REGIONAL OPA MEETING TO BE IN EASTLAND

Friday, June 19, 8:30 P. M. Date. Experts From Dallas Office To Speak

Recent Government orders controlling for the war's duration on retail and wholesale prices to halt the swiftly mounting cost of living will be explained at a meeting in Eastland at 8 p. m., Friday, June 19th.

Especially invited to the meeting are retailers and others of the "handing trade-owners" of the area and small stores alike from the trade territory.

The meeting will be held in the county court room at the county house. The chairman for the meeting will be R. N. Wilcox, president of the Chamber of Commerce.

The meeting full opportunity will be available for business men to learn all about the general maximum price regulations from the Regional Office of Price Administration at the meeting. These officials will be present to speak on the various phases of the regulations. These officials will be present both from price and from the point of view of enforcement. After their explanations, they will answer questions sent up from the floor. The view of the fact that the regulations have joined the consumers in the national fight against mounting costs, Chamber of Commerce and the State Board for Vocational Education urge that all wholesalers and retailers in this area be present.

To be explained by the Price Administration specialist will be how the price regulations place an absolute ceiling over substantially all commodities and services sold at retail. The ceiling extends over prices charged by wholesalers, manufacturers and producers—the ceiling being the highest prices charged by each individual seller for each commodity or service during the month of March 1942.

The regulation has been termed as strictly a wartime measure that will apply for the duration of the war. The measure is being abandoned as soon as possible after peace comes. As will be explained at the meeting here, the general price control means a guarantee to the American people that the cost of living will remain stable, that the buying power of wages and salaries will not be impaired, and that scarce commodities will not go solely to those who have the most money, but that all the people, rich or poor alike, will have an equal chance to obtain their share at a fair price.

Dream Realized

Members of Cologne area by 1,600 British planes in a single night recalls the assertion of Air Marshal T. Harris that the war could be ended by autumn if he could send 1000 bombers a night over Germany.

BOMBERS—A THOUSAND OF THEM—OVER COLOGNE

This gives you an idea of the British bombing force that obliterated a good share of Cologne. An even 1000 bombers are sketched in the box. The British had 500 more raiding nearby in the Ruhr and Rhineland the same night. Picture was made during an earlier daylight raid on Cologne.

AUTHORITIES EXPECT MORE JAP ATTACKS

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 4—Authorities warned today that Japanese likely will strike further blows at the North Pacific, following the Dutch Harbor raid yesterday.

The Navy Department announced in its communique that the "situation at Dutch Harbor is quiet." It said that the bombers and about 15 fighter planes, which dumped high explosives and incendiary bombs in the initial skirmish, but that damage and casualties were light.

The Japanese attacks "appears to have been made primarily to test our defense," the communique said.

In line with that idea, Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson told the press conference "I warn you this is not the only, or the last raid we may expect."

The Navy communique also disclosed that the second flight of Japanese planes over Dutch Harbor "failed to drop any bombs, and appears to have been engaged solely in reconnaissance."

Scout Meeting Is Held On Wednesday

Troop 12, Ranger Boy Scouts, had a meeting Wednesday night at the Recreation Building, with a number of visitors present.

The meeting was opened with a bugle call, assembly, and the Scout oath and laws.

A model meeting was held on the stage, with judging of scout craft being featured. The project winner was an Indian fire drill set. A first aid drill was conducted, as well as a drill in erecting a signal tower.

The meeting was closed with the Scoutmaster's prayer.

A. A. King, state game warden from Breckenridge, was scheduled to show moving pictures on wildlife, but opening of the fishing season at Possum Kingdom Lake prevented him from being present. It is expected that he will show the movies for the scouts at some date in the near future.

ARMY GOAL IS BALANCED AND TASTY RATION

By HARRY M. HESS, Jr., United Press Staff Correspondent

CHICAGO, June 4—To function efficiently, soldiers must receive the proper foods. To maintain morale, they must enjoy their meals.

In achieving these goals, efficiency and morale, the U. S. Army Quartermaster Corps Subsistence Depot is constantly on the alert to see that the army menus contain the correct amounts of essential food elements—carbohydrates, proteins, fats, minerals and bulk—and that these are served in a variety of tasty foods.

This is sometimes difficult since menus must be prepared to meet different physical conditions. The food served to men in a stationary base might not be practical for men on the move.

The Quartermaster Corps has developed three distinct types of rations to meet conditions in garrison, in the field and in emergencies.

The garrison ration is used mostly in peacetime. It is based on the normal amount of food required by a soldier as calculated by the Quartermaster Corps, and its components for the most part, are purchased near the site of the garrison.

In the present emergency, the Army Field Ration generally has replaced the garrison ration, exceptions being certain small troop installations.

Field rations fall into two categories—these used when the camp is semi-permanent and those used when soldiers are moving too fast for the field kitchen to keep pace with them. The first type contains fresh meat and bread while the second class contains canned meat and hard bread.

The "fresh" ration is planned from 30 to 90 days in advance and contains in proper ratio, meats, eggs, cheese, cereal, bread, sugar, fruits and vegetables. In some cases it is impossible to obtain fresh foods and canned or dehydrated foods are substituted.

These menus are drawn up by food experts and are sent to the nine army corps areas. They are not identical since some allowance is made for geographic, climatic and agricultural conditions in the different areas.

The "canned" ration is subdivided into two kinds—Field ration "C" and Field ration "K". "C" is made up of previously cooked or prepared food packed in sealed cans, to be eaten hot or cold as conditions allow. It comes in six, 12-ounce cans—three meat units and three "B" units. "M" contains meat and beans, "M2" meat and vegetable hash, and "M3" meat and vegetable studded section.

ALL WEST COAST FROM ALASKA TO PANAMA IS PLACED UPON AN ALERT

SCRAP METAL RUBBER IS TO BE COLLECTED

The Eastland County Salvage Committee composed of leading farm and ranch men have been notified by County Judge W. S. Adamson of the drive to collect scrap metal and rubber in Eastland County. The collection, plus as outlined will operate as follows:

You can either donate or sell your scrap to the government. If you sell, the government will pay you for it at prices indicated below. When your scrap is picked up it will be marked for identification of you are selling it. At the government concentration point it will be weighed and you will be mailed Defense Stamps (or a check if you prefer) equal to the value of your collection. If you wish you may be present when your material is weighed.

The government then will sell the scrap on bid to dealers who must prepare and then ship it to war factories and mills within 90 days. Dealer prices will be according to government price ceilings. If you donate your scrap, the money from its sale all goes to your government and will aid in the war; if you sell it, the sales value goes back to you in Defense Stamps or government checks, whichever you prefer.

Here is what you should do to cooperate with the program:

1. Go over your farm, your buildings and house looking for all possible scrap.
2. Fill in the card which your leader will distribute or which you may secure at the county agent's office. The cards are to be returned to either the leaders or the county agent's office, showing the amount of scrap material you have and whether you wish to sell or give it to the government.
3. Remove from the scrap pieces and usable parts you may need.

Shortly you will receive a notice from the government indicating the exact date that a truck will call for scrap. When the truck calls all movable scrap should be at the front gate.

Prices offered by the government for material are:

- Scrap iron and steel 25 cents per cwt.
- Scrap rubber 1/2 cent per pound.

Whether you dispose of your scrap through the government, to the dealer, or by other arrangements does not matter. The important thing is to start your collection now.

TRADE PLAN IN LATIN AMERICA IS PEACE NEED

By LAWRENCE S. HAAS, United Press Latin American Editor

American businessmen with long years of experience in Latin America are expressing a growing interest in post-war trade relations between the United States and the "good neighbor countries" to the south.

Many important United States government agencies, such as the agriculture and commerce departments, the Export-Import Bank of Washington and the Office of the Coordinator of Inter-American Affairs headed by Nelson A. Rockefeller, have sent representatives and missions on tours and visits to the South and Central America in the interest of trade and industrial relations.

However, the activities of these representatives have been tied up with immediate problems for the most part. Among them are loans and credits to the neighboring countries to aid in development of strategic raw materials which are needed in the United States war effort; assistance in maintaining the exchange value of the national currencies of those countries; aid in financing public works, such as highways, railways, port facilities, power projects and sanitation installations. These public works serve to combat unemployment caused by industrial slumps as a result of loss of European markets.

A retired American business man who spent nearly three decades in South American countries, said this week, however, that the United States would do well to plan a long-range program for the purpose of preserving its trade position with the Latin American countries when peace comes.

This business man recalled the situation that existed after the end of World War I.

"Great Britain, Germany and other countries immediately needed Latin American products," he said. "For example, they provided a big market for Argentine beef and cereals, hides and wool. They made tremendous purchases, and the only way they could pay for them was with their own manufactured products—machinery, textiles, office appliances, chemicals, electrical goods, etc."

Air Transport

Inspired by the enormously effective part which the airplane has played in this war, we are getting a bit over-enthusiastic about post-war probabilities.

Already, in a casual war, we are talking about a time not far distant when family planes will be as common as family flippers are today.

We take for granted the prophecies that after the war
huge aircraft will largely supplant trains on land and ships at sea in the business of transporting both passengers and freight.

Though probably we don't really argue that far, we envision hazily the day, soon after we have pounded the axis out of existence, when we shall fly to the unmoored funerals of the automobile and the railroad and the steamship.

Such a dream could come true, of course. In speed, in carrying capacity, in ease of control and in fundamental safety, the airplane has made unbelievable strides.

Without doubt, after this war airline's passenger, express and freight businesses will be multiplied many fold.

We shall have thousands of huge planes, built as bombers and transports and war freighters, plus the capacity to turn out more thousands every year.

The railroads and steamship lines will face intense competition. Efficient plants which have been making fighters and trainers, undoubtedly do their best to make us family planes in place of automobiles.

But that is only one side of the picture. The men who design and manufacture planes tell us, truly, such developments are mechanically feasible. The men who will have to find the income to pay the expenses want to know about some other phases.

Huge bombers are built to give superspeed, to fly at extreme altitudes, regardless of the cost of construction or operation. Governments at war can't worry unduly about economy. But experts say these big planes will need a whale of a lot of revamping before anybody can use them to haul payloads in a self-supporting business venture.
Moreover, there is a question how much freight and how many passengers are in sufficient hurry to pay the premiums to finance air transport.

As for family planes, did you ever stop to think how much more extensive terminal facilities, involving how much greater tax cost, are required for a plane than for an automobile? Do you know how your community could finance such costly improvements, at the same time maintaining streets and highways — for, of course, the plane owner must have a car to travel from home to airport.

None of these problems is insoluble. Some aren't even relatively difficult. The point is that such problems, and dozens more, exist and at best will require time for their solution.

Army Goal-

few. With each of these comes the
"B unit". Its contents are hard biscuits, candy, sugar and soluble
coffee.

Ration "K" is a distinct achievement to the Chicago Subsistence Depot and is probably the most widely publicized of the army rations. It was developed by Col.
Robland Iker of the Depot, and
Dr. Ansel Keyes, University of Minnesota physiologist.

It was first developed for parachute troops but many of its features met with army approval and it was finally accepted for use by all the armed forces.

"K" comes in three compact six-
by-four-by-two inch boxes, one for each meal. It weighs only 32.50 ounces, yet contains 3,726 calories and supplies the soldier with all necessary food elements. The cartons are treated to withstand temperatures from 20 degrees below zero to 145 degrees Fahrenheit.

Each unit is made up of biscuits,
some kind of meat or protein food, sweets, beverage and a stick of chewing gum, the latter to aid digestion and depress thirst. The contents are tasty, wholesome, and within limits, varied.

A third type of ration is the emergency ration "D", designed for use in times of extreme stress hurry.

"D" is a special type of concentrated chocolate bar, ingredients
of which are chocolate, sugar, skim milk powder, cocoa fat, oat flour
to make it withstand high temperatures — vanillin and vitamin B-1. The complete ration is made up of three 4-ounce bars, each containing 690 calories.

The Subsistence Depot is always on the lookout for ways of improving the rations. Soldiers are asked to engage in frequent comment
and changes are made accordingly.

For example, it was found that the men were indifferent to citrus fruit flavored dextrose tablets in one unit of "K" ration. Thereupon the Depot began experiments with the "Guinea Pig Club" and turned up with a tasty fig and apricot bar
to replace the unpopular dextrose tablets.

lina is the only one in the United

Teach Women To Handle TVA Jobs

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (UP) —
The Tennessee Valley Authority
has begun expansion of its apprenticeship program, in training women for duties other than clerical work and in developing potential abilities of all present employees to meet the increasing manpower shortage.

The movement is in addition to the TVA's regular recruiting program, which in itself has been intensified.

Journeyman who do not meet the authority's standards for versatility in all phases of the trade,
are being put to work at the journeyman level and are given opportunities to expand their versatility
in the craft.

Through a means of training, increased employment of women not only for clerical work, but also for other positions, is being made possible. Twenty girls have been enrolled in an apprentice course in engineering draftsmanship. Also, application files are being prepared for the recruiting of women
as accountants.

Still another step the Authority
has taken is raising the upper age limit for the TVA safety service from 36 to 50. Officers are now being recruited under this policy.

About 1,400 employees of the authority have been inducted into the army. Of the 34,000 now in the TVA's employ 25,000 are engaged in construction, electric power production and chemical manufacture.
Deferments from selective service have been asked for less than 750 employees since the draft began.

The Payoff

BY HARRY GRAYSON
NEA Service Sports Editor

NEW YORK—St. Louis Cardinals are awaiting a Brooklyn crack-up, which they are positive will come.
"Too many old blokes and cast-offs," they point out. "Wait until they stagger into hot weather."

If the Red Birds are true prognosticators, the noise in Flatbush will be ear-splitting. The Dodgers' cyclonic early foot has carried the incredible Ebbets Field fans to a dizzy height.
The Cardinals believed they had the Bums on the run when the Cooper brothers combined to give Morton his 1-0 key game victory in the St. Louis club's one appearance on Bedford Avenue on its eastern swing.

The Cardinals wanted to go through with the second game, which was called off at 1 p. m., though it had cleared up by 2.
"They wanted no part of us with Pete Reiser out of the lineup," chortled the blokes in the red blazers.
Reiser went out with a strained side, the same sort of injury he suffered in the spring of 1940. It was the result of taking healthy swings.

CARDINALS hate to think of what would have happened to other National League clubs had not Commissioner Landis declared Reiser a free agent several springs ago.

Reiser was with a St. Louis farm outfit at the time. The Cardinal organization brought out Larry MacPhail, so a Red Bird scout tipped him to Reiser. Loud Speaker MacPhail picked up the National League batting champion for $100.

Center Fielder Reiser, a St. Louis boy, is one of the mighty few natural ball players to come up in more recent years.
The Cardinals are positive they have only the one club to beat,
and believe they are on the right track after a somewhat disappointing start.

The only thing they can't figure is the schedule, which, as they returned west, called for them to visit Chicago twice within a

$17,276.37 Is Legal Amount Any Candidate For Senate May Spend

AUSTIN, Tex. (UP) — Each of the candidates for U. S. Senator in Texas may spend $17,276.37 legally to achieve his ambition. The expenditure is limited to that amount by the federal statute on corrupt practices.

It is usual to quote $10,000 as the maximum expenditure permitted
in a campaign in Texas for U.
S. Senator and that is the amount set as the limit by the Texas legislature.

The statute fixing that limit,
however, has been held by the Fourth Court of Civil Appeals, San Antonio, to have no application to a candidate for an office whose qualifications are set by the Constitution. The qualifications of a senator are named in the Constitution of the United States and the U. S. Senate is authorized to pass on eligibility of its members.

The Texas race for United States Senator is receiving consideration in other parts of the country.

The Philadelphia Bulletin in a story from its staff correspondent
at Washington devotes nearly a column to the race and illustrates the story with pictures of Senator O'Daniel and James V. Allred.
"From the Washington angle,"
writes the correspondent, "Wilbert
Lee O'Daniel comes perilously close to being a dud. He promised a lot but his performance has been little."

"He seems to be just another politician who talked himself into the United States Senate."

"He is no more a second Huey Long than Bilbo of Mississippi and Holt of West Virginia, who also reached congress by contracting to reform the Senate and let the President know where to get off."

The correspondent concedes that Texas may have a different impression. He writes

"But the Ohio-born flour salesman who swung and awayed himself into the governor's chair at Austin and capped that performance by succeeding the late Morris Sheppard, may appear very differently in Texas."

"Here, impeccably dressed according to the tailors' charts, he has sung low and with caution,
leaving upon the record little trace of the two-fisted 'Tappy, pass the biscuits' guy whose campaigns intrigue the nation."

4-H Club Boys Use Best Approved Methods For Peanuts

In keeping with the Food For Victory Program 4-H Club boys in Eastland County are using the best cultural methods in the production of their crops for 1942.

Twenty boys have reported to Joe M. Glover, Jr., Assistant County Agent, that they will inoculate the peanut seed before it is to be planted on their Demonstration plot. When the inoculant is applied properly and the seed handled carefully after it is sown can be expected. Increases of as much as 12 bushels per acre under accurate thresher test have been reported in previous years on soils in Eastland County. Commercial fertilizer high in phosphoric acid must be used along with the inoculant of course. If high increases are to be expected in nut production, inoculation furnishes the plant with the plant element nitrogen which is only one of the three plant food elements contained in a complete commercial fertilizer, however it is the highest price plant food element in the fertilizer.

Eastland County 4-H Club boys who will use it are: Billy Reese, Monte Ray Walker, Royce McGaha, and Wm. Eaken, of the Carbon Club; John White, Rising Star; Jimmie P. Lawson and Jasper Williamson, Ranger; Eugene Townsend, Colony; Billie Tom Hatton, Bullock; Dorman Graves, Pioneer; Buddy Rogers, Alamea; Alonzo Prickett and Mac Harrison, Romney; Max Wilson, Lone Cedar; J. A. Loftis, Olden; Billy Pounds, Morton Valley; James Adams and Jack Royce Hill, Oakra; Robert Buckley, Deadmona; Billy Johnson, Eastland.

Trade Plan—

South American exporting countries were virtually forced to buy from the countries to which they sold. Those European countries, with production costs lower than those prevailing in the United States soon gained a preferential position in trade competition.

"The principal products of most of the Latin American countries today are those which compete with United States products.

"However, the United States could organize a number of industrial and trade commissions, composed of experienced technicians, to be assigned to various Latin

NAVY TO GET 100 More Ships In Year

By United Press
WASHINGTON, D. C., June 2 — Chairman Carl Vinson, Democrat, Georgia, of the House Naval Affairs committee, announced today that approximately 100 combat ships would be commissioned during the remainder of this calendar year.

American countries. "They could make a detailed study in each country of the non-competitive products which the United States could buy, and which hitherto have been imported from other world areas by this country. This study could embody plans for organizing industries of produce and develop those products.

"Production enterprises could be financed by the Export-Import Bank but with a workable system whereby the borrowing country would systematically amortize the bank credits.

"In the end these Latin American countries would have established new and important industries, owned by themselves with no foreign control whatever, and with an assured market for them in the United States, the world's richest buying market.

SERIAL STORY CARIBBEAN CRISIS

BY EATON K. GOLDTHWAITE

COPYRIGHT 1942, NEA SERVICE, INC.

"THE STORY—Bill Talcott is accused of a serious shortage in his accounts by an auditor who has accompanied his successor, Halsey, who is taking over management of an American chemical plant on a Dutch island in the Caribbean.

MISUNDERSTOOD HERO
CHAPTER V
LEONARD HALSEY was not a small man. He had the rangy height of the squash and badminton courts; he was big-boned, long-muscled and trim. But before the native his stature was dwarfed. He was no coward; he stood his ground doggedly. But June Paterson saw with rising fear that the native was not looking at Halsey.

he had called Tomas. It's all a dream; it isn't real, she told herself. I shall awake soon to bright sunshine and flowers, the cloudless blue sky and the lazy, sparkling sea. I don't see this man. There couldn't be such a man. It's preposterous, impossible.

The shaky reassurance drained from her. It was no dream. The damp sea wind was at her back and the island's stench was nauseatingly in her face. Her first reaction began to pass and with throbbing pulse life flowed back into her limbs. One thought was uppermost; she must not act afraid. If she fled now she would precipitate a crisis. Her movement would dispel the slender margin held by Halsey and the reckless little Sebastian. Aroused, these natives could overpower them as easily as children. And if she ran, where would she run to? Abas was a tiny, sea-bound prison.

"All right, Tomas. Now that you've seen her, you may say hello."
Bill Talcott's calm voice was startling in its nearness. It came from her elbow although she hadn't heard his approach, hadn't seen his looming figure in the darkness. Suddenly the reaction of her fear washed her like battering surf, left her spent, wanting more than anything else in the world to cry. With the sound of that reassuring voice the madness of her dream faded.

"You've seen her," Talcott repeated in a quiet, normal tone. "Don't get much chance to see many ladies, do we?"

All other figures on the beach misted to insignificance. Halsey and the bulbous Sebastian, even she herself became unimportant. There remained only two, strangely, like kings of the world of day and night, Bill Talcott and the huge native whose name was Tomas.

Quite casually Talcott said, "Miss Paterson, this is Tomas, one of my best workers. I'm sure he'll appreciate it if you'd shake hands with him."
Startled, she glanced from fear-dimmed eyes. Tomas' sullen arrogance was gone; with bewildering swiftness he had become a diffident, shy and rather frightened child. Awkward as a calf he stood, his great head inclined in embarrassment.

Somehow she found strength. She reached forward, held out her hand and said, "How do you do, Tomas?"

Instantly his fingers touched hers. His muffled voice gave a repetition of her name. And then he turned and ran away. The other shaggy figures melted hastily into the rocks.

It was all so simple! Suddenly she was assailed by violent anger. There had been no danger. Bill Talcott had arranged all this. He had framed it so as to play the hero, to impress Halsey. A cheap trick arranged with his fat little foreman the moment she had slumped out of the house.

"YOU put on quite a show for visitors, don't you?" she said icily as they were returning along the beach.
Bill Talcott made no response, but the bulbous little Sebastian turned square around. "Ed? What you say?" he gasped.

"I said it was an interesting show. Thank you so much."
"A show? Halsey mean?"

Halsey wasn't so sure. "I'll give you credit," he said in grudging admiration. "You handled those chaps beautifully. If it was something you cooked up, it was very convincing."

"Cooked up?" Sebastian gasped again. His excited eyes sought Bill Talcott as if expecting a flood of protest. But the big boss made no defense. Slowly, as if tired, he plodded along the path with hard fathomless eyes held straight ahead.

The stoniness of the terrace wore echoing to their feet when June Paterson suddenly felt very small and very mean. She had done Bill Talcott a grave injustice; had falsely accused him after he had saved her. And he a man who had been her friend, a man already more best in trouble of his own. Quick hot tears welled to her eyes and she moved dimly forward, putting a hand on his arm.

"I'm terribly sorry," she whispered. "It was a filthy rotten of me. Please forgive me."
His head turned slowly. In his eyes there was no forgiveness, not even recognition. His eyes were dark, hard and fathomless as stone. His face and entire body seemed without the power of expression; he moved as if impelled against his will by an inward mechanical device.

Her tears would not stay down. In wild release they came, coursing unashamedly down her cheeks. And through them she saw the right awaiting them in the doorway. MacDowell stood there, supporting himself against the jamb. An angry red welt gloved on his chin and a trickle of blood crept from the cover of his mustache. In his hand a smug-faced pistol held unwavering, pointing toward Bill Talcott.

BREEDERS CLAIM THERE IS GOLD IN RABBIT FUR

MALTA, Mont. (UP) — The Angora rabbit is one animal that has at last realized the oft-quoted expression of being "worth its weight in gold," according to local breeders.

The war-time demand for angora wool to line mittens, helmets and socks for high-altitude flyers and other war time needs has sent the price of the rabbit wool skyrocketing to $5.35 a pound for No. 1 grade.

A female angora rabbit, the breeders said, will produce about $5 worth of wool and will have an average of 21 youngsters a year who will do likewise.

George Miller, one of the local breeders said that his angora rabbits make him a net annual profit of $46.35 each after paying all costs of feeding and raising and that his profits on a small investment soared to 1,500 per cent in a year. The adult angora rabbits are sheared five times a year and yield an average of 14 ounces of wool.

A Store Warden Designs A Wagon For A Bomb Raid

MILWAUKEE (UP)—A Milwaukee department store air raid warden has equipped the building with 15 portable air raid wagons of his own design.

Arnold Kuntz, the warden, designed a wooden wagon, weighing 500 pounds and small enough to fit into the passenger elevators, and fitted for emergency equipment. A wide shelf at top holds two pails of water and two of sand. At the sides hang two long-handled shovels, two five extinguishers, a crowbar and heavy gloves. Candles, a Red Cross first aid kit and two axes are included. Inside the wagon are 300 feet of hose, nozzle and spray and sheets of canvas.

The wagon is mounted on wheels but has handles so that it may be carried if necessary.

Nectie Objectors Seeking Relief

WALLA WALLA, Wash. (UP) — After all these years somebody finally is going to do something about those choking necties men wear.

A society of Walla Walla men has wired President Roosevelt asking him, in the name of conserving cloth, to "liberate males" from the wearing of ties this summer. They signed the wire SETSOCOM, which spelled out means Society Eliminating the Stranglehold of Conventional on Mankind.
