Take a Good Look While You Can

A new interceptor plane, the Lockheed P-38, seems by almost too fast to be seen, appears and gets out of sight before sound of its motors is heard. It climbs straight up at about 300 miles an hour, with top speed of more than 400 m. p. h., is claimed to be world's fastest plane. So, photographer caught it sitting at Burbank, Calif., as you could see what it looks like.

Army Says More Physicians Now Are Badly Needed

All licensed physicians and surgeons who are Selective Service registrants were urged today by General J. Watt Page, State Selective Service Director, to apply for commissions in the Medical Reserve Corps.

"There is a shortage of physicians and surgeons in the Medical Reserve Corps," General Page said, "and such registrants can serve their country better as medical officers than as inductees for military training."

The war department recently announced several thousand vacancies in the Medical Reserve Corps, and that physicians and surgeons commissioned would be given the grade of first lieutenant.

General Page said that Texas local boards have been instructed to see that while no practicing doctor whose services are necessary to his community is inducted for military training, the requirements of the armed forces for physicians and surgeons also must be filled.

Defense Contracts In State Reach a Big Total In March

This total does not include sub-contracts nor orders for miscellaneous supplies. These figures were taken from reports of the state headquarters, U. S. Office of Government Reports.

Rail ran right through radiator, on through driver's seat and out rear end, as shown in pictures. Driver was Mrs. Howard Raines, wife of a sergeant.

Great Britain's growing air force seized the offensive today in the largest bombing attack of the war against Germany, while Royal Air Force night fighters again took a heavy toll of Nazi bombers over England.

Battering British attacks, in which more than 300 planes dumped 1,990 tons of bombs on Hamburg, Bremen, Emden and Berlin, coincided with new blows and counter blows on the war front in the Middle East with Great Britain reporting rapid progress against the pro-Axis troops in Iraq.

The Iraqi were cleared off the plateau from which they shelled the Royal Air Force air base and were pursued by the British toward Baghdad.

German and Italian planes bombed the Suez Canal, reporting that the attack of several hours duration had done heavy damage to installations and railroads in the area toward which the Axis campaign in the Mediterranean was aimed.

Big Bend Board To Meet On May 15th At Mineral Wells

MINERAL WELLS—Not one gathering, but two, will be underway here next week. Thursday, opening day of the West Texas chamber of commerce convention, also has been set for a called meeting of the Texas Big Bend Park association board and its congressional district and county chairmen. The session has been called for 4 o'clock Thursday at the Baker hotel by Amon Carter, Fort Worth, board president.

Both houses of the Texas legislature have passed a bill to appropriate $1,500,000 for purchase of more than 750,000 acres of rangeland in the Big Bend of the Rio Grande, site of the park, preparatory to its designation as a national park. The board will consider this new favorable development, and others matters.

The Big Bend group has been invited to have dinner Thursday evening with West Texas chamber of Commerce directors in their first business session, starting at 6:30 p. m. at the Crazy hotel. Invitation letters, with tickets, have gone out from convention headquarters here.

H. W. Morelock, Alpine, is vice-president of the Big Bend Park board; Nathan Adams, Dallas, treasurer; D. A. Bandeen, Abilene, secretary; and Harry Connelly, Fort Worth, executive secretary. There are 50 directors and 40 district and county chairmen.

When Hitler and Churchill Agree

You don't expect, these days, agreement between Adolf Hitler and Winston Churchill on anything.

But they do appear to agree on one thing—and it is a thing that has significance for the United States. It is this: the war is a long way from being over.

Churchill said in a recent speech that Britain is in for an "undoubtedly long and formidable war."

Hitler said in his birthday message: "A hard battle year stands before us."

That last is a significant utterance in a country which from many official sources was promised final victory last fall. It means that Hitler knows what some Americans seem not to realize—that victory in the Balkans is not victory in the war. Victory in the whole Mediterranean or the whole Near East is not victory in the war.

The mighty fortress of Britain stands, battered and bruised, but unshaken. The control of the seas is still British. The world-wide Empire is intact. Hitler may well speak of a hard battle year. The war could conceivably last very much longer. It could last two more years—10 more.

That does not mean that the United States can hold back for a moment in the delivery of munitions so urgently needed. Yugoslavia and Greece fell in about three weeks. A shipload of supplies starting from New York the very day the Germans invaded would not have reached them before the whole tragedy was over. The United States did not let anybody down. American aid is not ineffective. Any help to Yugoslavia and Greece was based on the supposition that a front could be established and held. This proved impossible; time, that one indispensable munition of war, was lacking.

Hitler's own suggestion of "a hard battle year" makes it pretty clear that this will not be true of other battle zones. Whatever war material is on the way to Greece, for instance, will probably wind up in Egypt, not wasted. And American production is beginning to get under way. By and large, it is coming just as fast as any informed people thought it could when the program was launched less than a year ago.

Now is no time for faltering in the course we have chosen.

It is better to be right and lose, than to be wrong and win.

Best of all is to be right and win, too.

Certain people we think of are all right in their way. The trouble is, they're always getting in ours.

Consider the postage stamp—it gets there simply by sticking.

History Is Made By An Old Kettle

BATON ROUGE, La.—An old iron kettle blackened by the many fires over which it has hung in the campus of Louisiana State University as a memorial to the man who made Louisiana's sugar industry possible.

Indigo was the money crop when the French planter aristocracy owned plantations that stretched for miles along the bayous and lakes of Southern Louisiana at the end of the 18th century. Jean Etienne de Bore was no exception.

De Bore was born in the Illinois section of the Louisiana territory. At the age of 3, he was taken to France by his parents where he received his education and later married into large colonial holdings.

He returned to New Orleans with his wife about the time of the French Revolution and established his plantation on what now is a part of Audubon Park near the city limits.

Planters Near Bankruptcy
There he engaged in the planting of indigo. When a blight, however, wiped out the indigo crops, de Bore and other the planters were faced with bankruptcy.

Many planters already had tried to granulate sugar from cane juice, but their experiments failed time after time. De Bore, overriding the protests of his wife, decided to have a fling at the sugar business.

He planted his entire plantation in sugar cane, built a small sugar mill and imported an experienced sugarmaker. His experiment attracted wide attention.

Success achieved in 1795
A crowd gathered at the sugar house one day in December, 1795. A large black pot had been placed over a hot fire. As many as could crowd into the house watched the cane juice for a sign of granulation. Finally, small white spots appeared on the surface.

Historians say that on that day the sugar industry in Louisiana was born.

General Will Be Convention Speaker At Mineral Wells

MINERAL WELLS—A featured speaker before the West Texas chamber of commerce convention here will be Brig.-Gen. Preston A. Weathered, commanding the 72nd Infantry brigade, 36th Division, at Camp Bowie.

The WTCC convention dates are Thursday and Friday, May 15-16. Gen. Weathered will address the national defense assembly starting at 2:30 Friday afternoon. His subject will be "Texas Labor in the Defense Picture."

Another featured speaker in Friday's defense assembly is Col. Ernest O. Thompson, a fellow officer of Weathered's from the 36th division. Thompson is commander of the 111th quartermaster corps; was the youngest colonel (in his early 20's) in the American Expeditionary Force in the first world war; and in civil life is a member of the Texas railroad commission. Col. Thompson will speak on Texas natural resources in national defense.

Weathered is a native of Hill county, Texas, and has served continuously as a citizen soldier for forty years, in all grades from private to brigadier general. He served on the Mexican border in 1914 and 1915; joined the 36th division at Camp Bowie, then in Fort Worth, in 1917; and overseas commanded the 132nd machine-gun battalion. He is an attorney by profession, living in Dallas. For the last 14 years he has acted as counsel for the ice industry of Texas, and, on occasion, for the national and other groups of that industry.

"Hex" Antidotes Of Old Are Studied

HARRISBURG, Pa.—Settled in the rich farming lands of southeastern Pennsylvania, the "Pennsylvania Dutch"—a number of whom trace their ancestry to the earliest Colonial days—are famous for many things—thrift, prosperity, good farming, better cooking, religious sects, and a highly developed "superstition" which still influences the daily life of the family.

Long of interest for students of folklore, and even scientists, A. Monroe Aurand, Jr., author of several books on the local customs and history, has written a pamphlet detailing many of the superstitious beliefs of the region.

While a large number of our more common beliefs in "good and bad" omens, are incorporated in the superstitions of the "Dutch," the "hex" country has added a number to the list, particularly for combating witches.

Local legend, Aurand says, prescribes that "if you are bewitched by a broom before your door, the first person to pick it up is the witch! Or, if you think you are bewitched, beware of the first person to borrow something. She is another witch. Since all witches ride brooms, you can rid yourself of the intruder by sweeping her out the door. Then she'll turn into a black cat and run away."

Other witch lore cited by Aurand as "necessary knowledge" in the area to keep witches out of the house include a sprig of St. John's Wort nailed over both doors and windows, and a similar procedure with a horseshoe.

However, if the witch eludes you there are a number of ways to get rid of her. Prescribed methods are throwing salt in the fire; cut off the ears of a black cat, or shoot her with a gun loaded with a hair.

While modern times are continually driving witch-lore, hexing and superstition further into the discard, the height of such practices was reached in Schuylkill country, where a "bewitched" boy shot an old woman, because she had put the "hex" on him. Even as recently as last year, several reports of "hexing by witches" have been heard.

SERIAL STORY

LOVE POWER

BY OREN ARNOLD

COPYRIGHT BY NEH SERVICE CO.

YOUNG LENA SORMI had a special plan to murder through the radio receiver set, carried in the Tonto Mountain, connects its generator to a dynamo cap in the X-899 receiver. A small portable set, 100 watts, 112.5 on the dial, will send the message that will set off the X-899. All she has to do now, is to get into the shaft. Why didn't she ask her to go riding. Lena and Carolyn have a date. Will Lena ask about it?

CHAPTER XXII

On four different occasions Lena Sormi had clocked the time necessary to walk from the Tyler cottage, down a trail, around the curving railroad track and into the old mine shaft to the X-899. It took only from 19 to 28 minutes.

She had, therefore, only to set an arbitrary hour for Carolyn to be ready for her. Then she could take herself accordingly, and be ready prepared station on the far side of Mummy Ridge.

She knew that her concealed receiver-generator, wired to set off the dynamo cap, was extremely sensitive. Her transmitter on Mummy Ridge would reach it easily, even through the rock and soil of Tonto Mountain.

This time she had no accomplices, no one but herself to trust. The perfection of the plan gave Lena double satisfaction.

First, it would completely remove that annoying stenographer from the scene, she who had so brazenly intruded upon Lena's and Bob's affairs.

Second, it would "punish" Robert for neglecting her, by destroying the X-899 which he had worked so long to produce. Lena saw this not as fantastic reasoning but as logical, righteous means to an end.

She was so pleased with herself on this appointed day of victory that she had accepted Robert's impulsive invitation to ride horseback with him and Carolyn.

Why not go? Why not? It would be her hour of triumph over the stupid, unsuspecting Tyler girl!

In preparation, Lena spent almost an hour dressing this afternoon. She had only the Hopi Indian cook to aid her, and she lacked what any average American-born woman would have called essential cosmetics, but she did an excellent job.

Perfecting her hair, she saw that it was literally the spun gold of the love-story heroine. She posed before her mirror—undeniably she possessed form and grace. She leaned closer—her eyes were an alluring gray-blue. Only her cheeks and lips annoyed her. The cheeks were too high, like the Indian cook's, and the lips were definitely large and coarse.

Angry, she knew she could do nothing about either. She hastened to don a most becoming riding costume.

CAROLYN experienced a moment of panic when Lena joined them. That Lena had come at all, or that Bob had even asked her, was a distinct surprise. Of course, Carolyn had no alternative but to pretend pleasure.

"How do you do?" Lena greeted her with astonishing artifice. It was as if they had been old acquaintances, meeting again after months of separation.

"You look so nice!" Carolyn ventured, and meant it.

"But not nearly as sweet and dainty as you. Isn't she the loveliest thing, Robert, dear?"

Robert, dear, it developed, was quite in agreement. In truth he was delighted that the two girls were so companionable. He recalled now that they hadn't cultivated much of a friendship as yet. But he berated himself for that. Since Carolyn joined the staff everyone had been so busy and distracted by various excitements. He resolved to foster their friendship more. And anyway, come to think of it, Lena was a sensitive person whom he was supposed to—to, uh—he frowned a bit to himself.

He didn't wish even to think of his deeper personal "responsibilities" toward her right now; he wanted only to ride for relaxation. "I could make thousands of men jealous this afternoon," he said. "Goodness, Bob!" Carolyn was nervous, but pleased.

"Dr. Hale is gallant," Lena supplied. "But tell me more about yourself, Miss Tyler. Do you have scientific leanings also? Or have you been trained more extensively in the fine arts?" She spoke loftily.

Carolyn tried not to show that she was ill at ease. "Oh, no, I did go through college, Junior college, I mean. But I—I had to work after that. I had to work my way through Junior college in fact. I don't mean I'm ashamed of that, but I—I mean—"

It sounded so lame as to be embarrassing. Why was she allowing this woman to annoy her? Let it go, didn't answer her own question.

She only knew that Lena Sormi had re-awakened in her a vague but positive fear. Fear of the unknown; an imperative, urgent sense of alarm.

There was nothing she could do about it.

THE two hours' ride dragged like two centuries. Lena kept up her astonishing conversation. Art, highbrow talk, not quite posy but definitely superior, drawing constantly if unlabeled contrast between her own distinguished achievements and Carolyn's meager education and career.

Bob Hale didn't notice. He was wont to beam happily at both of them and to show off what his horse could do. He wished he had a larrikin. He was a carefree kid at play again. He saw nothing of the girls' rather desperate drama of words. For that, Carolyn was thankful.

When the trip was over and they were back at their little village stables again, they separated with a certain forced merriment. Carolyn walked straight home. It was after 5 o'clock, she noted. Her mother was mixing a chocolate cake and, oddly, it didn't interest Carolyn, who also loved to cook. She just sat and stared at the floor for 20 minutes or so—and was surprised again when Lena Sormi called her from out front. She went to the porch. Lena was still on her horse.

"Oh, Miss Tyler," Lena began, "Robert asked me to bring a confidential message. He wants you to meet him in the tunnel at 6 o'clock, please. It seemed to be important." Carolyn was mildly surprised. "At—6?"

Lena nodded. "Yes. He thought it best to meet there while most of the village is at the dinner hour." Lena spoke significantly. "You understand. At the—substance, I think I shall ride a bit more myself. Another time we can go together, maybe!"

THE older girl rode away. When Carolyn had changed from her riding clothes she started to walk down to the trail and around the bend that led to the Tonto Mountain tunnel. She was curious. She looked for Bob but didn't see him, so probably he had already gone in.

From across a canyon Lena watched Carolyn depart. She noted the exact time on her wrist watch. Then she rode her horse on around Mummy Ridge out of sight. After exactly 26 minutes she pressed a switch on the transmitter she had concealed.

"HE SAVES MOST NOW WHO SPENDS ENOUGH"

THERE'S a rule for your guidance you may not find in the copybooks—but that doesn't subtract one whit from its truth. Because when you buy a new car this spring you want one that will see you through many a summer. So while you're trading it's good sense to trade up—up to something solidly good through and through. Trade up, for instance, to the FIREBALL power of Buick's more efficient valve-in-head straight-eight. Trade up to the thrift of Compound Carburation—exclusively Buick's, and as much as 10% to 15% more economical of gasoline than last year. Trade up to a splendid big Body by Fisher—to Buick's all-coil springing that is forever cushiony yet forever free from service attention—to stout, ride-steady torque-tube drive with nothing about it to go wrong. Buick's bodies are roomier, its frames huskier—its steering gears go three to four times as long without adjustment and its main bearings have half-again the service life in them. Things like that really count these days—yet they're yours in a Buick for a trifle more at most than you'd spend in any event. Go call on your Buick dealer now!
