Vehicle Owners of U. S. Paid $56 Each For Auto Taxes

Motor-vehicle taxes cost Mr. Typical American Citizen $55.83 last year, an amount larger than he personally spent on clothing and nearly as much as the amount spent by his wife on clothes, the American Petroleum Institute Committee reports on the basis of preliminary reports now available.

This $22.66 increase in his automotive tax costs over the $33.17 he paid the year before may be attributed almost entirely to the jump in federal automotive excise tax rates which took place during the year.

Gasoline taxes, state and federal, constituted about two-thirds of his total automotive tax bill, Mr. Citizen found after totaling up his year's motor tax costs. The $55.19 he paid in this way cost him substantially more than he received in his weekly pay envelope, which ranged anywhere from $29 to $30.

State registration fees cost him $13.36, which he found to be about two dollars less than he and his wife together spent for shoes during the year. Other automotive tax costs he paid included $5.05 for federal excise taxes, and $2.26 in local automotive taxes, personal automotive property taxes and tolls.

The Committee estimates that 31,800,000 motor vehicles traveled over the United States highways last year, an increase of 3 1-2 per cent over the 30,615,087 vehicles in operation in the United States the year before, and the aggregate of all motor taxes paid was $1,775,515,000 as compared with total collection of $1,627,745,000 for the previous year.

Workers Break Up Pickets Lines To Reopen Big Plant

CHICAGO, Mar. 24.—It was estimated that 3,500 American Federation of Labor workers marched through Congress of Industrial Organization picket lines today to reopen the International Harvester Co. Chicago works.

This was one of the 27 defense industries that had been shut down by strikes.

Ranger Girl Wins Division Contest Held At Lubbock

Jane Matthews of Ranger, winner in the district oratorical contest of the American Legion, held in Ranger, won the division contest at Lubbock Saturday, and will go to the state finals at Austin next Saturday.

In winning at Lubbock Miss Matthews presented a prepared speech on "We The People" and an extemporaneous speech on the subject, "Should the Privileges of the Bill of Rights Be Extended to the Enemies of Democracy in Our Country?"

Five districts were to be represented by speakers at Lubbock, but the Ranger entry and one boy from Amarillo were the only entries. She made a total of 255 points, while her opponent in the contest scored 245.

Judges were from Texas Technological College, Lubbock; the Lubbock High School and from a Lubbock radio station.

Mrs. J. E. Matthews accompanied her daughter to the division finals.

Refugee Youth Who Got NYA Training Goes Into Industry

Harry Westheimer, one of the Jewish refugees assigned to the Ranger NYA project a year ago, has secured a position in San Antonio, and is to report there for work immediately. Nature of his work was not disclosed.

Westheimer has been rated as one of the five best youths in the metal shop, where he did excellent work in spite of speech handicaps, as he knew very little English when he was assigned to the shop.

Final Rites For C. F. Shepperd Said Sunday 4:00 P. M.

Final rites were said for C. F. (Uncle Charlie) Shepperd Sunday afternoon with funeral services were conducted from the First Methodist church at 4:00 p. m., followed by the burial ceremonies of the Knights of Pythias Lodge of which he had been an active member for fifty years.

Few if any funeral service ever held in Eastland was more largely attended, attesting to the deceased's popularity with all classes.

Edward J. Owens To Be Buried Thursday

Word was received here today of the death of Edward J. Owens, formerly of Ranger, who died in Houston Monday.

The body will arrive in Ranger at 4:30 Thursday for burial in Evergreen Cemetery, after services in Houston. Burial services will be conducted by Rev. David M. Phillips, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Ranger.

JUGOSLAVIA IS READY TO SIGN AN AXIS PACT

The Yugoslav government today gave emergency orders to its police and the army and moved to sign a pact with Germany tomorrow, despite a swelling chorus of popular resentment.

A train waited in the station to carry the ministers to Vienna. It is due to leave the state at 10 p. m. tonight and tomorrow, in Vienna, Yugoslavia is to sign a "compromise" pact.

Jugoslavia was tense as opposition to the deal mounted among the Serbs. The government made a patchwork solution of the cabinet crisis which delayed signing of the pact over the week-end.

Soldiers and officers were ordered to stand at their posts or barracks awaiting developments. The army is filled with bitter opponents of any accord with Germany.

But it seemed tomorrow afternoon the nation would cast her lot with the Axis. The British and Greeks warned Yugoslavia it would be for the worse, if she signed the pact. They said that even if Jugoslavia did not permit German troops to be transported across the country and confined her concessions to permission to move war supplies on railroads this would be regarded as an unneutral act.

From Turkey came the report that Germany had brought pressure on Moscow to delay or prevent publication of the Russo-Turkish exchange of non-aggression assurances. Moscow was busy with functions for the Japanese foreign minister, who passed there enroute to Berlin where he is due Wednesday.

On the war front: British bombers smashed hard at Hanover, Kiel and Berlin, possibly damaging the Anhalter station near the heart of the German capital. In a daylight raid on the French invasion coast light bombers machine gunned German troops from an elevation of 100 feet.

In Africa the British advanced upon Keren, and in a daylight operation Malta the British reported shooting down 13 German planes without loss of one of her own.

For the first time the British press called for United States convoys to escort American supplies to Britain.

British Aid Bill Passes The Senate In A Record Time

WASHINGTON, Mar. 24.—The United States Senate, in record time, today completed congressional action on the $7,000,000,000 war aid appropriation to provide Great Britain with large quantities of war materials.

TRUCK LOAD LIMIT AS PASSED IN TEXAS HOUSE ENDED A LONG PROBLEM

By HARRY BENGGE-CROZIER
AUSTIN, Mar. 24.—A legislative log that had caused a jam in the Senate for three weeks was loosened and a vexatious state problem that had tried tempers for ten years was solved at least for a season this week when the truck load limit act was sent to the executive department for Governor O'Daniel's signature. Except for a few verbal snipes in the Senate, the truck bill was passed in a rare spirit of amicableness for such a controversial issue and enactment was accomplished without the services of a conference committee.

That was brought about when the House on Thursday acquiesced in Senate amendments that raised the limit from 35,000 pounds to 38,000. Other Senate amendments were of slight consequence and dealt with penalties for violations. The bill, as finally enacted, contains the formula for axle and wheel weights that had been originally proposed.

There was a measure of drama in the fight that was won by trucking interests and their allies including the interior cotton compresses. Ten years ago, the railroads strong-armed the 7,000 pound load limit law to enactment with the active assistance of the compress interests. The subject has been a legislative bone of contention at each succeeding regular session and two years ago the motor truck representatives would have compromised for a 14,000 pound law.

Calendars Growing
Major committee of both Houses have been working with unaccustomed intensity on proposed bills and the calendars already are heavy with grist for the rest of the session. This week, as it has since the session began, both Houses adjourned on Thursday until Monday. That practice probably will not be continued although a few week-end jinking trips are in prospect.

Some more log-jamming measures are in prospect for the Senate, whose deliberations are more prolonged, if and when some of the more important measures are cleared from the House calendar and it will require all of the parliamentary skill that Lieutenant Governor Coke Stevenson displays to keep that calendar pared down.

With the outcome completely in doubt and respective strengths unmeasured in any test the House is scheduled to begin consideration of the highly controverted bill to create a separate oil and gas commission. Threat from Washington of federal control of the petroleum industry affects the issue but there is little to indicate which side will benefit from the threat.

Tax Hearings Scheduled
More important than any other issue before the legislature, the Senate State Affairs Committee during the week will begin section by section consideration of the House's $30,000,000 tax bill. Hearings are scheduled beginning Wednesday night on public utilities, liquor, stock sales, automobile financing and continuing on Thursday night on oil. Monday night on gas and concluding the following Wednesday night on sulphur, carbon black, soft drink wholesalers and other businesses.

Two other measures passed on to the Senate will provide more fireworks. They are the Blankenship bill to limit the issuance of whiskey prescriptions in dry territory and the bill to make permanent Texas oil proration law.

Fate of Governor O'Daniel's anti-strike bill still awaits an opinion from Attorney General Gerald C. Man.

Pensions Again To Be No. 1 Problem For Legislators

AUSTIN, Mar. 24.—Legislators again faced old age pensions as the main problem today.

The issue was hurled back at them by Gov. W. Lee O'Daniel in a broadcast Sunday in which he called the roll of 66 representatives who voted for the $25,000,000 social security program, and advised voters to ask the 73 others who play a "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" role to support the program.

Three Whirling Years

The world staggers from day to day, from week to week, from month to month, in such a dizzy fashion that about the only way to find out where we are now is to stop deliberately and look back at some fixed point.

Let's take the latter part of March three years ago. General war had not yet come to Europe, though it had swept China, Ethiopia and Spain. Europe was just shaking itself free of the shock of the annexation of Austria by Hitler's Germany. But many, many people did not realize that general war was inevitable. Many still hoped for restraint in one who had shown no restraint.

England, under Chamberlain, began to step up preparedness (against Labor opposition). Chamberlain insisted that it was wrong to say that Chancellor Schuschnigg of Austria had been intimidated by force into resigning, and that it was really none of England's business if he had.

In France, Premier Chautemps had just resigned, denied special powers for defense by opposition of the Socialist and Communist deputies. France specifically stated that it would back up Czechoslovakia if it were attacked. Leon Blum succeeded to the premiership, and was greeted with a wave of strikes when he tried to modify the 40-hour week in the interest of better defense.

Germany, having mopped up the matter of Austria, had already begun to turn toward "resolution of the Czechoslovakian problem." Italy, no doubt inwardly disturbed at the sudden appearance of German troops on her borders, did nothing. "We are not easily worried," said Mussolini. Few listened to Schuschnigg's last despairing cry from submerged Austria: "I state before the world, we bend to violence. We have ordered our army to withdraw... God save Austria."

The England that was so complacent three years ago now stands, back to wall, fighting for her life. The France that was so sure it would support Czechoslovakia, lies with it in a twin grave. The Germany which had no purpose beyond "freeing" German minorities in other lands, now holds most of Europe, including lands without Germans. The Mussolini who was not easily worried, is worried now.

Seeing what we have seen in these last three years, it seems impossible that Europe should have stood so inert and fascinated while its fate was being prepared. But it did.

It is easy to be wise after the event. But even that is useless unless the wisdom gained prepares one for the next event to come.

Our idea of fun is a barber shaving himself and arguing that he doesn't want a shampoo.

Loose auto nuts are more dangerous when one of them is driving.

SERIAL STORY

DOLLARS TO DOUGHNUTS

BY EDITH ELLINGTON

COPYRIGHT, 1941, NEA SERVICE, INC.

YESTERDAY: Beatrice and Mr. Bradley quarrel, then, strangely, make up. Lurching together, Beatrice discovers that he is ambitious, anxious to improve Huntington's, she is delighted, compliments him. He asks for a date.

HEE KEEPS A DATE

CHAPTER XIII

BEATRICE could scarcely wait until she had cornered Toby Masters in one of the fitting rooms.

"Mr. Bradley asked me for a date!"

Toby's eyes flew wide open and her mouth opened. "Eureka!" She looked at Beatrice knowingly. "And you're kinda worked up about it, too. Aren't you the gal who said she wouldn't be interested?"

The store was mobbed with customers, they had to hurry back to the floor. But all through the afternoon Beatrice was happy and content.

She wore a Scotch Sale badge, now. She pointed to it, once, when Mr. Bradley's eye caught hers, and he grinned. At 5:30, when the closing gong sounded through the store, he bent over her as she totaled her sales. "I don't know where you live," he whispered.

"Flatbush." She scribbled the address hastily on the edge of her billiard card. He looked at it, then he erased it. There was a rule in the store that employees must not have dates. Grandfather, evidently, had come to the conclusion that it ruined efficiency.

On the subway, she wondered why she had never been as eager and expectant about her dates with young men who bore the names of famous families, young men who spent more money in a week, probably, than Mr. Bradley earned in a year.

She caught Toby's sleeve. "Mr. Bradley! I don't even know his first name!"

"Neither do I," said Toby. "But I'll ask him as soon as he sticks his nose in the door. By the way, do you want Vera and me to separate?"

"Oh, no!" The idea of entering Mr. Bradley in the apart-

"This is Wednesday," calculated Toby heartlessly. "Not likely that he's got much money, so close to pay day. So he won't be taking you out. Are you sure you want us to stick around the whole evening?"

As soon as they reached home, Toby told Vera the news. "She's captured the idol of the department. Handsome Bradley, six feet two in his stocking feet. Wait till you see him, Vera. He puts Terry definitely in the shade."

"I don't value Terry for his beauty," said Vera. She cupped her chin in her hands and asked dreamily, "Shall we hang Japanese lanterns around the place in honor of your floor walker, Bee? Or would a little judicious dusting be plenty?"

"I'll clean up myself," Beatrice told her. "And if you two will kindly keep the lid on your own particular brand of low humor, I'll appreciate it."

"I can only answer for myself," said Vera. "But you know Terry."

"What? Is that egg coming around tonight?" Toby cried. "He is."

"Be a sport, Vera," Toby suggested. "Take him walking in the park."

But Terry, who arrived shortly afterward, refused to walk in the park. "I want to see this guy," he insisted. "Here I've been working on Bee for days, trying to fix up a date for a friend of mine, and she's too highbrow. Yet this wonder crooks his finger—"

"If you tell him that, I'll murder you!"

Terry settled himself on the studio couch. "You can't object if I merely point out to him that you're a very, very tasty dish; miles above my ilk; a user of impeccable diction; an abominable cook, but beautiful!"

Terry nearly always made Beatrice uncomfortable for he had shrewdly discerned too many things about her. She went straight to the point. "Mr. Bradley possesses a Harvard accent to match my own high-brow diction, darling. He, too, is not a toothpick addict."

"We gutterpines enjoy gawping at the upper classes," said Terry. "No sir, no park for me. I stay right here!"

Beatrice was feverishly combing her hair, trying for the dozenth time to make the curls stay put the way they used to, when the doorbell rang. She ran out of the bedroom. "Terry, one wisecrack and I slay you!" She went to the door.

MR. BRADLEY stood in the hall with his hat in his hand. "Come in," Beatrice greeted him. She leaned forward. "What's your first name?" she whispered.

"Toby's going to say something dreadful the first chance she gets and I want to be prepared."

"Anthony. What's yours?"

"Bee."

They went in together. He seemed to dwarf the tiny living room and Terry cried out at once, "Watch it! You'll knock your head on the door frame!"

"Mr. Bradley," Beatrice said. "This is Mr. Terence Donahue. Guaranteed worthless. This is Vera Condon, and, of course, you know Toby Masters."

Terry moved over on the sofa, and Anthony sat down. Beatrice thought "What do I do now?" At home, she would have rung for the maid and cocktails on a tray would have appeared. But cocktails were sinful luxuries in Flatbush.

Terry came to the rescue. "Bee doesn't want me to talk to you, Bradley," he said with a perfectly straight face. "That makes things a little complicated. Because I'd like to know how it feels to spend most of your waking hours in a dress department. Surrounded by dames and bargains."

"It feels awful," said Anthony. "What do you do?"

"I'm a photographer."

"I used to be a nut about cameras when I was at school. I still have a Leica I trot out when I can manage to buy a film. What kind of photography do you do?"

"The awkward moment had been bridged, and half an hour later Beatrice was wondering whether Anthony had come here to see her or to talk cameras with Terry."

"You see what happens when a gal has no privacy," Toby said, when they went into the closet-kitchen to make coffee. "This is what broke up every one of my four romances."

Terry and Anthony were still talking when the two girls carried in the filled cups.

Beatrice thought, "Is this what he came for? To sit around, talk to Terry—and waste time?"

Her own resentment and sharp disappointment amazed her. She looked at Anthony's dark hair, ruffled as always, and the clean line of his jaw. Something stirred inside her. And then Anthony's eyes lifted. He smiled at her, and the smile was like a signal, about the heads of the others.

"How about you and I going out and leaving these people flat, Bee?"

CORPORAL PUNISHMENT 3-24

BRUCE CATTON IN WASHINGTON

YOU PAY YOUR MONEY, TWIRL DIAL, THEN BEGIN HONEYTALK TO GET YOUR CONGRESSMAN ON PHONE

BY PETER EDSON
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON.—The fine art of telephoning is probably developed to higher degree in Washington than any place in the world, and no wonder.

With everything spreading out, and not up, it is miles from any place to any place else, even in the same building. So, despite taxi fares the most reasonable in the country, a man hesitates to set out from the Congressional Library for the War Department without packing his lunch, and for the return journey, many people consider requisitioning pup tents, if nightfall is nigh.

Some statisticians have figured out that if all the government offices in Washington were spread out on a level plane, packed in close and including the halls, they would cover a square mile. And if you can think of anything to do with a square mile of desks in even rows, except place them under, please write. Or if you are appalled by that figure, bear in mind that the government has three square miles of office space in the country at large, outside of Washington and not including posts or parade grounds of the army and navy, or any of the national parks.

AL SMITH
CO. RENT SPACE

But to get back to Washington, the government office space here is equal to about a dozen Empire State buildings, so if Al Smith had had that amount of ing his great vacant spaces in Washington, the government could have used all and asked for more. There are 300 buildings in the city which house government offices, about half of which are government owned, half of which are rented. Plenty of people who have been in government service for years don't know where all these buildings are, and in walks about town you run into government signs on apartment houses, hotels, buildings formerly housing suites of doctors' offices. Or looking for a private business office in some building, you find some government agency has taken whole floors of space in which are crowded some pretty tawdry and unkempt looking setups.

Hence the telephone. If you actually want to go see someone, face to face and shake his hand, best bet is to call him up in advance to find out where he is, for chances are, he's moved.

The Chamber of Commerce Telephone Company, which handles all this government business, is a bit reticent about giving information on the private affairs of its best customer. That's all right. To expect that any one government agency would know how many telephones all government agencies use would be expecting, too much, since each department pays its own bills, but a good round estimate is that there are more than 50,000 numbers. There are seven pages of U. S. Government listings in the directory, but these cover only the main exchange numbers, of which there are about 500.

It's the technique of Washington telephone conversations that gets you. Calling someone up to make an appointment or ask a question isn't just a matter of ordering the groceries. You have to "give out" as they say, put your whole personality and soul into it, and register every attribute of sex-appeal you possess, be you he-man or she-woman.

New Records Are Set in Events In Track, Field Meet

Three new county track and field records were set in the Eastland County Interscholastic League meet, with three new events being staged, in which the winners were declared county champions, and in discus, because the discs now used is seven ounces lighter.

A new record was set by Norton of Olden in the Class B Junior or High School section in high jump, with a jump of five feet, three and a half inches. The former record was made by Keith of Besdemona in 1932 with a jump of five feet two inches.

Olden also accounted for another new record when Kelly chinned the bar 43 times in the Class B Junior events. The former record of 42 times was held by Curry of Olden.

Little of Flatwood chinned the bar 51 times to win in the Rural bar chinning. He bettered his record of 44 times, set in 1940.

New events, in which the winners were declared county champions were Class I 440 relay, with 1:50 winning in 50 seconds; 200 yard low hurdles, Class A, with immions of Eastland winning in '6 seconds and the Class B 200-yard low hurdles, with Garner of Olden winning in 24.1 seconds.

In the discus throw, with a lighter discus being used, Crawley of Gorman set the new record of 126 feet, 6 inches.

High point men in each division of the meet were: Rural Pentathlon Division: Claborn, Okra, 22 points.

Class B High School Juniors division: Norton, Olden, 21 1-4 points.

Class A High School Junior division: Blackstock, Cisco, 12 1-4 points.

Class B High School division: Garner, Olden, 25 points.

Ward School division: Black, Hodges Oak Park, Ranger, 15 1-4 points.

Rural Junior division: Nicholas, Flatwood, 16 1-2 points.

A high point medal will be awarded each of the seven above men.

MODERN MENUS

This is another in a series of special Monday columns by Mrs. Gaynor Maddox, dealing with food problems in an era of national defense.

BY MRS. GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Service Staff Writer

FROM data collected by the Bureau of Labor Statistics we can estimate that for every dollar the families of wage earners and low-salaried workers spent in December, 1914, they spent $1.15 in December, 1915. Between December, 1915, and December, 1916, there was a 26 per cent increase in the price of food.

Now let's look at our record of the first year of World War II. During 1940, the cost of living increased 1 per cent. Food costs have increased 2.4 per cent; clothing 0.3 per cent and house furnishings have actually dropped 2.2 per cent. Despite calamitous warnings, it looks as if we have learned something in the past 25 years.

Danger in Slow Rises
Let's not stop learning. Consumers must co-operate with their government to prevent waste and unjustified price increases. The danger of disastrous price rises during the present emergency does not lie primarily in spectacular increases, but rather in the tendency for prices to creep up "just a little" at a time—a little up on price, a little down on quality, a little down on quantity, warns Harriet Elliott, consumer commissioner of the N. D. A. C.

TOMORROW'S MENU

BREAKFAST: Orange juice, oatmeal, toast, jelly, coffee, milk.

LUNCHEON: Pork and beans, estup, chopped lettuce sandwiches, baked apples, tea, milk.

DINNER: Chilled grapefruit juice, tongue with raisin sauce, boiled potatoes, buttered spinach, celery, lettuce and green pepper salad, rhubarb brown Betty, cream, coffee, milk.

On the basis of estimates made by the weights and measures officials, it is not unlikely that the typical American family of four loses as much as $45 per year as a result of short weighing and short measuring. For the 30 million families in the nation, this would amount to $1,350,000,000 annually. This is a tremendous "tax" for consumers to pay, amounting to an unnecessary levy of 85 cents a week on every American family.

Not Always Intentional
Not all of this loss is caused deliberately. Weights and measures officials emphasize that probably 95 per cent of all merchants make an honest effort to give accurate weights and measures. To do this, it is necessary that they have accurate weighing and measuring devices. An important function of government is to test these devices to be sure that they are fair alike to buyer and seller.

Office Holders Make Up All Population For a Community

CHEBOYGAN, Mich.—Office holding is nearly a required affair in Cheboygan county's Maple Grove township. Census figures showed that Maple Grove's population of 19 was the smallest of any Michigan township. Families left when the timber was cut from this once active lumbering area, and the government bought up much of the land for conservation projects. Now once a year the adults go to the polls and vote for township officers. Nearly every eligible citizen holds some post.
