Filtering Clay Is Being Developed On Texas Plains

AUSTIN, Tex. —Successful development of filtering clay in Bruce and Swisher counties — a type of clay which has proven superior in reducing sulphur and gums from gasoline in the vapor form — has opened the possibility of other fuller's earth or bentonite deposits in the Texas plains, a University of Texas geologist points out.

The clay being produced near Silvertown is in special demand for refining gasoline from crudes having a high sulphur content such as are produced from a number of Texas fields, Glen L. Evans, of the University's Bureau of Economic Geology, explained.

The Silvertown deposit, he added, is a large one—at least six to seven miles in width and from 100 to 130 feet thick in its central area. About 30 per cent of the entire mass of material consists of bentonitic clays. First developed in 1937, by the middle of 1941 it was producing approximately 40 tons daily.

1,469 People Take Air Warning Course

AUSTIN, Tex. —Detailed instruction in the operation of the Aircraft Warning Service was given to 1,469 persons, including 1,212 observers, by the Ground Observer Training Unit of the Third Fighter Command which recently visited the Gulf Coast counties in the Houston area. Information on the results of this trip was given Governor Coke Stevenson today by Lieutenant James L. Whitcomb, Regional Signal Officer, Third Fighter Command, with headquarters in Houston.

The Ground Observer Training Unit was in charge of Captain Louis A. Cary. Captain Cary was pleased with the interest and efficiency of the Aircraft Warning Service volunteer observers, Lieutenant Whitcomb said.

Emphasis was placed on the members of these Aircraft Observation Posts in the vital Gulf Coast counties.

Spotted Fever Is Making Appearance In Texas Now

AUSTIN, Tex. —With the announcement of two deaths in Brazoria County, Rocky Mountain spotted fever has made its first appearance in this state. Four cases have been reported to the State Health Department in July, and Dr. George W. Cox, State Health Officer, today cautioned the public to beware of ticks, since Rocky Mountain spotted fever is transmitted by tick bite. While originally found only in the Rocky Mountains, this disease is now reported from a large number of states outside of that area, including some as far east as the Atlantic Coast.

Dr. Cox stated that the people whose occupations expose them constantly to tick infestations may partially protect themselves by being inoculated with a vaccine which is prepared from infested ticks.

"An individual can avoid this disease by avoiding the bite of ticks," Dr. Cox said, "and the best way to do that, if living in an area where this disease has been noted, is to make a systematic search for ticks on the body especially in the summer season."

The tick which is apparently the sole agent by which this disease is transmitted, usually makes its appearance with the onset of warm weather and should be considered as a health hazard until after the middle of summer.

Dr. Cox advised that ticks should be removed without touching with the fingers since infections have been acquired in this way removing the insect from dogs or other animals.

AUSTIN, Tex. —Collections of scrap metal went forward in the counties of Harrison, Angelina, and Wichita, notwithstanding the emphasis which was being placed on scrap rubber during the past few weeks, Governor Coke Stevenson was advised today by Gen. B. Butler, Executive Secretary, Texas Salvage Commission.

Harrison County reported collection of 34,940 pounds of metal; Angelina County 36,000 pounds of metal and bone; and Wichita County 3,430,998 pounds of metal.

Barroom Brawl Tactics Taught To Marines Make Them Ready For Any Emergency They May Meet In A War

ATLANTA, —Trained to expect the foul blows of old-fashioned barroom brawling, the United States Marines probably have the Marquis of Queensbury spinning in his grave like a whirling dervish.

Hand-to-hand fighting, with sudden-to-hand the watchword, is not and never will be a game of "post office." There is only one rule in war—kill the enemy before he kills you.

When a Marine comes face to face with a Nazi or Jap on a battlefield, anything goes and only one of them walks away. And four will get you five if it's the Leatherneck. He's an eye-gouger, neck-breaker, ear drum burster, fightin' fool and he means strict business. It's dirty fighting—the kind the Japs and Nazis understand—and it gets results.

This is the kind of fighting being used with such terrible effectiveness by the phantom Chetnik guerrilla bands of Yugoslavia and by the black-face Commandos. The blue chips are down and the man holding the most aces is going to win.

The Leathernecks use jujitsu and judo. They are snarling growling bayonet experts. They can lob grenades like a big league pitcher and can tear the black out of bulls-eye as far away as they can sight it with their rifles.

But in addition to the use of the usual military weapons, Marines are taught other ways of merchandising murder.

There is a cute little movement called "eyes one." This is an exceptionally speedy and effective way of gouging out an enemy's eyes. Another is called "break the windpipe." To accomplish this the fingers are stiffened and jabbed full force into the enemy's windpipe. It works.

Marines are told never to use their fists. Might hurt their hand. Instead, they are taught to use the outside of their hand in a chopping motion that, with practice, will enable them to break bones at will.

A Leatherneck is never defenseless as long as he has both hands and feet. A kick correctly delivered can break a man's knee. A kick in the groin can take the fight out of an enemy for a long, long time. Marines learn the roughest blows in boxing. The "rabbit punch." An uppercut—the old Bob Fitzsimmons "death blow"—that will drive the upper jaw into the base of a man's brain.

A Marine can sneak up on and strangle a sentry without a sound, using the old sikkes and method perfected by the Thuggees in India. He knows where and how to kick a man when he's down and how to beat up his weight when running and jumping on a fallen enemy.

These things could be hush-hush—kept away from the public—but there they are. This is a war for keeps. And the Marines are ready, willing and able to show the Japs and Nazis a few things about our "decadent Democracy" similar to their feats at Wake Island, Bataan, Corregidor, and Midway.

And the Marines will land. They'll land from the air in parachutes and gliders. They'll land from the sea in Higgins landing boats. And, you can bet on it, they'll land on the enemy with every trick in the bag, bringing "that old situation" back where it belongs—"in hand."

The application, as submitted by Mayor M. P. Hancock, Municipal Defense Coordinator, was approved by Lt. James L. Whitcomb, Regional Signal Officer, Third Fighter Command, R. E. Smith, Regional Director of Civilian Defense, Captain Glen Rose, District Air Raid Warden, and by Governor Stevenson.

The blackout will be held some time between July 24 and July 31.

Air Raid Wardens Complete Courses

AUSTIN, Tex. —Certification was made to Governor Coke Stevenson today of the names of 162 additional air raid wardens who have completed their training courses and are available for service in the City of Waco.

Mayor Hubert Johnson of Waco transmitted the certificates, as made by Hal V. Hays, Chief Air Raid Warden.

BATTLE OF DON RIVER IS SPREAD FROM VORONEZH IN BIG ARC TO SOUTHWARD

Admiral Leahy Is Now An Unofficial Member of Cabinet

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 22.—Admiral William D. Leahy today became, in effect, an added member of the cabinet as an official Secretary of National Defense.

He will undertake his new duties with complete endorsement and approval of both the War Department and the Navy Department.

Traffic Advisory Committee Makes Report To Governor

AUSTIN, Tex. —Activities of the State Highway Traffic Advisory Committee of Texas in the campaign for the conservation of vital war transportation were reported today by Governor Coke Stevenson.

The committee, headed by Col. Homer Garrison, Jr., Director, Department of Public Safety, and Brady Gentry, Chairman, Texas Highway Commission.

State Highway Engineer DeWitt Greer has assigned Major Harry S. Phillips to the staff of the committee to serve in the capacity of Executive Secretary.

The committee advised the Governor that staggered hours have already been made effective in Dallas, Houston, and Fort Worth. That the campaign is now being organized in the Tri-City area of Beaumont, Port Arthur, and Orange, and that a field representative is now in the Corpus Christi area completing details of the campaign.

Through approximately 1,000 cities and towns in Texas, a "Texan's Pledge" has been circulated with gratifying results. The Governor was informed the pledge calls for the reduction of motor vehicle speeds, the adoption of personal car mileage budgets, more efficient use of mass transportation facilities, staggering of hours of work, schools, shopping, and other community activities to reduce peak congestion in motor transportation, and the use of passenger cars for essential purposes through "Share the Ride" movements and other methods of community and neighborhood cooperation.

Arrangements have also been made for posting 300 billboard posters through Texas requesting public participation in the "Drive Under Forty" campaign.

A & M Will Play Service Teams By Postponing Game

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. —Desiring to cooperate with service football teams by making a place for such a game on their 1942 football schedules, Texas A and M and Duke University today agreed to postpone their game scheduled for Durham, N. C., on Oct. 16.

It will be played sometime after the duration, Coach Homer Norton announced.

Both schools also expressed their desire to cooperate with the Office of Defense Transportation in scheduling games closer to home.

Norton said that he regretted the postponement, but under the existing conditions he felt that it was the logical thing to do.

The 1942 Aggie schedule already called for 10 games, and had the school taken advantage of the eleventh game allowed by conference vote, it would have to be played on Sept. 19 or Dec. 12.

Under the speed-up education program in effect at Texas A. & M. the present semester will end Sept. 19, which would make that date unacceptable to the students and faculty. The date of Dec. 12 would throw the close of the season too late, as the only thing to do in order to schedule a service team was to postpone one of the already scheduled games, Norton explained.

Dog's Life

The Battle of the Don River spread from bomb-wrecked Voronezh in a great arc southward to the Caucasus today, with the Germans claiming a breakthrough west of Rostov and the Red Army reported to manning reserves for the defense of Stalingrad.

According to a Nazi communiqué the Axis advance forces crossed the lower Don on a broad front about 60 miles east of Rostov in their drive to the Caucasus. Other forces, including offensive units from Taganrog, collapsed the Soviet defenses around Rostov and pushed close to the gateway of the city, the Germans claimed.

A third column, previously reported less than 90 miles from Stalingrad, was said to be advancing into the eastern bend of the Don River, without meeting serious resistance.

These claims, obviously exaggerated in some respects, were countered by Moscow reports that fighting continued north of Rostov despite advances by the enemy and that the Red Army was gaining in severe battles on both sides of the Don River at Voronezh.

Soviet dispatches said that fighting in the Voronezh sector was nearing a decision.

Meanwhile Allied air forces in Egypt and Western Europe went again hitting the enemy hard and dispatches from Cairo said that the Royal Air Force was virtually in control of the skies over the desert for the present.

In Western Europe, about 300 British bombers started big fires by dropping tons of high explosives on the Nazi war center of Duisburg, in the heart of the Industrial Ruhr.

Hosiery Display Is Featured By Home Economics At U of T

AUSTIN — While most women are wearing no hose at all and wondering what will replace their nylon and silk hose next winter, the University of Texas home economics department is preparing at least a partial answer.

A display, made up by a summer session class in textiles, shows varying types of hose now available and gives washing and drying instructions. The exhibit is to be shown at a series of five meetings of home economics teachers during August, under the sponsorship of the State Department of Education.

In the exhibit are nylon, silk, rayon, and cotton hose as well as a display of ankle socks. More cotton hose are shown than silk or nylon, since the latter two are practically unobtainable. The cotton hose are shown both before and after washing.

The Test Came Quickly

When Elmer Davis went to Washington to become czar of war publicity, few newsmen doubted that he would come into conflict with the War and Navy Departments—of, specifically, with the generals and the admirals.

The controversy came more promptly than most had expected. Mr. Davis had not even had time to accomplish administrative revisions before the trial of eight Nazi saboteurs began before a special military commission appointed by the President and headed by Maj.-Gen. Frank R. McCoy.

Original detailed publicity on the capture of these submarine-borne enemies was broadcast, foolishly we believe, by FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover.

Before the trial commenced Mr. Davis promised newspapermen he would make available daily a censored report on proceedings, including as many facts as would not be of aid to the enemy.

But General McCoy, presumably with the approval of his fellow officers on the commission, arbitrarily, curtly—in fact, very uncivilly—snubbed Mr. Davis and ignored Attorney General Biddle.

Thus the issue was joined.

One condition under which Mr. Davis took the job was that Army and Navy publicity should fall within his jurisdiction. The presidential order made that clear.

Nor was Mr. Davis' relationship to Army and Navy publicity to be merely that of a censor or a rewrite man. Byron Price's office retained the negative control of censorship. To Mr. Davis was given the positive function of seeing that proper news does reach the public which, in a democracy, is supposed to be superior even to generals and admirals.

Now we must wait and see whether President Roosevelt is going to support Mr. Davis, and kick the high horses out from under the brass hats, or whether the military is superior to the civil authority.

This is no mere technicality. One of the greatest reasons Elmer Davis or somebody like him was needed in Washington was because the Army and the Navy were doing two of the worst public relations jobs on record—infinity inferior to that of civilian war agencies.

We hope that Mr. Roosevelt will stand firmly back of Mr. Davis, give him the authority he was promised, hold him fully responsible for using it wisely, and send him back to civilian life if he fails.

Somebody who doesn't know where West Point and Annapolis are is needed to bring order into the present public relations chaos. There is reason to believe that Mr. Davis may possess the capacity.

Is he going to have the authority, or to be strangled in gold braid?

Goudy To Design Last Type Face

By HARRY L. CARLSON
United Press Staff Correspondent
LOS ANGELES. — Frederic

William Goudy, hailed as one of the greatest typographic artisans of all ages, is now working on his last type design.

White-haired and 77 years old, he envisages the end of his long career. In the three decades and more that he has devoted to his trade, the master craftsman has designed 113 faces of type.

Asked the name of his final contribution to the printing craft, he said, "I'm going to call it the 'Goudy "30" long has been the symbol for "the end". Goudy yet doesn't know just how his "30" will turn out and described it only as Roman type with a Gothic influence. Judging from his 113 past performances, it should be something of simplicity and beauty.

Designs for reader But the ruddy, genial typographer believes he has made enough type faces for one man and has decided to retire at the completion of the "Goudy 30".

His theory of type design is that "fine printing demands fine type—a type without mannerisms, its forms distinct, its legibility easy."

Printers credit Goudy's influence with shearing type of the curlicues, scroll work and furbelows, which typographers prior to his time thought necessary.

"They should be designed to help the reader, not to display the skill of the designer," he said. "Likes 'Medieval'"

The dean of type designers has a favorite of the hundred odd types he has designed—the face described as "Medieval," inspired by an old manuscript which he Romanized.

"I've never been seduced by the modernistic trend," he relates. "I've always been a traditionalist. I've taken the best of the old designs and improved them to the best of my ability."

Goudy views his contribution to one of the world's oldest crafts from a matter-of-fact standpoint. He speaks with pride, not only of his life work, but of his accomplishments during his spare time.

War Changing Batture Town In Old New Orleans

NER ORLEANS (UP) — In all the world there's not another place like Batture Town in New Orleans, and now it's not like it used to be. The war has come home to Batture Town, right up to its cypress shacks perched on stilts along the levee; right under the drooping limbs of the willows that stand about the cabins like old men. Batture Town is a group of mean huts peopled by a group of poor but fiercely independent squatters, who claim an area between levee and river as their own and the right to live as they please as their heritage. It is located above New Orleans on the east bank of the great river. The levee is its main street; the river, its city limits; the odd jobs of the inhabitants, its industry. Batture Town is named for the French word for levee, and it was serene if unworldly, as unworldly as an unpretentious, before the war came. But Batture Town's change has been gentle, at that. It has been mostly a noticeable quickening of spirit among its people. There's more money in Batture Town. Emil Bidaut, bean-faced Frenchman who has stuck to the language of his native land, finds an increased demand for his gunea pigs, for instance. Gray-haired Mrs. L. Ward Bitter, who has been pottering about in a "batture" garden for 10 years now, finds vegetables more profitable.

And another woman, who reads palms, penetrates the mysteries of the crystal ball and interprets the wordless messages of tea leaves, finds her business better among future-wondering New Orleansians. There's a community center there now and neatly dressed, bright-faced youngsters are taught the three R's.

Keep Long Distance VOICEWAYS clear for VICTORY!

The weight of war on the long distance telephone lines grows heavier every day. We can't build new lines to carry it because materials aren't available. We've got to make the most of the service we now have. To keep our lines free for calls essential to fighting the war, we need your help and sympathetic understanding. In general, of course, we are able to handle fairly easily calls over shorter distances. But remember always that if your call goes to a large city where war work is under way, or must pass through such cities, it may add to an already dangerous congestion. This is especially true in the rush hours from 9 to 12 in the morning, 2 to 5 in the afternoon, 7 to 9 at night. On calls to more distant points during those hours, we are sure you will feel that your personal interest must give way to official messages that constantly are flooding our lines. By thoughtful use of telephone service civilians can help to win the war. And we know you're glad to help.

War calls come first!

Jeeps Are Rough Riding

POLAND SPRING, Me. (UP) — A half-hour ride in a speeding "jeep" or tank is equivalent to a day's march or digging a trench, according to a Philadelphia osteopath. For this reason, Dr. John H. Elmerbrink told the annual convention of the Maine Osteopathic Association, there is a growing need in the army for physicians qualified to correct disturbed body mechanics with manipulative theopneustics.

NO PIE IN CAMPAIGN

CHILDRESS, Tex. (UP) — Political candidates in Childress county won't eat pie this year in their campaigns. Pie suppers, long an established part of a county campaign, because of the five shortage have been ruled out this year, along with all other entertainment features that might be in conflict with wartime measures.
