AUTO WORKERS WILL TURN OUT PLANE MOTORS

By Bernard Crandell
United Press Staff Correspondent
DETROIT.—One of the first major tests of whether defense worker training programs will meet the increasing demand for skilled workers is the Packard Motor company's problem of placing 17,000 men into its new plant to manufacture Rolls Royce airplane engines.

Packard officials believe they have the problem whipped. Next month when their first engine of the 9,000 contracted for by the United States and Great Britain is scheduled to come off the assembly line, there will be several thousand workers on the job and more will be added as production is stepped up.

Packard used its marine engine program as a training ground for men who might later be transferred to Rolls Royce production. The marine engines, being manufactured for the British and American navies for use in high-speed torpedo boats, are similar to an aircraft engine like the Rolls and thus provided a good training field.

Men selected from automobile lines were transferred to the marine division for a three to four week training period. When installation of machinery and facilities in the Rolls division had advanced sufficiently these men were transferred to their new assignments. This plan gave Packard men for key positions and they are building nine Rolls engines by hand further to familiarize themselves with the task.

The larger training program will have skilled instructors in every Rolls division having more than 40 men. Over a 60-day period instructors will train and supervise "green" men and upgrade them as rapidly as possible. New men will be fed constantly to the training program as others are trained and up-graded.

General personnel selected from the Rolls program will receive a short oral examination and visual study of machines and operations in the job. This is expected to familiarize the men with their objective jobs and prepare them for actual training.

Packard also is training enlisted personnel of the U. S. and Canadian navies in the operation of marine engines.

At Royal Oak, Mich., a suburb of Detroit, a machine shop is being operated entirely by deaf men. Sixteen men work in the Oakland Machine Works, which is located in an abandoned factory, and each week they turn out about 50 per cent of the water pump pulleys used on Ford automobiles—about 5,000 daily.

Leo H. Kuehn, a deaf mute, started the shop. He had worked for Ford for 12 years as a tool die expert before he decided in 1933 to help others handicapped like himself. Kuehn told his men, and the foreman told Ford, that he would purchase the pulleys he could make, and Ford offered to help him solve the mechanical problems in getting the shop in operation.

Former Eastland Citizen Buried At Hamilton, Tex.

Justice of the Peace E. E. Wood and wife, Miss Sallie Day and Ed T. Cox, Sr., went to Hamilton Thursday to attend the funeral of Claude West.

When a boy Mr. West was a resident of Eastland. He left here, however, in 1887, and located at Hamilton where he had been engaged in the hardware business most of the time. He was 70 years old.

Average Room Is Smaller Than in 1926

By United Press
CHICAGO, Ill.—During the last 15 years the average American home has decreased one room in size, Mortgage Bankers Association of America figures show.

Eastern homes average a half room larger than homes in other American districts, according to a survey.

Room averages now and fifteen years ago:
Eastern home is five and one-half against six and one-half.

Southern and Middle West is five against six.
Western is five against "over five."

The rate of family increase in the last decade was twice the population increase rate.

"But the number of persons per family has decreased," said Dean R. Hill, president of the association.

Because of more and smaller families, "more but apparently smaller" houses are in prospect, Hill predicted.

PROBLEMS RISE IN BOOM TOWN FOR OFFICIALS

By United Press
CHICAGO.—National defense has returned the "boom town" to the American scene, the American Municipal Association reports.

Surveying effects of the defense program upon cities, the association said that between 250 and 400 cities have become "boom towns" because they obtain defense industries "or are situated near to military posts.

In a typical "boom town," the association found, telephone business has gone up 300 per cent, water consumption has increased 10,000,000 gallons, and there aren't enough houses to go around, with the result that trailer camps have sprung up to house new workers attracted by increased job opportunities.

Problems of increased operating costs and expanding demand for public utility, police, health and educational services face most of these communities, it found.

The association reported that city officials were aware of two "fundamental facts":

1.—That, although national defense is a responsibility of the Federal government, effective operation is "in large part an urban task" because defense industries must be in or near cities and require city services.

2.—That the Federal government "had begun to recognize the urban character of the defense program," and was beginning to help cities in providing services to meet defense needs.

The report said communities near army camps and defense industry areas were "most noticeably shaken out of routine, but that all cities had been touched in some way by the defense program in its progress during the past year."

In the "boom towns," the government generally is taking special measures to help by building living quarters, extending streets and utilities with WPA labor, or offering military police aid. Cities "ordinarily" affected by the defense program have proceeded on their own initiative to meet the emergency, the report said, through various municipal departments, at the same time working through local and state defense councils in coordinating federal recommendations.

Many difficulties are still unsolved, the association said. They include:
Financing increasing costs of normal services and taking care of new ones brought on by defense; policing strikes effectively; keeping lower-salaried employees from leaving jobs for private industry; widening welfare functions.

"These typical problems were still without complete answer in May, 1941," the report stated.

Naval Aviation Class Is Ordered To Hensley Field

DALLAS, Texas.—Commander A. Laverents, Senior Member, Naval Aviation Cadet Selection Board, 524 Allen Building, Dallas, announced this morning that he had issued orders for another class of 31 aviation students to report to the Naval Reserve Air Base at Hensley Field, Dallas, Texas, on June 16th. This is the third class to assemble at this new Navy Aviation School.

Commander Laverents pointed out that since the Navy aviation students are being ordered in classes the first and third Monday in each month, there is very little delay between the time the candidate qualifies and when he is ordered to duty. This delay in the past has been as much as several months, whereas, now it is but a few days in most cases. Recent modification of the educational requirements which now eliminates the mathematical subjects and a reduction in the minimum height requirements from 5 feet 6 inches to 5 feet and 4 in., has greatly stimulated enlistments in this branch of service.

Wage Hike For Paper Industry Is Slated For June 30

DALLAS, Texas.—Wages of almost 50,000 workers in the United States in the converted paper products industry will be increased as a result of a wage order issued today by General Philip B. Fleming, Administrator of the Wage and Hour Division, U. S. Department of Labor, it was announced by Gus C. Street, Jr., Regional Director for Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas and New Mexico. The order, effective June 30, establishes minimum wage scales of 40, 38, and 36 cents in the industry.

The industry is distributed throughout the nation, with some phases to be found in virtually every state, it was said. In issuing the order General Fleming announced adoption of an industry committee's recommendation establishing wage scales for each of 33 product divisions of the industry. The industry committee was composed of equal representation of the public, the employer, and labor. A public hearing was held following its recommendation to the Administrator.

Section 8 of the Fair Labor Standards Act provides for wage rates up to 40 cents an hour for individual industries when such recommendations "will not substantially curtail employment in the industry."

Patriotic Songs At A Peacetime High

BOSTON.—Resulting from "a wave of solidarity intense enough to find expression in music," a new peace-time high for patriotic songs in America is approaching its peak, according to Dr. Alfred H. Meyes, professor of music at Boston University.

Dr. Meyer concluded a recent analysis with a published opinion that the current popularity of patriotic songs is due in part to Tin Pan Alley's attempt to commercialize on public sentiment.

He warned that "not everything written with patriotic music will be good." Dr. Meyer believes Irving Berlin's song "God Bless America" would not have enduring popularity except for the sheer quality of the music.

DIPLOMACY IS IN FOREFRONT IN WAR'S LULL

Events in Europe assumed a complex pattern today indicating widespread under surface diplomatic activity as preparations swept forward for opening up a big new fighting front in the Middle East.

Diplomatic action stemmed from Berlin and London. There appeared to be at least a possibility that Germany once more has taken advantage of the lull in actual hostilities to circulate peace feelers.

It seemed likely trial balloons for a Nazi peace offensive were linked closely with German plans for a comprehensive political, economic and social "new order" in Europe.

Sir Stafford Cripps is returning to London for a brief consultation from his Moscow office, but London gave no indication that any important results may be expected from his visit.

Military action today was on a small scale. The Italians reported bombardment of Gibraltar, giving rise to speculation that an all-out attack by the Axis on Mediterranean naval bases may be about to get underway.

Albany Police to Have Bomb Wagon

ALBANY, N. Y.—City Police departments are developing a new type paddy wagon—the bomb wagon.

The vehicles—they range from armored patrol cars to collections of oil reinforced drums hauled on a trailer—are becoming increasingly necessary because of the possibility of sabotage against the nation's armament race, according to the New York State Bureau of Criminal Investigation.

Cities need the new equipment, the bureau explained, to transport lethal machines to a safe place and to protect their population enroute.

Noting that an experienced saboteur may use a chemical timing mechanism in a bomb, the bureau warned:

"The impression that timing mechanism exists only in the form of a clock and produces a ticking noise is a display of dangerous ignorance. Any bomb may go off at any moment."

The Milwaukee Police Department constructed its bomb conveyance from a patrol wagon body and sheets of half-inch boiler plate. The bomb holder itself, welded into one unit, weighs more than a ton and a half. It is equipped with a bomb basket and a derrick so the driver may hoist the bomb into the holder from the protection of his armored cab. The basket is woven of heavy manila rope and weighs 200 pounds.

In addition the Milwaukee vehicle carries pulleys so explosives can be lowered from upper floors of buildings, and long ropes to enable officers to drag a bomb a safe distance behind them.

The Indianapolis police department used common materials to fashion its wagon. The vehicle consists of a trailer which is attached to the department's emergency truck. The trailer mounts three 5-gallon milk cans containing oil for suspected "ticker" time bombs. In addition there is a large container made from a 55-gallon oil drum for the same type of explosive.

For other suspected packages, the trailer has in its center a container constructed from a heavy hot water boiler holding 15 inches of sand in the bottom. As reinforcement for the side walls, 430 feet of steel cable was wound around the boiler and spot-welded to it.

Governors Cut Down Speed On Taxicabs

FORT WORTH, Tex.—In the midst of a traffic safety campaign, Billy Bob Watt, manager of a local cab company, has made certain his drivers do not exceed the 30-mile speed limit.

Watt has installed speed governors which begin blowing the horn when the car exceeds 30 miles per hour. At 40, the motor cuts off.

The governors operate by the speed of the car, not the motor.

Blindfolded Driver Now Safety Teacher

FOREIGN SHIPS WILL GO INTO U. S. SERVICE

American Ships Then May Go To Britain To Help Her Get Aid From America.

WASHINGTON June 6.—President Franklin D. Roosevelt today accused many Americans of being duped by German propaganda into circulating rumors that Great Britain is on the verge of a collapse and that peace moves were now impending because of the apparent defeat of British forces at the hands of the Nazis and Fascists.

The charges of the president came within a few minutes after the chief executive had given the Maritime Commission permission to requisition all immobilized foreign ships in American harbors, for use in American shipping channels.

The foreign ships, mostly Italians, German and French are expected to be put into use for coastwise American trade, while American vessels now engaged in this coastwise shipping will be transferred to British registry to aid embattled England to take American made goods to the British Isles.

Declaring that Great Britain was far from a state of collapse and that United States Ambassador John G. Winant had brought no peace proposals with him when he recently returned from England to report direct to the president, Mr. Roosevelt charged that the current peace talk had been instigated directly by the propaganda ministries in Berlin.

Rain Drenches the National Open In Its Second Round

FORT WORTH, June 6.—Nearly an inch of rain drenched the Colonial Country Club today as more than 160 of the nation's top flight golfers started the second round of the National Open Golf Tournament here.

Veteran Horton Smith led the early finishers with an unexpected 148, eight over par, with Bill Kaiser of Louisville trailing with 150. Abe Espinosa and Tom O'Connor, Yardley Pennsylvania, were bracketed at 151.

At 27 holes Harry Todd led the field with 109. Ben Hogan carded 40 to run his 27-hole total to 114. The field will be cut to the low 60 players after today's round and it appeared that 154, and possibly more, would be the dividing line.

Not Too Strong, Yet Strong Enough

Every American is deeply concerned today with preserving democratic institutions. Our love of freedom is redoubled by seeing the piteous plight of peoples who have lost it.

So, because people are activated by violent feelings, one hears violent words. This one or that one "ought to be hanged." That one or the other "ought to be made to shut up." Various people want to hang or shut up various other people, according to their opinions.

This very violence of feeling and of speech leads us back to a central problem of democracy which Lincoln surveyed in 1864, and on which he commented in words as wise as any American ever applied to practical politics:

"It has long been a grave question," he said, whether any government, not too strong for the liberties of its people, can be strong enough to maintain its existence in great emergencies."

Those words were spoken by Lincoln at a time of great emergency. He had the practical problem to face, just as we have it to face today. Waves of conflicting emotion sweep across the country today just as in 1864. We, too, face the same grave question. We must keep our free institutions as strong as they need to be to preserve them, yet not too strong for the liberties of the people. We must keep production rolling, so as to be able to defend democracy from threats from without, yet we must keep it rolling in such a way that its essential spirit is not destroyed within.

It is that spirit which will essentially preserve it in the long run, and nothing else.

Those who remember the World War know that in an emergency such as we face today things cannot go on "as usual."

Business cannot go on "as usual." Labor cannot go on "as usual." There will be, in the urgent interest of maintaining the government's existence, some infringements on the ways and even the liberties of normal peaceful life.

Yet we have turned the balances in that direction before, and yet afterward recovered our normal liberties. In times of grave emergency, we have several times leaned toward that strength required to maintain our existence. Each time we have been able to turn the balance back, to show that that strength was not, in the long run, too strong for the liberties of the people. This we can do again, and this we will do.

No one ever saved enough at the store on tooth brushes and tooth paste to buy store teeth.

Most people owe so many letters they just decide not to write any of them until tomorrow.

ALLEY OOP

Freckles and His Friends—By Blosser Cotton Research Congress Planned

THE PAY OFF BY HARRY GRAYSON, NEA Service Sports Editor

THOSE who did not see the Buddy Baer-Joe Louis thriller apparently are no more in the dark than those who did. From the time the announcer introduced the "incompatible" Joe Louis, all was confusion, as the cub reporter reported when sent out to cover a strike riot.

One of the news service writers confesses "no one in the whole vast audience—24,000 persons were in Griffith Stadium—was quite clear as to just what did happen." He then goes on to explain what did "as nearly as the movements of all concerned could be followed."

Say, what was it—a battle royal?

JIMMY SULLIVAN, a judge, testifies Baer was struck after the bell, but adds it doesn't follow that Louis should have been disqualified.

"At worst," comments Official Sullivan, "Louis should have had the round taken away from him."

That would have been a big help to Baer... like a reprieve after a hanging.

Big Buddy learned what formerly was one of the first lessons of the ring—to keep his hands up until clear of action.

Louis, you may recall, in his initial and disastrous excursion with Max Schmeling found that was much the healthier way. It was a clout on the chops after the bell that definitely put the Brown Bomber on the skids that night. He swayed to his corner like an Italian destroyer.

ONLY thing certain about the Baer-Louis affair is that Buddy Baer was definitely on the elevator when the questionable shot was fired. Anel Hoffman was wise in keeping him in his corner. He had his inning when he belted Louis through the ropes and stood him on his shoulder blades in Round One.

It was always a relatively simple assignment to knock Joe Louis down.

Some of our best bums have done it.

The problem still is to keep him pinned to the deck.

But the next time, if it's at all handy, you'd better see for yourself, regardless of the size of The-Bum-of-the-Month Club selection.

Membership in The-Bum-of-the-Month Club will close any day now, by the way.

There are no more seats in the joint.

Oil Line Link To Portland Is Due

By United Press

PORTLAND, Me. — A 250-mile oil pipe line is being laid between Portland and Montreal to relieve a shortage of tankers caused by government use.

About 6,000 men will be employed on the project, which will cost "at least $7,000,000" and require three months to complete, according to Alexander H. Chapman representative of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey.

A 12-inch pipe will be used and will be buried three feet deep. It will run from Portland to the Androscoggin Valley, and over state line near Gorham, N. H., crossing New Hampshire and Vermont before entering Canada.

Details of the terminal plant at Portland have not been completed but it is expected to consist of two wharves capable of handling 65,000 barrels of oil a day, six storage tanks with a capacity of 840,000 barrels.

The pipes in the pipeline will be electrically welded "seamless" tubing and will carry between 5,000 and 60,000 gallons of crude oil daily to the Montreal refineries.

The overland route will cut one-third of the usual tank haul from Gulf ports to Montreal.

Funds Assure A Pacific House Now

SAN FRANCISCO. — Pacific House, a permanent center and home for the exchange of interests of all nations bordering on the Pacific Ocean has been established here.

It is the culmination of a project, sponsored by a number of San Franciscans for a number of years and accorded a trial during the two years of the Golden Gate International Exposition. It is planned that the institution play much the same role for the Pacific region as the Pan American Union at Washington does for North and South America. Pacific House will have no governmental financial support but ample aid from private sources has been assured for its maintenance. During the two years the experiment was conducted at the Golden Gate International Exposition the real need was demonstrated for such an institution to cement ties between the Pacific area nations. During those two years, Pacific House was lodged in its own exclusive pavilion, one of the most artistic buildings of the entire exposition. It is intended the new permanent house, shall become a social center, forum and headquarters for distinguished leaders of the Pacific nations. The greater part of the libraries and other collections brought together for the "Pacific House," of the expositions, has been maintained and will become the nucleus for vast collections of Pacific area culture objects, so this truly may be "Pacific House—the cultural hub of the Pacific."

Hardwicks Are Confused Over a Telephone Call

By United Press
BROWNWOOD, Texas — The telephone jingled one afternoon in the Brown County sheriff's office. Ray Hardwick, state liquor board agent who happened to be in the office, picked up the receiver.

"Just a moment," the operator said.

"Hello," said a man's voice. "This is Hardwick."

"Yes, this is Hardwick," Ray answered.

"This is Hardwick," the voice insisted. "What did you want?"

"What do you want—this is Hardwick," Ray Hardwick said.

"You called me. This is Hardwick," the voice said again.

"I'm Ray Hardwick. I didn't call you," Ray Hardwick declared.

"Well, I'm C. C. Hardwick of Bangs and somebody called me."

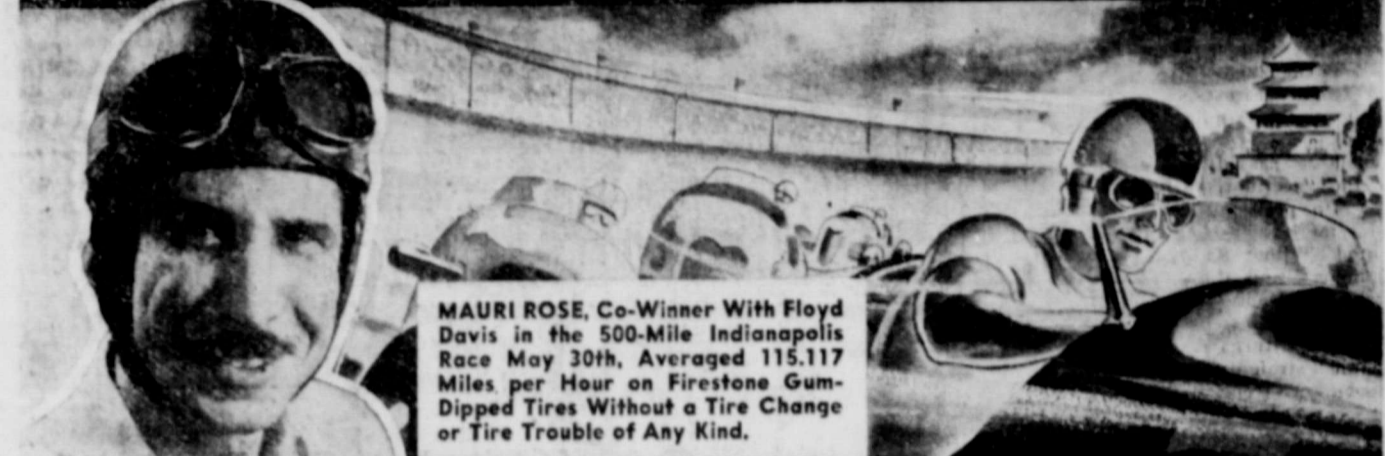

Ray Hardwick later learned that a sheriff's deputy had put in a call to C. C. Hardwick, railroad station agent at near-by Bangs, Texas.

What Is Advertising Anyway?

A lot has been written about advertising.

A lot of speeches have been made about it.

But the whole fact in a nutshell is—advertising is simply a time-saver.

It saves time for the man or woman who wants to buy something—and for the store or factory with something to sell.

And like most time-savers, it's a money - saver too.

Zoo Flamingo Is Fooled On Shrimp

By United Press. FORT WORTH, Tex.—Forest Park zoo's flamingo is eating home-grown shrimp, and liking it, although it took a bit of camouflage.

In ordinary times, the flamingo has been fed dried German shrimp which is smaller than the domestic variety. When war came, the supply of German shrimp vanished. So Zookeeper Hamilton Hittson decided that American shrimp would have to do. Hittson grinds the shrimp to the accustomed size, and the flamingo doesn't seem to notice the difference.

Refugee Books Are Now Increasing

NORMAN Okla.—The best writers in Germany are carrying on their work outside the Third Reich and its subject countries according to articles in the current issue of "Books Abroad," foreign quarterly published by the University of Oklahoma Press.

The articles, written by a Czech an Austrian, a German, and a Frenchman now in America, point out that refugee writers fleeing the Gestapo (German secret police) are continuing their labors in the Americas, in Finland, in Russia, and even in concentration camps.

One of the articles says that the camp for "undesirables" at Le Vermet unoccupied France is host for a great many who were successful in Germany and the Central European countries before the war. A number of novels, short stories and plays are being written there, and articles continue and a number of them have been accepted for publication in America.

Publishing houses have been established in Argentina, New York and Mexico City where books in German for the free Germans of the world are produced—both the

War Costs Are Hard to Figure, but Germany's Spending Most This Far

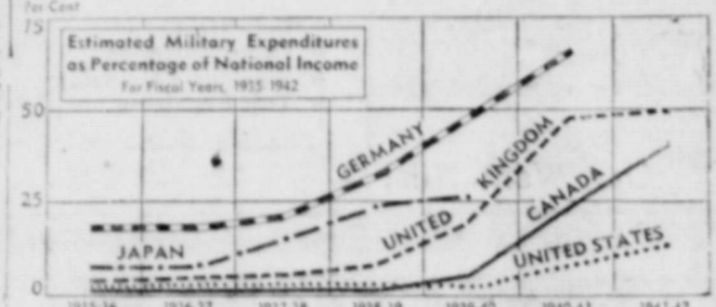

BY PETER EDSON
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON—Congress is so much in the habit of spending $100 million here and a few billions there that no one has taken time to figure what this defense effort might cost if it keeps going.

But the Securities and Exchange Commission buys connected a little chart the other day which has some interesting implications. This chart, shown herewith, makes the closest possible estimate of the percentage of national income spent for national defense by Germany, Japan, the United Kingdom, Canada and the United States.

The obvious question, after taking one look at this chart, is well, why not convert it into dollars? The equally obvious answer is that it can't be done. German exchange rates vary so much that they can't be translated into dollars. Living standards in Japan are so much lower than in any of the other countries that dollar comparisons are out of the question. Wages in the United Kingdom as well as Germany are lower than in the United States so, while $100 might buy 100 hours of labor in the U. S., it might buy 150 in the U. K. or 200 in Germany.

"The United States is probably the only one of the countries that has anything at all resembling accurate statistics on national income," says one source. "To compare national income, different sources give three different estimates, the middle and apparently most accurate being that of the Bank of Nova Scotia, which was used for this chart. Great Britain three months ago issued a "White Paper" with its first estimates of national income, putting the figure under eight billion pounds sterling. Japan's figures are so inaccurate they can't be plotted beyond 1939, and for Germany, which won't put out beyond 1940, these figures cover only the old Germany, without Austria and the 13 other occupied countries, their tribute and productive capacity.

The figures on which the United States percentage is calculated are interesting. In April, the nation spent about $760 million on defense. For May it will run about $850 million. By July 1 we will be spending about a billion dollars a month, or $12 billion a year. By July 1942 we may be spending $2 billion a month. The average for the fiscal year, July 1, 1941 to June 30, 1942, will be $1.5 billion a month, or $18 billion for the fiscal year. With U. S. national income at $99 billion for the year, this $18 billion figures at exactly 20 per cent of national income going for war expenses.

The dollar figures on U. S. defense effort are of course familiar—$13 billion under contract, $7 billion more authorized, $20 billion more being planned—a total of $40 billion unless the program is again expanded. That $40 billion of course compares favorably with the $9 billion marks Germany is supposed to have spent on preparedness before she began war. Using the international exchange rate of 2.4 gold marks to the dollar, that makes Germany's expenditure approximately $37.5 billion, but that covers only the pre-war, preparedness effort and not the upkeep.

Another article says that Switzerland has long been the center for publishing activity, but a recent edict there has forbidden all publications critical of the Nazi regime. London's chief refugee publishing house recently was destroyed in an air raid.

Diners Uphold An Honor System In Salt Lake City Cafe

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah.—Art Davis, Salt Lake City restaurant proprietor, operates his business on the maxim that honesty is the best policy.

In return for his trust, a patron may enjoy an expansive dinner at a maximum cost of 25 cents, a leisurely trip through the latest picture magazine, an occasional glimpse of the Metropolitan museum of art, and—if his tastes are so inclined—a half-hour at Minsky's.

Davis operates an establishment known as the "Grabeteria." Among its many distinguishing features is the one stemmed from the motto. No customer ever receives a check. He gets his food—cafeteria style—and when he has eaten, he tells the cashier what he had and pays accordingly. The opportunities for chiseling are unsurpassed—but that rarely happens.

And it isn't because of the character of Davis' trade. He serves from 300 to 1,000 persons daily. They range from stockbrokers to Mexican section hands.

Physically, the Grabeteria is not impressive. It has a single door on main street, and the width of the whole front section is not over 8 feet. En route to the two dining rooms at the rear, the patron selects his food from the steam table and then carries it out himself.

It is in those dining rooms that the Grabeteria is different. First, it has mobility, for it's a standup place. A 16-inch wide shelf, waist-high, circles the room and provides the table space. Two high tables down the middle are banked with free garnishes—sauces, cucumbers and celery.

Around the walls—from the shelf to the ceiling—is a collection of reading matter, art, historical objects and cartoons. Each week Davis clips the pages of picture magazines, and arranges them in order around Dining Room No. 1. The diner, beginning at the left and progressing with a slight sidewise motion, can read from cover to cover during lunch.

Interpersed with the magazines are cartoons. Occasional bits of verse, or inspirational items, appear. In permanent positions of honor are old lithographs of early Salt Lake City and Mormon pioneers. Recently, Davis nailed Whiston Churchill's "Lifton's Creed" to the door linking the two dining rooms.

In one corner is the Wall Street section. Numerous business service reports, and financial items are clipped to the walls. Salt Lake Dining room No. 2 is for the more exotic tastes. Its walls are ringed with Petty girls, and the drawings of such artists as E. Simms Campbell. In one corner is a glass case, neatly filled with an ever-changing gallery of girls.

For 13 years Davis has been clipping and pinning up his pictures, and relying on his clients' honesty and their appreciation of a bargain. He admits losing only 20 cents in that time.

the one who was the notable in the 47th Leg. His handling of the situation alone would have him a place of prominence. Taking Gov. SERIAL STORY

FOOTSTEPS IN THE FOG

BY ELINORE COWAN STONE

YESTERDAY, Lately for Stephan, Deborah watches fog sweep in from the sea. Then, suddenly, she hears a voice. It is the voice she has heard in the fog. She knows it is the voice of the man she has loved. "How did he get here?"

ANGELA ISSUES A WARNING

CHAPTER VI

SO this was the way it was to be —just as it had always been —walls between them? Well, if that was what Stephan wanted,
 she could play that way, too.

Deborah moved nervously about the room, turning on lamps, lowering shades.

"Technically, of course," she heard herself rambling on, hating the bright bitterness of her own voice—"I'm the head of this house; but if you hadn't clicked with Brigitte, you would have been put in 'The Master's room' over her dead body. Mere civilians get parked elsewhere."

He listened to her, laughing a little at first. At length he came and stood looking down at her,
 his eyes troubled.

"Deborah," he said gently,
 "you're somehow—not like yourself. What is the trouble?"

If only he would not stand there, so very near that she was conscious in every fiber of his nearness!

I can't let him hurt me—like that—again, Deborah thought. He doesn't intend to; but he somehow makes a gesture, a few words that mean—just nothing—seem to mean so much.

DEBORAH was almost glad when the front door opened, and Angie came in—as Angie was likely to do at any time—without the formality of ringing.

"The fog's so thick you could cut it into pieces and fry it," Angie called from the hallway.
 "Debby, may I borrow your last copy of 'The World by the Week' Mine's?"

Struggling into the room, stripping from her head the bright handkerchief she wore, she stopped short at sight of Stephan.
 "Well! Welcome to our city!"
 she cried.

"I see," Stephan's tone was still gravely polite; but his eyes
 danced wickedly. "And you hoped
 that I might be big hearted
 enough to tell you what they have found out? But even if I were as well informed as you seem to think—oh, well, I suppose I might as well give up! I say, Miss Silva, would you mind telling me how
 you found me out!"

"Perhaps I shall some time—if

"Oh," Angela announced coolly,
 "we all knew this summer that you hadn't come all the way over here just to read poetry."

"So? . . . All of you?" His grin was quite open now. "Then you no doubt also know that in my bag upstairs are documents containing the darkest secrets of your War Department? . . . I say, I do hope you won't give me away. You see, it's devilish important to me to get away with them without losing my own head."

"I'm afraid not," Stephan said gravely polite. "I have been in this country for some time, you know."

"Oh, but this started months ago," Angela persisted. "The story goes that sabotage in the Czech armament plants has been really serious; and that some underground organization has been simply papering Europe with subversive pamphlets. I understand that the people find the things in the most improbable places—under doormats, in their laundry baskets, for instance. . . . It's said that they have even been slipped under pillows and into pockets in the most exalted Nazi circles."

"Indeed?" Stephan said blandly.
 "But that seems a rather reckless form of practical joke, don't you think?"

"Well, it's a kind of recklessness that seems to have gone over in a big way with the masses. According to the story, one bright lad who slipped a tract into a German general's glove became Public Hero Number One overnight. It seems that he had been thumbing his nose at the secret police for so long without their being able to put the finger on him that he was nicknamed 'Der Poltergeist.'"

"Poltergeist?" Deborah echoed from the magazine rack. "That's supposed to be some kind of malicious spirit that goes around pinching people, isn't it?"

"Well, he seems to have been pinching some of them all right—where it hurt. . . . They say some of the pamphlets have been printed in this country; and I understand, Mr. von Thalmann—Angela's eyes were dangerously innocent—"that your secret agents are very busy trying to find out who the boys are who've been doing the homework here."

"I see," Stephan's tone was
 still gravely polite; but his eyes
 danced wickedly. "And you hoped
 that I might be big hearted
 enough to tell you what they have found out? But even if I were
 as well informed as you seem to think—oh, well, I suppose I might
 as well give up! I say, Miss Silva,
 would you mind telling me how
 you found me out!"

"Well," Angie got to her feet—
 "George Washington took a few risks, too, thank God! . . . Don't bother to look any more, Debby.
 I think I'll go home and read the Bill of Rights."

"At the doorway she stopped.
 "By the way, Debby," she said,
 "remember that fisherman's ditty
 you were asking about that night in California? . . . The one about the fog? . . . Well, the rest of it's just come to me. Altogether, it goes something like this:

"I'll fated is that which comes out of the fog.
 For in the end it must return
 whence it came.
 And never can it come again
 unless it is drawn by a spell Which neither Heaven nor earth nor all the powers of darkness may break!"

SHE went out, a little secret smile upon her lips.

"So your little friend thinks I'm a dangerous character?" Stephan said. "After this, when she is around, I must take care to look as dead-pot as possible—but no!"
 he broke off at Deborah's involuntary giggle. "I see that 'dead-pot' is not the correct usage. I fear I shall never learn."

He was laugh-; but his laughter was not entirely spontaneous.
 . . . So Angie had got under his skin.

A pottery ship filled with sweet peas and placed on a reflector formed the centerpiece of the refreshments table which was covered with lace over green.
