14 KILLED IN KANSAS STORM NEAR OBERLIN

OBERLIN, Kan., Apr. 30—

Fourteen persons were killed, including two entire families, and 113 were injured in a tornado which struck near here late last night.

The storm struck at 11:30 p. m., crushing a farm house two miles south of Oberlin and then blew itself out about a quarter of a mile east of the Oberlin city limits.

The city of Oberlin itself, in Decatur County, in the northwestern section of Kansas, was not seriously damaged, except for a few houses on the outskirts of the town.

The dead were brought to the Methodist church here where they were cared for until morning, when they were taken to hospitals at McCook, Neb. for medical treatment.

The families wiped out by the tornado were those of Dale Padon and Gus Leinwetter.

All the injured who were brought here and given treatment or later transferred to McCook hospital were expected to recover with the exception of Gail Ralback, 16 who was reported to be near death.

Capital's Airport May Be Given A New Name Soon

Austin, Tex.—The state capital's airport soon may be known as Chenault Field in honor of Col. Claire Chenault, commander of the American Volunteer Group which made such an enviable record in air fighting in China.

The change in the name of the airport, now named for a local town councilman, is being urged because it was Colonel Chenault who selected the site where airplanes now land and depart for their Austin stop at municipal airport.

This work done by Chenault before he resigned as an American army flier to go to the assistance of the Chinese.

Enlargement of Austin's air facilities was being planned and Chenault was assigned to approve the area chosen. With Max Bickler, chairman of the Austin Chamber of Commerce aviation committee, Chenault flew all over the country adjacent to Austin.

"He would dip here and fly low there all the time pointing out what objections there were to the terrain or why other spots had desirable features."

It was exciting flying, Bickler said, and another civilian flying with them got sick, very sick.

Johnson (incredulous)—"You don't mean to tell me that your memory is absolutely perfect?"
Jackson—"Well, to be honest, right now I can't remember anything that I've ever forgotten."

Nazarene Pastor

Rev. I. W. Justice, pastor of the Church of the Nazarene, at Sadosa and Lamar Sts., in Eastland since November '41. He was reared at Post, Texas, and came here from Buffalo Gap, Taylor county, where he served as pastor of the Nazarene church. He has a wife and two children, Elford Worth, 5, and Vida Megry, 8.

Farmers Have A Money Target In Jackrabbit Market

FORT COLLINS, Colo. (UP)—

Long-eared, high jumping jackrabbits, almost as typical of Colorado as its mountains are biting the dust regularly these days with approximately 200,000 killed this winter.

Farmer sharpshooters of the area who have always considered the lanky rabbits a pest have been spurred on by the recent high market price being paid for the rabbits.

Specialists in the line are paying from 10 to 20 cents for each rabbit, selling the furs for manufacture of women's coats and the meat to persons who operate fox farms, as food for the foxes.

Experts at the Colorado State College say one man armed only with a 22 rifle can hunt as many as 10 or 15 rabbits in the evening after work and realize a nice profit.

Moreover, the experts estimate that by destroying the rabbits the plainsmen conserved enough feed in fields, pastures and ranges to winter a herd of 4,407 cattle. It is estimated that 27 jackrabbits eat as much as a cow.

Rival Firemen Vie With Fire Hose at Scene of a Blaze

Haverford, Pa.—The Brookline (Haverford township) volunteer fire department wants to fight its own fires.

It emphasized this the other day by squirting nearby Bryn Mawr (Lower Merion township) volunteer firemen from the roof of a blazing building — in Haverford township.

The Bryn Mawr outfit, it seems was on its toes. Its firefighters reached the scene of the blaze first, put their 1 1/2 inch hose line to the building and climbed atop.

When the Brookline boys arrived, they connected their 2 1/2 inch line and proceeded to play it on the rival smok-eaters.

The incident had its legal aspects, too. The Bryn Mawr firefighters said Brookline violated a state code in running over their hose-line and they intended to take the case to Haverford township commissioners.

"The 'Brookline' company acted like cowboys," said Joseph B. Allen, president of the Bryn Mawr company.

Amnesia Victim Is Located By A Scar

Bellefonte, Ill.—Seventeen years ago a young mechanic living in Stillwater, Okla., was injured and suffered an attack of amnesia. When he was able to return to work he could not recall his name, so he became Charles Brown.

He began working for a petroleum company, married and had two children. Several years later he was transferred by his company to Duplo, Ill.

Years after that he met a man on the street to whom he looked familiar. They began talking. The man told Brown he was Vern Creath of Murphysboro, Ill., and proved it by an old scar.

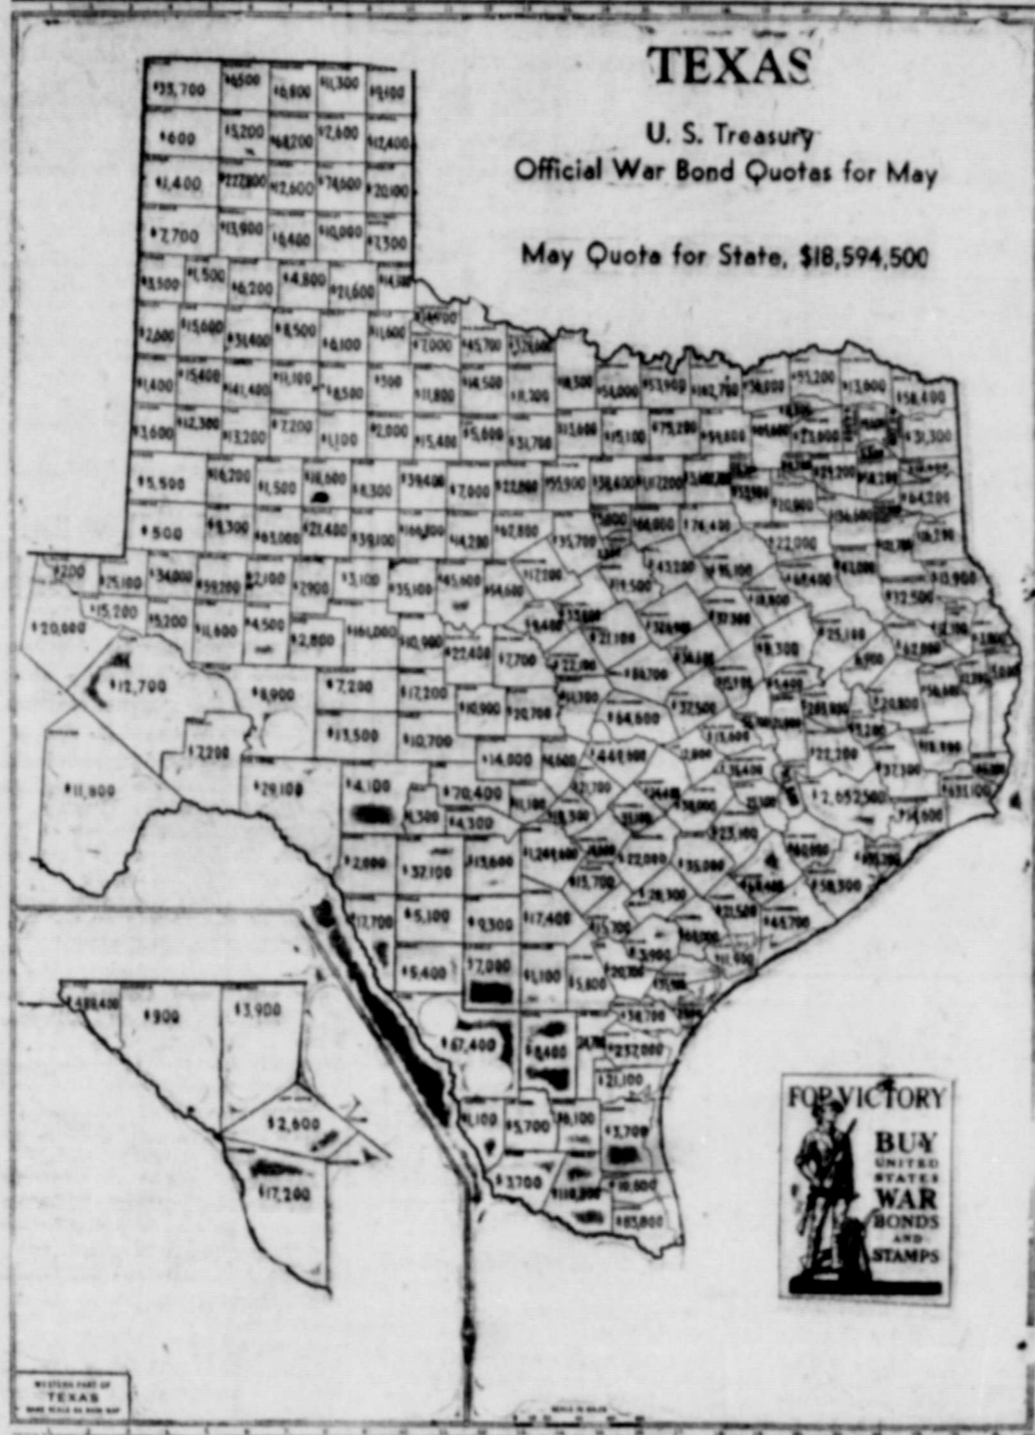

Brown has filed a petition in Circuit court to change his name and that of his wife and children to Creath.

Seeks To Legally Change His Name

Loren Albert Stephens, who was born at Cisco March 25, 1908, has taken action in the district courts of the County to have his name changed to James Sidney Stephens.

Stephens alleges in his petition that until 1936 he used his original name of Loren Albert Stephens, but at about that time there was another person in his town whose initials were A. L. and whose last name was Stephens and to avoid confusion he began using the name of James Sidney Stephens. He married, however, under his original name, but when he registered with the Social Security Commission he did so under the name of James Sidney Stephens, and it is to clarify these things that he desires to have his name legally changed to that of James Sidney Stephens. Stephens is employed in Houston.

Official U. S. Treasury War Bond Quotas For May

The above map of Texas shows the War Bond quotas, by counties, for the month of May, 1942. Total War Bond quota for the State is $18,594,500. Every income earner in the State is expected to step up War Bond purchases on a basis of ten per cent or more of income. This is necessary to help America's armed forces take the offensive against the Axis powers. The American voluntary method of War Bond purchases must be successful in reaching the quotas set by the Treasury Department for every county in the nation. The job of every American now is to stop spending and save dollars to help win the War.

LASHIO IS CAPTURED BY JAPANESE TROOPS BUT A COUNTER ATTACK STARTS

AIR BATTLE OVER DOVER IS LARGEST

Great Britain, continuing its non-stop offensive against the Nazis, bombed the German dominated war plant in the Paris sector today and the Red Army of Russia held the initiative with new stabs at the Germans on the Eastern Front.

One of the biggest aerial battles of the year was reported over the Dover Straits today as the Royal Air Force, using an estimated 4,000 planes in a sustained eight-day offensive, renewed their daylight attacks after spreading fire and bomb damage through the Gnome-Rhone Motor Works and the Goodrich Rubber Plant just outside the outskirts of Paris.

Reports from France stated that 52 persons had been killed and an estimated 150 had been injured in the British raids on the factories that are dominated by the Germans and are working on war materials for the Nazis army.

Intensive aerial fighting was also reported from the Russian front, where the Soviets said that 247 German planes had been destroyed in the last eight days, for a total of 900 planes and 2,000 fliers in the past three weeks.

The Russians also reported that their troops were holding the initiative in scattered but severe land battles and that they had killed some 45,000 Germans during the six months siege of Sevastopol, in the Crimean Battle.

Bexar Officers To Leave Off G-Strings

San Antonio, Tex.—Bexar County's sheriff's officers have stripped off their G-Strings.

G-Strings in most cases, if you don't know, are worn by chorus girls, more specifically burlesque queens. It also is a term used by law officers for the safety strap they wear across the tops of their gun holsters to keep from losing the gun.

Sheriff Owen W. Kilday ordered elimination of the G-Strings when Deputy Sheriff Charles Bass accidentally shot himself in the thigh.

Bass shot to remove his gun from the holster and the safety strap caught the hammer of the gun and caused it to fire through the holster into his thigh.

First Paratroop Volunteer From Ranger Accepted

Next week Ranger will send her first paratroop off to the wars, when Lloyd (Wiley) Post leaves for training, either in Georgia or Florida.

Young Post, who has worked for the past year at the local Clover Farm Store, went to Abilene yesterday to take examinations given there for prospective candidates for entrance into that select group of soldiers, and returned today after passing all his tests.

He was told at Abilene that he has passed his examinations and would be notified next Wednesday to report to a paratroop training camp in one of the two states.

Farmer Cook Is Only 80 So He Is Not To Retire

Tyler, Tex.—In the Spring of 1888 Farmer John D. Cook and his brother, Robert, finished planting the last 20 acres of a 160-acre tract.

Now 84 years later, Farmer John Cook is still tilling Smith county land. He gets out in the hot sun and plants corn near where he did that half century and more ago.

He says he's going strong and has no intention of slowing down. Stop farming?

Gosh, no, snorts Farmer Cook. After all, he says, he's just 82. Cook is believed to have farmed Smith county land longer than any other living man.

Big, still fairly heavy, the white-haired old man was interviewed while in the middle of a field, where he was doing his spring corn planting.

He told of clearing the ground 54 years ago, of cultivating it, planting it and putting a split rail fence around it. The brother 79. The two worked the 160 acres, part of which now is Tyler Municipal Airport.

"We bought out five heirs, paying the $500 for their share in the tract and then we paid four $20 gold pieces or a yoke of oxen."

"Then we went to work and in a little over a year we had cleared the track and had it in cultivation," he said.

He recalled that he was born in this region just two years after his father settled after coming from Mississippi in an ox wagon in 1857.

"I could stand here all day and tell you things about Tyler and Smith county and the oldtimers and the changes that have taken place," Farmer Cook said. "But I know you'll excuse me if I get back to my planting. Got a lot of it left."

Texas Ingenuity Is Seen In Gadgets

Austin, Tex.—Texans are using their ingenuity on war problems. On heels of the announcement that an Austin man was co-worker in development of a control system for immediate blackouts, another gadget that depends on air waves was demonstrated in the governor's office.

The small contraption gives off an alarm when anyone comes close to it. The distance at which it will give the alarm can be regulated.

Its possibilities in guarding places that cannot be kept under continuous observation was apparent.

Previously a Texas inventor showed Governor Stevenson his plans for an unsinkable boat. The governor said that to his unmechanical mind it appeared to be what the designed hopes for it and referred him to proper government authorities.

Torpedoes are "fish" and destroyers "cats" to the American sailor.

Records show that there are sixteen American Indians in the U. S. Navy.

CHUNGKING, China, Apr. 29—

The Japanese mass offensive, led by tanks and airplanes and supported by heavy artillery bombardments, captured the key Burma communication town of Lashio off Wednesday a Chinese communication stated today.

The communiques said that the battle still continuing, however, in the vicinity of Lashio, 80 miles from the Chinese border, and that both sides had suffered heavy casualties in fighting in and around the key communications towns, which is at the head of the famous Burma Road, supply line that has kept Chinese soldiers in munitions during four years war with the Japanese.

The capture of Lashio cut off the Allied supply route to China and threatened to encircle the Chinese and British forces on the Central Burma front.

But a military spokesman said today that the enemy spearheads which had been thrust forward in the Lashio sector were being counter attacked and might be encircled because of their extended communications lines.

Gen. MacArthur's Headquarters—Brig. Gen. Harold H. George, who flew the United States Air Force in the Philippines to the battered plane during the Battle of Bataan, said one day at the Army Headquarters on Bataan Peninsula that if it was his lot to die during this war he wanted to meet death at the stick of a pursuit ship after shooting down a "godly number of Japanese Zero Planes."

Today the general's death came in an accident, which also took the life of Melville Jacoby, correspondent for Time and Life magazines, it was announced today by Gen Douglas MacArthur, who awarded Gen. George the distinguished service medal posthumously.

Considerable excitement prevailed about Eastland for several minutes this afternoon when an alarm sounded that two boys had been drowned in Lake Eastland. It was only a short time, however, until the alarm was proven false.

Report That Two Boys Drown In Lake Prove False

A couple of boys roaming somewhere in the vicinity of the lake became lost and during the search for them someone got excited and turned in a report that they were drowned in the lake.

Firemen immediately upon receiving the call, hurried to the scene prepared to rescue the boys if they were alive or to recover the bodies if they had been drowned.

Jones—"If you took up music, what instrument would you prefer?"

James—"Well, I always thought that I'd like to be a soloist on the cash register."

The Turning Point

THE layman ventures diffidently to advise the expert. This is particularly true when the layman does not know all the contributing facts.

We do not make bold to tell the generals and the admirals how to win this war. We can say, however, that somewhat more than a hundred thirty million Americans will be wild with delight when sound strategy permits us to carry the war direct to Tokyo, Berlin and Rome.

The Armchair Strategists of America, unincorporated, are convinced that the axis must be beaten at home.
Counter-offensive activities, designed to hamper the Nazis and the Japs in their attacks, are necessary. We don't belittle their importance. But we do feel that they are mere stopgraps.

Germany and Japan have spread their tentacles over the world, seizing one outlying territory after another.
We can't restore peace by arduously recapturing the lost possessions is and by island.

WE amateurs are convinced that the way to win this war is to invade Germany and Japan.

To the extent that the bombing of Tokyo and other Japanese cities is a preliminary step in such an offensive, it may be said to mark a turning point in World War II.

We, the lay majority who urge this bold course, have no illusions that it will be easy. The cost in blood, sweat and tears will be beyond anything this sad world ever yet has suffered. But it can be done. Otherwise, what are we fighting for?

An offensive against either Germany or Japan presupposes the availability of millions of well-trained fighting men.

These millions must be provided with ample armament at least as good as the axis posses—tanks, planes, guns, munitions.

The men, the material, food, clothing, medical supplies, must be carried safely across thousands of miles of submarine-infested ocean, week after week, month after month. This will require a ship tonnage almost beyond comprehension.

We have the men and are training them. We are producing the material at an ever-increasing tempo. We are building ships probably faster than ocean carriers ever before were turned out.

Who remembers the old days when father got all the blame for the ashes on the carpet?

With the amateur actor too often it's all work and no play.

Loose conduct leads you into tight places.

Winning Name For Tankmen Picked It's 'Armoraiders'

Fort Knox, Ky.—There's a new name for those rough-and-ready fighting men who strike the enemy in tanks and other mechanized battle weapons.

In the future, the nation's armored forces will be known as ARMORAIERS. This became the official nickname for the steel-clad legions as the result of a contest for enlisted men, conducted by the Armored Force News, their official publication.

Men of the armored forces got tired of hearing themselves called "Panzer units" and "Blitz troops." Those, they pointed out, are enemy inventions and are not worthy of our powerful new tank army.

"Armoraiders" was suggested by Col. Franklin Love of Headquarters Company, 704th tank destroyer battalion, Pine Camp, N. Y. His nickname was considered the best of more than 150 submitted in the contest.

The armored forces are going to do everything possible to make the name popular, believing that it will add prestige to this branch of the service at home and abroad.

Enlisted at 13 in '17 Wants To Go Again

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill.—The second youngest man to serve in the first A. E. F. wants to go back into action as part of the second.

He is John Compton of East St. Louis, who enlisted in the first World War at the age of 13. Compton applied for reenlistment in the army and will go to Peoria for a physical examination and induction.

Compton, now 38 years old, was the youngest member of the American Legion to serve in the army. He served overseas for 14 1/2 months after enlisting at East Chicago, Ind.

"Sure, I had to lie about my age," he said. "But I was itching to put my finger on a trigger. The sergeant decided I was a little young to be toting a Springfield so they assigned me to driving one of those four-wheel-drive trucks."

THE PAYOFF

BY HARRY GRAYSON NEA Service Sports Editor

THE RHYMER, a field horse, winning the Widener Challenge Cup, reminds Andy Ferguson of Maternalis Pride. That's why he always says: "Run a horse. He's apt to fool you." John Gaver started The Rhymer in the Widener only because the scratching of War Relic left Eddie Arcano without a mount, and the trainer thought it would be nice for Mrs. Payne Whitney to have an entry in such an important race.

So The Rhymer coming down in front of the best handicap horses in this country takes Andy Ferguson back to Maternalis Pride.

"I'm with the Wilson boys at Woodbine in 1924," recalls Ferguson, old jockey and Caliente official. "They have a no good 3-year-old named Maternalis Pride. They're about to run the Kings Plate, the big Canada race for $5000.

"We happen to think this Maternalis Pride was foaled in Ontario. Although this no good horse couldn't beat me, we decided to run him in the Kings Plate as a joke. "When the horse left the paddock, the groom playfully gave him a strong kick in the pants, and said: 'Good luck to ya, ya bun.'"

"WELL, Maternalis Pride proceeded to win that Kings Plate, and he won it all the way. He paid $293 for $2. I kept a man from betting $20 on him. He sneaked off and bet $2, anyway. "A woman in a maternity ward bet $2 across the board on the hunch. Maternalis Pride paid almost as much to place as to win, so she won all her hospital expenses. "After the race we rushed around to get Hughie Wilson out of the barn. He wasn't even interested enough to watch the race.

"PRIME Minister and the Governor General awarded the fortunate owner. Track officials found a big pearl plug that for Hughie Wilson, that being a necessary part of the ceremonies, and the first thing we knew he was down there peering out from under the hat. Three sizes too big, leading Maternalis Pride in, and having his picture shot from all angles. I'll never forget it." "Yes, sir. That's why Andy Ferguson says: 'Run a horse. He's apt to fool you.'"

Texan Is Awarded Medal After Death

For extraordinary heroism over an above the call of duty which resulted in the supreme sacrifice, Staff Sergeant Doyle H. Kimmey was posthumously presented the Distinguished Service Cross thru his father, Wood H. Kimmey of Huntington, Texas Sunday at Ellington Field, the world's largest Multi-motor flying school.

"On behalf of the entire armed forces of the United States, who feel a deep pride in serving in an army made up of such men as your son," said Colonel Walter H. Reid, commanding Ellington Field, as he presented the nation's second highest award to Sergeant Kimmey's father.

Wood Kimmey then received a review by the entire Cadet personnel on behalf of his son.

Sergeant Kimmey, 27, was killed at Hickam Field, Hawaii, while voluntarily manning a machine gun and attempting to beat off attacking Japanese planes in the second raid of the war. He placed the machine gun under cover of a truck and was shooting at the straffing planes. After exhausting his supply of ammunition he left cover located more bullets, returned to the truck resulted in his instant death, but he had set an example for the entire army to follow.

Wood H. Kimmey, 53, a soft spoken, son tanned laborer for the County Highway commission, who has now given two of his sons to the war, accepted the medal with bowed head and said his only regret was that he was unable to go overseas himself.

A Powder Room Jury Hears Cases

PITTSBURG — "Female Justice" is being meted out in the courts here because of the war's drain on manpower.

Jury boxes are predominantly feminine, with most of them being filled by panels that are at least three-fourths women. All-women juries, once the nightmare of legal traditionalists, are becoming increasingly common in Allegheny County courts.

The men are being excused wholesale from jury duty because they are needed in the district's many defense plants.

"The courts are very ready to excuse men these days who hold national defense jobs", one judge explained.

Opinion in courthouse circles is that the women, in most cases are efficient and conscientious jurors, except that they are inclined to be "soft-hearted."

"Often women are reluctant to return a verdict carrying a heavy penalty," a spokesman from the district attorney's office said. "In murder cases, it's difficult to get them to send the defendant to the chair."

Although the women jurors are easy on defendants in criminal cases, they make it much tougher for the defendant in the civil suit as a rule, an attorney remarked.

He explained the women are inclined to award large damage verdicts, which cannot always be sustained in higher courts.

Conserving sugar in the interest of National Defense offers every American housewife the chance to do her bit. To help you plan your meals along sugar conservation lines we are suggesting some 'sugar-savers' that you may like to include in your daily menus. Of course we can not eliminate the food and quick energy value of sugar from our diet, however, these suggested substitutes are rich in natural sugar and should make it possible for everyone to use less sugar daily.

How to use less Sugar and like it

- FOR BREAKFAST
1. Add chopped raisins—dates—or prunes to dry cereals and you'll need less sugar.
  2. Serve a light blend of coffee—its mel-low flavor requires less sugar to please the average taste.
  3. Serve marmalade, jellies or jams with toast.
  4. Waffles and pancakes are delicious with honey, syrup or jellies.
  5. Fruit juices such as prune juice, grape juice, orange-and-grapefruit juice and orange juice contain natural sugars—serve them often.
  6. Hot biscuits and honey or syrup are delightful for breakfast.
  7. Try toasted English muffins with marmalade or jam.
- FOR DINNER
13. Serve more fruit salads—canned fruits and most fresh fruits are rich in natural sugar.
  16. Canned apple sauce goes nicely with pork, lamb, chicken or duck.
  17. Melt jelly or currant jelly adds to the taste of roast lamb or chicken.
  18. Canned fruit cocktail is excellent as an appetizer—in salads—or as dessert.
  19. Make more pie with canned cherries.
  20. Serve more sweet potatoes.
  21. Canned soups and even souffles are rich in vitamins.
  22. Try ice-box cakes—made with cakes or cookies from your baker's.
  23. A light, cooling blend of coffee can be enjoyed without sugar when served with or after dinner.
- FOR LUNCHE
8. Peanut butter and jelly sandwiches are easy to prepare.
  9. Try giving the children a malted milk for lunch.
  10. Hot date muffins are fine for lunches.
  11. Butterscotch puddings or gelatin des-serts with fresh or canned fruit added require no extra sugar.

THESE ARE THE MEN who sail the tankers and freighters of the United Nations . . . the men who face death unflinchingly to keep open the vital sea paths to victory. Here two of them leave famed Seaman's Church Institute on New York's East river waterfront.

Old records in the state capital contain many interesting bits of information. Tuberculosis sent David G. Burnett to Texas where he became president ad interim of the Republic in 1836. Edward Burleson, a San Jacinto hero and ancestor of the late U. S. Postmaster General Albert Sidney Burleson, was the first person buried in the State Cemetery to which the remains of many early Texans are being removed. Nestor Clay, a delegate to the 1833 convention of Texans at San Felipe was a cousin of Henry Clay. The first job of Gail Borden Jr., in Texas was compiling the official papers of the colonies. SERIAL STORY

FRANTIC WEEKEND

By Edmund Fancott

Copyright, 1942, NEA Service, Inc.

THE STORY: Retarding on a train to Montreal from a weekend vacation, Myra Mack, a plain, likable young stenographer, strikes up conversation with a Canadian lieutenant. Their introduction is mutual admiration of a pretty girl on the station platform.

CHAPTER II "I KNOW where I've seen you!" said the soldier suddenly, snapping his fingers as his memory obeyed him. "You're the girl Ferdy Lorton painted, against a background of Laurentian hills." Myra stared at him. "Don't tell me you know Ferdy?"

"I do. He's a great friend of mine." Myra nodded. "It doesn't surprise me. He's a great friend of most every man in Montreal."

"I'd better introduce myself, Nigel Monkhouse, lieutenant, Royal Canadian Artillery. I saw your picture first in the Spring Exhibition."

"Luckily most of my friends don't recognize me," said Myra. "I'd never lived it down. He had a crazy idea that there was some relation between all those bumps and hills in the Laurentians and my face."

"Maybe he was right at that." "Ferdy thinks the world of you." "In a purely platonic way, of course," said Myra. "Now if you really want to meet that rhapsody in blue, he is the man to help you. He not only knows every man in town, but sooner or later he seems to meet all the prettiest girls."

Lieutenant Nigel Monkhouse puffed at his cigaret. He nodded slowly. "It gets me. I don't know how he does it. With that sandy hair and that grin of his, I suppose. He's not tall, he's not dark, he's not even handsome, he looks at times as though he slept out all night on the tiles, and yet he always seems to have a pretty girl or two in love with him. There should be hope for me."

He said it half humorously but Myra took him up. "I doubt it," she said. "You're a nice enough boy, but you've got no nerve. The ones that speak to me like you did are always the ones that would run a mile before speaking to a girl like Blue Hat on the station."

Nigel Monkhouse blushed and grinned. "Well there's something so comfortable about you . . . no nonsense and all that sort of thing."

Myra shook her head without the flicker of a smile on her face. "No. That's not it. I know your type. You look at a pretty face and fall for it and it frightens you so much you rush right into the arms of a motherly sort to tell her all about it. But that's the way it goes. You pay for your weaknesses in this world. Here we are at Montreal West and you could have been sitting with the redhead all this while in an aura of ecstasy, instead of with a deadpan like mine. That is if you'd had enough nerve."

There the incident might have ended. The conversation made the rest of the journey to Montreal go very quickly. Myra said a quick farewell to Lieutenant Monkhouse on the station platform and made her way to St. James Street and the office.

THE offices of Consolidated Steel were even more busy than usual with war work and Myra

In the outer office Myra saw Miss Blue Hat at a desk and crossed to her. "I saw you on the platform at Lakeside this morning."

was soon plunged into the Monday thick of it. She was secretary to Mr. Macallum and the more his work grew the more busy she became. By eleven o'clock she had forgotten about the girl at the station and the shy young officer in the train. In fact she had forgotten all about the weekend by noon and it seemed as though she had never done anything but work.

But two interesting things intruded into the busy morning. Her young sister telephoned to say that her brother had arrived home suddenly from England. That was important news. He was Myra's favorite brother and had been overseas with the First Canadian Division since the first sailing; his return was unexpected. But apparently he had been commissioned in England and was one of a number of officers sent back for posting to the Third Division.

The other thing that happened was not so important. "Miss Mack?" Mr. Macallum's voice startled her from a steep stack of papers she was sorting. "I want you to slip over to Ransom's, the stockbroker. I want you to hand this to him personally. It is very important and I want it to get to him quickly."

He handed her a bulky envelope and in a few minutes she was out in St. James Street wondering how so many people managed to find time to walk about while she was spending all her days at a desk.

It was quiet in the stockbroker's office and she was told to go straight through to Mr. Ransom's office. As she reached the door it opened and she bumped right into the girl who was coming out. She gasped and the girl gasped, then the girl apologized but Myra only stared. Miss Blue Hat—the girl on the station platform.

MYRA went past her and delivered her envelope. Mr. Ransom asked her to wait outside for a return envelope which would be ready in a minute. In the outer office she saw the girl at a desk and crossed to her. "Sorry I banged into you so hard just now."

"What girl?" Oh John Macallum's secretary. He thinks the world of her. I could use a girl like that myself. "Won't I do?" "Temporarily, yes, my dear. Until we get some real work to do."

Records Show Many Queer Claims Made Upon State Though Soldiers Then Got Little Cash and Some Land

stin, Tex. — Today's $21-a-month privates of the army are more than the private soldiers of Texas army that established state's independence. They received eight dollars a month, but dollars at that time, however, probably would buy more than $21 do today. Like World War I soldiers, the men who established the Republic of Texas received a bonus. It was not a cash bonus, but a land bonus. For three months' service, the soldier was entitled to 320 acres; for six months' service, 640 acres; and if he had been in the army nine months he was issued title to 960 acres. Special donations of land were made to the survivors of the Battle of San Jacinto, the "reduction of Texas," and the Goliad massacre. There were land grants also to the widows and heirs of soldiers who were killed or disabled in the war. The Texas Republic was much more chary of money than land. Records of the Texas Congress show that William Brennan was "indemnified" $25 for the rifle he lost when he was imprisoned with Fannin's men. Apparently Brennan escaped the massacre. It is noted that he never applied for his 640 acres for taking part in the battle of San Jacinto, so soldiers as well as the government were more concerned with cash than land. Other grants by the Texas congress were interesting. Henry W. Augustine received an arrow wound in the leg while fighting the Cherokee Indians in 1836. The wound became so serious that his leg was amputated. By special act, the Texas Congress gave him a wooden leg. Ludovic Colquhoun was reimbursed by the Texas Congress at a total cost of $339.60. It was noted that this payment was for expenses incurred while imprisoned at Pezote by the Mexicans, and for a horse. The men who made up the Senate and House of the Texas Congress represented a wide range.

Moseley Baker had edited the Montgomery (Alabama) Advertiser, a paper still published, before he came to Texas. He is said to have made the first speech at the San Felipe convention urging the separation of Texas from Mexico. In the war that followed the declaration of independence he rose from private to Brigadier General. At various times in his life he was lawyer, editor, soldier, preacher and congressman. Baker also was participant in which is probably Texas closest political race for important office. He was defeated for Congressman in 1841 by a single vote. Jesse Billingsley went into the Texas Revolution from approximately where the United States now is beginning to train thousands of soldiers. Billingsley was one of the Mina volunteers. Mina was the name then given to what now is Bastrop county. Billingsley was in the Battle of San Jacinto where his hand was crippled. He was one of the interesting figures of the early Congress when the capital of the Republic was at Columbia. He attended the sessions wearing a buckskin suit taken from an Indian, and slept at night on the floor of the capiestablished the state's first newspaper, moving it from San Felipe, to Harrisburg, to Columbia and Houston as the fortunes of war and the change of government made necessary. Beside the condensed milk with which the Borden name is associated, he invented a meat biscuit, which did not prove so profitable.

Woman Flier Won't Forget Pearl Harbor

SAN FRANCISCO — For the thrill of a lifetime, blonde Cornelia Fort of Nashville, Tenn., advises being aloft in a civilian plane when an enemy air fleet makes a bombing raid. Miss Fort went through that experience in the Japanese attack on Honolulu Dec. 7. One of Hawaii's two women flying instructors, she was giving flying instructions to a student when she saw a plane approaching "in violation of all air traffic rules." "I waited for it to give way for me," she said. "When it didn't, I jerked the stick out of the student's hands and pulled the plane up. "Just then I spotted the insignia of a Japanese plane, a red rising sun on the fuselage. I could hardly believe my eyes. "Then I saw smoke over Pearl Harbor and I realized we were
