EVERYTHING READY FOR BATHING REVUE FRIDAY

BEAUTIES TO PARADE HERE AT 9:30 P. M.

Between 20 And 25 Entries Will Be Entered, With Nearly That Number Already Registered

Plans for the big bathing revue, to be staged at the Municipal Swimming Pool on Friday night at 9:30 have been completed here, with everything pointing to one of the best revues that has ever been staged locally.

More than 20 beauties have been selected to represent Ranger firms, and the first rehearsal will be conducted Friday morning at 9:30 at the pool, with Mrs. Mamie Ruth Hamrick in charge.

Out-of-town judges have been secured for the event, and they will make the decisions as to which girl wins first place and a $50.00 War Bond, which will win second place and the prize of a $25.00 War Bond and which will take third place and $10.00 in War Stamps.

Very brief ceremonies will open the revue, after which the beauties will parade down a ramp that has been installed in the pool, so that judges, and all the spectators may see them.

With the rationing keeping many people at home who otherwise would be visiting out of town over the double holiday, July 4 and 5, a larger crowd than ever before is expected to be on hand when the program starts promptly at 9:30 Friday night.

Judges who have been secured and who have promised to do their best to pick the most beautiful girls include J. R. Stuart, Strawn; Ed and Maxwell, Breckenridge and Victor Cornelius, Eastland, Mayor Hoffmann of Eastland, who will be unable to participate in the revue as judge, has promised that he will have another judge, possibly two, from Eastland to assist.

Fire Helped Start Rubber Shortage

AUSTIN — "Fire has had a large part in adding to the critical rubber shortage in this nation," Marvin Hall, State Fire Insurance Commissioner, said today.

Hall explained that seemingly local fires can now have a far-reaching effect on the nation during time of war, as he urged individual attention to fire prevention in every home and place of business.

"A supply of crude rubber," Hall stated, "with a value of $11,000,000 and estimated at that time to be one-tenth of the nation's supply in storage, was destroyed by fire in October, 1941, at Fall River, Mass."

"This huge fire has become known as the largest single industrial fire loss in the history of our country. Most certainly its after effects is presenting a serious handicap to our war effort now."

Summer Theatre Program Of U of T Suffering Dents

AUSTIN — Summer is putting few dents in the program of the University of Texas summer theater, and army and navy posts are deriving the benefits.

Recently produced in the University's outdoor theater, "The Ninth Guest," a mystery melodrama, has since been taken to the Corpus Christi Naval Air Station, Camp Hulen at Palacios and Camp Swift at Bastrop, for presentation before groups of service men.

Next production of the summer theater will be "Abie's Irish Rose," which goes on the campus boards July 2 and 3. Whether it will be taken on tour has not been decided.

City Electric Plants Began In Texas In 1886

AUSTIN, Texas, June 29—Municipal electric plants originated in Texas in 1886, a recent survey of municipally owned electric utilities, conducted by the Bureau of Municipal Research at the University of Texas, shows.

During the 55-year period since that time, the report reveals, the number on municipal utilities has steadily increased, although the total in 1937—date of the latest Bureau of Census report—represented only about 5 per cent of the entire electric industry of Texas.

Reasons for the cities entering the electric service field vary considerably, but no instance was found of an electric system being set up because the concept of city government included public ownership of utilities. Leading the list of reasons for establishment of municipal plants was poor service by existing plants, and excessive rates. First plants were established because no private electric plant was in existence.

Lumber Supply At Mills Shows Decline In May

AUSTIN, Tex. — Increased shipments of lumber from Southern pine mills whittled away at stacks of unfilled orders during May, the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research reports.

Production was falling off, however, the Bureau's monthly report indicated, being 9.7 per cent below May, 1941, and 1.7 per cent below April.

Weekly shipments during May were 10.7 per cent better than the same month last year, 10.2 per cent below April. Unfilled orders, although still 54.3 per cent higher than in the same month last year were 5.7 per cent below April, indicating the increased shipments were taking care of old orders.

Mismanagement, Muddles Added To Blood, Sweat, Tears

LONDON, July 2—Prime Minister Winston Churchill added two new words to his famous "blood and sweat and tears" phrase today.

Speaking before the House of Commons he said, "I have stood hard to my blood, sweat and tears, and added to which I have muddled an mismanagement and that I must admit is what, to some extent, I got out of it."

Governor Urges Patriotism On The Fourth Of July From Tire Standpoint

AUSTIN, July 2—Governor Coka Stevenson today urged Texans to take inventory of their Fourth of July plans to make sure "that patriotism, from the standpoint of tire conservation and safety, is included."

"The observation, of Independence Day, 1942, should be in keeping with those responsibilities resting upon each of us in the winning of this war," the governor said. "Not the least of these are the conservation of tires, motor vehicles, and the prevention of accidents which take precious manpower and manhours from the working front."

"Each year the Fourth of July holiday period has ended in death and disaster for scores of Texas families. Accidents on the highways, on the beaches, from fireworks—all have made this historic observance one of sorrow and suffering for many."

The Texas Safety Association commended the governor's appeal and asked city officials and civic organizations to join in the statewide campaign to cut the holiday toll.

"Patriotism demands rubber conservation and for that reason unnecessary driving over the Fourth should be cut out," said George Clarke, managing director of the Association.

"Last year, 28 Texans were killed, 300 others injured in traffic accidents over the Fourth of July holiday period. The greatest mileage ever rolled up on the state's speedometers in any one weekend was recorded—130,000,000 miles."

"Today at war, Texas cannot afford this needless waste when every pair of arms, every person, every vehicle and every tire is needed for the preservation of that freedom we celebrate."

Other suggestions offered by the association include: Drive under forty miles an hour. Patriotically observe all traffic rules and signals. For patriotism's sake—don't drink before driving.

Mechanics Now Needed In Navy

Anyone with mechanical experience may enlist in the Navy and receive pay as high as $183.00 per month it was pointed out today, while other branches of the service have correspondingly high pay schedules.

Anyone can volunteer for service in the Navy if he is between the ages of 17 and 50, regardless whether he is married or single, and may go into construction work at Naval bases outside of continental United States. Room, board, clothing and medical attention are furnished, the same as in any other branch of the service. This service is a branch of the Naval Reserve.

"FIGHTING FOR LIVES" CHURCHILL SAYS, THEN GETS CONFIDENCE VOTE

Blackout Night Change Gas Flares

AUSTIN (UP)—Night airplane travelers know when they are over Texas by the flares burning in oil fields. Black-out plans now threaten to end these night flares. The flares are required as a safety measure by the State Railroad Commission and must be burning when a well is in operation.

A ruling of the attorney general holds that when blackouts are ordered the rule against lights includes the flares. But, it was pointed out in the opinion that this will be no excuse for operating oil wells without flares, because the way the oil well production in Texas is restricted the wells can flow all the oil they are legally entitled to in daytime when the flares do no harm.

Extortion Charged For A second Time

HOUSTON—Arthur Matthew Le Page, 51, recently released from Federal prison after serving seven months for attempted extortion of money from United States District Judge T. M. Kinnerly, was charged today with another attempt to obtain $5,000 from the judge.

"Of course—but Mr. Seasholtz, it's been so hot, you know . . ."

DALLAS, July 2—Eleven new Army construction projects in the Southwest have been authorized by the War Department, Col. Stanley J. Scott of Dallas, southern division engineer, announced today.

Japanese Attack Town Of Ihwang

Registration of Youth Enchances Navy V-1 Program

NEW ORLEANS July 2—With registration of all young men from 18 to 25 years of age imminent under the Selective Service Act, attention was focused today on the Navy's V-1 program which enables young men to continue in school and prepare themselves to serve their country at the same time.

Recruiting officers pointed out that the V-1 plan of enlistment in the Navy's long-range officer procurement program. Under amendments to the original Selective Service Act, the Army may call in those in the 20-year group for service at once.

Young men, who recently graduated from high school and who intend to enter college, may enlist in the V-1 program and continue their studies. At the end of two years of college, the Navy will determine if the student should remain in school working toward a degree or go on active duty in the Navy. Upon enlistment and entering college, youths are given an opportunity to choose a branch of the service, such as assignment with the Navy in this long-range program.

The point was stressed that the V-1 plan is "an opportunity of a life time for young men," and recruiting officers urged them and their parents to make an investigation about the manner in which it operates. Many accredited colleges in the South are cooperating with the Navy in this long-range set-up. Full information may be obtained from the college deans or at any recruiting station.

Thurber Reunion Will Be Held On Saturday, July 4

The annual Thurber reunion will be held at Thurber on Saturday, July 4, it was announced here today by J. R. H. Spencer and E. Buchanan, publicity committee for the event.

A big reunion is not anticipated, because so many of the former Thurber residents live at great distances, and the rationing will keep many from attending, but a good crowd of people who live within easy driving distance of Thurber is expected.

There are many former Thurber people now in Eastland and Ranger, the committee said today, and most of them have already made arrangements to attend.

Every former resident of Thurber is invited to be present and to take part in the annual celebration.

BUY WAR BONDS NOW

By W. F. CREAGER, Local Chairman

The citizenship of Ranger has always done the big, magnanimous thing in all of their undertakings.

The American nation is in an all out war. The government, my government, your government, the government of the people, and by the people, needs your financial assistance. It must live for the good of humanity, not only for Americans but for the citizens of all the world.

Therefore, in order for the Authorities in Eastland, Austin and Washington who are working for National Defense to know what the citizens in Ranger and other sections are doing toward the buying of War Bonds it is essential and necessary that all persons register who are buying Bonds or who contemplate to buy Bonds as long as their financial ability will permit.

A report will be made the 10th of July. Please go to one of the following places in Ranger and register. The Post Office, Commercial State Bank, C. E. May's Office, School Superintendent's Office, Chamber of Commerce, and the City Secretary's Office.

The Committee feels that you, as red blooded American citizens, want to do your part in this all out war. Many fine young men are not only giving their blood but are buying Bonds as well. The Committee, in a meeting Wednesday passed a resolution asking that the citizenship buy until it makes at least a small sacrifice.

Daylight Ahead

For the first time since the United States began its mad race to arm the anti-axis world before Hitler could blitz democracy out of existence, we begin to see daylight ahead in the steel situation.

So far as it is possible to determine, pressure upon steel is beginning to lessen. Unless we are obliged once again to increase our production goals, soon the world's greatest and most efficient metal industry should prove ample for our needs.

Ample, that is, for our military needs, which today are all that really matter. There is not going to be any steel to waste. There is not going to be enough steel for ordinary civilian goods, even if the plant and the man-power were available to use it.

Industrial and governmental experts say our ingot capacity—the plant with which to make raw steel in its elementary form—is sufficient.

When the conversion of automobile continuous strip mills is completed, by the end of 1942, the bottleneck in steel plate probably will be broken.

With the completion of the world's greatest rush building program, and in view of the shutdown in non-essential civilian construction, the bottleneck in structural shapes should disappear.

The principal fly in the ointment today, looking ahead to tomorrow, is whether even a three-day-a-day maritime program will suffice to overcome sinkings and build up the merchant marine and transport service we must have to beat Hitler.

If sinkings continue at their present pace, we may have to shoot for a yet higher level of ship construction. Then, indeed, we might find a new bottleneck in steel plate.

Without letting optimism run riot, we believe the sinkings are going to be brought under control to such an extent that three ships a day seven days a week, will do the job.

That confidence looks forward not only to improved naval technique, which insiders profess to see working out, but also to the building of hordes of small anti-submarine craft capable of overwhelming the decreasing number of U-boats the axis can produce and man and send into shipping lanes.

The steel industry undoubtedly has made mistakes. So have governmental agencies dealing with steel. But considering the monumental task and the pressure under which it had to be accomplished, we believe that both are entitled to sincere commendation.

Son-in-Law Of Ranger Woman Tells Of Experience In Bailing Out Of Plane "Deep In The Heart Of Texas"

Major Robert C. Stokes, Major, Medical Corps, son-in-law of Mrs. W. O. Walton of Ranger, has written the following, vivid account of his experience in bailing out of a disabled airplane while flying over the Kerrville country on the night of May 17.

Incidents relative to parachute jump made by the undersigned at about 10:30 p. m., May 17, 1942. After leaving Henley Field at about 7:45 p. m., Lieut. V. R. Woodward, the pilot, and I were flying compass course to Brooks Field. It became dark at about 8:00 p. m., and we were well oriented west of Temple about thirty miles. We were flying at 3,000 feet at this point and a few minutes thereafter visibility became poor and we went down to 2,000 feet, part of the time flying by instruments. A few minutes later a town appeared three or four miles to the west of us which I calculated to be Lampasas. The weather for the next fifteen or twenty minutes became increasingly worse necessitating considerable instrument flying. I expected to see the lights of Austin to the southeast at any moment. Neither I nor the pilot ever saw the lights of Austin. In a few moments we appeared over a town of about 3,000 population at an altitude of about 2,000 feet. The town appeared to be about 500 feet below us. The pilot had experienced difficulty with his receiving set the day before as well as on this particular night. He was unable to hear conversation from the ground and only on rare occasions was he able to hear me on the inter-phone. My radio apparently was in good condition because I could hear him and I could hear, except for the static radio beam signals and unintelligible words spoken over the radio. There were no radio tuning dial in the rear cockpit of the BT-15; consequently, I was unable to tune a station and give proper information while the pilot was flying instruments. It would have been much better if I could have done the navigating while the pilot flew by instruments. I failed to recognize the town of Kerrville, thinking for a moment that it might be New Braunfels. This was about 10:10 p. m.

We then climbed up over the overcast which was about 500 feet thick and about 500 feet above the ground. Once or twice we saw farm house lights on the ground but they were so low that we both felt it inadvisable to continue to fly at night at that altitude. The pilot informed me that he would try to fly the beam for a short while and that if we were not successful in a very few minutes, he thought it would be advisable to bail out. He then went above the overcast at an indicated altitude of 4,000 feet. I suggested that he attempt once more to lower to 2,000 feet to see if there was any visibility. This he did cautiously, and when we broke out of the overcast there was a highway about 500 feet below us. We at that time indicated about 2,500 feet, there was an automobile traveling along the highway, except for which we might possibly have flown into the ground. There being no other lights to be seen at this juncture we both agreed, being low on gas, that we had better go up and bail out. Consequently, the pilot climbed to what I thought I recalled as 6,000 feet. I removed my ear phones and flight cap, told the pilot to cut the throttle, and opened my canopy.

From the time I opened the canopy, I began to calculate on exactly the proper manipulation to avoid being blown into the tail surface of the airplane. I climbed out on the wing, bracing myself against the wind with my hand placed on the back portion of the open canopy. The onrush of wind was so great that I felt the throttle to make sure that it was closed. I then banged on the front canopy in order to get the pilot to open it so that I might be able to hold on to it with my left hand. He opened the canopy and I was able to get a firm grip with my left hand. The wind blast then seemed to increase markedly and I supposed that the ship was in somewhat of a dive. Therefore, immediately before I jumped, I reached in the back cockpit and pushed back on the stick, attempting to mere nearly stall the airplane. This decreased the wind blast and I shoved myself violently with both hands backwards away from the sides of the tail of the airplane. I then looked up and saw the tail surface of the airplane, which was well lighted, leave my vision. I then pulled the rip-cord and before I had time to wonder whether the parachute was going to open or not, I felt the jerk, looked up and saw the open parachute and heard the spilling of air from around the edges of the parachute. I was above the clouds, and the stars and a very small strip of moon were visible. For a moment I had the feeling that an up-current of air was lifting me. I began to swing rather violently, but was unable to manipulate the parachute to control the swinging. At this moment the airplane appeared and was flying in my direction. My first thought was that Brooks Field pilots were already searching for us. My next thought was that the airplane seemed to be flying straight toward me and I had the thought that it would be rather dirty irony fate if the airplane collided with me after my parachute had opened. The airplane passed by me at between fifteen and thirty yards. I then descended into the overcast.

After breaking out of the overcast, I looked for the ground, but was unable to see anything except what looked like the dim outline of an open amphitheater with white seats and a definite appearance of a depression with objects rising up to a ledge on each side. I then guessed that this must be another cloud formation and about this time I struck the ground in what turned out to be a fairly wide creek bottom filled with white stones. I was swinging when I hit and my back was to the wind. I apparently landed on my back and head, the force of the jar being cushioned by the wind to my back filling the parachute and standing me upright and pulling me forward. The wind was strong enough that it was quite a tug to hold the parachute which blew into a clump of trees on the bank of the creek. I retained my rip-cord and placed it inside the parachute when I pulled down out of the trees, removed the parachute and made a bed of it. I then walked up over the edge of the creek bank and found myself in rough ranch country, and heard two or three cattle grazing and walking a few feet from me. I went back and lay down on the parachute and looked up at the sky. The clouds were broken and at times I could see part of the firmament. Soon I located the Great Dipper and from it the North Star. The wind was from the south. I then thought that I saw more illumination in the north-east than in any other direction. I thought that I must be about forty or fifty miles southeast of San Antonio. I was quite thirsty and was much concerned about my pilot because I feared that instead of bailing out he would try to save the ship. I did not hear the ship crash. My other concern was that my wife and family would be worrying about me until word was received. I wondered what the airplane would look like after it crashed and had the ridiculous thought that the hair oil bottle in my overnight kit would surely be broken. I realized that I should not exhaust my energies trying to locate a house or highway when I was not sure which direction to walk. There was no dry wood available so that I could not build a fire. I knew that the following morning I could follow a cow trail and at least find water. I dozed once or twice, and at about midnight a cow across the creekback coughed. I opened my eyes and to my amazement saw the lights of a car at a considerable distance. The car horn then sounded and I felt that perhaps somebody was coming to find me. I gathered up my parachute, but was unable to find the rip cord. I shouted as loud as I could and the car horn answered me. I walked in the direction of the lights continuing to shout, stumbling over rocks and shrubbery and coming at times upon impassable underbrush. At one time I heard the unmistakable warning of a rattlesnake a few feet to my left. I definitely increased my pace to make certain that if I stepped on one of these rattlers he would not have time to strike. I finally had to abandon the parachute in order to make my way through the thickets of low trees and underbrush. The parties in the car continued to shout and drive in my direction and I approximately five or ten minutes we met. The people who found me were Mr. Clarence C. Hyde and Mr. L. T. Wood, managers of the Y. O. (Schreiner) Ranch located at Mountain Home, Texas, about forty miles northwest of Kerrville, which turned out to be the town over which we flew and which I thought might be New Braunfels. These gentlemen informed me that the pilot was at the ranch house and unharmed.

We drove over very rough and rocky country for approximately thirty minutes. My rescuers told me that I landed about six miles from the ranch house and that the pilot landed about two miles from the ranch house. They stopped and allowed me to quench my thirst at a large concrete water tank. We arrived at the ranch house and I found the pilot in mild shock and with a sore ankle. He had telephoned Brooks Field that he had seen my parachute open. The Kerrville Chief of Police, Mr. W. H. Moss, and Sheriff A. F. Moore arrived about 2:00 a. m. to take us back to Kerrville where parties from Brooks Field had already arrived.

Thus ends the account of an experience which proves to me that the ones who bail out are the ones who live, and the ones who stay with the airplane are the ones who don't live.

When you're in the dark over the paving of a bill, it's usually from the light company.

Would-Be Public Prohibitionist No. 1 Misses Mark, Despite "Fighting" History

BY PETER EDSON NEA Service Washington Correspondent

FORCES trying to shove through Congress the so-called Sheppard bill, which would prohibit all kinds of beer, wine, liquor and vice at or within a "reasonable distance" of any Army, Navy, Marine or Air Force base, have had to revise their strategy and the likelihood that anything will be done about this bill for some months is rather remote.

The stage had been all set for a public hearing in the caucus room of the Senate Office building, on June 22. Senator Theodore Gilmore (the Man) Bilbo of Poplarville, Miss., was the name around which this hearing was to rally, and the invitations went out on stationery of the Senate Committee on Agriculture and Forestry, of which Bilbo is a member, although the Sheppard bill is before the committee on Military Affairs and, logically, any hearings should have been called by this latter committee.

In other words, there has been more to this crusade to dry up the camps than meets the eye. It was Bilbo whose name was used to call the hearing, and it was Bilbo whose name was used to call the hearing off. It was Bilbo political advice which dictated this strategy of a delaying action on the grounds that with the Congress now going into a two-months' series of recesses, it would be a mistake to stir up the animals, only to have the effects wear off, like a hangover, before Congress would be in any position to do something about the Sheppard bill, even if it had a mind to.

That was the public reason. Perhaps much more important was the simple fact that the drys in Congress haven't the strength to push this one over.

WHILE Bilbo and Pappy O'Daniel of Texas—what a pair!—with Edwin C. Johnson of Craig, Colo., have been the principal Senate backers of the bill since Senator Sheppard's death, and while Congressman Joseph R. Bryson of Greenville, S. C., and U. S. Guyer of Kansas City, Kan., have been the backers in the House, the real agitator for the Sheppard bill today is Edward Page Gaston, who has been known to greet perfect strangers by pulling a piece of candy from his pocket, proffering it with a big, friendly smile and saying, "Have a sweet?"

Tire Rationing To Have Effect On Schools Of State

AUSTIN (UP)—Tire rationing will affect public schools in more serious ways than merely limiting the travel of their school buses, predicts Aldo Jenks, acting director of the University of Texas Bureau of Municipal Research.

"State aid for public schools now stands at $22.50 per student," Jenks explained, "and 25 per cent of that amount has been furnished by gasoline tax revenue. Obviously, that 25 per cent is now going to have to come from some other source."

The legislature will be faced with the problem of reducing the school appropriation or finding another source for it, Jenks said. Many public schools are very dependent on state aid, and reduction of that aid would necessitate serious curtailment of school programs, he declared.

Flewellen Makes Statement About Political Race

L. H. Flewellen of Ranger, candidate for the office of State Representative, has issued the following statement concerning his campaign:

TO THE CITIZENS OF EASTLAND COUNTY:

"Because of the rubber shortage and present restrictions, it is the patriotic duty of all citizens to conserve tires. Therefore, it will be almost impossible to contact each of you in person. However, as a candidate for Representative of the 106th District, composed of Eastland County, I will greatly appreciate your support. I am seeking the unexpired term of Hon. P. L. Crossley, resigned, as well as the regular term beginning next January."

"The office which I seek is one of great importance. If elected, I shall strive at all times to promote the best interests of our county and state, and shall never be afraid to vote my convictions. Our war effort is of first importance, and all other matters must be subordinated thereto. I hold two degrees, the academic and law, from our State University, and have practiced law in Eastland County since September 1, 1919. I have had experience in the oil and gas industries, have served approximately ten years as trustee of the Ranger Independent School District, and am now serving a second term on the Ranger City Commission. I have also served as a director of the Ranger Chamber of Commerce, and have been a democrat all my life. I earnestly solicit your support, and trust that I may have the honor of representing Eastland County in the next legislature and during the unexpired term which I also seek.

Respectfully yours,
L. H. FLEWELLEN,
Candidate for Representative of the 106th District."

Mrs. G. H. Kinard and daughter, Annell, of Texarkana, are visiting friends and relatives in Eastland.

You better keep inflation in mind—so your tires don't wear out quicker from the lack of it. If you think cold showers are fun these days, you're all wet.

WATCHING THE BLIND SORT RIVETS FOR BOMBERS

Frazier Hunt (left), war correspondent, and Carmin Campanella, blind war worker.

How the blind are helping to win the war was the stirring subject as told to Frazier Hunt, noted war correspondent and CBS news analyst, by Carmin Campanella, a young man who was born blind. Campanella is pictured above sorting rivets for bombers as Frazier Hunt looks on at the Lighthouse, New York Association for the Blind. These rivets were formerly sweepings in airplane factories, but now due to the shortage of aluminum they are collected and shipped to the Blind Headquarters for sorting. "There are about 200,000 rivets used in the manufacture of a single bomber," said Campanella, "and there are about fifty sizes and types. These sweep-up rivets which have been dropped by workmen, come to us in barrels and we separate them into their various types and sizes. It is because blind people have such sensitive fingers that they are able to do this work better than a man who can see. "Women at the blind headquarters are doing their share in sorting for the soldiers," said Campanella. "Many of them are taking courses in first aid. Blind men are also working in aircraft plants where they operate boring and slotting machines," continued Campanella, "there are blind men filling Navy contracts as cable stripping and cable covering operators and there are also ditaphone secretaries working in a sound-detecting manufacturing company and in a company making machine-gun parts."

The Payoff

BY HARRY GRAYSON
SEA Service Sports Editor

NEW YORK—While Corp. Joseph Louis Barrow goes about his own inconspicuous way of trying to be a good soldier, the popular crowd is doing a messy job of prying open the heavy-weight champion's life, financial affairs and intentions.

Corp. Joe Louis has been a stickler for keeping out of the limelight in between bouts. This wave of journalistic hysteria no doubt upsets him. A man's ability or inability to pay his income tax falls in the category of personal business. The activities of a soldier in the concern of the War Department. While Gen. George Marshall is losing no sleep over the strategic implications of the course of the distinguished non-commissioned officer.

That Louis was patriotically generous must be conceded without hesitation. But this is no time to bother high officials of the War Department with such trivia as a prize fight. They have something a bit more important on their minds.

LET charges and counter-charges have reached a caustic pitch. Rumor flows, denials are thrown with abandon, innuendos are having their day. Listen:

Louis and Billy Conn will definitely meet this fall, Mike Jacobs promoting.

Louis and Conn will not fight this fall.

Louis and Conn will fight with the Army promoting.

Louis should have paid his income tax out of last year's earnings like any other business man.

Louis needs ready cash, had to ask extension on the $17,000 income tax he owes.

Jacobs forgot to cut Navy relief in on $150,000 in picture and radio rights in connection with the Louis-Buddy Baer brevity.

PICTURE rights barely paid for themselves and the radio rights were part of a contract signed long before war funds were plucked and in which the Madison Square Garden Corporation had a hand.

A disgruntled radio chain is exerting pressure on higher-ups to prevent exclusive airing of the fight. Army is side-stepping this issue by ruling "no fight."

Army is pleased at Corp. Louis.

If Army lets Louis fight, every boxer in the service will demand that right.

LOUIS, the baby-faced Negro who came out of an Alabama bottom field to win fame as an athlete and patriot, furrows his brow in bewilderment at annoying well-wishers continue to give him an equal amount of money. Why don't they let Corporal Louis be a good soldier and the Navy Department run the Army?

Tire Rationing Restrictions Are Being Extended

DALLAS, June 30—An amendment which tightens restrictions on use of tires by some eligibles under rationing and also extends eligibility to certain automobile users not heretofore provided for has been issued by the Office of Price Administration, Max L. McCullough, region OPA administrator, has been advised.

More stringent requirements to be met by physicians, surgeons, farm veterinarians and practicing ministers, to be eligible for tires and tubes, are contained in the amendment to the rationing regulations. Mr. McCullough said. Vehicles operated by such users must now be used "exclusively" for professional services or religious duties, instead of "principally", as heretofore.

Eligibility for recapped or obsolete new tires is extended to school officials and teachers who must travel by car from one school to another in an area where no other transportation is available. Certificates will not be issued to any teacher or official whose duties are performed wholly at one school.

Other changes in tire rationing regulations are: Licensed chiropractors and osteopaths are made eligible under the same conditions as apply to doctors of medicine.

Eligibility of ministers is extended to "any religious practitioner qualified to administer to the religious needs of the members of a congregation."

Designation of nurses eligible for tires is changed from "visiting nurse" to "public health nurse."

"Under the new standards applying to doctors and ministers, if it is necessary for the applicant for new tires to answer emergency calls as a part of his professional practice, he may issue a purchase certificate which will enable him to use his car between his home, his office and hospital," Mr. McCullough explained. Change of the designation, "visiting nurse", to "public health nurse" does not extend eligibility to any group not heretofore covered, he said.

Sec. Wickard To Visit At A. & M. College July 3-4

COLLEGE STATION — Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard will spend 24 hours on the Texas A. & M. College campus, from noon July 3 to noon July 4. According to Director H. H. Williamson of the Extension Service of A. & M. College, the secretary accepted an institutional invitation from President T. O. Walton to be the guest of the college, and agreed to address a mass meeting in Kyle Stadium at 8 p. m. on July 3. He will dine with the cadets in the mess hall at 6 p. m.

Secretary Wickard will be the third man holding his cabinet office to visit the college campus in its 67 year history. Others were James Wilson, who was here nearly 40 years ago, and Henry C. Wallace, father of the vice president, who visited the college about 20 years ago.

Woolen Prices In Garments Pegged

DALLAS, June 29—Prices of the types of woolen and worsted fabrics that go into men's and women's suits and overcoats are lowered in many instances at the manufacturing and jobbing levels through a special seasonal pricing formula for those goods announced today by OPA.

Maximum price regulation No. 163 (woolen and worsted civilian apparel fabrics), in providing a method for pricing these fabrics, will facilitate the flow of goods to garment makers. Max L. McCullough, region OPA administrator, said. The regulation became effective June 22.

The new regulation establishes individual ceilings for each manufacturer by going back to his season's selling period some eight to sixteen months earlier for the same class of fabrics. The manufacturer then adds a specified percentage markup to allow for advances in basic costs from that time to March, 1942.

Effect of the pricing formula will result in reductions from March 1942 deliveries on individual types of fabrics ranging up to 25 cents per yard.

An important phase of regulation to the buyer, savings in less cost No. 163 will be to pass along by new fabrics made of blends of wool and substitute fibers. The pricing formula for such blended fabrics is designed to encourage the manufacture and substantially to increase the supply of these new and blended fabrics. Ceilings in these cases are based on the actual cost of the materials plus a markup.

Three different price determining formulas are provided for various types of fabrics. These apply (a) to fabrics previously sold by the manufacturer, (b) to fabrics comparable to those previously sold and (c) to new fabrics.

Lightning Man Is A Composer

PITTSBURGH (UP)—The man who composed the new war tune, "I'm a Member of the OCD," makes his living at the particularly unusual business of taming lightning.

When he isn't composing some new ditty, J. A. Civilett, a sales engineer for Westinghouse, specializes in lightning protective devices and surge generators. He is the inventor of a device that computes the amount of lightning protection needed for electric motors and generators.

Civilett received his inspiration for "I'm a Member of the OCD," while driving to a meeting of the Song Writers' Guild here. He went to work as soon as he arrived at the meeting room and completed the words in 25 minutes. He wrote the score of the spirited marching tune when he arrived home.

The tune has been broadcast by a Pittsburgh radio station and has been sent to James M. Landis, National Director of the Office of Civilian Defense for his consideration as the official tune of the OCD.

Here are the words: "I'm a member of the OCD, glad to serve in that capacity. While our boys fight over there, I'll stay home and do my share. We will fight to keep our country free—every loyal son, March on to victory!"

I'm a member of the OCD, When the enemy bombs homes and children I'll be there to rescue, men and women—

Cries of babies—timid ladies—I'll do the best I can."

Civilett has composed some 50 songs, including "Back Again."

Two Texans Lead Important War Plan In Vital Sectors

By United Press

AUSTIN, Tex., July —Whether it was telepathy or coincidence, news correspondents at the Texas capitol were in the midst of an informal off-the-record discussion of the war situation and there had just been the wish expressed that there was someone like Admiral Chester Nimitz in charge of army operations against Germany and Italy when word came over the United Press wires that Maj. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower had been designated commander of the European war theater.

Two native Texans now head the American forces in the "hot spots" of the war. Admiral Nimitz is of Fredericksburg, Tex., and General Eisenhower from Tyler, Texas.

Besides, Texas was the state where Gen. Douglas MacArthur spent most of his boyhood and received his early military training.

NYA Youths Give Blood For Wounded Soldiers Of War

AUSTIN, July 2.—NYA youth give blood and sweat—they haven't time for tears!

Beginning this week youth employed on Texas NYA Projects will furnish a Blood Plasma Bank with 100 liters of their blood each week. J. C. Kellam, state NYA administrator, said today. He added that the first 100 liters would be taken Tuesday from boys and girls working at the NYA War Campers at Inks Dam, near Burnet. Private physicians and NYA nurses will draw the blood.

Governor Coke R. Stevenson several months ago became interested in the plan for a Blood Plasma Bank for emergency use in the case of civilian men and women who might be hurt during air raids. At that time he appropriated funds from the Office of Civilian Defense to the State Department of Health for that purpose. State Health Officer Dr. George W. Cox then was able to purchase the necessary equipment since December ten pints of blood a week have been taken from youth on NYA Projects. Plasma eliminates the need for blood typing, because all plasma is the same. The liquid part of blood is reduced to flakes through processing, plasma can be preserved for years, shipped any distance, and can stand any temperature or hard treatment. In many cases when transfusions are needed, plasma actually is more satisfactory than whole blood.

Alligator And Part Of Pants Donated To Houston Zoo

HOUSTON, Texas, June 27.—There's a new addition to the Houston Zoo—a six foot alligator and the "best part" of G. J. Douglas' pants.

The gator and pants are on exhibit together, but only the gator can be seen. The six-foot monster is wearing Douglas' pants on the inside.

Douglas and some negro employees were working along the Trinity River when they discovered a nest of alligators. Douglas armed himself with a lasso and proceeded to capture the biggest gator "Frank Buck style."

The gators quickly organized and staged a counterattack. Douglas, not so fast as the negroes, lost at the "best part" of his pants. But he got the gator and donated it to the zoo.

Daddy Builds A Carousel For The Children

GREENBUSH, Wis. (UP)—The Clapmans have a carnival in their own back yard every day. All the neighborhood children come over to play with David, 6, and Ed, 4, on their private merry-go-round.

Paul Clapman, the boys' father, spent a year to put an old automobile to good use without burning any gasoline or rubber. The rear axle became the center post of a merry-go-round. The same car's driveshaft connected the center post with a power unit in a nearby booth. At the end of the driveshaft Chapman mounted a car wheel, which an electric motor turned by friction contact.

Wooden horses were constructed by manual training classes at the high school.

105 Per Cent Of A Squadron Take Part In Bond Contest

MOORE FIELD, Tex., July.—Enthusiasm in the Moore Field War Bond Contest ran so high that one of the squadrons actually went over the top with a 105 per cent subscription. Explanation: the squadron's super-salesman signed up three visiting soldiers from a nearby field.

CANADA—"AIRDROME OF DEMOCRACY" DECLARES PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT

With his maps tucked into his boot leg, Sgt. Chris Armstrong of Ottawa, waits for his orders to "zoom." This is one of the latest photos of Canadian fliers in action overseas.

THE Royal Canadian Air Force is writing a story of daring and heroism in the war-torn skies of the world. Their part in the aerial battles of this planetary war has become a daily recital of perseverance, perilous missions and cool reconnaissance.

All of this is not accident, or dependent entirely on the bravado and courage of remote individuals. The work these fliers are doing reflects the training they have received.

One of the highlights of a recent air training conference held in Ottawa was a message from President Roosevelt, read by Mr. Robert A. Lovett, United States Assistant Secretary of War for Air, which said in part: "... it is particularly fitting that this conference should be held in Canada, for Canada is increasingly becoming the airdrome of Democracy, sending from her training fields thousands upon thousands of her own men and men of the other United Nations to fight in the cause of liberty."

England's 24-hour schedule for air offensive over continental Europe is calling into action the many men and machines supplied by the United States and Canada. The illustrations here show a few of the activities.

"There's the target." Two observers compare notes before their squadron of "Boston" bombers head for Hun territory.

Sgt. Lloyd Sinclair, of Paris, Ont., looks for the signal from his ground crew before taking his Spitfire zooming into enemy-held territory.

These "Yanks" in the R.C.A.F., L. to R., P.O. Al Lukas, Chicago; Sgt. Bill Randolph, Memphis; and Sgt. Haskell Boston, prepare to take off after being forced down on rocky, treacherous ground. It is difficult to make such a landing, but taking off again is an even greater test of man's ingenuity.

Student Pilots To Be On SMU Campus

DALLAS, Tex., July.—Atkies Hall, men's dormitory of the Southern Methodist University campus, will house student pilots enrolled in the revised civilian pilot training program for an eight to sixteen week's period beginning July 1.

Seventy men have had applications for the training program which has been re-planned in line with army and navy recommendations. Dr. David W. Starr, head of the course at SMU, said. They will take their ground school work on the SMU campus, and flight training will be given at Dallas Aviation School, Mustang Aviation School, and Hudson Airport. Enrollees have registered for elementary glider courses, elementary army work, secondary army work, elementary navy courses, and secondary navy courses.

Under army and navy plans, members of reserve corps will be given CAA flight training, then assigned to bases for further training as combat pilots, ferry pilots, instructors, glider pilots, copilots, liaison and service pilots.

Many a "sugar daddy" probably is just a plain sap. If shortage forces the elimination of rubber from airdies, it will leave some of the gals in a bad shape.

Fathers used to strap their children—now the children keep their fathers strapped. The Chinese will have everything ironed out when all the Japs have been taken to the laundry.

PILOT CLASS IS TO START HERE MONDAY

Dr. G. C. Boswell, president of Ranger Junior College, announced today that approval had been received of a new pilot training class, 14 start at the Ranger Airport in the very near future, possibly by next Monday morning.

The school will be directed by Lou Fouts, who conducted the flying school here during the last training period.

Men between the ages of 18 and 27 will be eligible for the training, regardless of whether they have Junior college or college work. These will be placed in two groups, those from 18 to 27 and the second group for men between the ages of 28 and 37.

All who sign up for the pilot training courses, and pass the entrance examinations, must also sign up to go into the aviation reserve, and to take basic and advanced training at an Army Air School.

The program, which is expected to start next week, Monday if enough have signed up by that time, will train 10 pilots for a period of 60 days.

Since 10 students are required to start the instruction, all who are interested have been urged to contact Dr. Boswell's office immediately, where additional information can be obtained concerning the program.

Industrial Arts Teachers Needed By Texas Schools

DENTON, Tex. (UP)—Wanted: by Texas schools, about 100 industrial arts teachers. And 1942 is one year when "No women need apply" is a forgotten phrase, according to Dr. S. A. Blackburn, head of the North Texas State Teachers College department of industrial arts.

The head of a department which has already produced the first woman to handle an industrial arts shop in Texas during this war, Dr. Blackburn declares, "There is a shortage of about 100 industrial arts teachers in Texas today; these vacancies are growing, and there is absolutely no one in sight to fill them. They must be filled by women."

Briefly the qualifications for enlisting in the V-1 program are:

- 1.—Citizenship.
- 2.—Not less than 17 years of age and under 20, however sophomores who are 20 years of age may still enlist, providing they finish their sophomore year within 60 days after their 20 birthday.
