly what he described as the practice of charging exorbitant initiation fees against workers seeking union membership to work on defense projects.

President Roosevelt was reported to have authorized strong action if necessary to settle the strike of 7,800 United Automobile Workers (CIO) members at the Milwaukee Allis-Chalmers plant. The strike has delayed production of navy equipment and powder plant machinery 60 days despite several attempts by the OPM and the conciliation service to arrange a settlement in conferences at Washington and Milwaukee.

Army, navy, labor department and OPM officials were studying various methods that might be employed to reopen the huge plant and there were suggestions that the government might consider taking over the plant. However, government officials were reported reluctant to exert such authority while a possibility remained for settlement of the dispute, which centered around demands for union security.

Thomas F. Burns, OPM consultant, was at Los Angeles where he expected "to get things straightened out quickly" in the strike of 350 CIO die casters demanding higher wages at the Harvill Die Casting plant at Inglewood. The strike threatened to shut down all west coast airplane factories, which produce 45 per cent of the nation's aircraft output.

Ground work for a settlement of the dispute was believed reached at the first conference between management and union representatives under direction of Burns. The mediator told dispirited strikers they could "expect early, concrete action" because the strike was impairing national defense.

The National Labor Relations Board announced 175 CIO steel workers had agreed to return to work at the San Francisco plant of the Edwards Wire Rope Co., ending a strike begun Wednesday in demand of bargaining recognition and a contract. The company has army and navy contracts, company and union officials agreed to a bargaining election and the firm agreed to recognize the CIO union if it won the election.

There were no developments in a strike of 2,250 UAW-CIO members at four General Motors Corp. plants at Oakland, Calif., which disrupted production of 35 military trucks a day.

Conferences were scheduled in a strike of 1,500 CIO steel workers at the Universal Cyclops Steel Corp., Bridgeville, Pa., plant, which produces steel for warplane spellers.

FORT WORTH, Tex.—"Was it that I saw?" "Madam, I'm Adam." It was the class in logic at Texas Christian University recitation.

BRITISH BOMB GERMAN BASES DURING NIGHT

LONDON, Mar. 22.—British planes heavily bombed the great German submarine and naval base at Lorient, on the French invasion coast, for several hours during the night, the air ministry said today.

"Many high explosive bombs were aimed at gaps in the clouds" the air ministry said. "They were seen to burst in various parts of the harbor, on a wet dock, to the west of the dock and on the western bank of the river where two violent explosions were observed."

It was the 49th raid on Lorient and the third in successive nights. Latest types of super-bombers dropped many unusually heavy bombs and the raid was both intensive and highly successful.

Docks at Osten also were attacked during the night despite the bad weather which restricted Royal Air Force offensive operations.

The air ministry disclosed that planes of the coastal command attacked German warships and supply vessels off the Frisian Islands and Helgoland Bight on the North Sea German Coast by daylight yesterday.

Coastal command planes also bombed a tanker, escorted by warships, off the Belgian Coast, a Norwegian railroad dock near Egersund, coastal motor boats and a Norwegian airdrome.

WASHINGTON, Mar. 22.—Ruth Egoscue, 22-year-old war department clerk, lay on a hospital cot today—either refusing to tell or not knowing where she was from the time she disappeared early Wednesday until she was found unconscious and suffering from exposure in a park last night.

Hospital authorities said the pretty brunette talked to the extent of identifying herself and telling of buying a meal last night, but became hysterical when she sought to determine where she had been the past two days.

They said there was no evidence that she had been harmed. She is being treated, they added, for extreme nervousness and exposure.

Miss Egoscue arrived last Saturday from her home in Forest Grove, Ore., to accept a job in the Air Corps Division of the War Department as a typist. On reporting Monday, she was assigned to work on war department maps and spent two days at that task before she disappeared.

Big Blow for National Defense

Women complete windings of stationary part of a 40,000-horsepower motor to spin a fan that will create winds of hurricane velocity in Wright Field's wind tunnel near Dayton, O. Army planes will be tested by fan being assembled at Westinghouse Pittsburgh plant.

Medical History Is Made By a Youth Who Lay Injured Eight Days With Out Food or Water And Yet Lives

GLASGOW, Scotland, March 22.—Medical history was made today by the survival of John Cormack, 22, who lay for eight days injured, unable to move without food or water, in the debris of a bombed tenement building.

When they finally reached him, Cormack greeted rescuers with a grin.

At a hospital today he was reported "resting very comfortably after a good night."

Until now it had been believed, that four or five days was the limit of man's endurance without water, and Black's Medical Dictionary, under the heading "fasting," says persons subjected to the worst combinations, deprived of food, given little water, exposed to severe cold and forced to make great muscular effort, cannot live "more than two or three days."

Cormack endured all these conditions except the muscular effort and physicians believed his survival might be explained by the fact that he was pinned down in such a way he could not move, hence every particle of energy was conserved. His calm courage apparently reduced his mental and physical anguish, helping conserve his energy, keeping him in a state akin to hibernation.

Another amazing thing was that Frederick Clark, 32, had been taken alive from the same wreckage a few hours earlier, after seven and a half days of entrapment without food or water, although Clark died a few hours after his rescue. He, too, was conscious when rescuers reached him, and gave rescuers instructions on how to release him.

Only tremendous will power kept the men alive, physicians said.

Rescuers were digging casually through the tenement debris, hunting for bodies, and had just removed a woman's body when they heard Clark's moans. Hope long ago had been abandoned that anyone could have survived the destruction of the building in the raid last week.

BRITISH AID IS APPROVED IN COMMITTEE

By WILLIAM H. LAWRENCE
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Mar. 22.—The Senate Appropriations committee today unanimously approved the $7,000,000,000 war-aid appropriations bill, which includes funds to build 10,700 more American airplanes for Great Britain in the next two years.

Senate debate on the bill will begin Monday. Leaders hope to pass it then by an overwhelming majority.

The committee rejected a motion by Sen. Gerald P. Nye, R., N. D., to cut the appropriation in half, but instead reported the measure to the senate in the identical form that it was introduced and passed by the house.

If no amendments are adopted by the senate—and it appeared that none would be—the measure will be flown to President Roosevelt in mid-week for his signature at sea aboard the yacht Potomac.

The bill provides: $2,054,000,000 for aircraft and aeronautical material; $1,350,000,000 for agricultural, industrial and other commodities; $1,343,000,000 for ordnance and ordnance stores; $762,000,000 for facilities and equipment for manufacturing defense articles; $362,000,000 for tanks and other motorized equipment; $260,000,000 for miscellaneous military equipment; $200,000,000 for testing, inspecting, repairing, and outfitting defense articles for foreign governments; $50,000,000 for administrative expenses.

The disclosure that the aircraft fund would provide 10,700 planes was said to have been made by defense production director William S. Knudsen and other defense chiefs in secret sessions before the senate appropriations sub-committee which completed work on the $7,000,000,000 bill yesterday.

CITY SOON TO GET MACHINES TO DO PAVING

At the regular meeting of the Ranger City Commission, started Tuesday night and continued until Saturday morning, it was voted Saturday to authorize C. J. Moore, street commissioner, to procure equipment with which a street paving program can be carried out. The project already has obtained federal approval, and needs only procurement of equipment by the city and cooperation of property owners.

Equipment needed by the city includes a small rock crusher, equipped with screens and conveyors; a seven ton street roller, an asphalt pug mill to mix asphalt and crushed rock, asphalt storage tanks and two or three steel dump beds for trucks.

Work on this project has been in progress for several months, with arrangements being made to start work as soon as the equipment can be procured.

Income Payments So Far In March Well Above 1940

WASHINGTON, Mar. 22.—Income tax payments during the first 20 days of March totaled $1,139,384,637—more than $500,000,000 above the $621,448,616 deposited during the corresponding period last year—the treasury said today.

The collections covered the tax on 111,940 incomes, due in part or in whole on March 15.

The treasury reported that $81,910,713 of the $1,139,384,637 represented excess profits tax payments under the excess profits levy enacted last year.

This year's figure was termed "amazingly high" by treasury officials, and far exceeded previous estimates of $900,000,000 to $1,000,000,000.

Officials said that the total represented payments deposited or mailed before the deadline of midnight, March 15. Some officers were so swamped with returns that it took four or five days for an accurate tabulation to be made.

The increases were spread generally through the 48 states, Hawaii and Alaska, and were traceable in large part to the reduction in exemptions and the 10 per cent super tax for defense charges this year.

Exemptions for a single man were reduced from $1,000 to $800 while the exemption for a married man dropped from $2,500 to $2,000.

Strip Teaser Is Speaker At Class At Columbia U.

NEW YORK, Mar. 22.—You can learn more about life-in-the-rain in a burlesque theater in one month than you can learn in college in a year.

Strip-teaser Margie Hart proved that to everyone's satisfaction last night in a lecture on "Comparative Sex Appeal Ratings of Students" at Columbia University. The lecture was sponsored by the Columbia Players.

"Look at me," Miss Hart said. "I never went to college. Yet here I am, giving a lecture to a group of college students. Did you ever hear of a college student giving a lecture to a group of strip-teasers?"

No one had, although several students expressed the opinion it would be good work if you could get it.

"The average college student," Miss Hart continued, "would get a much broader education if he had to take a course that required him to attend a burlesque show every day for six months."

Miss Hart originally intended to discuss "Communism, the colleges, and strip-teasing." Her thesis was to have been that strip-teasing, if introduced to colleges, would drive out communism.

Bethlehem Steel Is Threatened With Big Labor Strike

BETHLEHEM, Pa., Mar. 22.—The giant Bethlehem Steel Corporation, working on $1,500,000,000 in defense orders, was threatened with a walkout today at its parent plant here.

The C. I. O. steel workers organizing committee served notice on company officials and Sidney Hillman, associate director of the office of production management, that a strike will be called on Monday unless the firm calls off an election of officers next week for the employees' representation plan, characterized by a company union by the N. L. R. B.

Howard T. Curtis, local SWOC director, said the CIO members demanded "action" when ballot boxes, draped with American flags, made their appearances in various departments of the mill last week for the nomination of officers of the ERP.

The NLRB ordered Bethlehem to disestablish the organization 19 months ago. The firm has an appeal pending in the federal courts.

Potatoes Grown From Seed To Get Tests On Plains

LURBOCK—First Texas experiment in growing potatoes for seed will be started this spring on the high plains, Dr. A. W. Young, head professor of plant industry at Texas Tech, said today. Plans for seven growers to begin seed potato growing were approved at the West Texas meeting of certified seed growers on Texas Tech campus last week.

Test plots will be planted at Hurford, Texline, Olton and Plainview, Young said. Standards for growers have been written to comply with the field seed certification law in Texas.

"Although 50,000 acres of potatoes were grown in Texas for table use last year," he explained, "this is the state's first experiment in growing them for seed. Seed for stock will be brought from other approved states—Montana, Idaho, and possibly the Dakotas.

The high plains were chosen by the state seed and plant board for the tests because it is a high, dry, relatively cool region, which means potatoes may be raised here freer from disease than in wetter areas. Irrigation is a necessary part of the plan.

"Average yield ought to be around 200 bags per acre," Young said. "Average price per 100-pound bag for potatoes sold as food is $1.25. Seed potatoes that are certified bring more than double this price."

State seed and plant board members besides Young, who met with growers last week, were E. P. Humbert, head of the department of genetics at Texas A. and M. college; R. V. Miller of Austin, chief of field seed certification; and J. F. Rosborough, extension horticulturist at College Station. W. A. Goeth of Abilene, field seed inspector for this section, was also present.

Applications are made through the office of Dr. Young, who will act as advisor.

Private Initiative In Oil Industry Can Serve Defense

SAN ANTONIO, Texas—National defense is best served by the petroleum industry under a system of private initiative and development, George A. Hill Jr., vice-president of the South Texas Chamber of Commerce, declared here Friday night at the chamber's fourth annual oil men's jubilee. The jubilee honored H. R. Cullen of Houston.
"National defense and national welfare are best promoted and served by the extensive and efficient development of petroleum, an essential and indispensable weapon of national defense, through the media of private capital, initiative and management in a free competitive system, capable of quick mobilization for emergent national service," Mr. Hill said.
"Free enterprise has achieved the highest degree of development in exploration and in the advancement of such of the associated sciences involved in petroleum technological progress as have resulted in cheaper prices to the consuming public in the United States. Helpful functions of government, including both the State and Federal governments acting within their respective constitutional spheres, in regulation and in aid of petroleum industrial progress are recognized in the promotion of conservation, in the prevention of physical and economic waste and in the scientific ascertainment of consumptive demand."
Mr. Hill devoted most of his talk to a discussion of the oil conservation achievements effected through State regulation of the petroleum industry.
"The number and variety and the effectiveness of oil conservation processes under State regulation have been so improved and so vast in the immediate and very recent past that the industry itself has largely overlooked the important public duty of making known the elaborate pattern of our conservation laws and regulations," Mr. Hill said. "The achievements of the oil and gas industry, now pre-eminent among all industries in its readiness and ability to serve the ends of national defense, are the direct result of the combined effect of private initiative, capital and direction, supported by the State regulation of conservative practices. And the industry has achieved this special fitness NOT by accident, but by painstaking method and wise design."

Billy Peters Is Winner In Rifle Shoot Contest

Billy Peters, son of Chief of Police W. J. Peters and Mrs. Peters, 1501 South Seaman street, Eastland, and who is a student at Oklahoma A. & M. College, Stillwater, Oklahoma, was a member of military teams from his school competing with teams from all over the country in a contest held at Kemper Military Institute in Missouri.
In the contests between advanced military teams Peters won first place and third place for basic teams. In individual matches Peters won first place and five medals, scoring 396 out of a possible 400.
In all of the contests a .22 calibre rifle was used.
Sometime in April Peters will enter contests of advanced military teams to be held in Kansas City and St. Louis, Missouri.

Excuse Us If We Swell With Pride

When an Eskimo was inducted into the army in Alaska the other day, a sort of circle was completed. Wearing the uniform of the United States are men of every strain of blood that flows in the veins of America—men of 23 different Indian tribes, men of Hawaiian, Porto Rican and Philippine blood, men whose ancestry stems from ancient China and Japan, men whose forebears came from Poland and Germany, Italy, France and Czechoslovakia, men of the north and south, men of the east and west—and all Americans.

We see them more frequently now in the streets of our cities, in the neighborhood of the great growing camps, and we are proud of them. We are proud of their appearance and their bearing, proud of the way in which they have, almost without exception, responded with loyalty to their America.

We have not coerced or bludgeoned them into being Americans. We have not forbidden the use of the languages of their homelands, nor vilified their ancient culture. Yet they cleave to America, and they love her.

The difference between what happens here and what happens in Europe is well illustrated by a story. A certain family in Poland, when Russia took over their territory and forbade them to speak Polish any longer, emigrated to America. They would not live in a land where their beloved language was forbidden. To be free to use it, they came to America. Today not a single child of that family speaks Polish. When they were under compulsion, they clung to their ancient language; under free American institutions, it was no longer important.

All these fine young Americans in whom every blood in the world runs red and strong have such a feeling. We are proud of them, and proud of the fact that they all march shoulder to shoulder today.

That is one of the things America can give the world—the final denial of stupid racial theories which would divide the world into little blood-tight compartments of inbred racial groups. The soil of a common country, the tie of a common language, the link of a common ideal of freedom—these are grounds on which civilized men may stand together and march together.

We hate to seem sentimental, but we never see them standing and marching together like that without swelling with a sudden great pride.

When talking pictures came in we hoped they'd do away with talking audiences—and we still think it was a good hope.

UNCLE SAM IS SET TO TURN ON THE JUICE AT GRAND COULEE, MAN'S BIGGEST WORK

BY PETER EDSON

NEA Service Staff Writer

Kick Modesty in the seat of the pants. Shove Shame out the window. And open the doors to Braggadocio. For the biggest thing on earth is about to get going this month, and it isn't a war.

Take all the people in the United States and put them in a pile. It's bigger than that.

Take Cheops' pyramid in Egypt, then take Boulder Dam, and then take another Boulder Dam. It's bigger than all three put together.

Take the cost of the Panama Canal, add twenty-five million dollars for luck, and you'll come close to its value.

Take a row of Rockefeller Centers three-quarters of a mile long and pour two Niagara Falls one on top of the other over the middle. It will be bigger than that.

With that fanfare, it is now safe to give you the name—Grand Coulee Dam.

It's up in northeast Washington State. On March 22, the first two generating units of its power plant will turn electric current into the Bonneville transmission line, and juice will start flowing to Spokane, 90 miles away, to the shipyards in Tacoma, where defense vessels are being built, to the Boeing plant in Seattle, 260 miles away, where aircraft are being built.

Turning on of this current takes place more than a year ahead of schedule, but this is only a start, a mere 29,000 kilowatts, 27,000 horse power.

When the whole project is completed, there will be available a thousand times that—2,700,000 horse power, nearly one-twelfth of the total electrical energy developed in the United States today.

Behind the big dam—12,000,000 barrels of cement, 12,000,000 cubic yards of concrete making a mass 500 feet wide at the base, 350 feet high and 4300 feet or three-quarters of a mile long—there will be backed up the biggest artificial lake in the world, 150 miles long, stretching clear to the Canadian border. Drowning you in statistics, this is enough to give every person in the United States 25,000 gallons of water. Enough to slake the thirst, wash the clothes, and dirty dishes, and bathe greater New York for ten years.

AHEAD OF SCHEDULE

All this, too, is just a starter. When the job is done, a part of the power will be used to pump a part of the water, by means of the world's twelve largest pumps, to a man-made reservoir nearly 300 feet higher than the big dam, and two miles away. There, behind two little dams no bigger than ten-story buildings, water will be impounded in a reservoir 27 miles long and covering 43 square miles, and carrying 250 miles long to irrigate a size of Delaware, 1,200,000 acres. This won't be completed for a generation, 25 or 50 years, but it is definitely a part of this biggest program for the biggest thing of its kind.

Building this dam in less than eight years is in itself a marvel. Putting even a part of it in operation a year and more ahead of schedule is a record.

Surveys began in 1933. In December the contract was let for clearing 2,000,000 yards of loose dirt from the dam site, getting down to bedrock. A 32-mile railroad, from the Great Northern's river below the dam, two cities to house the workers had to be built. In July, 1934, a combine of four construction firms, the "MWA" company, won the contract for building dam base. Contracts for completion of the dam and power houses were let in 1938 to Consolidated Builders, Inc., made up of MWA, plus the famous Six Companies that built Boulder Dam, plus General Construction Company of Seattle. It was too big a job for any one company to tackle.

Engineering problems, foreseen and unforeseen, brought new and amazing solutions. To remove the over-burden and clear the bedrock foundation, a belt conveyor five feet wide and over a mile long was installed, dumping the rubble into handy canyons.

A TRIUMPH OF MAN'S BUILDING ABILITY

Hauling in sand and gravel would have cost millions, so natural deposits were uncovered nearby and the world's largest gravel pit put in operation. The two world's largest cement mixing plants went to work, and in May of 1939 they turned out 29 tons of mixed concrete every minute, to set a world's record. When slides threatened to interfere, six miles of pipe were buried in the clay bank, a refrigeration plant set up, and an ice dam 20 feet thick, 45 feet deep frozen solid from August 1936 to April 1937, and so kept in check. Settling concrete heats and expands, then cools and contracts. To keep even temperatures, 2,000 miles of thin-walled inch pipe are set in the dam and water circulated through the vast cooling system. In the center 1650-foot section of the dam, to control the flow of extra water, are 11 movable steel drum gates, each 28 feet high, 135 feet long. To keep them from freezing in cold weather, nine miles of electric heating cable are installed.

A 30-foot highway will surmount the finished dam. A 12-foot tunnel runs through the heart of the dam, connecting the two powerhouses at each end, each powerhouse over 700 feet long, each to hold nine units generating 150,000 horsepower each.

and 110 feet long was literally

British Forces In Libya Take Oasis

CAIRO, Mar. 22.—British and Australian troops held the seat of Italy's last stand in the tremendous area of Eastern Libya today—the Giarabub Oasis, 100 miles south of the coast near the Egyptian frontier.

A general headquarters communiqué disclosed last night that the fortified Giarabub area had fallen and that its garrison of about 800 men, isolated since the British Libyan offensive was started early last December, had been made prisoners.

MODERN MENUS

BY MRS. GAYNOR MADDOX NEA Service Staff Writer

YANKEE bean soup is a first class mealless "nutrient" meal in itself. Several readers ask for a recipe. Here it is, together with two brand new fish main dishes for Lenten meals:

YANKEE BEAN SOUP One-half lb. dry pea or navy beans, 1 quart water, 1/4 lb. salt pork, 1 onion, 1/2 teaspoon pepper. Soak the beans over night. Drain, add water, sliced salt pork, onion and pepper. Cook about 1 hour or until beans are mushy. Rub all but the salt pork through a coarse sieve. Season to taste. Serve hot with a slice of the pork for each serving.

TUNA AND SALMON VEGETABLE CASSEROLE (Serves 6 to 8)

One cup uncooked elbow macaroni, 4 tablespoons butter, 4 tablespoons flour, 2 cups milk, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, 1/2 cup flaked tuna, 1 cup flaked salmon, 2 cups sliced cooked carrots, 1 cup cooked lima beans, 1/2 cup grated cheese. Cook elbow macaroni in boiling salted water for about 10 minutes or until soft and no starchy taste remains. Drain and wash with cold water. Melt butter in saucepan; blend in flour. Add milk gradually, stirring constantly. Add seasonings and allow to cook for about three minutes or until no starchy taste remains. Add macaroni, salmon, carrots and lima beans. Turn into a well-greased two-quart casserole. Sprinkle the top with the cheese; cover with the utility glass cover and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) about 30 minutes or until top is brown.

BAKED FILLET OF FLOUNDER (Serves 6)

Two-pound fillet of flounder, 1/2 cup minced onion, 2 tablespoons gingersnap crumbs, 2 tablespoons minced parsley, 2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce, 1 teaspoon salt, 1/2 cup water, 2 lemons, sliced. Wipe fillets with a damp cloth; place in an oval two-quart heat-resistant glass casserole. Cover with a mixture of onions, crumbs and parsley. Add seasonings and pour water over all. Cover and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) about 25 to 30 minutes if fish is fresh; bake about 40 to 45 minutes if fish is quick frozen; and not thawed. Garnish with lemon slices and tufts of watercress.

QUARREL WITH MR. BRADLEY

CHAPTER XII

BEATRICE felt her heart thump, astonishingly. A date with Mr. Bradley! The idea is ridiculous!

Yet, the next morning she found herself watching him. He listened with courteous attention as an indignant customer poured out her wrath.

"SCOTCH SALE" proclaimed the letters on the badge. Beatrice's lips quirked. There were banners all over the basement in celebration of Scotch Sales...

"Miss Davis," he called. "Yes, sir?" "You're not wearing a Scotch Sale badge."

"Oh, was I supposed to?" His throat, above his immaculate white collar, grew brick red. As if he guessed she'd been laughing at him.

BEATRICE had written seven more sales slips, and waited on two women who had promised to come back after they looked about some more, when Mr. Bradley stopped her as she started for lunch.

"Oh!" She had genuinely forgotten the stupid badge. "I've been so busy. Anyway, it can't mean much, one way or the other. The customers seem to know their own minds, and I've done very well without a badge."

Mr. Bradley's brown eyes snapped, and his big hand gripped the edge of the wrapping desk. "Are you trying to make a fool of me?" he asked angrily.

She was suddenly angry. Every one around her with the slightest scrap of authority seemed positively determined to exercise it, insultingly, on her! "As for trying to make a fool of you, I don't manage rather well by myself!"

ALL at once, the feud was over. Yet, in the cafeteria, he leaned across the table and said, "I've had the feeling, ever since you came, that you've been laughing at me. Why?"

"I haven't been. I've been too busy learning my job. It's all new to me. I've concentrated on making that quota. And I thought I was doing fine when you bawled me out for advising the customers..."

He played with a fork. "Miss Dane's orders."

"She doesn't know as much as she thinks she does! Times have changed since she started. I'm sure what I was trying to do is much better than selling a customer any dress, just to sell it. And it's my dream to prove I'm right."

"It's my dream to get out from under her thumb," he said. "In a couple of months, I ought to be way out. I—I'm studying merchandising at night, in a school of the Church as such, but rather a political program. In those days a heretic was looked upon in the way we consider an anarchist today, namely, a danger to the commonwealth. Heresy was regarded as a crime of treason against the state. King Peter of Aragon declared that 'the enemies of Christianity are the enemies of our kingdom and should be dealt with as such.' Hence, people were punished and executed for being against the Catholic Church and for refusing to uphold her Faith because they were regarded as enemies of the state. So we are able to explain the Inquisition, especially in the light of the latest historical discoveries in the premises, but we cannot satisfactorily condone or excuse its cruel perpetration, which does appear an indictment against the Catholic Church if not historically analyzed. This is an honest Catholic confession. Now, let us consult the same historical records and see how Protestants acted when they had control of a country. During the Reformation, Luther, Zwingli and Calvin regarded opinion opposed to their Protestant religion as treason. Zanchi, a Protestant theologian of those days, taught: 'There can be no doubt about it, and all learned and right-minded men acknowledge it, that the authorities may pronounce a sentence of death on heretics.' So the Protestants proceeded to persecute and kill Catholics in England, Switzerland, Ireland and Holland. And, in reading history further, one also will find that the Jews treated Christians in like manner, and vice versa. Therefore, this historic guilt of cruelty and crime against each other seems to be rather evenly divided and shared. But, even if it were not, if any religion could point the unstained and unbloody finger of accusation at the other, there still would be no sense in hating each other today for the wrong done by people centuries ago. The fair and only reasonable thing to do, when accusations and wrong things are charged, is first to investigate and find out whether the indictments are true and what are the circumstances connected with the supposed happening or situation. Working oneself up into a frenzy of bigotry and hate, serves no good purpose at all. Every church, no matter which one, was and is always composed of fallible human beings, who can and do make mistakes. This was the case with the first religion ever inaugurated; it is still a fact with any church today. So why not make allowances for the ever-present human element of imperfection? God recognizes poor man's weaknesses. He took this into account in setting up his duties and making provisions for our lapses or errors."

"I don't think Mr. Bruce Shel-drake need do any overtime worrying," he smiled. "But if you think I'm a ball of fire, you're the first girl who ever did. And that's heartening."

"Lots of girls must have liked you..." She dropped her eyes. Suddenly she caught sight of her wristwatch. "Mercy, I've got to run!"

"There's not much time for mutual understanding in Huntington's, is there?" he asked ruefully. "I haven't a class tonight. Could I come around and call for you after dinner? We could go into this ball of fire stuff more thoroughly."

Oklahoma Cagers Beat Texans 70-32

In the bi-state championship basketball game Friday night, between Woodlake NYA of Texas and Warner NYA of Oklahoma, Oklahoma scored an easy 70-32 victory over the Texas representatives.

The Oklahoma team scored almost at will, while Woodlake seemed to never get started. Least of Oklahoma did a fine job of guarding Ford of Woodlake, voted the outstanding player in the Texas Finals at Inks Dam. Least held Ford to 17 points, which is pretty good considering Ford's ability to hit the basket from almost all angles.

Oklahoma jumped into an early lead on field goals by Bradshaw and M. Jones and were never headed. Ford of Texas got a field goal and gratis shot to make the score 8-3 for Oklahoma at the end of the first quarter. Both teams made several goals in the second quarter, Oklahoma having the best of it and leading 26-11 at half-time.

After the first half, the outcome of the game was never in doubt. Superior handling of the ball and footwork of the Oklahoma representatives kept increasing the lead, and they enjoyed a comfortable 55-22 margin at the end of the third quarter. They were steadily pulling away when the game ended 70-32 for the Oklahomans.

W. Jones, center of Oklahoma, was high point man of the game, collecting 10 field goals and two free shots for 22 points. Tilly, guard, ran a close second, getting 21 points. Ford was high point man for the losers, getting 17 points, while Stanley collected 12.

Crowley, from William James High School of Fort Worth, and Rutledge of Texas Wesleyan College, were referee and umpire, respectively.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SERVICES. "Matter" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, March 23.

The Golden Text is: "All flesh is as grass, and all the goodness thereof is as the flower of the field the grass withereth, the flower fadeth; because the spirit of the Lord bloweth upon it" (Isaiah 40:6,7).

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "Nevertheless, we, according to his promise, look for new heavens and a new earth, wherein dwelleth righteousness" (II Peter 3:13).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "He uttereth His voice, and the earth melted. This Scripture appears before the supremacy of indicates that all matter will dis-Spirit" (page 97).

TOLERANCE and RELIGION

BY REV. S. E. BYRNES, Pastor St. Rita's Church, Pastor St. Francis Church

"Judge" Rutherford, the bitter of all organized religion, writes: "In order to compel honest persons to become Catholics and so support the hierarchy, the real and wicked Inquisition was organized and operated for years by the Catholic clergy, who at the same time posed before the people as the representative of God, just as the Jewish clergy had done their day. That devilish Inquisition, carried on by the Roman Catholic hierarchy, subjected men and women to all manner of cruel torture, many being put to death by burning at the stake. Not only were the people forbidden to have a Bible or any books explaining the Bible; these were seized and burned and the ones possessing them subjected to cruel and unusual punishment. The pages of worldly history are smeared with the blood of men and women who refused to obey the commandments of the religious priests and suffered death because of maintaining their integrity towards God. The bloody record of the Roman Catholic hierarchy stands out now, loudly proclaiming the wickedness of devilish religion, the enemy of mankind."

These words of the self-styled "judge" and would-be reformer in the name of God are not very complimentary. The sad part of his statement is that it contains some truth. He is off the mark, however, when he says that people were not allowed to read the Bible. They were not only allowed but, as Catholics today, encouraged to read the authorized, correct version of Sacred Scriptures; however, they were forbidden, which rule still holds good today, to read unapproved editions.

For the rest, no normal-minded Catholic will deny but greatly regret the atrocities of the Spanish Inquisition, perpetrated in the name of the Catholic religion. But we must remember this: The Inquisition was not purely a religious move or an expedient of the Church as such, but rather a political program. In those days a heretic was looked upon in the way we consider an anarchist today, namely, a danger to the commonwealth. Heresy was regarded as a crime of treason against the state. King Peter of Aragon declared that "the enemies of Christianity are the enemies of our kingdom and should be dealt with as such." Hence, people were punished and executed for being against the Catholic Church and for refusing to uphold her Faith because they were regarded as enemies of the state. So we are able to explain the Inquisition, especially in the light of the latest historical discoveries in the premises, but we cannot satisfactorily condone or excuse its cruel perpetration, which does appear an indictment against the Catholic Church if not historically analyzed. This is an honest Catholic confession. Now, let us consult the same historical records and see how Protestants acted when they had control of a country. During the Reformation, Luther, Zwingli and Calvin regarded opinion opposed to their Protestant religion as treason. Zanchi, a Protestant theologian of those days, taught: "There can be no doubt about it, and all learned and right-minded men acknowledge it, that the authorities may pronounce a sentence of death on heretics." So the Protestants proceeded to persecute and kill Catholics in England, Switzerland, Ireland and Holland. And, in reading history further, one also will find that the Jews treated Christians in like manner, and vice versa. Therefore, this historic guilt of cruelty and crime against each other seems to be rather evenly divided and shared. But, even if it were not, if any religion could point the unstained and unbloody finger of accusation at the other, there still would be no sense in hating each other today for the wrong done by people centuries ago. The fair and only reasonable thing to do, when accusations and wrong things are charged, is first to investigate and find out whether the indictments are true and what are the circumstances connected with the supposed happening or situation. Working oneself up into a frenzy of bigotry and hate, serves no good purpose at all. Every church, no matter which one, was and is always composed of fallible human beings, who can and do make mistakes. This was the case with the first religion ever inaugurated; it is still a fact with any church today. So why not make allowances for the ever-present human element of imperfection? God recognizes poor man's weaknesses. He took this into account in setting up his duties and making provisions for our lapses or errors."

A REPORT to America

The Ford Motor Company's business has always been to serve the needs of the American people. In providing them with low-cost transportation for the past 38 years, we have developed one of the country's largest and most useful industrial units. During a national emergency, we feel that these facilities should be devoted without reserve to our country's needs. Toward that end we started rolling months ago, with these results:

- 1 A $21,000,000 Ford airplane engine factory, started only 6 months ago, is nearly completed. Production will start with an initial order for 4,236 eighteen cylinder, air-cooled, double-row, radial engines.
2 We are building a new $800,000 Ford magnesium alloy foundry, one of the few in the country. It is already producing lightweight airplane engine castings.
3 Army reconnaissance cars—military vehicles of an entirely new type—are rolling off special Ford assembly lines at the rate of more than 600 a month. We have produced Army staff cars and bomber service trucks.
4 The government has given the "go-ahead" and work is now under way for the fast construction of an $11,000,000 Ford plant to produce bomber airframe assemblies by mass production methods.

5 Several months ago work was started, on our own initiative, on an entirely new 1500 horsepower airplane engine especially designed for mass production. This engine is now in the test stage and plans are being developed for producing it in large quantities when and if needed.
6 A Ford aircraft apprentice school has been established, to train 2000 students at a time. That is a report of progress to date.

The experience and facilities of this company can be used to do much of the job which America now needs to get done in a hurry. Our way of working, which avoids all possible red tape, enables us to get results and get them fast. This benefits users of our products and workers who produce them.

We are ready to make anything we know how to make, to make it to the limit of our capacity if need be, to make it as fast as we can go, and to start the next job whenever our country asks us to. And to this end, we know we have the full confidence and loyal support of the workmen throughout our plants.
