RANGER WILL TRY AGAIN TO PICK OFFICIAL

Voters of Ranger will go to the polls for the third time this month Tuesday, when they will make the third effort to elect a street commissioner.

In the city election, held Tuesday, April 1, no candidate received a majority of the vote cast for the position of street commissioner, and a runoff election was called for Friday, April 18. In the city election V. Y. Cooper, Jr. received 298 votes, Calvin Brown 204 and C. J. Moore got 134.

In the runoff election, April 18, Brown gained 112 votes, to poll a total of 316 and went into a tie with Cooper, who also gained votes between the city election and the runoff.

For 20 years, from 1919 when the city was chartered, until 1939, not a single runoff election was held, since there was never a case where a majority vote was not cast for one candidate for each position, or the second high man conceded the election and did not demand a runoff.

In 1939, however, Calvin Brown, who was commissioner at the time, was thrown into a runoff with C. J. Moore, and in the runoff Moore was elected. Brown, therefore, has been a candidate in the only runoff elections ever held in Ranger, and is now a candidate the only time in the history of the town that the voters could not select a commissioner in two elections and a third had to be called.

Cooper had never offered for a place on the commission before, and in his first attempt to secure a city position, has already been through three campaigns, including the one ending with the second runoff election tomorrow.

Egg Production To Be Boosted Soon by Nation-Wide Drive

The Cooperative Extension Work of Texas A. & M. College has received the following telegram from H. W. Hochbaum, acting director of extension work, and which has been forwarded to county extension agents, vocational teachers and hatcherymen:

"Secretary Wickard launches nationwide drive to produce every possible egg from present laying flocks this spring and summer in a press release today.

"Goal to increase egg production for the whole country in the next 15 months about 10,000,000 cases. Goal to be achieved partly by ample feeding, holding hens for late summer and fall production and filling poultry houses to capacity with laying birds this fall.

"Previous department announcement to support long term prices at an average of about 22 cents, Chicago basis, until June, 1943. Feed supplies are plentiful and if necessary department will release loan corn at the loan rates, plus certain carrying charges.

"Eggs are among the foods selected for increased production because they are ideal for converting over-normal granary feeds into defense foods. Recommended increase laying flocks up to housing capacity, especially in middle western states, but expansion in permanent new housing is probably not justified.

"Secretary urges poultry producers to feed for more egg production at once."

Already Germans Prepare for Their Next Blow

No sooner do the Germans conquer by threat of arms than they begin systematic transformation of fallen nation into a springboard for new blows. Here labor battalions complete a runway for a new airfield. German censor withheld location.

Faulty Teeth A Drawback To A Number of Soldiers

AUSTIN, Texas.—The high prevalence of faulty dental conditions among draftees when they report for physical examinations is cited by Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer, as emphasizing the need for early and regular dental care for children—both at home and under professional supervision.

Doctor Cox stated that dental disease has resulted in the rejection of as high as ten per cent of draftees for regular military service. He attributed these dental defects to failure of the draftees to avail themselves of dental care—even when properly advised—during childhood. Another probable factor was the period of economic depression during which a great deal of needed preventive dental service was allowed to go unattended.

"When the majority of the present draftees were of elementary school age there was little or no development of the present-day dental school health program. These programs, still not as nearly universal as they should be, aim at the double goal of educating the child in the importance of good teeth and securing needed dental care for the child from his family dentist or through some school dental clinic. By the first of these two aims it is hoped that children will be led to continue regular dental care in their later years.

"Had the draftees received the dental care that results from this school program, the ill effects of the depression period would probably not have been so markedly reflected in the present day condition of their teeth. Every dental defect that results in the loss of a tooth had a small beginning. Had these and subsequent defects been noted early and corrected, the number of necessarily extracted teeth would have been materially reduced, with, in turn, reduction of the number of draft rejections because of dental defects.

"There is no cure for dental decay, once it is started, other than prompt corrective service by a dentist. It is believed that the efforts now being made to accustom the children to early and regular dental care will prevent the development of conditions similar to those that are now draftees. If it does this, it will also result in the improved health influencing the rejection of our adult population whether or not a national emergency is faced.

"And good teeth in healthy bodies are as essential in normal as in emergency periods."

Floods Do Damage In Central Texas

Flood crests, fed by continuing rains, surged across the lowlands and highways of Central and South Texas today, forcing evacuation of livestock and doing much damage to crops.

A rainy forecast made it possible that some farm families in the area might be forced to leave their homes by the rising waters.

Cowgirl Is Held In Death of a Rancher

HOUSTON, April 28.—Lucy Richards, pretty cowgirl, and an amateur flier, was being held today in connection with the murder of Frank Dews, 28-year old wealthy South Texas rancher. Dews was shot to death last night.

Helps On Program 34 Per Cent Cut In Traffic Deaths Recorded In State

District Governor Frank Crippeliver of Wichita Falls, who has made two trips to Ranger to help prepare a program and plan events of the Lions convention, to be held May 4 and 5, believes that the convention will be a success in every way.

Annual Eastland County 4-H Club Sunday May 4th

The Annual Eastland County 4-H Club Sunday will be held on May 4, at the First Methodist Church, Eastland. The morning services start at 10:45 and the afternoon program about 1:00.

All 4-H Club members, their parents and friends are urged to be present as this is one of the biggest 4-H Club activities of the year and should be larger this year than ever before due to an increased enrollment.

TERMITE PRAISED AT LAST

PROVIDENCE, R. I.—That lovely of all lowlies—the termite—has a defender in Brayton Eddy, state administrator of entomology and plant industry. He declares in his annual report that the much cursed insects are performing noble work in the wooded areas of the state by reducing to powder much of the timber downed by the hurricane.

Oil Producers Call Eastland Meeting

Oil producers and royalty owners are to meet at the Connellie hotel in Eastland at 2:00 p. m. Tuesday, April 29.

This meeting is being called because the Ohio Oil Company has notified all producers and all royalty owners they will discontinue buying oil in Eastland, Stephens, Palo Pinto and Erath counties as of May 10. This leaves the bulk of production in Eastland County and in a part of the other counties connected with the Ohio Oil Company's system without a connection and with no where to sell their oil.

The producers and the royalty owners will meet Tuesday to thoroughly discuss the situation and familiarize everyone concerned with just what the situation is at this time. This situation is also very vital to the merchants and to the citizens as a whole in this section. The merchants are requested to attend this meeting so they may learn the exact position of the oil business at the present time. Should it be impossible to secure another connection, it would affect sixty per cent of the income of the County. Therefore, it is plain to see that every merchant will be directly affected, with every other citizen being indirectly affected.

Soft Coal Situation Must Be Explained

WASHINGTON, April 28.—The special defense investigating committee of the United States Senate, today summoned soft coal miners, operators and acting chairman of the mediation board for a "full explanation" of the collapse of negotiations for reopening the mines.

Real Cowboys Get Chance At Rodeo Staged On Ranch

BARKER, Tex.—Those real cowboys who stood in the background while gaudy imitations romped over film and field get their inning at last.

The LHT ranch is having its annual rodeo May 3 and 4.

One of the largest rodeos in the Southwest, it's also one of the few that started as a genuine round-up. The neighbors still come to help brand calves and corral the cattle.

The program is streamlined now; however, the public interest had to be served. There are contests, drawing top-notch hands, a grandstand accommodating 5,000 persons, and several brick barbecue ovens.

E. H. Marks has owned the ranch, 20 miles west of Houston, since 1917. In 1918, he held his first spring branding, inviting the countryside to help. When the work was done, Marks and guests killed several calves and broiled them over open pits.

They liked it so well that they turned it into a combination picnic and round-up the following year, and the men brought their families. There was roping, calf tying and bronc riding. . . . somebody suggested it.

Crowds grew. When 2,000 guests showed up in 1929, Marks had an idea. The rodeo was born in 1930.

The LHT has acquired a reputation for sending "the meanest bulls in the country" into its wild bull riding contests. These animals are sought by rodeo producers throughout the west.

Marks presents silver pitchers to the winning five-man branding team each year. It's the "business event," he says. The rules: "If a calf is crippled so it cannot walk out of the arena, the team is disqualified. If the team is unable to walk from the arena, the calf wins."

In addition to regular rodeo events, Marks displays an old-time chuck wagon and one of the few remaining herds of Texas longhorns.

Cowgirls get attention in a "girl's flag race" and at a dance at the so-called Bear Creek Gun Club Saturday night. While this festivity is underway, charcoal will be lighted in the barbecue pits in preparation for the big feed Sunday.

More than 5,000 pounds of baby beef will be on hand.

Measure To Ease Tax Penalties Is Passed In House

AUSTIN, Texas, April 28.—The conference committee bill to remit penalties and interest on all delinquent ad valorem taxes, paid by Nov. 1, was approved in the house today.

Meantime Gov. W. Lee O'Daniel appointed Thomas M. Olive of Dallas, an ardent dry, to succeed Dr. Bradford, whose appointment was not confirmed by the senate.

Will Be Present

George R. Jordan, first vice president of Lions International, of Dallas, has advised that he will be present for the district convention to be held in Ranger May 4 and 5.

Funeral services will be held at the Lightner Funeral Home in Abilene Tuesday with burial at the Strawn Cemetery.

He is survived by his wife and two children.

Cat's Broken Tail Is Put In Splints

KILGORE, Texas.—Six-inch splints have fixed Dutch's broken tail so he can ride the fire engine again.

Senators Give And Take Wisecracks About New Bills

AUSTIN, Tex.—A. A. Dawson of Canton, former state's attorney in the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals startled Sen. John Lee Smith of Throckmorton with an invitation to come to East Texas for next Thanksgiving Day dinner.

Dawson then explained why he extended the invitation. "I see there has been a bill introduced in the legislature to prohibit killing of turkeys in Throckmorton County," Dawson said. "It doesn't say wild turkeys—just turkeys—and I do not want you to have to go without turkey on Thanksgiving Day."

Sens. Ben Ramsey of San Augustine and Jesse Martin of Fort Worth looked horns over Ramsey's bill to let juries in civil cases take the pleadings with them into the jury room when the jury retires to consider a verdict.

Ramsey said that had been permissible prior to the revision of the state statutes in 1925 but had been omitted from the codification.

Martin said it was omitted purposely. He argued that the procedure was bad. Ramsey said he had heard of no complaints when the rule was in effect.

"Ever read the Sapp case?" asked Martin.

"I've read lots of 'sap cases,'" responded Ramsey.

Texas Has More Old People, Less Youngsters Now

AUSTIN, Tex.—Texas had more old people today than ever before, and a smaller proportion of youngsters.

A report by the U. S. Bureau of Census indicated that the average age of state citizens took a big jump toward senility in the 10 years, 1930 to 1940.

The report also showed:
1. That the "rust bowl" migrations which depopulated other states sent 96,000 new residents to Texas.

2. That farm population in Texas still was on the decrease, but that non-farm residents in rural areas increased slightly in number.

3. That the proportion of white persons compared with negroes increased 3.2 per cent, from 85.3 per cent in 1930 to 88.5 per cent in 1940.

The bureau predicted that the rate of population growth in the state would be slowed "if the present birth and death rates at the various age levels continue." A large excess of births over deaths was observed in the last decade.

Tracing the sources of a 590,109 gain in Texas population, the bureau ascribed it partly to the birth rate and partly to immigration, including persons under 10 years old not counted in the 1930 census.

A "net reproduction table" indicates, the bureau said, that Texans who die are replaced at a rate of about 104 per cent, exclusive of immigration. This would mean only a four per cent population increase during the next 10 years.

The number of old persons over 65 years of age rose from 1930 to 1940, the bureau said, while the number of persons under 20 declined. This was said to be in accordance with national population trends.

Urban and rural non-farm population in the state rose from 21.8 per cent to 23.4 per cent in the decade. The urban classification included persons living in communities of more than 2,500 population.

The number of farmers declined about eight per cent.

U. S. Patrol May Already Be Working

WASHINGTON, April 28.—The United States and British Navies appeared today to be actively cooperating within the limits of President Roosevelt's expanded patrol policy to relieve the Axis blockade upon the British Isles.

The battle of the Mediterranean began cautiously today as German armored forces and air units sought to mop up remnants of allied resistance in Greece and to pound at British evacuation transports enroute to Crete and peared to be attempting to take Egypt.

The British and the Allies appeared to be attempting to take the initiative in North Africa, where motorized units supported the Free French in a stab at French Solaliland, while in northern Europe Royal Air Force planes struck again at the Nazi bases with daylight raids by their heavy bombers on Emden, German naval base.

On the Western Frontier of Egypt Axis motorized columns are meeting with heavy counter attacks by the Royal Air Force as they "felt out" the British defenses in thrusts from Libya, presumably as a prelude to a big scale offensive against the Suez Canal.

From besieged Tobruk it was reported that Australian troops were sometimes using their bayonets in charges against the Axis artillery positions and that in holding off the Axis columns at one time they had taken the offensive. Berlin sources claimed today that British thrusts from Tobruk had collapsed, although it was admitted that there had been severe fighting.

The attack of the Free French Forces, under Gen. Charles De Gaulle, on Somaliland, in the direction of Daqualeh, was reported in official messages to Vichy, indicating, but not saying, that the French regular forces were carrying out their promise to fight any attempt to invade the French colonies.

Other Free French troops were reported to have landed in British Somaliland for a pincer movement against French territory.

At Berlin the Nazis emphasized that there had been no "intermission" in the battle of the Mediterranean, and operations were being pushed for action against Crete and to destroy British power in the Eastern Mediterranean.

We Meant What We Said

"We owe it, therefore, to candor . . . to declare that we should consider any attempt on their part to extend their system to any portion of this hemisphere as dangerous to our peace and safety."

No, that is not President F. D. Roosevelt speaking of Greenland in 1941. That is President James Monroe speaking of the whole Western Hemisphere in 1823.

But the passing of 118 years has not changed the essential wisdom of Monroe's Doctrine. In fact, it has heightened it. With rapid transportation and the bombing plane, it is more than ever necessary that no European or Asiatic nation be allowed to get a new foothold on Western Hemisphere territory.

It is a simple fact that Canada and the United States would not feel safe if a German air base were to be set up in southern Greenland. It is less than a thousand miles to the North American seaboard from that point—just a hop-skip-and-jump for a modern long-range bomber.

Experience of the past two years has amply proved that the only way to assure safety in these matters is to move first. The British hesitated to violate the neutrality of Belgium and Holland and Scandinavia. And while they hesitated, mediating on niceties of international law, the Nazis acted. Seizing the initiative in each case, they were "there fustet with the mostest." And they won.

President Roosevelt would seem to have learned the lesson. Germany might well want Greenland because of its value as a base to attack British shipping as a weather observation station, as a source of cryolite. Her planes have soared over it. The President obviously determined that this time the Germans should not be first. Greenland, almost all of it, is clearly in the Western Hemisphere. Its occupation by Germany would be a danger to the United States. We act, therefore, in our own interest, determined for once to "be there first."

Europe and all the lands in it may be merely a set of prizes to be raked-in by the strongest, like chips in a poker game. But the lands of the Western Hemisphere are not prizes to be fought over in this way.

The United States so determined 118 years ago. The American republics, all of them, are like-minded today.

This we have said—and we meant what we said.

An agricultural college is feeding cows sawdust. How will you have your plank steak?

Misery doesn't love company that stays for dinner.

Looking at the bright side—suppose you lived at the North Pole and hubby stayed out all night?

Whenever you feel like turning up your nose at people, remember the law of gravity.

SERIAL STORY

LOVE POWER

BY OREN ARNOLD

YESTERDAY: Leana's letter is an appeal to Bob Hale for love. He is disheartened, tries to dictate an answer. Finally he tells Carolyn to write the letter. She is forced to write a love letter for him to another girl. When she bursts into tears, Hale mistakes her emotion for sympathy, decides he knows nothing about women.

CAROLYN FALLS IN LOVE

CHAPTER XI

CAROLYN did not see Bob Hale again before he took the west-bound plane. Moreover, she did not accomplish much more at the office that day.

Hardest task she had ever been given was to type Bob's dictated note to Leana Sorni. She considered it tearfully, angrily, dutifully, for more than an hour, re-reading her notes dozens of times and reflecting on his instructions to phrase it as she thought best. The ultimate result was rather brief and, doubtless, unsatisfactory, at least to Leana.

Then without ceremony Carolyn went home. She told herself she would never come back. On the bus, she didn't care if the Schoenfeld Laboratory was moved to Kamchatka or Tibet. She didn't want to have anything more to do with it. She wished she had never heard of X-999. She wished Leana Sorni's too, too perfectly groomed flaxen hair had car grease smeared on it—No, she didn't either, she just wished that—that—oh, darn!

The mood lasted until she had almost reached the bus stop nearest her home, and then she knew she would go back to the Schoenfeld Laboratory and do everything she could to help Bob Hale.

"I am being a fool," she informed herself, with some degree of accuracy. "I was hired to be a secretary. Nothing unreasonable has been asked of me. I am earning twice what I earned at the bank, and my boss is—"

She choked up on that. She was glad the bus stopped then, lest she make a scene of herself before other passengers. It made her mad, the way she "acted up" lately, the way her feelings behaved. Nothing of the sort had ever happened in her old secretarial job at the bank.

By the time she had reached home she had become characteristically to the point of saying facts are facts and the only thing to do is face them.

"Mother," she told that beloved person in sudden confidence. "I love a man."

MRS TYLER was a tactful woman. She did not gush. "If you love him, honey, I am glad. Dr. Hale has a good reputation." "I didn't say it was Dr. Hale!" "You didn't have to, dear. I have lived, myself. And watched."

"Mother, I love him until I'm about crazy! You won't understand that, but—"

"I understand that, too." "But it's hell, mother!" "Darling!" "I am not swearing. I mean it. I'm not going to cry—that's already over. Mother, he doesn't love me."

Mrs. Tyler contemplated that briefly. "In my day, if I loved such a man, I would make him love me! Girls have ways of—"

"That's just the point. The—hell part. Mother, he has tied my hands. I am his confidential secretary. He pays me $300 a month—imagine! And today he dictated a love letter, told me he loved somebody else, and actually asked me to help him win that other girl!"

Mrs. Taylor remained calm. But her brow furrowed and she eventually spoke again. "I see now what you meant, dear. It was barely a murmur, but filled with sympathy. In the final analysis you will sacrifice anything—anything—to insure the happiness of a person loved."

ON the surface, at least, Miss Carolyn Tyler, secretary, was efficiency itself when she returned next morning to the laboratory. Actually her work for this day and all the week was routine typing and filing. She had Bob's long-neglected records to copy. She saw Leana Sorni only at a distance. She answered telephone calls, steered personal callers away, thought every minute of what course she would take when Bob returned.

Six days after he left, Bob telephoned. It was late afternoon.

"Carolyn!" he cried exultantly, over long distance. "I have found just the spot. I've already started work on it. Have you been all right? I wish I had brought you with me to help with the—See here, Carolyn, I have changed my mind about handling the substance myself. After Leana's letter, I realized that she is just as capable as I am, so will you please tell her to take charge and ship the substance by train. Her ideas will be as good as mine, or better."

"Yes, Dr. Hale."

His speech had been oddly mixed up, Carolyn knew. And why hadn't he called Leana in the first place?

"Are you all right?" he repeated. "You're calling me 'Dr. Hale' again."

"Oh."

"Carolyn, I can't say too much over the phone, as you know. But ask Leana to hurry. Safety demands—"

"Of course!" she answered him, reassuringly. "We will do it today, Bob. I—if there's anything we need, Ken Palmer will help us again. Last night he told me—"

"Who?"

"Ken Palmer. My boy friend who hired the police, remember? But he won't need to know anything. He will just help us with any arrangements or whatever we need, so that you can go ahead there."

Carolyn tried to reassure him still more, even asking if he wished to talk with Leana herself. But Bob strangely had a change of mind.

"Look, Carolyn, on second thought I believe I will come home and do it myself. There is no great rush at this end provided a place is already provided. I shall catch a plane tonight. That'll be—let's see—about 14 hours from now I can be home again and—"

SHE was astonished, but she couldn't change him. Oddly, she didn't want to. The quick sinking feeling she had experienced when he first told her he wasn't coming back, had somehow been replaced by elation.

The good feeling persisted, too. As trusted secretary, now, she gave thought to her duties. If Bob himself was returning, that ruled Leana Sorni out of using the next move. But she herself, as Bob's assistant, could very start preparations for him, couldn't she?

She had taken charge of things, anyway, since he left; such as checking the guards, paying them with money Bob left her, handling the normal business routine. A man expects his secretary to be efficient, and if Bob wanted to transfer everything westward as soon as possible—

Head up, Carolyn went straightaway to Leana Sorni, to inform her courteously that preparations for moving the priceless X-999 were already under way.

LEANA PLANS REVENGE
CHAPTER XII
LEANA SORMI, perfectly groomed, as always, because of her scientific mind revolted against anything not precise and orderly, swung down the hallway in graceful strides. Carolyn watched her from a distance and had to admit the older woman's bodily beauty and grace. Leana had limbs, hips, torso, shoulders, hair and posture which any girl might envy, and Carolyn told herself, fearfully, that these can go a long way to offset a rather plain face. Especially if they are topped with a brilliant mind.

To avoid any clash, Carolyn's first urge was to hurry into her own office. She knew Leana was coming to see Bob. Next instant, however, she remembered the somewhat frantic way in which Bob had pleaded for help in his strange courtship with Leana, so she waited.

"You look lovely this morning," Carolyn said, by way of greeting. Leana warmed ever so slightly. "I always wear white well."

"There was no more. No smiles. No moment of geniality, no further bit of girl talk. Leana passed on as if detached from the world. Carolyn sensed anew that she could never be of any help to Bob Hale in his personal heart matter. Everything in her rebelled against trying!"

LEANA went to Bob's office. Carolyn, anxious to escape the inevitable eavesdropping, or interfering in any way, found excuses to stay away from her desk. In characteristic bluntness, Leana drove straight to her point. "Robert, now that you have returned to actual work," she emphasized the last two words almost bitterly—"perhaps you will be so good to tell me the plans you have made."

Bob Hale, although surprised, did not seem to mind. "For getting it to the train, Carolyn agrees that—"

SERIAL STORY LOVE POWER

BY OREN ARNOLD

YESTERDAY, Bob Hale went to find a location for the X-999 laboratory. Carolyn realized that she is in love with him. However, he loves Leana. She keeps her job, however, awaiting Bob's return. He finds an ideal hiding place, carries home to supervise the transfer of X-999. Carolyn takes charge, tells Leana preparations for moving are underway.

"Indeed! The matter was taken right out of my hands." Her asperity caught his attention. "But, Leana, she—why not? Carolyn is to be complimented. For efficiency, she had already ordered a freight car when I arrived home, had the exact train schedule on my desk. She had anticipated my reasoning that a freight car offers the best and safest transport."

"Carolyn arranged to load the car at the Meyer switch, only half a mile from here. The lead conductors will be cast and ready by 6 or 7 o'clock tonight. The girl is priceless."

"There'll be so much secretarial work, so I've asked Carolyn to go west with us. Move out there, with her mother. Dependable help is invaluable. Leana, and she has proved herself."

"Unavoidably." He nodded agreement. "Which is all the more reason for getting our job done with dispatch. Carolyn has some good ideas about packing, too. Look, she suggests if ordinary coil springs be mounted on all sides of the padded containers, and they in turn padded again outside, there is practically no possibility of shock no matter how rough the trip may be. As you know, ordinary shock should not disturb X-999 anyway. Only heat or a percussion cap might do it. And yet, that first effort—"

He recalled the explosion, which still baffled him. "For getting it to the train, Carolyn agrees that—"

CAROLYN, Carolyn, Carolyn! Robert seemed full of her name. Leana's lips tightened, worked in and out nervously. She was shrewd enough to say no more, though, lest she reveal something of the deep resentment she felt. The Tyler girl had no place here, no right! She was an intruder. What had "efficiency" to do with it? Any child could charter a freight car, suggest a packing case.

prior here, had always tacitly placed Miss Sormi in a position of virtual partnership and equality in their laboratory work. She had come to expect it. "As a matter of fact," he went on, "Carolyn has made most of the arrangements already. She is to—"

She had all but thrown herself on him in person, and in a letter. And her only response had been a tersely polite note, impeccably reassuring but entirely unresponsive in its subtler, more meaningful tones.

On the other hand she was Robert Hale's partner in full confidence here. One of the only two persons in all the world who knew the priceless X-999 secret!

"There lies infinite power!" she whispered, so intent that she trembled. "Power in more ways than he suspects!" The fury swelled within her. "It is as much mine as his. I deserve it! He is nothing but a boy, here at the crucial time. I should have full charge of it! I can! . . . I . . . will!"

Obviously—the thought occurred to her in genuine logic—she could murder Robert Hale and be rid of him. Her vast scientific knowledge could easily devise a safe way. But—she loved him, and she had loved him, up to this moment. She discarded murder, then.

"But I can take X-999 for my own!" she whispered again. Her eyes were gleaming wildly now. She gripped the arms of her chair. "I can take every bit of it, and leave the cyclotron and the other equipment in such condition that he would need another year, at least, to repair them! In that time I can—I can—!"

The possibilities were staggering. And in Leana Sormi, to plan a course was to act on it at once. (To Be Continued)

A. & P. Offers New Flour For Defense Back to Britain for More Pictures

NEW YORK, April 28.—As a further step in its program of cooperation with health authorities in the national defense program, the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company today announced a change in its "Sunnyfield" brand family flour to conform with the new "enriched" standards.

Frank M. Tully, in charge of flour-buying operations for the A. & P., explained that family flour packages now moving to retail outlets are labeled "enriched" and carry a statement that the flour contains more than 1.66 milligrams of Vitamin B1, or thiamin; 6.15 milligrams of nicotinic acid, the pellagra-preventive found in many common foods such as liver, kidney and other wholesome meats, and 6.15 milligrams of iron.

This change in the flour follows closely the company's action in placing its bread in the "enriched" product class through the addition of corresponding amount of the vitamin and mineral properties.

Americans' preference for delicate white bread, Tully pointed out, has brought about milling processes which have given an extra-fine product, but which have been responsible for the loss of much of the vitamin and mineral values of wheat flour. This loss is now counteracted by addition, after the milling process, of the "B" complex" properties that bring the white flour closer to parity with whole wheat flour.

Adoption of the new type flour follows an intensive test program of studying consumer reaction, Tully said. "Results were even more encouraging than we had anticipated," he declared, pointing out that during the survey the "enriched" and ordinary types of flour had been offered side by side. "Sales of the enriched product showed that the educational work being carried on by the industry and government authorities has made excellent progress. Preference for the new type product was, in some cases, unanimous, and for the test as a whole was materially higher than for the type type product."

The survey also revealed, however, that demand for the enriched flour was decidedly greater among the average and above-average income groups than those of low incomes, Tully said. "It is this latter group," he explained, "that both government and the industry are particularly anxious to reach, for these people comprise the largest proportion of the population that is today consuming a diet which is deficient in essential health-giving vitamins."
