Submarine Sighted Along Texas Gulf Coast

WING LOOMS BIG IN PLANS FOR DEFENSE

WASHINGTON — Here are the developments on the War production front — developments eventually, as present stocks exhausted, will be reflected in prices of many consumers.

The WPB slapped further control on rubber, which reduces the amount available in a wide range of civilian products by about 75 per cent, and products such as garden toys, erasers, sporting goods, rubber heels, in future may be only from reclaimed rubber.

WPB moved to meet tremendous Army and Navy demands for radio industry by ordering cuts in the production of receiving sets for civilians, also reduced output of phonographs and radio-phonograph combinations. The cut for the next days is 40 per cent below output for the nine-month period ending September 30, 1941. Most of the big companies are converted for 100 per cent military production. We now have an estimated total of 60,000,000 radios in 100 per cent of U. S. homes.

Consumers in 15 Eastern and Southern States will pay more for cellulose as a result of a price increase of 3-10ths of a cent per pound, according to OPA and Petroleum Administrator Ickes. These price increases for higher transportation costs incurred by companies using tank cars and other methods to relieve the shortage of ocean-going tankers.

Representatives of the men's and boys' clothing industry hand in a report to WPB on style implications to conserve wool, and this report recommended — had been expected — the abolition of the two-trousers suit.

Knockdown on the "two pants" suit: Forty per cent of 25,000,000 suits made in the U. S. last year had two pairs of trousers. Each pair averaged one and a half yards of cloth. A resultant 1,000,000 yard saving by eliminating one pair would equal 17 per cent more suits. Forty-three per cent of last year's suits were double-breasted. The industry men would eliminate vests with this type of suit.

Restrictions designed to plug loopholes in control of nickel are now to make many articles of common use less decorative, even "just as serviceable." The list was a gamut from musical instruments to saddlery and harness hardware.

Salvage, simplify, substitute — these are the "Three S's" of wartime economy. Even the Army is using substitutes where it can. Conserving scarce metals for work in which they're absolutely essential is one of the means of doing this.

The nationwide salvage campaign — to collect scrap metal, old rubber, used paper — moves forward here.

OPA's consumer division suggests that you carry your bundles home from the store, to save tires, trucks, paper.

Printers and publishers are studying ways of conserving colored inks, salvaging metals.

President's Ball Tickets On Sale

M. H. Kelley, Eastland City Manager, stated this morning that tickets for the President's Ball, which is to be held in Eastland Saturday night, Jan. 31, have been placed on sale at the Eastland Drug Store, Corner Drug Store and Majestic cafe for the convenience of purchasers.

Kelley stated that a committee headed by Mayor C. W. Hoffmann, was pushing the sale of the tickets for this entertainment, the proceeds from which go to the national fund for prevention and cure of paralysis. A certain percent of the fund derived from sale of tickets locally remains in Eastland.

Bataan joins the list of historic American battlefields as Gen. Douglas MacArthur's U. S.-Filipino forces make their heroic stand in the jungled mountains and on the open beaches of this Philippine peninsula. Outnumbered nearly 10 to 1, American troops hold most of this peninsula and Corregidor island fortress commanding the entrance to Manila Bay.

Hats That Repose on Governor's Desk Could Make Story

AUSTIN — A poet like Rudyard Kipling might find inspiration these days for something called "Hats! Hats! Hats!" in the reception room of Gov. Coke R. Stevenson.

The setting is artistic. A long room, with great floor-length windows, deep carpets and well-kept antique furniture—even a silk-upholstered love seat, marble busts, elegant draperies and a 12-foot mirror.

Ceilingpiece of this setting is an ornamental table, about the size of an ordinary family dining table but of hand-carved frame and a brown marble top. Upon this unique piece of furniture rest the hats of the governor's visitors, who pass through the reception room enroute to his inner office.

On a typical day there were half-a-dozen hats—one belonging to a major-general and the other to a lieutenant. There was a genuine I-Ride-the-Range white "Texas hat" of the type made famous by Texas ranchers and adopted by business men and others throughout the nation. It was a hat whose battered lines showed it had been in some rough weather.

The other hats were ordinary styles, belonging to state officials, reporters, or others who had business with the governor that morning. If the room had been empty of people, a person still could write a poem or a story of history, government, and everyday people from the hats that reposed in the governor's reception room.

ALLIED FORCES TAKE HEAVY TOLL OF AXIS FORCES ON ALL FRONTS

Official Finds Way Around Conflicts In Orders Received

By United Press
AUSTIN.—One Texas state official has evolved what he says has been an entirely successful plan of dealing with the conflicting instructions received from the office of civilian defense, and from other government agencies.

All the orders are placed on a file. While the civilian defense organization is figuring out which one of its orders is the effective one, the state official goes ahead and "gets something done."

For political reasons the official declined to be quoted on the topic.

"I guess anyone by a little observing around here could find out that is what is happening without quoting me," remarked the official.

Texas' dispute with the Civil Air Patrol when that organization wanted to take over the eight air squadrons of the Texas Defense Guard is but one instance of how Texas has had the jump on the country at large.

Not that the Texas state government is holding back anything essential to the national defense program. But Gov. Coke R. Stevenson pointed out that the Civil Air Patrol has an ample source from which to get its force without disturbing what Texas is ready has organized.

Without delay the state turned over to the federal authorities upon the request the entire set up of the state employment organization.

The health department is so busy certifying ages from its vital statistics for military purposes that the usual civilian requests for duplicates of records of births are several thousand behind in being filled.

British forces in Libya are believed to be organized to strike at the Axis armored units which have regained 145 miles south of Benghazi, in an effort to achieve a decisive knockout blow, following a devastating Royal Air Force attack on enemy concentrations.

Red Army forces in Russia pushed forward southwest of Moscow, probably recapturing Bryansk in a drive to close the southern army pincers on Smolensk. A Russian communique announced the capture of a town designated only as "B" and which some observers thought might possibly be Bryansk. If Bryansk has fallen into Russian hands it would represent a major setback for the German forces and one of Russia's greatest recent triumphs.

American fighter pilots shot down 12 more Japanese planes in an air battle near Rangoon, without reference being made to any American losses. It was in this same area last week that American fighters shot down 23 planes one day and 16 the next.

British forces in Libya are believed to be organized to strike at the Axis armored units which have regained 145 miles south of Benghazi, in an effort to achieve a decisive knockout blow, following a devastating Royal Air Force attack on enemy concentrations.

Building Material Search May Bring About Some Delay

AUSTIN.—Necessity of devoting building materials to the national defense program likely will cause a delay in construction of the University of Texas' new hospital, for funds already are arranged, President Homer F. Rainey has announced.

Rainey said that the university hospital project was given lowest possible rating in the "A" class priority list of building materials. He believed construction might begin within six months or a year.

Expansion of the naval R. O. T. C. training program at the University already is contemplated, Rainey said, but he expressed doubt that the school's effort to obtain a military training unit would be granted soon.

Speeding up of defense training courses and expansion of research are two of the university's principal war-time objectives, the president said upon return from conferences with officials in Washington.

FBI Plans New School For Police From Texas Cities

A. P. Kitchen, special agent in charge of the Dallas office of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, announced today that the FBI will inaugurate a series of war traffic schools for police in 120 cities throughout the United States on February 9. Kitchen stated that schools will be held in Corpus Christi, Dallas, El Paso, Houston and San Antonio.

The official approval of the Office of Civilian Defense has been given this program by Mayor Fiorello H. LaGuardia, United States Director of Civilian Defense. The schools will be of six days' duration, and instruction will be presented by experts of the FBI aided by traffic specialists whose services have been obtained by Federal Bureau of Investigation for this purpose. The traffic specialists will receive information in Washington, D. C., prior to February 9 regarding national policies affecting traffic control, including recommendations of the War Department which will aid in this project.

Kitchen further stated that the schools are being initiated to provide uniform instruction on problems arising out of the war emergency and now confronting, or threatening to confront, local, county, and state law enforcement agencies.

The schools will furnish to police personnel uniform and specific information on various traffic problems including the following: Bomb damage to streets during air raids, bomb damage to buildings creating traffic hazards during air raids, operation of vehicles without full traffic light control during blackouts, damage to electrical systems of traffic control during air raids, accidents occurring during blackouts, accumulation and handling of crowds at evacuation points during air raids, accumulation and handling of crowds at points of damage following air raids, pedestrian traffic control during air raids, planning and maintenance of traffic control maps, planning and marking of traffic routes, provision of military convoy routes, expediting movement of military units and re-routing of civilian vehicle traffic.

Two Year Ban On Marriage Is Lifted For Naval Aviators

A further incentive to successfully complete their flight training was today given Naval Aviation Cadets by the Navy Department, according to Lieutenant Commander Barry Holton, Senior Member of the Naval Aviation Cadet Selection Board, Dallas, Texas. Upon completion of flight training and acceptance of commission as Ensign in the Naval Reserve or Second Lieutenant in the Marine Corps Reserve former Naval Aviation Cadets may marry at any time. Formerly they could not marry for a period of two years after appointment as cadet.

The Navy Department also announced that consideration would be given applications of former commissioned officers who were discharged for marrying within the two-year restricted period.

Applicants for training as Naval Aviation Cadets must still be single and never have been married.

PORT ARANSAS IS SCENE OF FIRST SCARE

Vessel, Supposed to be Enemy Craft is only 15 Miles Out from Shore

PORT ARTHUR, Tex., Jan. 28.—The threat of submarine came to the Gulf Coast of Texas today for the first time in history.

Commander R. R. Ferguson, Naval Port Director for Port Arthur, warned shipping interests that a submarine had been sighted about 15 miles off Arkansas Pass, Texas.

Commander Ferguson said it had not been determined if the submarine was an "enemy" ship, but added that "it may be presumed that it was."

The report of the submarine in the Gulf waters constituted the first direct threat to shipping along the Texas coastline.

Port Arkansas is about 250 miles from Port Arthur, and within 50 miles of Corpus Christi, site of one of the nation's largest naval bases.

Shipping alongshore generally is quite heavy, and previous to the direct entry of the United States into the war hundreds of tankers put out from Texas seaports.

Commander Ferguson refused to give further details of sighting of the submarine, saying that such information must come from the naval headquarters in New Orleans.

At New Orleans there was no comment from the naval headquarters for the Eighth Naval District.

It was not explained how the craft had been sighted, whether by fishing vessels or by naval aircraft that are known to be patrolling the area.

Newspapers in leading cities along the Texas Coast put out extras immediately after receiving word of Ferguson's announcement.

Practically all sections of the coast recently have staged "practice blackouts" which have met with commendations from naval and army observers.

Shipping for some time has been on the alert in the Gulf area, anticipating that enemy ships might enter the Gulf of Mexico.

The announcement from Commander Ferguson's office said that the craft had been sighted about 15 miles from Arkansas Pass at Latitude 27 degrees, 46 minutes north, longitude 96 degrees, 48 minutes west.

Bank Robbed At Mexia Today

MEXIA, Tex., Jan. 28.—Two unmasked gunmen today robbed the Frederick-Smith National Bank of Mexia of about $20,000, after intimidating seven employees.

Entrance to the bank was gained by the gunmen, who went to the home of one of the bank officials, seized him, locked his wife in a closet and forced him to accompany them to the bank.

As each employee arrived he was seized by the two gunmen, and forced into the vault. When all had arrived the gunmen left the seven in the vault and fled. They escaped a few minutes later to spread the alarm.

Even War Is Not World's End

In a fast triple play, allow us to pass on to you a series of most interesting quotations assembled by President Marsh of Boston University, reproduced by James Truslow Adams in "Barron's," and now here set down once again. They're worth it.

Wilberforce, 1801—"I dare not marry—the future is so unsettled."

Pitt, 1806—"There is scarcely anything around us but ruin and despair."

Lord Shaftesbury, 1848—"Nothing can save the British Empire from shipwreck."

Disraeli, 1849—"In industry, commerce, and agriculture there is no hope."

Wellington, 1852—"I thank God I shall be spared from seeing the consummation of the ruin that is gathering about us."

Yet the world did not end because over a period of half a century these gentlemen saw only ruin and hopelessness. It is not going to end now, in spite of nearly universal war, in spite of death, debt and destruction.

Man is a durable institution. His powers of survival have been sorely tested before, and he has always emerged from the most gruesome ordeals, loving and living as before. So he will do again.

In a time when everything seems changing, are there no things which do not change? Of course there are. The love of men and women, the steady, consoling warmth of friendship, the driving power of ambition. The desire for the beautiful, the deed of kindness, the unselfish urge, the desire for knowledge. The aspiration to see and to serve God.

He would be a foolish optimist indeed who can look complacently on the world today that should have been so beautiful, and which men have made so ugly. But he would be not only cowardly but shortsighted who would look upon it and say, "We can never do any better."

The world to come will be what we make it, and what we give our children an opportunity to make it. Our immediate task today happens to be the attainment of victory in a war which has come to us despite long and intense efforts to avoid it.

That is only the chapter in which we are now reading. The coming chapter need not be like the blotted and smudged pages of the past. It can be clean and fine. In the midst of today's troubles we must remember that, for it is only if we forget it that we prejudice its eventual realization.

Christmas gave the high cost of living another boost—through the high cost of giving.

Author-Cameraman Harrison Forman's Exclusive Picto-Drama Tells How:

AMERICAN CIVILIAN PILOTS PLAY HEROIC ROLES IN HONG KONG FIGHT

HONG KONG fell under the terrific Japanese onslaught. But before it did, a brilliant page in civilian aviation history was written. American and Chinese passenger plane pilots, scorned a chance to save themselves, shuttled in and out of the battle-blasted city, braving the Japs' fire time and again, to evacuate 275 people from the doomed island. Their epic saga is told below, in the exclusive picto-drama by author-photographer Harrison Forman, of NEA Service, to which this paper is a subscriber of the Far Eastern staff.

By HARRISON FORMAN
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

CHUNGKING, China. — Right smack in the face of the Japanese army, navy and air force, based almost within cannon shot of the Hong Kong airbase, a company of daredevil American and Chinese pilots made 16 round-trip flights to evacuate over 275 people from beleaguered Hong Kong in the first two days after the Jap attack on the city December 8.

The story is among the most thrilling chapters in the annals of commercial aviation. When the Pacific war broke out, Hong Kong was a leg on the China National Aviation Corporation's last remaining route in what was once an elaborate network of airlines serving China's vast hinterlands. Connecting the Crown Colony to Rangoon in Burma, via Chungking, CNAC was Chungking's only link with the outside world except for the long hazardous trek up the Burma Road.

A formation of 27 high flying planes came out over the city about a quarter to eight in the morning. Lined up on the field—like so many sitting ducks—were seven of CNAC's twelve big passenger ships.

Directly overhead the Jap warplanes circled, and then dove for the field in follow-the-leader fashion, and began machine-gunning the parked planes. It took them more than forty-five minutes to set them all afire, including the Pan American Clipper, at anchor just over the sea wall nearby. And then they flew off towards Canton.

For some unaccountable reason, the hangar wasn't touched. Inside were five more planes. Hardly ately filling up bomb craters. And by had the Japs flown off when all hands rushed forward and hurriedly rolled the ships out across the field where they were cleverly camouflaged. Twice that afternoon—at two o'clock and again at three—the Japs came back and bombed the field. They dropped big 250-pounders which however, did little more than make holes in

No one in Hong Kong would fly out in the "ugly duckling"—rickety old plane that hadn't been flown in months. No one—except mechanic Lee C. Taylor, left, of Burbank, Calif., and veteran CNAC pilot Hugh E. Chen, graduate of Southwest College, Greenfield, Kansas. They're pictured in front of the "ugly duckling" which they managed, with the aid of a ten-cent compass, to get into Chungking from Hong Kong when the Jap attack came. The field. One did go through the hangar roof, but it was a dud, and did no damage. Coolis rushed to work immediately that night. CNAC's pilots started flying out equipment and personnel with the still undamaged planes. Not only did they succeed in flying out all of CNAC's American and Chinese staff, but the boys calmly turned right around and went back into Hong Kong to fly-out plane-load after plane-load of refugees. Among the 275 people they evacuated in 16 flights during the next two days were those two famous sisters of Mme. Chiang Kai-shek—Mrs. H. H. Kung (wife of the Vice-Premier of China) and Mme. Sun Yat-sen (widow of the founder of the Chinese Republic, the "George Washington of China").

It is estimated that about a thousand American nationals still remained in Hong Kong. The boys started in again on the night of December tenth, planning to bring out another 250 people, but at the last moment word came through from the Hong Kong government that they were not to attempt it.

Each of the boys had some hair-raising tales to tell — one was fired at by Japanese anti-aircraft another by British A.A. gunners who mistook him for a Jap. Still another had an engine balkfire and act as if it was going to quit altogether just when he was over the Japanese lines.

Luckiest boys of the bunch were mechanic Lee C. Taylor, a lanky six-footer who hails from Burbank, California, and Hugh E.

ABOVE: Capt. H. L. Woods, of Winfield, Kans., Chief Pilot of the China National Aviation Corporation. Flying from Hong Kong, his plane was shot down near Canton. Thirteen passengers were killed, only Woods and his radio man escaping.

BELOW: Capt. S. E. Scott, of Waco, Tex., pictured in Chungking after his last flight from Hong Kong, was one of the first pilots to escape from the besieged city, and fly back in again to rescue refugees.

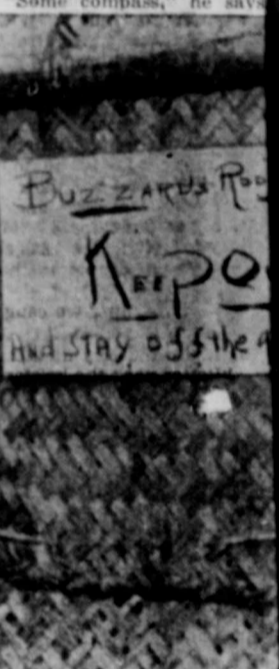

Chen, veteran CNAC pilot, graduate of Southwest College, Greenfield, Kansas, who flew to Roosevelt Field in 1928. They came in 1934 Vultee, which had been sitting on the tarmac like an ugly duckling since the proud, Douglas airliners.

Taylor's face was a mere red blister. He got the picric acid in the bombs which sprayed and spate parts in the bomb though the bomb itself. But quickly, and had to get out of there before the back and got them all stuck to his job, bomb bombs.

NO ONE WANTED THE "UGLY DUCKLING"
No one, however, would fly out in the "ugly duckling" plane. As a matter of fact, it was not until last October when Sharp, Chief of Operations, CNAC, took me up in a test hop. She was prettily volunteered to take her Taylor said he'd fly with had already been stripped of her instruments. What had left went haywire soon as they took off, just dawn. There was no turn though, for they had no lights. Luckily, Hugh E. Chen, had a tiny compass in his pocket. It was no more than an inch in diameter, but it was the valiant of about a dime. It then through.

"I knew we'd make it Taylor. "This guy Hugh flyin' fool!" Hugh E. Chen said. "Some compass," he says

Former Stockman Has Branded Tires

GLADEWATER, Tex. (UP) — Twelve years ago H. R. Shockley was in the livestock business in Iowa and Nebraska. His brand was the "Lazy S," or an "S" lying on its back. When he abandoned the livestock trade, Shockley came here and became manager of the city water department.

Then came the rubber shortage. Shockley revived his brand and has burned the "Lazy S" into each of the tires on his automobile. The brand can't be removed without defacing the tire, he said.

SERIAL STORY TAMBAY GOLD BY SAMUEL HOPKINS ADAMS

THE STORY: Mom Banner sets on "Freddy" Jack wagon at rando... Tamabay Gold, the most revolutionary move in recent history, means the ball is in play practically all the time, something like 38 out of 40 minutes.

DOE SAYS "FORGET IT" CHAPTER XVII

WE got Doc up the bank to his cabin, and a job it was. He put up a squawk about my undressing him, so I chased Juddy over to the house for bandages and hot water. "Keep slipping Angel and shooting your left, huh?" I said. He sort of grunted.

on a team man," he said. "Balestier does, and all the other schools. Look! We football men have a lot of extra work wished on us. Besides practice. Brain work. Blackboard exercises. Learning the combinations. Most of the games are reasonable. But not Oliver."

"His course isn't so hard if you really work at it, Angel," Juddy said. "Maybe not for you. I've got no appetite for dead Injuns. And besides the class work and the exam, I've got to write a thesis."

Football practice started in before fall term opened. The talk was that Angel Todd was showing more stuff than ever. I've always been a grid fan; so I'd slip away occasionally to get a line on the team. I thought I might lay a few smart bets on the big game, which was against Balestier.

When I passed that on to Juddy, she said, "I'd like to kiss Loren Oliver if I didn't think it would scare him out of a year's growth."

OUT OUR WAY BY WILLIAMS THE PAY OFF

BORN THIRTY YEARS TOO SOON

BY PETER EDSON NEA Service Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON—The total cost of the federal government's share of civilian defense for the next year will be around $237 million if the job is done as Mayor La Guardia's boys and girls have figured it out. That $237 million figure hasn't been mentioned very loudly before.

One of the bills being considered by Congress mentions $100 million as the original appropriation, but that will merely start things. It will permit the placing of the first orders for the 50 million gas masks and the so-far undisclosed numbers of fire engines, ambulances, fire extinguishers, tin hats and all the paraphernalia that a well-organized civilian defense should have.

Women Asked To Join In a Fight Upon Paralysis

DALLAS. — An all-out mobilization of the women of Texas for the Fight Against Infantile Paralysis for the week of Jan. 19th to the 26th is to be sought by the women's division for the celebration of the President's Birthday, January 30, according to Mrs. George Pittman, state vice chairman in charge of women's activities.

Mrs. Pittman has just returned from Washington, D. C., where she attended a national conference of women state chairmen, and a wide program for women's participation was adopted.

Mrs. Pittman has pitched the present fund driving campaign upon patriotic lines because of the bad showing Southern states made in 1941 and the ever increasing concentration of troops in the Southwest. President Roosevelt has called for relentless war on disease and as forty-seven of the states in 1941 reported epidemics or near epidemics of infantile paralysis the demands for 1942 are expected to be excessive.

Texas women are called upon by Mrs. Pittman to give teas, luncheons, fashion shows, card parties and to cooperate in every way possible to raise money for the campaign. This year club scrolls are being issued and will eventually be forwarded to President Roosevelt at the White House. In addition to this feature costume jewelry pins are being issued honoring the President's Diamond Jubilee Birthday.

Out of the 254 counties in Texas more than 200 have formed county organizations for the celebration. Practically all of these county organizations have women vice chairmen directing women's activities and it is to these women Mrs. Pittman has made direct appeal.

"In a world which is producing man-made cripples at a terrific rate," said Mrs. Pittman, "the fight to eliminate disease-made cripples at this time has special significance. The greatest birthday gift any woman can make this year of the President's Diamond Jubilee Birthday is to volunteer her service for Women's Week for Infantile Paralysis."

Baling Wire May Be Saved To Use Again By Farmers

COLLEGE STATION.—Texas farmers and ranchmen were told today that they would do well to save baling wire for possible reuse during the 1942 hay baling season.

A recent OPM order assigned baling wire, along with nails and wire rope, a rating that will assure delivery of the same amount of these articles as supplied in the corresponding quarter of 1940.

But, M. K. Bentley, agricultural engineer of the Texas A. & M. College Extension Service, reports that the U. S. Department of Agriculture estimates 1942 needs for baling wire at around 100,000 tons. This is equivalent in weight to three battleships or 3,000 medium tanks.

Thousands of bales of hay and other forage are now being baled in Texas, Bentley pointed out, but farmers will do well to wrap the wires, straighten out, and then store them on a surface protected from the weather so they can be used again if a shortage develops, he said.

Women Organize Fire Brigade In East Texas Town

By United Press

GLADEWATER, Tex.—A women's fire fighting brigade is being organized to prevent flames from destroying the East Texas oil field in case of incendiary bombing.

Fire Chief O. B. Davis, of Gladewater, said the protection of the world's largest oil producing area would be left largely to the housewives while the men went about the harder task of beating off the invader.

This system, said Davis, was used successfully in London during the fire raids and will be used in this rich oil production center.

Davis recently attended a defense meeting where he learned of methods to combat fire bombs.

"You'd think they'd have a high powered formula for putting out fire bombs," he commented. "But they don't. The formula is sand."

The sand must be dry, however, he said, and may be obtained from the railroad at present.

If bombing raids become imminent, Davis said, each housewife will be asked to keep on hand a large supply of this sand.

Incendiary bombs give off such an intense, white heat that a shield is necessary to approach it. He advised housewives to "hold a chair in front of your face and then throw sand on the bomb fragment."

Don't do anything for a minute or two after the bomb arrives, he said. After that the only danger is burns.

Wins a Home, Car and Groceries; Now Wants To Win Girl

FORT ORD, Cal. (UP) — Because Sgt. George Bartlett of Fort Ord had the house, the furniture, and the automobile, he is now in Little Rock, Ark., to see about getting the girl.

The girl of his choice, whose name was not revealed here, telephoned the sergeant that he held a ticket which entitles him to a new home, furniture, a month's supply of groceries, an automobile, and gasoline to take him 20,000 miles.

Even the utilities are paid for a month.

Major-Gen. W. H. Simpson gave Sgt. Barnett a special furlough when he heard that the latter had won the home in Little Rock.

The 22-year-old sergeant, who comes from Omaha, was uncertain when he left here whether he would sell, rent, or keep his new property.

He was certain he was going to pop the question to the girl back home, however.

Western Pacific Has The Deepest Water

SCHENECTADY, N. Y. (UP) — Naval battles in the Western Pacific are fought in the deepest waters in the world.

Just west of Mindanao Island is Mindanao Deep, the deepest underwater spot known to geologists.

Here the measuring tape went down 34,218 feet or nearly six and one-half miles, before it struck bottom, according to Dr. Edward S. C. Smith, professor of geology at Union College.

Other deep spots in this area, Dr. Smith said, are the Tonga Deep, 30,132 feet, and the Kermadec Deep, 30,920 feet. Waters in the Northeastern Pacific average about 15,000 feet.

Two divided by one equals divorce.

Clifton College Wins Over Ranger

Clifton Junior College nosed out the Ranger Junior College cagers in the second meeting between the two teams Monday night by a score of 40 to 27. In the first meeting of the two teams Ranger Junior College was the victor.

The contest was a high-scoring one from start to finish, with the final outcome being in doubt until the end of the final period, which found the Clifton basketeers leading by a slim, three-point margin.

SAVE THE VITAMINS

With Modern Gas Cookery

Vitamins are essential to health and strength. You can get all you need from a well-rounded diet of every-day foods but they must be properly prepared. Here is what authorities recommend to save the vitamins and other food values in the food you eat:

1. Cook with little or no water.
2. Start cooking fast—do not overcook.
3. Avoid violent boiling.
4. Do not use soda to preserve color of vegetables.
5. Cook in covered utensils without stirring.
6. Use cooking liquids in gravies, soups and sauces.

It's easy to follow these suggestions and serve more healthful meals with a modern gas range. New simmer-speed burners are ideal for waterless cookery. New high-speed ovens with low temperature setting prevent the drying out of meats and consequent loss of vitamin and mineral-laden juices. Modern gas broilers permit the serving of delicious broiled foods with all the nutritive value sealed in. For your health's sake, investigate modern gas cooking today.
