PLANS FOR BATHING REVUE HERE ON FRIDAY, JULY 3RD ARE NOW BEING COMPLETED

With nearly a score of entries already assured, and money pledged for supporting a July 3rd bathing revue at the Municipal Swimming Pool on the night of Friday, July 3, plans for the annual event are going forward, with more interest being shown than was anticipated by the sponsors.

Last week Boy Scouts made a canvass of merchants of the town, to get their opinions on whether or not to hold the annual revue, and many answered the questionaire by stating that they believed it should be held.

Meetings have been held, at which plans were discussed, and it is believed that this will likely be the best revue ever held in Ranger, as no long program will be held, and a snappy revue is in prospect.

Although part of the money has been pledged the plans call for reserved seats around the pool, which will help to defray the expenses.

A movement to limit the amount of money each merchant would be allowed to spend in entering a girl was tabled when several who wanted to sponsor entries argued against the movement, and it was decided to let each merchant decide upon his expenditures.

Tentative plans, which are to be completed soon, call for but one division in the revue, instead of having a longer, more drawn-out affair, with divisions for children, juniors and seniors.

With the new lighting equipment purchased by the City of Ranger, Chamber of Commerce and Retail Merchants Association since the last revue was held, trouble with the public address system is not anticipated, and difficulties in announcing the entries and the winners are not anticipated.

No program has as yet been worked up, but the consensus of opinion at a well-attended meeting of merchants, held last week, was that it would be shorter with less speaking and fewer introductions of visitors, so that the revue proper can be started on time.

Since the pool is not opening for the first time there will be necessity for dedication cere-

FAMILY MEN ARE EXEMPT FROM DRAFT

By United Press
WASHINGTON, D. C., June 24—President Roosevelt today signed a precedent-making bill, authorizing deferment of family men until the reservoir of single men is exhausted by the draft.

The bill, as signed by the president, also provided for financial aid for dependents of men in the lower pay brackets of all the armed forces of the United States.

The allowances to dependents vary with the degree of family relationship, providing $50 a month for a wife with no children, $62 for a wife and one child and $72 for a wife and two children.

Of this amount $22 comes out of the serviceman's pay check each month, and the remainder is contributed by the United States Government.

Approximately 800 new wells will be allowed.

Order M-68-2 provides that in Missouri, and in certain areas of Kansas and Oklahoma, the size of the unit required before drilling, completing, or providing additions to any well can be carried out, will be sharply reduced from the original minimum of 640 acres. Necessary material for such work may be obtained if the unit is 40 acres or more.

That part of Kansas covered by the order consists of the land lying east of range 2 east of the sixth principal meridian. The following Oklahoma counties are included: Osage, Washington, Nowata, Craig, Ottawa, Pawnee, Tulsa, Rogers, Mayes, Delaware, Creek, Okmulgee, Wagoner, Cherokee, Adair, Muskogee and Sequoyah.

The order states in detail the spacing provisions to be followed in drilling gas wells. They can be in any discovered or undiscovered natural gas field, except a condensate field, but the drilling has to be located on land none of which is attributable to any well other than the proposed well.

In addition, all property interests in the 40-acre tract must be consolidated. Terms of such consolidation are the same as those provided in Amendment 3 to Conservation Order M-68. Further requirements concern the minimum distances the well must be from property lines or other wells. Finally, material necessary for drilling, completing, or providing additions to the well must be on hand or available without the use of priority assistance. The wells themselves will in nearly all cases be shallow and will average about 8 1/2 tons of steel each.

Industry Exchanges Secrets And Resources To Speed Arms Output

NEW YORK, N. Y. — American business is removing the locks from trade secrets, pooling its production know-how, and merging its resources to speed the production of armaments, a recent survey of leading industrialists reveals.

From a most products company recently came the offer of machine tools and shop space to "our government or to responsible parties holding war contracts."

The vice-president of the company made the following statement: "We believe the tools of a lasting peace will be cut in the machine shops of America—and that this is no time for machine shops to be idle. We are offering our machines and the facilities of our shops to our government or to responsible parties holding war contracts. We ask only maintenance costs in return—no profits."

Before the war, 1,550 companies produced cars and trucks, automobile bodies and parts, tools and dies. Since Pearl Harbor they have banded together into one gigantic arms production plant—the largest ever put together. They are trading their men, machines and know-how on a wide-open basis to get the most out of their war plants.

They now have an agreement to make tools for one another, and to release machines, which they cannot use for their own war work, to anyone else who has need for such machines for their war work.

When the tank program was expanded several months ago, the engineers of one company opened up their factory to production men from other companies. Result is that those companies were saved months of work in getting their plants into operation.

In the interest of increased production, companies have gone far beyond customary patent procedure in attempting to put their most advanced techniques to best service.

One example, cited from official records, is the best of a company other plant.

Three States To Drill Gas Wells To Cut Shortage

DALLAS — Threatened curtailment of war production and essential civilian activities in Missouri, Kansas and Oklahoma because of insufficient natural gas has been averted through modification of existing conservation laws, announced today by the WPB Director of Industry Operations, the Dallas WPB region office has been advised.

Approximately 800 new wells will be allowed.

Summer Fight On Six Fronts

Summer finds the war in Europe and Africa expanding its scope of action, sweeping into the six arenas of conflict shown on map. Massed British bombers are raiding the Rhine-Ruhr and other industrial areas of western Germany. In the Balkans, activity is both in the air—with U. S. bombers raiding Rumania—and "underground." On the four other fronts, active axis-allied fighting goes on. Distances are from the centers of action in each circle. Size of rings does not indicate intensity of conflict.

Unusual Ruling Of Court Cited

AUSTIN (UP) — An unusual procedure was noted this week with announcement from El Paso that a district judge there has agreed to postpone setting an execution date for Fidel Contreras until after Contreras' attorney has applied to the State Board of Pardons and Pardon for a commutation of the death verdict in the case.

Usual procedure is to request commutation after the condemned man has been sentenced, though apparently there is nothing in the statutes to forbid the new procedure.

Court attendants have believe that if commutation is recommended by the pardon board the trial judge will still have to sentence an only carry out the judgment in the case as fixed by the jury verdict—which was death. That procedure, they say, would not prevent any commutation ordered by the governor from taking effect. The governor can commute the sentence, however, only if the board of pardon recommends it.

Contreras was convicted of the desert slaying of Enrique Valles. An appeal was made in the court of criminal appeals from his conviction in El Paso county and the case is affirmed.

Ranger Youth Is Held For Theft

Glen Whitney, 18 of Ranger was charged with theft in a complaint filed in Justice of the Peace E. E. Woods, court at Eastland. Whitney is alleged to have taken money collected at a Ranger church.

Following the arrest by Ranger officers the accused youth, it is stated, laid the officers where a good portion of the missing funds were and they were recovered.

Chief of Police Lee Ames of Ranger reported that $17 of the money, in change had been recovered, and the youth stated he had burned the envelopes and checks.

He had purchased a 1934 Plymouth sedan at Fort Worth for $55, and bought some clothes and had been to picture shows. The rest of the money was recovered.

Chief Ames said that he and members of his department had traced the youth to Frankell, where he formerly lived, from there to Breckenridge and Cleco. He was caught about three and a half miles east of Cleco.

Leading Ladies To Be Developed For The W.A.A.C.

WASHINGTON — The first Officer Candidate School of the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps, which will start at Fort Des Moines, Iowa, July 15, is going to develop "leading ladies," but no prima donnas.

Colonel Don C. Faith, Commandant of the school, emphasizes that "leadership, first, last and always," will be the principal objective of the curriculum which he has planned for the 450 women who will attend this first school. Far from learning how to "live alone and like it," these women, prospective officers in the W. A. A. C., will be taught how to live in a crowd, and how to lead a crowd.

"The most important quality to be developed in this training," Colonel Faith declared, "is the quality of leadership. Leadership means self-confidence but not arrogance; it means the ability to understand as well as to command. It is an essential quality in a successful officer."

In addition to developing this quality of leadership in the potential officers, Colonel Faith has also planned a course of study which will teach the women how to "get along in a military atmosphere."

"This means," he points out, "how to change from a civilian life to a military schedule with ease. It means to merge individualism into community life."

The course of study, as outlined by Colonel Faith will include military courtesies and ceremonies, military discipline and drill. Student officers also will be thoroughly grounded in military sanitation and hygiene, first aid, air craft identification, gas mask drill, mess management, and mass life requisites. The students will be on a military schedule from 6 a. m. to 11 p. m. six days of the week. Sunday will be rest day and the women will be allowed to leave the post, but they must remain in Des Moines unless special leave is obtained.

At the end of the training period students will be commissioned in rank according to their record. Those who do not qualify for commissions will remain in the W. A. A. C. as non-commissioned officers and auxiliaries. Following the commissioning, a 120 weeks' course in specialized duties will be given. As requirements of the W. A. A. C. expand, additional officers will be promoted from the ranks.

There is a permanent chapel at the Fort and one cast-iron type chapel. Two chaplains, one Protestant, and the other Catholic, will be assigned. Arrangements are being made for adequate recreational facilities. It is estimated that by June of 1943 the W. A. A. C. will number approximately 17,000. The W. A. A. C. is headed by Director Oveta Culp Hobby, whose headquarters are in Washington, D. C.

Major Offensives near Kharkov and at Egyptian Border May Be Getting Underway in Attempt to Form A Pincers on Vital Supply Routes and Resources.

Out For Lunch

Lt. Col. Frank Murphy, who exchanged his Supreme Court justice's robes for an army uniform, leaves a Fort Benning, Ga., classroom for lunch.

Axis twin offensives against the Russian Ukraine and Egypt edged forward today toward the war riches of the Near East.

The two drives—aimed against the Caucasus Oil fields and the Suez Canal—still were in their preliminary stages, but were pointed for control of the key Allied communications routes and resources in the Near East and possibly a junction eventually with the Japanese.

Dispatches from Moscow told of powerful German attacks that forced the Russians to give some ground on the Kharkov front, and indicated that Hitler again was attempting to get his major summer offensive underway in the Ukraine.

Desperate fighting still is in progress at the Crimean naval base of Sevastopol.

Dispatches from the Egyptian border told only of preliminary engagements on Libyan soil at the northern, or coastal end, of the British defense front.

The main engagements may already have started on the Sidi Omar front, London military commentators said.

On other fronts developments showed:

England—Prime Minister Winston Churchill faced a bitter debate on the Libyan front, to be followed by a vote on a motion of censure against the conduct of the war, designed primarily to force the prime minister to give up the post of defense minister.

China—Chungking reports stated that the Chinese, in a counter attack had captured the important city of Kweli on the Chekiang-Kiang railway, as the Japanese driven there appears to have been stalled.

Australia—Allied airplanes have fought off Japanese planes on a scouting operation north of Australia.

Saving Fats Is A Wartime Must In The Kitchen

COLLEGE STATION, June 23 —Conserving kitchen fats and oils is a wartime "must" for every housewife, says Hazel Phipps, specialist in food preparation of the A. & M. College Extension Service. "Don't waste fats and spoil foods cooked in fats with too much heat."

When fat starts to smoke it starts to break down chemically. Food cooked in smoking fat will be harder to digest and may be irritating to the digestive tract. Once fat reaches the smoking stage it gets rancid more quickly if saved for future use. Many fats may be saved and reused. For example, fat used for deep frying may be saved and used several times afterward if it is strained each time before being put away. For this purpose several thicknesses of cheesecloth or other clean white cloth are suitable.

Miss Phipps advises using fats while fresh. But she cautions against adding fat on top of fat continuously and letting that poured up first (on the bottom of the pan) get rancid.

"Every bit of surplus fat, unless it is too strong in flavor or has been scorched, may be used for cooking," Miss Phipps says. "Fats which have objectionable odors, tastes and colors easily may be clarified at home. To do this, melt the fat with an equal volume of water, heating at a moderate temperature for a short time, stirring occasionally, and then cooling until congealed. The fat then can be lifted from the water surface."

All fats should be stored in closely covered containers in a dark place and away from strong-flavored foods. Table fats should be kept very cool, in a refrigerator if possible.

Best Defense

Walter MacLeish scored a bull's eye when he told us that the truth is the best defense against enemy propaganda.

He would have performed a greater service, and struck a novel chord, if he had given the newspapermen an example, under current conditions, they can get and print the truth.

Every responsible editor, even under censorship, is doing his best to see that nothing but the truth gets into his news. But there isn't a newspaper in this country which does not pretend with straight face that it prints all of the important truths it can obtain and verify.

Under a general agreement, each executive withholds what information might be of value to the national enemies. Then this is what hurts—he deletes anything which the Washington might think could conceivably be of value to the enemy.

The result is, of course, that the public obtains a very incomplete picture of what is going on. It learns much of the details which the government withholds. There can be no sound criticism, for example, of the government's refusal to comment on the raid on Japan.

London's reticence has been justified by the unbelievable press, or which editors withhold from the public, daily should not be printed, or should be deferred for special reasons. The inline sequence of statements on the raid which have come from Tokyo and Berlin. Reading them, no layman can ever again give credence to any war communique upon which it had been verified from a responsible source.

By keeping still, our government has let the Japs sell themselves as the clumsy liars they are. However, there are occasions—and the Tokyo bomb-bomb prove to be of this sort—when facts must be withheld from their disclosure no longer can endanger our military and naval forces.

In the name of national unity and morale, there is a perpetual attempt to soft pedal criticism of the official conduct of this war. Specific facts and figures by which the results of our preparation could be measured are all but hidden to obtain for publication. When critics general-order to avoid divulging forbidden data, they risk being denounced as obstructionists, saboteurs, defeatists, fifth columnists.

It is not a healthy situation. The less genuine information newspapers are permitted to print, the more realistic the public mind is distorted by gossiping which is actually the product of obstructionists, saboteurs, fifth columnists.

The Ugly Duckling

Texas, With More Men In Navy Than Any Other State, Has No Naval Militia

AUSTIN, Tex. (UP) — Texas furnished Admiral Chester W. Nimitz to the navy; it quickly enrolled more than 1,000 men to replace the crew of the lost Cruiser Houston and has led in Navy enlistments—yet the state has no naval militia. A naval militia is authorized by Texas law and also a Texas Naval Board, but in recent years Ginger Rogers is the nearest Texas has come to having an official navy. Former Gov. James V. Allred appointed Ginger Rogers "rear admiral."

Flash, and the Ocean. They cruised the Gulf, keeping off attacks by vessels from Mexico and by privateers. According to the histories they did valiant service, even though at times their action seemed high-handed. After 1836 the Republic of Texas established the "Navy of Texas." It appears to have been allowed to die after a successful engagement with Mexican vessels off the coast of Yucatan, which lasted several days. The fleet was ordered home by President Sam Houston. One of the vessels in this fleet which Houston apparently found too ready to fight was the Austin, which an American naval officer said was the fastest sloop of war then in existence. Other vessels of the Navy were the Zavala, the San Antonio, the Wharton, and the San Bernard.

Texas Couple Has Four Sons Now In The Marine Corps

SILSBEE, Tex. — The Buckner family of this peaceful agricultural community has gone all-out in its effort to help win this war for Uncle Sam. The four sons of Mr. and Mrs. Carl C. Buckner are members of the United States Marine Corps and their father, well-known local farmer, has taken a job in the shipyards at nearby Orange, Tex., while the mother and four daughters operate the farm.

These United States Marines have completed the Leatherneck parachute training course and are about to make their first jump. A second sergeant stands by and cautions them not to forget the things they learned in the classroom.

Three of the Buckner boys are six feet two inches tall and the other stands six feet four inches. The heaviest is 200 pounds and the lightest 190 pounds. The quartet includes Sgts. Ryan and Roy, twins, who enlisted about a year ago, Neuman, who became a Leatherneck last month and Joel, youngest of the group.

The boys are stationed at the Marine Corps base at San Diego, Calif. Workers in glass never have any waste. If anything they make turns out wrong, it is called an ash tray.

Capital Trends, Talk and Theories Include Irrked Congressmen, Government by Directive

BY PETER EDSON
NEA Service Washington Correspondent

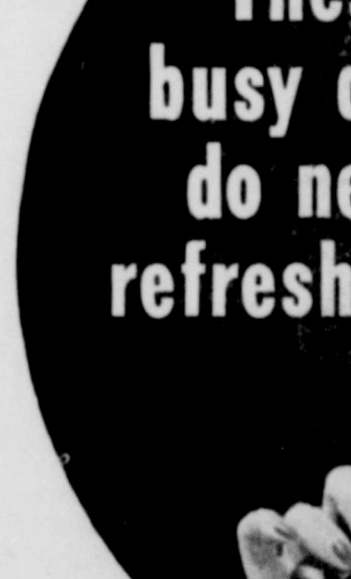

A NEW era of administrative government is being born in full bloom through the device of what might be known as "government by directive." The word "directive" is an old but rarely used one in diplomatic language. But now there is a veritable flood of directives floating around official Washington. No one can do anything without a directive. By long odds, "directive" is the new fashionable, polysyllabic, three-dollar word of 1942 in Washington.

CONGRESSMEN who like to throw their weight around and use their influence to get people jobs have a secret beef against the Army and Navy for roasting congressional pressure to get commissions for their constituents. Only reason the matter hasn't come out in public is that the congressmen can't prove their case. But their suspicions center around a couple of seemingly harmless and ordinary little initials, "C. I." It is the belief of some congressmen that whenever they make a recommendation that somebody be appointed to a job, the application is marked "C. I." And when those letters appear on any application, it is doomed from the start. The letters are supposed to stand for "Congressional Interference."

Beauty and Brains Leads Campaign for Soldier Candidate

This is not just a campaign smile that Mrs. Vernon Lemons Waxahachie has on her face as she sits behind the campaign manager's desk of her soldier husband working for votes to elect his lieutenant governor of Texas. Proof is that she was selected "Smile Girl" in a national photographic contest before she married into politics. Those radiant features helped her selection as a "Cactus Beauty" during her student days at the University of Texas. And her beauty is more than skin deep. Along with that beauty prize she won the highest scholarship prize. She was also Phi Beta Kappa at the University. These prizes and more she won while earning her way as she was learning her way through the University. For further discouragement to opponents it may be said she is a veteran political campaigner now. Working with her husband she has won three previous legislative campaigns.

Tire Shortages Prompt Lesson In Hitching A Horse

Hitching a horse is virtually a lost art — but one which may have to be reclaimed a lot faster than the nation's old aluminum pots and pans.

ties of personal automotive transportation, the safety education department of a life insurance company has combed old records and has issued, in the lighter vein, the following instructive bulletin: "Before we get into the technicalities of how to harness a horse — when you get one — it seems desirable to set forth a brief glossary of technical stable terms which, if not defined, might be as incomprehensible as Sanskrit to the average motorist. You should, therefore, be familiar with the following terms: "Stall — the horse's garage. "Hames — steel necktie which the horse wears in his collar. "Saddle-pad — that which the horse wears on his back. Difficult to define, but necessary, very necessary. "Crupper — harness loop which fits around the base of the tail. "Bread Collar and Traces — a sort of power transmission belt. "Bridle, Bit and Reins — the steering gear. "Girth — girdle, worn by male and female horses. "Terrets — this one baffled us, too. "Shank's Mare — a pseudo-horse. Unharnessable. "Now, having gotten that out of the way, let's go out to the barn and get to work. A word of warning, though: Just a word description of how to tie one's shoestrings would be more involved than the actual process after one has done it a few times, harnessing a horse is not so difficult after one knows how. The procedure is as follows: "1. Untie the steel and back him from his stall to the barn floor. "2. If he will "stand without hitching," O. K. If not you will have to snap the two ropes that you will find there into the side rings in the halter. "3. Take the saddle-pad and appendages and place it in position. "4. Take the crupper and put the tail through it. This is done by folding back the long hair that extends beyond the fleshy part of the tail and putting the folded tail through the crupper. "5. Seat the crupper in place by pulling the back strap taut. "6. Fasten the middle girth. "7. Take the bread collar, with the traces, and the bridle "assembly" in your left hand. Remove halter and slip bread collar over head and neck. (Horse's head — not yours). If a hames collar is used instead of a bread collar, that is "something else again." The solid collar must be slid over the horse's face upside down and turned into position just as it reaches the smallest part of the neck. The hames are then put in place and fastened by the strap at the bottom. The traces are permanently attached to the hames so you can't go wrong there. "8. Holding the bit in left hand and top of bridle in right hand, put the bridle on. (This requires some finesse. If the horse yawns at the opportune moment, your job is easy. Otherwise, the upper and lower jaws must be pried apart gently and the bit put in position). Then the left ear is inserted in the proper place and then the right. "9. Fasten the throat-latch. This is the strap that goes around the jaw. Don't get it too tight or you'll choke Dobbin. "10. Lead horse in position in front of buggy. Draw buggy slowly forward, putting the shafts through the shaft loops which are on either side of the girth. "11. CARIBBEAN CRISIS

BY EATON K. GOLDTHWAITE

JUNE ENLISTS

SOMEONE was standing in the corridor; someone's hand was on the knob of the door. Talcott was in a terrible spot then. If this were Halsey returning, he would spend the rest of his shipboard days in the brig. If it were the steward, wondering why he took so long, he would be a little better off. But he would have to show the envelope to prove good faith and the steward, when Halsey's search began, would remember. Why, he thought agonizedly, couldn't I have said a magazine? The fumbling at the knob stopped and knuckles sounded against the polished wood panel. That wouldn't be Halsey. "Who's there?" Talcott called. "Constantine," the professor's voice quavered. "Didn't get a chance to speak to you in the dining room — Is your headache any better?" "Blessed relief! "Quite, thank you," trying to make his voice sound like Halsey's. "May I come in?" "Not just now. I'm dressing." "Oh." Disappointment. Then, "All right. See you on deck." Talcott waited, counting in 20 by hundreds, and with the envelope tucked under his arm, stepped nonchalantly to the corridor. The professor was gone and the steward was nowhere in sight. A short distance aft a couple blocked the passageway, discussing plans for the evening. What to do with the envelope. Put it back? Halsey would immediately see the rip in the flap and would naturally assume that the true contents had been appropriated and blank paper substituted. No. Better to take the thing and leave it overboard. Unless — Could Struthers' report be written in invisible ink? Under ordinary circumstances such a thing would have smacked too much of fiction. Now, he wasn't so sure. He couldn't hide it in his cabin. Search and discovery would leave him without a straw of defense. No. Find a hiding place, and soon. There wasn't much time — He found it. In, of all places, the fire hose locker right beside the door to Halsey's stateroom. Only a snap-catch held its glass-enclosed front and Talcott, swinging out the ribbon-racked hose, placed the envelope behind. HE was pacing the deck when he saw a lone figure leaning over the rail, watching the moon. It was June Paterson and at his approach she glanced up and then hastily away. "Hello," she said dispiritedly. "Hello yourself," he replied with forced joviality. "Where are the rest of our playmates?" "If you mean Martha Swenson, she's with the doctor. Looking at the moon. Maybe you'd like to join her." He tucked her hand under his arm. "Let's find a couple of chairs and look at the moon ourselves. That is, if you can stand my company." She didn't answer that, but she accompanied him. Which in itself was an answer of sorts. Forward they found two unoccupied chairs, a little apart from the others. "You like to sit beside me?" asked June, as they sat watching the moon's path on the water. "I do." "Are you sure you trust me?" "More than I trust myself." She sighed. "I'm terribly glad. Really, I'm not a bad person. I just have the unhappy faculty of hating most the people I want to hurt the most." "I suppose you refer to your spying on MacDowell and me back on Abas Island?" Her head turned quickly. "Spying? Do you mean the time I walked into MacDowell's room? I wasn't spying. You were so noisive, thinking she must have fallen asleep. But she was very much awake, and the flash in her eyes warned him to turn. His room steward, the one he had asked about the grotesque bald-headed man, stood by his chair. "Mr. Talcott, sir? The gentleman, Mr. MacDowell, wishes to see you immediately. On the boat deck, sir. He said it was important." The steward trotted away and Talcott climbed to his feet. June Paterson arose also, saying, "Now that we have completely bared our souls I'd like to enlist on your side. I'm really very clever." He looked at her thoughtfully, and suddenly gathering her in his arms, kissed her hard on the mouth. Nor did she try to pull away. (To Be Continued)

The Payoff

BY HARRY GRAYSON NEA Service Sports Editor

NEW YORK — Lunch with Clinton B. Conger, former Berlin correspondent for United Press, back from a two and a half year hitch on the continent, and looking like a slyph. When we last saw Pat Conger, he was a robust, jolly 195 pounder drumming sports copy out of Detroit. Forty of those pounds evaporated in Hitler's Germany, 20 of them at Bad Nauheim, where he was interned for five months. "See this suit," says Conger. "When I sailed it was single breasted. Now I wear it double breasted." The wars have taken Conger to Denmark, where he sat by during the bloodless blitz; to France, to help cover the invasion; to Zurich, where he worked the important relay point; and back to Berlin, where he stayed until war broke. He never took his interest in sports, nurtured in days when an important beat was Tom Harmon's latest romance or Hank Greenberg's new home run streak. "When I was in Zurich," he says, "I used to get the American newspapers and kept abreast of baseball and Big Ten football. "In 1940, before the Michigan-Ohio State game, I sent Fritz Trisler and Forest Evashevski a cable from Zurich. It read: Your most distant University of Michigan alumni club hopes you will dedicate one touchdown to me." "They scored six times that day, so I always figured one of them was a Zurich special. Even in war-torn Berlin, Conger managed to keep informed on sports. "I heard the last half of the Michigan-Minnesota game on the radio last fall," he advises. "I would have to pick out a tough game like that to listen to." Michigan hasn't won from Minnesota since 1932. (CONGER became the correspondent's sports authority at Bad Nauheim. He inserted a note in the "Bad Nauheim Pudding," American paper at the spa: "Anyone wishing scores of 1941 football games, please contact C. B. Conger." One of the chief diversions was softball. They had one old ball and bat and staged many wild games. "We used naval attaché's positions for bases," reports Conger. "After each game, doctors would sew up the ball. "The Yankees never play with any more spirit than that gang. The Germans thought we were going nuts. "They couldn't imagine anybody having fun with a war on their track."

Most Students Of Texas University To Be Service Men

Over 70 per cent of the University of Texas' men students next fall will be members of one of four military reserves, Dr. Homer F. Rainey, president of the University, predicts.

Pointing out the great changes from the educational ways of peace to those of war, Dr. Rainey declared in Austin that every student and faculty member of the University will be directing his activities into some war channel when long-term classes begin next September.

"We have already reorganized our curriculum to meet needs of the federal government, the requirements of the armed services and other duties imposed upon us because of our place as an outstanding educational institution," Dr. Rainey declared, "but the real evidence of these new emphases will not be fully seen until our fall term gets underway."

The broad University program—designed, Dr. Rainey says, to prepare students for the peace as well as the war—will next fall be demonstrating its place in the war in more forceful manner than ever before.

In this connection he predicts that most of the men students in the University will become members of the four military reserves which have been set up by the army, navy and marine corps for the purpose of providing a future supply of officers.

Under these four plans, Dr. Rainey points out, high school graduates may enter the University this fall, starting their education. By enrolling in one of these four programs, they may continue their college work with full approval of the armed forces and at the same time be preparing themselves for fighting roles where they are needed.

The navy, army, army air corps, and marine corps will have all-rotated large reserve classifications which will take in students with good grades, guarantee they will remain in school at least through their sophomore years and draw upon their reserves for future officer material.

"With these four plans," Dr. Rainey declared, "a college student may continue his studies, preparing himself to be a better soldier or officer, and guaranteeing to the forces a better supply of fine officer material. Moreover, the students will be having a direct work in the war as they will be filling certain requirements to continue their eligibility for reserve services."
