JOHNSON DISCUSSES FARMING PROGRAM AT GIANT RALLY IN EASTLAND SATURDAY NIGHT

In the most elaborate Flag Day celebration in the history of Eastland county, hundreds of Central Texas citizens gathered in Eastland Saturday night and heard Congressman Lyndon Johnson, outstanding candidate for the United States Senate, pledge all-out support of the president and to obtain for Texas its just share of the defense industry.

Johnson came here Saturday afternoon to meet the people of this section and several thousand attended the rally sponsored by the seven mayors of Eastland county's seven towns. The courthouse and streets were decorated with flags and patriotic bunting and thousands of small flags were given away as favors to add color to the program.

Preceding Johnson's speech, which was broadcast by the Texas Quality network at 9 p. m., was a band concert by Eastland's band and other musicians of the county. There was also an elaborate stage show featuring an orchestra, a soloist singing patriotic songs as well as harmonica, accordion and other feature entertainers. Johnson received a great ovation as he opened his speech and the crowd frequently applauded the more dramatic parts of his remarks.

Johnson, the announced Roosevelt-and-unity candidate, spoke in front of the Eastland County courthouse.

He urged equitable distribution of defense contracts, noting that Texas, which is just as patriotic as any other state, should have its just share of defense plants within its borders.

"We are carrying an intelligent farm program forward every day," Johnson said. "For the last four years step by step I have fought side by side with Texas leaders to establish that sort of farm economy under which our Texas farm folks could make a decent American living."

"I have supported parity and I have voted for parity every time I have had an opportunity, without exception."

He thus rebuked again the opponent who said Johnson had voted against farm parity payments when Johnson had actually fought tooth and nail for payments in the maximum amount.

Johnson pointed out his first vote in Congress in 1937 was to override the president's veto of a bill reducing interest on agricultural loans from 5-1/2 to 4-1/2 per cent.

"I have fought all along the line for low interest and I'm fighting for it today," Johnson declared. "I want it lower than it is now, and I believe in the future we must exert greater effort toward establishing a financing program for farmers and ranchers which fits their needs."

For years, he noted, farmers have been forced to go into commercial markets for money on the same terms that the drygoods merchant, the hardware man, the grocer and the wholesaler have sought financing.

"This is obviously unfair," he continued, "because the farmer with a once a year or twice a year income has had to get his financing terms made for daily, weekly or monthly income."

"The farmer has had to take all the risks of drought, storm and insects, but has been granted no financial allowance because of them," Johnson said.

"All this must be changed and as your senator I'm going to fight down the line for agricultural financing which fits Texas farmers' and ranchers' needs."

Lashing at the freight rate setup, Johnson said: "Texas has suffered too long under unjust and unfair freight rates." Then he emphasized that President Roosevelt has called for a complete re-examination of the freight rate structure and pointed out that Lyndon Johnson, the friend of the President, will be the man to work with the President on that.

Indians Protest On Government Mural In A Post Office

WATONGA, Okla., June 14.—Cherokee Indians dressed in tribal regalia and bearing signs with the word "unfair" pointed on them marched in a picket line around Watonga's postoffice today to protest against a mural portrait of one of their great chiefs, Roman Nose.

A small band of braves led by Chief Red Bird, leader of the tribe, and his wife, Prairie Woman, began their "strike" at dawn today and vowed to remain until the government, or someone, altered the Roman Nose's portrait to conform with history.

The portrait was painted inside the postoffice by an Oklahoma artist at a cost of $560 recently. It represents Roman Nose and a band of Cherokees at the time of the coming of the settlers to Oklahoma.

The Indians contend that the artist made Roman Nose look like a Navajo.

"Picture not like Roman Nose," said Red Bird in his limited English, speaking through interpreter Joe Yellow Eyes.

"Chief wears feather farther back on head, not tied on with store-bought string. Breech-cloth too short—look like Navajo."

A horse drawn in the picture also aroused the Cherokees' ire. "Ponies Indians riding look like hobby horses with swan necks," said Red Bird. "Cherokees like spotted ponies."

Red Bird said the Indians would continue to protest by picketing until Chief Roman Nose were properly altered to make him resemble a Cheyenne, and the ponies a Cheyenne to conform with a Cheyenne's idea of a horse.

The Indians took turn about, in twos and threes, walking up and down in front of the postoffice. Occasionally Red Bird, 70 years old and onetime government scout half a century ago, and his wife joined the group. Once Red Bird suggested to reporters that they include his social security card number in a story about him.

The old chief, a grandson of Black Kettle, whose village was massacred by Gen. George A. Custer in 1868 in what is now Western Oklahoma, proudly pointed to his pockets and exclaimed: "Bow and arrow, horse and buggy day business no good. Cheyenne streamlined."

The picketing, said Red Bird, is designed primarily to catch the attention of President Roosevelt so that the latter might help him right the "injustice."

"We no want White Father think we had defense plant strikers," he added. "They stink."

JOHNSON HAS LEAD IN POLL ON SATURDAY

WACO, June 14. (Special)—A poll conducted by a group of newspapers of the state on the United States Senate race, today disclosed some interesting figures. Lyndon B. Johnson and Gerald C. Mann were running first and second in a statewide poll, with Gov. W. Lee O'Daniel running third and Martin Dies in fourth place, indicating that the race will be between these four candidates.

Nearly 16 per cent of the voters answered the cards sent out with "I don't know yet who I will support."

The tabulation of 30,400 answers, received at noon Saturday on the race showed the following figures:

Candidate	Votes	Per Cent
Johnson	7,746	25.50
Mann	7,645	25.15
O'Daniel	6,365	20.93
Dies	4,826	15.76
Don't Know	4,817	15.84

It was stated that the majority of the cards returned to date are from the larger cities, and were not from the rural communities, where O'Daniel support is claimed to be the heaviest.

The latest poll shows that Mann is holding his own, that Dies is slipping—to fourth place—and indicates that the race will be between Johnson, administration candidate, the present attorney general and the governor of Texas.

LONDON, June 14.—Radio Budapest reported today that the French fleet has sailed from Toulon.

LONDON, June 14.—The Admiralty reported today that British forces had sunk another German supply ship which had been operating for the lost German battleship Bismarck. Previously the admiralty had claimed the sinking of five Bismarck supply ships.

The admiralty said that British forces also had sunk a German armed trawler during recent operations.

Junior College To Get $50 a Student From a State Fund

An act, recently passed by the State Legislature and signed by Gov. W. Lee O'Daniel, will be of material aid to Ranger Junior College, which is specifically mentioned in the appropriation bill.

The act is for regulating appropriations from moneys of the State Treasury to supplement local funds for the support, maintenance, operation and improvement of public junior colleges, named in the act.

Also included in the list is Cisco Junior College. These two schools were included in the bill through the efforts of P. L. Crossley and Omar Burkett, representatives from Eastland and Callahan counties, respectively.

Amount of money under the appropriation of $350,000 for the next biennium will amount to $50 per student in Ranger Junior College, according to G. C. Boswell, president of Ranger Junior College.

Memorial Services To Be Held Sunday

Odd Fellow and Rebekah memorial services will be conducted here this evening at 8 o'clock at the First Christian Church, it was announced Saturday.

The public is invited to attend.

Diaper Story Voted Funniest Of Year

CHICAGO, June 14.—President Roosevelt's confusion about innovations in diapers won him 1941's "laugh king" title today.

Seven hundred Chicago advertising men, voted, 4 to 1, that the story about the President was the year's funniest.

The story told of the President's dismay at what seemed an excessive diaper order for his grandson. Then he learned the new models were used once and destroyed.

Mann Withdraws Statement Upon Johnson Voting

AUSTIN, June 14.—Attorney General Gerald C. Mann today withdrew charges that Lyndon B. Johnson and Martin Dies, senatorial candidates, had voted against full parity payments.

Mann backed down on the parity payment statement three days after he made it, and a red-hot controversy between himself and U. S. Rep. Lyndon Johnson was ended. Dies had made no comment.

"I find that those who furnished me the information upon which my charge was made were not correct and I hereby withdraw it," the attorney general said.

"For the mistake thus made, I assume full responsibility. I regret that it occurred."

Almost simultaneously, Johnson was calling for a "correction" at Big Spring. After almost "70 hours of waiting" the attorney general had failed to set things straight, he asserted.

Alameda H. D. Club Meets On Friday

The Alameda Home Demonstration Club met Friday, June 13, at the Alameda school house. The subject discussed was Land Use Planning. Mrs. Love gave a definition of Land Use Planning.

Another speaker, Mrs. Marshall Forby of MeAdoo considers it monopolistic. One senator objecting to the bill being taken up can force it to require a two-thirds vote. Because of its position on the calendar the bill must be taken up out of regular order if at all. If there is objection to its being taken up, it is required to be taken up at the regular order.

Some minor topics discussed were Texas food standard, the county agent's place in the community, community soil erosion, the cooperative marketing association, and our part in the national defense.

There were eight members and two visitors present.

Appointed officers are: A. J. Treadwell, Senior Deacon; Bert Peyton, Junior Deacon; V. E. Vessels, Senior Steward; G. L. Wingate, Junior Steward and Ed Willman, Chaplain.

Oil Meeting To Be Held Monday At State Capitol

AUSTIN, Texas, June 14.—A statewide oil prorator hearing called by the Texas Railroad Commission for Monday was expected to clear up a maze of rumors about the oil situation.

Railroad Commissioners Jerry Sadler and Olin Culberson, who have been in Washington this week for a conference with oil coordinator Harold L. Ickes, both were expected back for Monday's hearing.

The legislative conference committee on the House and Senate disagreement over extending oil prorator powers to the railroad commission for two years or extending them indefinitely was also to meet Monday.

There was indication, too, that the Senate will get to a final vote Monday on the Lester Clark prorator bill which has been passed by the house and lacks only final passage in the senate.

This bill, proponents say, will give the Texas Railroad Commission prorator powers that have been denied in a series of court suits since the commission began prorator on a yardstick method with fields classified according to type of oil.

Latest order to go down was that issued for the Gulf-McElroy area of the Crane and Upton county territory. A court order called for a minimum allowable production of 35,000 barrels daily compared with the commission order permitting less than 19,000 barrels daily.

Another suit attacking validity of a May order for the Aransas Pass field was being argued in district court here today.

All opposition to the Clark Bill has not ended in the Texas senate. Sen. Marshall Forby of MeAdoo considers it monopolistic. One senator objecting to the bill being taken up can force it to require a two-thirds vote. Because of its position on the calendar the bill must be taken up out of regular order if at all. If there is objection to its being taken up, it is required to be taken up at the regular order.

ROYAL AIR FORCE AGAIN BLASTS AT INDUSTRIAL AREAS OF RUHR VALLEY

By Harrison Salisbury
United Press Staff Correspondent
The Royal Air Force for the third successive night, it was reported today, attacked the heart of Germany's war production machine in the great Ruhr-Rhine industrial triangle.

The attack was delivered with force comparable to that of the previous night when the air ministry asserted that the raid was the strongest ever made against the region.

It was coupled by a smashing blow at Breslau where the big German warships, the battleships Scharnhorst and Gneisenau, and a 10,000-ton cruiser have taken shelter. The berths at which Scharnhorst and a hipper class cruiser, presumably the Prinz Eugen, were lying were straddled by British bombs.

The RAF offensive, once again hitting hard with the return of the moon to its fullest phase, was accompanied by some increase in German air action over Britain but nothing like the severe blitz raids of the era prior to the arrival in Britain of Rudolf Hess, No. 3 Nazi.

The Luftwaffe came over Britain in considerable numbers but scattered their effort so that no one region was particularly hard hit. The British believed that several of the German night raiders were shot down.

Testimony to the increasing effectiveness of British air attacks on Germany was paid in Berlin where air raid precautions authorities warned the public that Britain now has "new means of attack," which are very powerful and warned citizens that they had better go to shelters when the air raid warning sirens sound unless they wish to risk being killed.

The news from Syria still was inconclusive.

The British indicated that allied columns now have taken Kiseou, 10 miles south of Damascus and it appeared likely that allied troops still are encamped in the outskirts of that ancient city awaiting the outcome of negotiations said to be under way between emissaries of Sir Henry Maitland Wilson, allied commander, and Gen. Henri Dentz, Syrian high commissioner, for a peaceful entry into the city.

Fighting still was in progress around Saïda, 22 miles south of Beirut, where the French have offered stiff resistance despite the British use of naval vessels along the coast to bombard French strong points.

It still was not clear whether the slow rate of British progress was due to unexpectedly stiff French resistance or, as the British claim, to a desire to hold casualties to a minimum.

Speculation over Russia was not ended by a statement from the official Soviet Tass agency yesterday which admitted that German troops are concentrating in Eastern and Northeast Germany not far from the Russian frontier but which at the same time denied that any Russo-German negotiations are in progress, that any German demands have been made, or that any Russo-German tension exists.

The latest reports largely concerned Finland. A report from Stockholm said that a Finnish statement on the presence of German troops in that country was expected shortly. The correspondent dictating the dispatch was cut off before he could finish his story. In London presumably reliable sources said that Germany now has two divisions of troops, possibly 30,000 men, in Finland.

London advices also reported that the Soviet minister to Rumania is en route back to Moscow for consultations, following in the path of the Russian ambassador to Turkey.

Committee Formed To Save Life Of A Fox Terrier

SAN FRANCISCO, June 14.—A "Rowdy Defense Committee," which includes two city officials and four judges, today joined the fight to save the life of Rowdy, a fox terrier whose mistress condemned him to die in her will.

The defense committee—headed by Dr. J. C. Greiger, San Francisco health department director, and including City Attorney John J. O'Toole and four city judges—circulated petitions, urging that the dog's life be spared.

The petitions will be presented in court next Thursday, when Superior Judge T. W. Harris of Alameda county decides whether to make permanent an injunction forbidding Attorney Cyril F. Marella to have Rowdy killed.

Rowdy's mistress, the late Mrs. Clara Edgarton, feared he would be lenient and friendless after she died, and she wrote in her will a clause directing that he be "painlessly" executed. Mrs. Edgarton died recently in Illinois, leaving $1,000 of her $75,000 estate to the Chicago anti-cruelty society.

Staff Sgt. Alfred C. Bowes offered Rowdy the run of Hamilton Field air base, and guaranteed that he would not be lonesome.

"I don't know how the law works, but if the courts will let that dog live, I'll see to it that he is happy the rest of his life," he said. "I've never seen a dog yet that didn't feel at home around an army post."

"You might say I'm on speaking terms with at least 25 dogs, but I can find time for another, and I'd like that one to be Rowdy."

Mrs. Edgarton got Rowdy from the Oakland dog pound four years ago when he was a puppy, and she lived in Oakland, but the fight to save his life started across the bay, in San Francisco.

Marella filed the will for probate Thursday and was to have had Rowdy executed. But Barbara Nelson of San Francisco kidnapped Rowdy and obtained a temporary injunction to keep him from being killed.

Some legal authorities doubted the death clause of the will could be enforced because it would involve "destruction of property."

HOUSTON, Texas, June 14.—Crude oil production in the United States for the week ending today averaged 3,843,500 barrels daily, up 37,675 from the previous period, the Oil Weekly reported.

SERIAL STORY

CALIBAN FROM CALEB

BY NORMAN KAHL

COPYRIGHT, 1941, NEA SERVICE, INC.

CHAPTER I

IT is two o'clock in the morning, and Angus MacPhillips is sitting in Herbie's Curbside Cafe, dissecting a slab of liver while Adoreen is swabbing the counter with a sopping rag, when this pasty-faced slicker with the green, store-bought suit comes in.

Angus looks up, and when he sees the slicker's mustache, he grunts through a mouthful of fried onions. The slicker takes one look at Adoreen and his eyes go kind of pop-eyed and he staggers over to the counter. As any one can tell you, Adoreen is just about the trimmest little mouse on either side of the Mississippi.

She comes only about so high and her brown eyes are always dancing around as if whatever she's doing is just about the nicest thing in the world to be doing. Her black hair starts out straight at the top of her head, but it begins curling just over her ears and from there on you lose track of it.

Well, this slick individual just eases himself into a stool while Adoreen tosses some silver and a napkin in front of him, and Angus is getting very red and starts to cut his mashed potatoes as if they are one of Herbie's tough steaks.

"It is quite apparent," says the slicker, in a greasy voice, "that I have lost my way. I had no idea I was this close to Hollywood, Miss Lamarr."

Adoreen just hands this guy a menu and stays poker-face. "You are not close to Hollywood, sir," she says. "You are getting close to Caleb—just 80 miles down this road—and my name isn't Lamarr, it's Micklewidg—Adoreen Micklewidg."

The stranger can't take his eyes off her, which is a trouble lots of people who come into Herbie's

Illustrated by Carol Johnson
Angus puts his fork down and scratches his head. "Now, Addie, you don't want to listen to that kind of talk. That cookie wasn't no gentleman."

that looks as if it is going through a partial eclipse. "Look here now, Angus," she says. "You leave her alone. I've been talking to her. She ain't gonna run off anywhere without you. I told her how I went to Hollywood 15 years ago and how I tried to get in pictures but instead I became the best hash-slinger on Sunset Boulevard. You leave her to me and don't go gettin' her all riled up again."

Angus leans back in his chair and looks a little happier. "Okay, Millie. It's just that I get worried sometimes."

Adoreen comes skimming into the kitchen, and she's got a glow in her face that doesn't go with roast beef on the plate lunch at Herbie's special prices. "Some pork chops, Millie," she says. "Make 'em kinda extra—you know what I mean." Then she sees Angus. "Oh, I didn't see you in here."

Angus gets up and looks hurt. And when Angus starts to look hurt there is an awful lot of him that goes into the gesture. He is at least six-foot-three, and every one of his 240 pounds is packed on tight to his body where it does the most good. His hair looks a little like hay in season and there is always a shock of it sticking out from under his cap in front.

"Addie, didn't you even notice I came in here? Look, Addie, I wanta talk to you. I—"

"Not now, Angus. Can't you see I'm busy? And don't call me Addie."

"All right, Adoreen. But I gotta go soon. I got to get that truck into Caleb. It's all full of butter and I don't want it to get soft."

Adoreen grabs a bowl of chowder and slides out of the kitchen. Angus scratches his head slowly, starting on his forehead and going back to his neck, like he is plowing a field of alfalfa.

"See what I mean, Millie. It's gettin' worse. She ain't never been like that before. If that guy gives her any more ideas, I'm gonna go out there and—"

Millie slaps a pork chop on the griddle and turns around to glare at Angus. "You ain't gonna do a thing, Angus. Understand? You're gonna stay right here until he's gone. You ain't gonna go moppin' up this joint with any travelin' salesmen."

IT is 20 minutes later before Angus finally hears the door slam outside and he peeks into the other room and sees Adoreen cleaning off the counter. He goes back to his stool and he is hungry again so he orders a piece of pie and gets another cup of coffee. He

Rutgers Opens New Engineers' Course

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J.—Rutgers University is stepping in to help relieve technical personnel shortages in the national emergency by assigning a major section of the University Extension Division to the training of engineers vitally needed for the national defense industries, according to Dr. Robert C. Clothier, president.

Large parts of the faculties and personnel of the College of Engineering and the Extension Division are to be united into a unit known as the Engineering Defense Training Program. This new division of the college will operate in conjunction with the Office of Education, which is cooperating similar plans throughout the country.

"Its purpose," said Dr. Clothier "is to provide short intensive courses to meet the shortage of engineers with specialized training in fields essential to national defense."

The federal government will pay instruction and laboratory fees and a summer program soon will be offered to train engineers for preparedness step-ups in defense.

FIND WORK BORING

territain strongholds were reported. The Italian said they had raided Gibraltar again Thursday night and Friday morning. Nicosia, Cyprus, reported that the island of Syria had been lightly attacked by bombing planes.

A Beirut dispatch reported more British bombing raids on the port facilities.

A new Vichy effort to coordinate the French regime with German customs was disclosed in a drastic anti-Jewish statute. The French described it as designed to fit into a plan which Adolf Hitler has for a general uniform all-Europe statute against the Jews. The French police started a series of dawn raids against Jews and others in Vichy, giving them 48 hours to leave the French capital. It was revealed that 12,000 Jews have been arrested in France, all allegedly for participating in a plot against Franco-German collaboration.

Private advice received by the United Press in New York reported that the French have transported some 40 tons of Belgian gold back to France from Dakar and turned it over to the Germans who, it was said, propose to use it for buying supplies from Russia.

Berlin said that it probably would be several days before an authoritative statement will be issued on the Robin Moor, announced in Washington to have been sunk by a German submarine. The German stand was that nothing could be said until military authorities have completed an investigation.

He Thumbed Ride In Wrong Airplane

By United Press
RANDOLPH FIELD, Tex.—The sergeant who did clerical work around the office was hanging around the hangars waiting for a chance to "hitch" a ride home in one of Uncle Sam's U. S. Army training planes.

Suddenly he heard Lieut. R. A. Sedgwick reserve a "Link trainer" for cross-country flight to Kansas City.

Quickly the sergeant rushed to his quarters and packed a bag. In a few moments he was back at the hangar.

It was then that he found out what a "Link trainer" is. It is merely a cockpit mounted on a pedestal used for brushing up pilots on their blind flying. It never leaves the ground.

school at Austin as the youngest in a class of 411. Miss Peacock attended grade school here and began her high school education while still living in Ranger.

Following is an article which appeared in a recent issue of an Austin newspaper: "Dorothy Jean Peacock, 15-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Peacock, 1112 West 10th St., youngest of the 411 June graduates of Austin High School, won't be able to enter the University of Texas this fall although she would like to.

She was exempt in practically all of her final examinations and during the 1939-40 session represented Austin High School in the typing contest in the interscholastic regional meet in San Marcos after having won the regional meet in Georgetown. This summer Miss Peacock plans to attend the Methodist summer camp in Kerrville and to visit her grandmother in Ranger. She will enroll at John Tarleton College in Stephenville in September for two years of junior academic and fine arts courses. Then she plans to enter the University majoring in piano and pipe organ and minoring in business administration.

Music is one of her hobbies along with hiking and swimming. Miss Peacock's parents are both ex-students of the University. Her father is a civil engineer, who was previously in charge of road and bridge construction work in North Texas for the Federal Works Agency and who is now in civil service work in Austin."
