BRITISH IN MAJOR ATTACK IN N. AFRICA

CAIRO, Egypt, Nov. 20.—A British offensive, led by American-built tanks and planes, stormed into the rain-washed Libyan desert today.

A Royal Air Force attack, meanwhile, smashed at Axis airplanes and raked the enemy tank columns and communications lines with bombs and gunfire.

Heading for a big-scale battle with the main Axis mechanized forces and attempting to relieve the seven months old siege of Tobruk, the British Imperials were believed to have advanced well over 50 miles west of the Egyptian border and possibly to be engaged in a major test of strength with the enemy.

A Royal Air Force communiqué said that 10 Axis planes were destroyed and many others were severely damaged in fighting over Libya.

British aircraft, "in close cooperation with land forces," attacked the enemy land forces while British Naval guns shelled the Axis positions along the coast.

In London Prime Minister Winston Churchill told the House of Commons that this was the first time any British force had been able to meet Axis forces with equal equipment.

Authoritative sources in London stated that the British had been building up supplies, equipment and personnel for the past five months with the view, not of winning any victories or taking any towns, but of eliminating the entire Axis army from North Africa.

Roosevelt May Go Direct to Miners In Peace Efforts

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—Administration leaders in Congress today believed that President Roosevelt may appeal soon to mine workers, over John L. Lewis' head to return to the "captive" pits under a government guarantee of protection.

No presidential action to break the strike was expected until after the 200-man mine workers policy committee meets here at 10 a. m. Saturday to act on Lewis' personal rejection of President Roosevelt's proposal.

Unanimous support of the stand was regarded as almost certain.

CIO Votes Again To Aid In Defense

DETROIT, Mich., Nov. 20.—The Congress of Industrial Organizations today re-affirmed the principle of government mediation of labor disputes in a resolution pledging unanimous support of the nation's defense efforts.

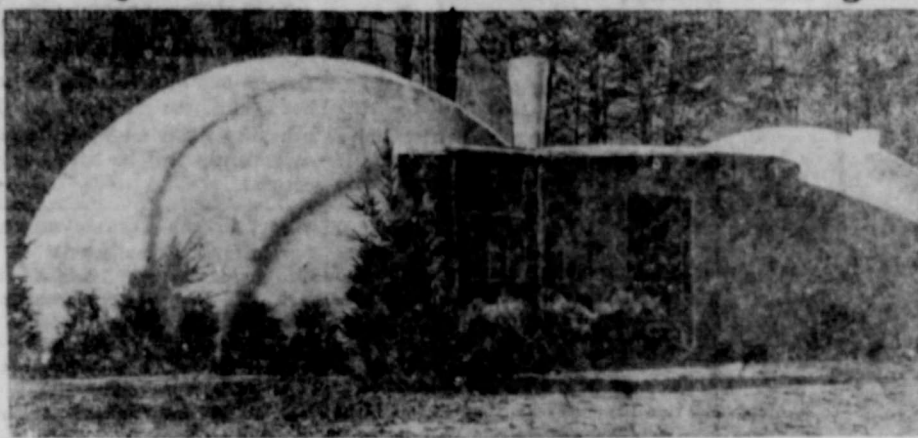

Acting swiftly to end the fourth annual convention, 500 delegates representing the CIO's 5,000,000 members virtually assured reelection of Phillip Murray as president.

HALF OF RED CROSS QUOTA IS COLLECTED

The first day of the annual Red Cross roll call netted a total of 199 memberships and $255.50 in cash, with several committees yet to report to headquarters in the Chamber of Commerce office, it was reported today by R. L. Perkins Jr., chairman of the drive.

Committees began work at 9:30 Wednesday morning, and in the first day of their activities surpassed the total collected last year, when Ranger led the county in money collected. This year, because of the need for additional funds, the quota for Ranger was set at $400.

Perkins estimated this morning that, with the drive completed a total of approximately $350 would be reached, with the goal of $400 not being entirely impossible.

Those who could not spare the time to work at the roll call campaign Wednesday were busy today collecting memberships, and they are expected to swell the total considerably before nightfall.

Capt. E. A. Peck Called To Colors

Mrs. E. A. Peck and two children of Wellman will make their home with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Jordan on Rt. 2, Eastland, while their husband and father is away serving with the United States forces.

Capt. Peck, who is a reserve officer in the United States Army, received notice a few weeks ago to take first, second, third and fourth choice of certain foreign fields, and that "no" would not be accepted as an answer.

Capt. Peck made the following selections in the order named: Alaska, Hawaiian Islands, Panama and Philippine Islands.

Whether he will be sent to either of the above posts he does not know.

Streamliner Is Wrecked After It Strikes a Truck

DALLAS, Nov. 20.—The Burlington Railroad's streamliner, The Texas Zephyr, ground into a stalled truck loaded with steel beams on the outskirts of Dallas today, killing the engineer and truck driver.

The dead were: D. E. Sewell, Wichita Falls, engineer of the train.
Arthur Allen Spearman, Houston, driver of the truck.
Half a dozen other passengers were shaken up by the jarring impact of the collision, which occurred at the end of the Zephyr's overnight run from Denver.

LIBERTY FLEET CONTRACT HAS WORLD WAR AIR

By RIDGELY CUMMINGS
United Press Staff Correspondent
PORTLAND, Ore. (UP)—It's one down and 42 to go for the Oregon Shipbuilding Corporation.

The Star of Oregon, first of 43 freighters the firm has contracted to build for the U. S. Maritime Commission at a cost of $1,500,000 each, plus contractors' fees, slid gracefully down the ways during the colorful ceremony of Liberty Fleet day, Sept. 27.

Keels are laid and work is progressing on half a dozen others.

The Star of Oregon was the first steel cargo ship built in Portland harbor in more than two decades not since Dec. 5, 1919, when the Clausius was completed and launched from the yards of the Northwest Steel company, had a steel cargo vessel splashed into the Willamette river.

Oddly enough, though not accidentally, the keel of the tar of Oregon was laid on May 19, 1941, one hundred years to the day from the date that its namesake, the first vessel built in what is now Oregon, was launched.

The first tar of Oregon was a tiny vessel, 52 feet in length, made of Oregon white oak and red fir and cedar. It was painted black with a small white ribbon running from stem to stern.

"One of the handsomest little crafts that ever sat upon the water," is the way Capt. Joseph Gale, the "Star's" first skipper, described her.

The new Star of Oregon is 441 feet long, with a beam of 57 feet and a draft loaded, of 27 feet 8 inches.

It and all its 42 sister ships will have a speed of 11 knots, supplied by a steam reciprocating engine and a single screw propeller with 2,500 horse power on the shaft.

It has accommodations for a normal complement of 44 officers and crew and a general cargo capacity of 9,146 tons.

Speaking at the launching ceremonies, Gov. Charles A. Sprague of Oregon gave the craft its blessing in the following words:

"May this ship as it ventures into strange seas and seeks distant harbors always sail as the proud embodiment of the historical tradition and present temper of the state whose name it bears."

CIVIL AVIATION SEES FURTHER SAFETY GAINS

By WILLIAM LOVELL
United Press Staff Correspondent
CHICAGO.—Despite two of the most tragic crashes in airline history during October, civilian aviators remain confident that increased safety will be listed with the top achievements of commercial flying in 1941.

Ora Young, Civil Aeronautics Administrator supervisor for the third region, with headquarters in Chicago, told the United Press how a CAA safety campaign and cooperation of pilots have reduced the percentage of air accidents in the face of swelling traffic which has filled the skies with craft ranging from four-cylinder "cubs" to commercial giants bearing defense-vital cargoes of freight and passengers.

Young's story contrasted sharply with reports of other government authorities charged with combating an alarming increase in industrial accidents. In industry during the past year accidents have increased faster than employment.

In aviation, a skyrocketing rise in traffic has been trailed by only a relatively slight upturn in the number of accidents.

Young displayed a Civil Aeronautics Board report showing that the ratio of accidents to the number of aircraft in use during the first quarter of the year was 20 per cent lower than that for the same period last year. Figures for the remainder of the year, while incomplete, indicate continuing improvement. And the 1940 record was better than the 1939 showing.

Other figures emphasize the increase in air traffic. Total number of certified civilian pilots on Sept. 1, 1941, was 161,241, an increase of more than 200 per cent since July 1, 1938. There were 22,885 certified civil aircraft, an increase of more than 130 per cent in the same period.

Although the CAA always has striven for increased safety, it intensified its campaign a year and a half ago. At that time pilots were informed that they would be

Political Lineups Begin To Form In Austin As Speculation Is Growing

By GORDON K. SHEARER
United Press Staff Correspondent
AUSTIN.—Pre-campaign politics have taken hold of the state capital in a big way.

Prospects that Gov. Coke R. Stevenson would be unopposed for elective term, after completing the unexpired term of former Gov. W. Lee O'Daniel, were dimmed with the likelihood that Attorney General C. Mann will contest with Stevenson in next summer's Democratic primary.

SUSPENSION OF WEYGAND BRINGS MOVE

Will Suspend All Economic Assistance To Area To Forestall Nazis

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—The State Department declared today that the Vichy Government "has acquiesced to the expressed demands of Adolf Hitler" to remove Gen. Maxime Weygand as pro-consul of French North Africa, and as a result the United States is suspending all economic assistance to the area.

Furthermore, the state department spokesman said in reading a formal statement of the abdication of the Vichy regime to German pressure, "entirely outside the provisions of the armistice" caused the government to "re-examine the entire French situation."

Presumably this includes supplying American food to the French population and to French prisoners of war within Germany.

The State Department asserted it remains to be seen what will be the full extent of Adolf Hitler's designs on the French Empire.

Gen. Weygand was reported, unofficially, today to be somewhere in Southern France, but it was not believed that he would go back to North Africa immediately.

David James, 81, Dies At Carbon

David James, 81, for 43 years a resident of Eastland county, died late Wednesday evening at his home near Carbon. Funeral services were set for 2:00 o'clock Saturday afternoon at the Carbon Methodist church of which he had long been a member. The Rev. T. G. Story, pastor, will officiate. Burial will be in the Eastland cemetery where Masonic rites will be conducted by members of the Carbon and Eastland lodges. He was a past master of both the Carbon Masonic Lodge and that of Pleasant Plains, Ark.

The deceased was born in Jackson county, Alabama on Dec. 14, 1860 and came to Texas in 1900, settling near Carbon where he had made his home since, and where he reared his family.

Survivors include the widow, five sons and three daughters as follows:

F. F. Dallas; J. L. Eastland; Earnest, Fort Worth; C. W. Call-forman; Paul, Wichita Falls; Mrs. Edna M. Towers, Mrs. Lillian Long and Miss Mattie James, Los Angeles.

Six grandchildren also survive.

U. S. Senate—Junior Sen. W. Lee O'Daniel seeking election to a full term, opposed by Cong. Lyndon Johnson of Johnson City, runner-up in the race for the short term last summer.

Governor—Coke R. Stevenson running for an elective term, opposed by Mann or State Sen. Joe Hill of Henderson.

Lieutenant Governor, nearly all the state senators, House Speaker Homer Leonard and a few outside the legislature in a free-for-all scramble.

State Treasurer—Jesse James, now serving Charley Lockhart's unexpired term, seeking an elective term, and Former State Rep. Lonnie Alaup of Carthage.

State Land Commissioner—Bascom Giles for re-election, with no opponent so far in the field.

State Comptroller—George Sheppard for another term, also unopposed.

Attorney General—County Judge Meritt Gibson of Longview.

Strikes and Green Apples

The right to strike is a little like the right to eat green apples.

Properly used, the right to eat green apples is a fine thing. Made into pies, at the right season, eaten in moderation, green apples are swell. Improperly used, the right to eat green apples results in grief and regret.

Eaten to excess, at the wrong season, and improperly prepared, green apples may bring to the eater unmeasured woe, despite of the unquestioned right to eat them.

Because greedy little boys get the stomach-ache, nobody proposes that a law be passed to prevent the eating of green apples. So nobody proposes (very seriously, at least) that an iron-clad law be passed to prohibit all strikes.

But only when the boy grows older does he learn how and when to eat green apples. Labor organization, still comparatively young in this country, still has something to learn about how and when to strike.

There are signs that excessive indulgence in green-apple strike fruit is going to bring organized labor a stomach-ache unless restraint appears. Organized labor must learn how and when to indulge in this dynamite-crammed fruit, and there is no time like now to learn.

A man has a right to play his radio in his room at night, but woe betide him if he plays it all night in a thundering volume that keeps awake not only his own household but the whole neighborhood. A man has a right to drive a car, but he has no right to drive it in a manner that endangers everybody else on the road. A man has a right to speak or write, but only subject to the laws of libel and slander which aim to protect the equal rights of others.

There are no absolute rights in a civilized society. Every right is conditioned by the rights of others. The best chance of retaining individual rights is to use them in such a way as to give due consideration to the rights of others. Otherwise the others rise up and do something about it.

It is most essential that labor keep the right to strike nobody is firmer in that than the individual enterpriser who wants to see free enterprise kept vitally functioning. The two are twins. Freedom of labor and freedom of management go together.

There is no greater menace to the right to strike than the misuse of that right in an arbitrary, unreasoning, hasty, or selfish manner, just as the greatest danger to private enterprise has always been the man who used it without a decent regard for the rights of others, the worker, the inventor, the public in general.

Santa's Little Helper

THE PAY OFF

BY HARRY GRAYSON
 NEA Service Sports Editor

NEW YORK.—There is plenty of ham in Leo Durocher, and his desire to take a bow at all times may give him needless headaches.

Using Hollywood with his pal, George Raft, Durocher asks Bill Sweeney, deposed manager of the Hollywood club, how he'd like to manage Brooklyn's farm in Montreal.

This gets a rise out of Hector Racine, president of the Royals. He is perfectly satisfied with Clyde Sukeforth, who lashed his outfit into the little world series.

"If Durocher is your manager," Racine long distances Larry MacPhail, "let him manage your affairs, not ours."

The entire business strikes President MacPhail as rather unwise. MacPhail runs his own subsidiaries, and Durocher's contract as manager of the Dodgers has not yet been renewed.

THOUGH Durocher is expected to be back, there may be some squabble in regard to his salary.

MacPhail made Durocher manager only because he felt that by so doing he could get another good year or two out of a remarkable shortstop on his last legs.

It was stipulated that Lippy Leo was to remain in condition as a last season, but he repeatedly admitted he was in no shape to relieve Pee Wee Reese. Leo played no more than 40 innings, though there were times when the Bums were badly in need of him.

It is reasonable to assume MacPhail does not believe his manager Durocher is worth as much as he was as a playing point.

RIGHT or wrong, Durocher is waving a red flag in Commissioner Landis' face by hobnobbing with headline writer Judge Landis refused Actor Raft permission to occupy a box in Durocher's box during the world series.

When Screen Villain Raft telephoned his objection to Landis, the old boy simply barked, "Sue me" and hung up.

Judge Landis objects to movie people and other publicity breakers into print at the expense of baseball.

And maybe he's right. He usually is.

Civil Aviation

required to obtain CAA certificates of competence before giving flying instruction. Certification was granted only to pilots passing stiff oral, written and flight tests.

On Dec. 1, a still more far-reaching regulation will become effective. It requires all civil pilots and aircraft operating in the United States to carry valid CAA certificates. Formerly this requirement applied only to "civil airways" covering approximately 20 per cent of the area of the continental United States.

CAA's inspectors form the backbone of the safety program. They roam the country investigating accidents, emphasizing safety in talks before airport clubs and flying schools, and taking instructors for "check" flights—with revocation of his "instructor rating" awaiting the pilot who demonstrates faulty flying or instruction technique.

Another phase of the CAA safety drive has been its preparation of a Model Airport Zoning Act which legislatures have been asked to adopt to prevent obstruction of approaches to airports by high buildings or other hazards. CAA field men constantly cooperate with local authorities in airport planning and construction.

Contributing to air safety also is the civilian pilot training program, providing low-cost flying instruction for college students and other youths. According to Young, 382 CPT students in the third region—comprising North Dakota, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Illinois, Michigan, Indiana, Ohio and Kentucky, soon will have completed cross-country training and will take examinations for commercial certificates. Many of these students will become instructors—some in army and navy air units—and Young predicts that they will contribute to an even better safety record in 1942.

Tennis Star Too Good In A Fight

HOLLYWOOD.—Jim Brown, tennis star who turned movie actor, is regarded a menace by film stunt men who have to engage him in movie fistfights.

Brown, because he is a newcomer to the cameras, gets nervous and forgets to pull his punches.

Jim Dundee, who gets paid for smacking movie actors but not really hitting them, was floored when Brown, paying too much attention to the camera, caught him behind the ear.

Another stunt man, Alan Pomroy, tried it with the same result.

a part in one Texas state race. Agricultural Commissioner J. E. McDonald ran far behind the rest of the State Democratic nominees last election because he had given "aid and comfort to the enemy" as a Democratic nominee by counseling with Wendell Willkie on an agricultural policy and criticizing the Democratic national administration's farm policy.

The feeling that cost him thousands of votes in the election may have subsided to a large extent but McDonald is likely to face stiff opposition possibly from a candidate for the Coastal Bend area.

boys, on the island of Madura, are more naval ammunition and powder factories. They are reputedly indestructible and all are underground. A system of galleries precludes complete demolition if air missiles should penetrate to any one section of the plants.

A number of the newest submarines are based in the dockyards. These undersea craft carry 14 torpedoes and 40 mines, which can be released at any depth by hydraulic levers.

One project that is receiving much attention at the naval base is the building of numerous floating drydocks, which serve a two-fold purpose. They are not large, but can house motor torpedo boats as well as PHRY5 Catalina air patrol planes. The miniature drydocks can be towed to any key spot in the Indies, and have an unusually shallow draft.

Catalina flying boats are arriving from the United States in appreciable numbers.

Reflecting Queen Wilhelmina's religious severity is the double grace said before and after meals in headquarters mess. "It's an old naval custom," an officer said.

Convict Painters Don't Consider Time

By United Press GARY, Ind.—A few hours' time didn't mean a thing to inmates of the Michigan City state prison.

Parking signs turned out by the inmates for the Glen Park Business Men's Association were to have read: "1 hour parking, 8 a. m. to 6 p. m."

Instead, the business men reported, the signs read: "1 hour parking, 2 a. m. to 8 p. m."

Members of the association sadly reflected that "time doesn't mean much to those fellows."

New Capital Hobby of Collecting Titles Finds Wallace and Jones Leading Parade

BY PETER EDSON
NEA Service Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON.—There is a new upper-crust hierarchy of officialdom growing in Washington and a new manner of telling just how big a guy is in government. The simple test is to determine how many jobs a federal gold brainer is holding at the same time.

Most any servant of the people is a big shot, but when you come across a man who holds two or more titles and two or more jobs, any one of which would be enough to drive two or more ordinary people nuts—there, fellow citizens, you have a statesman and a member of the all higher highest.

The President, of course, has his fingers and toes in every pie in town. He is ex-officio head of the Public in Brass Club, to coin a cliché and give the lodge a name. But from there on down, the list of active, working members is clearly defined.

Henry August Wallace is a three-star member. In addition to being just the vice president, a job heretofore not considered too strenuous, Wallace heads up the Economic Defense Board and the Supply, Priorities and Allocations Board, the two outfits which will determine just how this war is going to be waged from an economic strategy standpoint.

JESSE H. JONES is the prize exhibit, for he is listed as holding 17 different jobs. They boil down to two principal functions as secretary of commerce and federal loan administrator, but this latter job is as many-sided as a fourth dimension cube. For in the Federal Loan Agency are the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, Defense Supplies Corporation, Rubber Reserve Corporation and a flock of related organizations with government banking functions.

Under Jones in Federal Loan Administration are a dozen or more officials known in Washington familiarly as the Jones boys. They serve as presidents, chairmen, directors and trustees of these FLA children in an clubby interlocking directorate as was ever devised for a holding company maze on Wall Street. Their names may not make the headlines so much and they are perhaps not widely known outside of Washington, but they're in there pitching, every one on from three to nine of the 16 corporations which make up the Federal Loan Agency portfolio.

Sam H. Husbands is on nine, Carroll B. Merriam and Henry A. Milligan on eight, Charles B. Henderson and Howard J. Klossner on seven, William C. Costello, George R. Cooksey, Robert J. Linquist on six, and so on. Each is a president of at least one company and a brass hat on several others.

Harold Ickes belongs, by reason of being secretary of the interior, coal administrator and oil administrator, but the less said about this the better.

In sub-cabinet posts, Paul V. McNutt two-steps into the club room through his double job as federal security administrator and co-ordinator of health, welfare and related defense activities.

Donald M. Nelson rates by being executive director of the Supply, Priorities and Allocation Board and director of the Priorities Division of OPM, presenting the strange spectacle of a man working for himself and being his own boss at the same time.

These, reader, are the boys who run Washington today, but to clear up one possible misunderstanding, all this doubling in brass hats that the big shots do doesn't mean that each of the members draws two or more salaries from the government. The rule is—one man, one paycheck. The taxpayers save a little in that respect.

refrigerated chambers, has reached its destination in the United Kingdom, the American Meat Institute announced today. The meat arrived in good condition after many days at sea.

This marks an important development in the shipment of meat products overseas. An ingenious method which makes such shipments possible was devised by products in ordinary steamship holds rather than in the customary meat packing industry as a means of transport.

of increasing the flow of high-protein food to England, as desired by the United States government.

The construction of usual refrigerated chambers of steamers and the providing of refrigerating machinery is both expensive and slow. Usually such chambers are heavily insulated with cork and other material.

In preparing meats for shipment in non-refrigerated space under this new method they were boxed and then frozen, box and all, to extremely low temperature and quickly placed in steamers which had been especially prepared to receive them. Cold from the meat forced the warm air out of the holds. Instead of the usual insulation, expensive, time to both loose stock salt and steamed bone meal. The Texas Agricultural Experiment Station has proved through tests that cows on plenty of these minerals will produce more and healthier calves than cows denied plenty of either. Dr. I. B. Doughton, Experiment Station veterinarian, who has spoken at several livestock meetings in Eastland County, strongly advises keeping these out in separate containers.

Some calves are lost in the county from screw worms, castration infections and injuries caused by horning. Screw worm cases and castration infections can be kept down if most of the work is done on the calves before screw worm fly time. All wounds can be kept free of screw worms if they are smeared when fresh with Screw Worm Smear No. 62. This treatment for screw worms has been proved this year and is giving excellent results.

Horns on beef cattle are a continuous source of trouble, especially in the feed lot. All beef calves should be dehorned when they are very young, before the horn buttons grow to the skull. This can be done with a dehorning spoon or dehorning paste. If the spoon is used the wound should be dressed with screw worm smear No. 62. Creep feeding of calves from birth to weaning time will make the raisers of Eastland County more money as the calves can be sold thirty days earlier, carrying 50 to 75 pounds more weight than calves not creep fed. By creep feeding, gains can be put on with less feed than during any other period of the calf's life. This also takes some load off the cow and helps her to produce a better calf the next year.

A good mixture for creep feeding calves is 6 to 9 parts of threshed or shelled grain and 1 part peanut or cottonseed cake, either pea size or pebble size. The grain should not be ground. Calves should not be marketed until they have reached the maximum weight that it is profitable to produce on the farm or ranch. This will depend a lot on the amount of grain available to feed them. If plenty of grain and roughage are available or can be bought at a reasonable price, they should be supplemented with peanut or cottonseed cake and the calves fed for 100 to 120 days.

Simplified feeding instructions for beef calves can be obtained from the county agent or any other agricultural worker. The bull to head the herd should not be overlooked if the most pounds of beef are produced and the most profit made. A good bull may not be but half the herd but a poor one is more than half because he breeds the quality down much faster than a good bull can breed the quality up. With several breeders of high quality

Mother Of Marine Finds His Jargon Is Quite Puzzling

DALLAS. — If you have a son, mother or friend in the United States Marine Corps and he writes you a letter with a lot of jargon that baffles you, don't worry. Hereford and Angus bulls in Eastland County, there should be no excuse for any beef cattle raiser to use a scrub bull.

about his mentality, advises Major J. D. O'Leary, Dallas Recruiting Officer of the Marine Corps. The major received a call from a Dallas mother who said her son's letter had her completely baffled. The mother then read the letter to the major and he interpreted it for her. Major O'Leary has compiled a brief lexicon of Marine expressions to help anyone who may be mystified by a letter like this one. Mealtime has been the greatest inspiration for the native Marine tongue to lend itself to new expansion. The very name meal has been dropped in favor of "chow." "Clow bumps" is the bugle call announcing the meal. When the Marine finds himself in the mess-hall and asks his comrade-able to "down" anything, he means pass it — but quick. "Red-lead" is catsup; salad is "grass"; coffee is "Jo"; sugar is "sweet sand" and cream is "canned cow." Sugar and cream together make "side-arms." A "short-stop" is the fellow who helps himself from the dish while passing it to the original bidder. This is not a popular practice. Following chow there's always a rest period when the favorite sport is "pressing blankets" — just plain resting on the bunk. If

GETTING MORE BEEF IS POSSIBLE IF SIMPLE RULES ARE FOLLOWED

By ELMO V. COOK
 County Agent, Eastland County
 Eastland County beef cattle raisers are asked to market 18 percent more beef in 1942 than was marketed this year. Since it takes several years to produce a breeding cow and her calf for market, and since there is no guarantee that beef cattle prices will be kept at profitable levels, beef cattle raisers are not being encouraged to increase their numbers of breeding cows. The eighteen percent increase expected for Eastland County must and can be produced by getting a higher percentage calf crop from the cows we now have and making these calves weigh more at market time. Both of these things can be done on most farms and the raiser can make more clear profit while doing them. The average beef cattle raiser of the county raises about 75 calves from 100 cows, or a 75 percent calf crop. A few raise from 90 to 100 percent but there are too few of these. Since more beef is needed now, all old, barren and irregularly producing cows should be sent to market and the grass and feed they are eating saved for good cows and calves. Cows should be bred, if possible, to calve before the screw worm season starts. Most of the soils of Eastland County are deficient in minerals. All range beef cattle and other livestock should have access all the

San Saba Doesn't Give Up Hope For Reuben James Hero

By United Press
SAN SABA, Tex.—This town of 3,000 has not given up hope for its hero—Heywood L. Edwards.

As commander of the destroyer Reuben James, Edwards was listed by the navy as one of the 97 missing after the over-age vessel was torpedoed and sunk in the Atlantic "somewhere off Iceland."

The Reuben James was the first American naval vessel of the war to go down.

Edwards was born in this small West Texas town 35 years ago, the son of a prominent rancher and a cultured, intelligent wife. He lived here until he left for Annapolis in 1922.

Many of the city's residents remember Edwards as the "bright kid" who played guard on the football team, was adept at tennis and wrestling, and capable of beating a fellow out of everything but his eye teeth at everything from poker to polo.

Model Planes On Tether Prove New Thrill For Owners

By NEIL BURKHARDT
 United Press Staff Correspondent
 LONG BEACH, Cal.—Where the youths of the early 1900's were content to spend their time flying kites and watching dapper men on flimsy trapezes, 1941's streamlined younger generation has developed a new sport: maneuvering swift, gasoline-powered model airplanes.

First Rotary Disc Plow Found By UT Historian

Dr. W. P. Webb, University of Texas author-historian, examines with pride what he believes to be the first rotary disc plow ever invented.

The new sport, which older fans tether flying of model airplanes, term their "hobby," is called and it embraces all the excitement of flying a roaring dive-bomber or a speedy racing plane without stepping off the ground. The required equipment for this sport, or hobby as the case may be, is one model airplane with a tiny gasoline motor attached; about 100 feet of piano wire, and a layman's knowledge of the fundamentals of flying a plane.

The small plane, known as a fireball to enthusiasts of the new sport, is attached to wires and the wires made fast to "controls" on the ground. When the motor is warmed up the fireball takes off and proceeds to race through the air at high speed.

Every maneuver is controlled by the "pilot" by means of a ground control similar to a saw handle. Strands of wire are connected to the bottom and top of the control, and to the ship's with wide open throttle and only "stick." Some fireballs are flown stick control while others have wires to vary the small plane's speed and even bomb release cables. The motor of the fireball resembles an actual airplane engine and a couple of thimbleful of gasoline serve as fuel. The pilot can put his plane through everything in the book of he expects to travel 75 miles an flying, barrel roll and wing-overs to Immelmann turns. All of the thrilling acrobatics performed by role planes can be duplicated by these tiny counterparts.

And the fireballs aren't backward when it comes to speed, either. The average one flies approximately 50 miles an hour, but the speed record for these powered models is 69.66 miles an hour. It was set by 17-year-old Don Hodgson of Long Beach, and the youth is now making a model that the meet, which will become an annual affair. Realism is added to the hobby when the "pilot" becomes skillful enough to take up dive bombing. Small-gauge shotgun shells, with the shot removed and talcum powder inserted, are the "bombs." They are attached to a rack on the plane and released by a control wire.

In competition the mighty motor midgets must be flown within 20 feet of the ground and the pilot stands inside 6 foot circle.

But in simple flying the planes can be flown as high as desired. The cost of these fireballs? From $10 to $100, depending upon the pocketbook and desires of the pilot. The planes may be home made or purchased. They range in design from "Flying Fortresses" to "Spitfires," trainers and cabin planes.

Carmody Urges Slower Driving To Conserve Gas

By United Press

WASHINGTON.—Federal Works Administrator John M. Carmody urges motorists to reduce their driving speed to conserve gasoline and other national defense materials—but the "saving" would cost state and federal governments $10,000,000 annually in taxes.

Carmody recently said that the FWA's Public Roads Administration estimated motorists would save 185,000,000 gallons, or $85,000,000 worth, of gasoline a year if they would reduce their top speed to 45 miles an hour. Such action, they said, also would conserve tires, oil and prevent "wastage of human material resources of the nation through accidents." According to Public Roads Administration figures, although the "slow down" would save gasoline and materially aid national defense, it would also deprive state and federal governments of $10,000,000 in annual revenue received from gasoline taxes—money now used mainly for road construction.

Carmody said the need for a conservation drive was emphasized by the 17 per cent increase in traffic during the first four months of this year and a corresponding 17 per cent increase in motor fatalities. The PRA study indicates that 81 per cent of passenger car travel on rural highways is at speeds of 45 miles an hour or less, about 10 per cent at 46 to 50 miles, 6 per cent at 51 to 55, fewer than 2 per cent at 56 to 60 and fewer than one per cent at 61 miles an hour or more.

Estimated average gasoline mileage for passenger cars at different speeds is: 17.5 miles a gallon at 45; 16.4 at 48; 15 at 52.5; 13.4 at 57 and 11.2 at 62.
