Cargo Plane Plan Has Approval Of Production Board

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Henry J. Kissel, West Coast ship builder, today told a Senate Military Affairs sub-committee that War Production Board Chairman Donald M. What You Buy With WAR BONDS

"Kamerad" was the cry of surrender of the Boche troops during World War I at the sight of advancing Yankee soldiers with fixed bayonets. The bayonet is a vital weapon in hand-to-hand fighting and every American infantryman must have one. The bayonet costs $5 and the scabbard $1.30 each.

We need millions of these weapons for our rapidly growing army. You can help pay for them with your purchase of War Bonds and Stamps. A $5 War Stamp will buy one bayonet. So invest at least ten percent of your income in War Bonds every payday and become a member of the patriotic "Ten Percent Club."

SABOTEURS ARE DENIED CIVIL TRIAL

By United Press

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 31.—The United States Supreme Court was unanimous today, in upholding President Roosevelt's authority to order trial of eight alleged Nazi saboteurs before a special military commission, instead of before a civil court.

The court revealed its decision in a brief, but far-reaching per curiam opinion which held that the charges involved were such as to permit the military trial. The charges against the eight saboteurs, seven of whom appealed to the supreme court for right to trial before civil courts, was described as sabotage.

Infinitely the court also upheld President Roosevelt's proclamation denying to saboteurs any other persons who enter the country for the purpose of damaging this country's war efforts, the rights of habeas corpus.

An Experimental House Is Being Completed At TSCW

DENTON — An experimental house, nearing completion on the campus of Texas State College for Women, may be an indication of how the Texas family in the low-medium income group can rent or buy an adequate house.

It is expected to show how after the war is over—a family with an income of $1000 to $2000 can rent or buy without paying too much and how a landlord will find it possible to build, rent, and keep in repair an adequate house for a family with an income of $1200.

A cooperative project by students of TSCW and Texas A. & M. College, this semi-prefabricated house used materials available in any small-town lumberyard and could be built by any local contractor. The house is built on a floating concrete slab to make a stable building on clay land, and is so arranged that it may be enlarged simply by moving out sections of the wall without losing any of the material. It is designed for a family of three or four.

Art students are building furniture of plywood, doing nothing the average person cannot do with hammer, saw, chisel and screwdriver.

A bulletin on the entire project to be issued in the fall is being planned by A. & M. College.

RED ARMY SMASHES NAZI ARMORED ATTACK IN ONE SECTOR OF DON FRONT

Rising Star Youth Reported Missing, Is Believed Alive

RISING STAR, July 31.—Bob Evans of this city, whose son, Arnold, was officially reported missing in action by the War Department a few weeks ago, has returned from San Antonio where he personally talked with a "buddy" of his son's who was also on the ill-fated U. S. S. Perry that sank after being hit by a Japanese torpedo.

The "buddy" told Evans that he knew his son and knew that he did not go down with the ship as he was among the engine crew that was blown clear of the sinking vessel by the explosion, and feels sure that he saw young Evans in the water after the explosion.

Sam Logan, Evan's buddy, was rescued after the Perry was torpedoed.

The elder Evans has persistently clung to the belief that his son will yet be found alive, and his belief, he says was strengthened by his talk with the San Antonio youth.

Hollywood Writer Gets Eye Opener At Texas A & M

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. —Norman Reilly Raine, Hollywood film writer had been many places and had seen many things, but it remained for the Texas Aggie cadet corps to give him an eye-opening reception here Thursday evening—and now Raine, who will write the Texas A. & M. motion picture, knows how it feels to be welcomed to Aggieland.

Cadet Colonel Walter Caldwell and Yell Leader Chuck Chalmers cooked up the little reception for Raine when it was definitely ascertained that he would arrive Thursday evening.

When the train pulled into the station, the platform was crowded by 5000 yelling Aggies and the famous A. & M. band. The cadet corps put on a typical welcome such as is received by the A. & M. football team when it returns from a game.

There were yells, speeches, the familiar strains of "Recall" the Aggie fight song by the band and 5000 lusty voices, and then a triumphal march down oak-lined college streets to the Aggieland Inn, with Raine accorded the honor of marching at the head of the procession.

"Hollywood could learn something about welcomes from the Texas Aggies," Raine proudly beamed when the shouting and tumult subsided. "Nothing like this ever happened to me, and I appreciate it."

The Red Army smashed a Nazi armored tank attack battering toward Stalingrad and threw the enemy back across the lower Don River in another sector today but the Axis claimed a 112-mile gain toward the oil and railroad centers of the Caucasus.

Heavy Russian counter-attacks were reported by Moscow.

The German attacks were repulsed with heavy losses in eight days of fighting southwest of Kletskaya which lies only 70 miles northwest of Stalingrad, and Lacer dispatches reported that the Red Army had battered its way back across the Don in another vital sector, probably 125 miles southwest of Stalingrad. Thus the Russians appeared to be gaining strength and turning back the most powerful Axis attacks designed to close in on Stalingrad from both sides and trap the Red Army in the Don river bend.

These successful stands, however, did not lessen the peril to the Russian Caucasus and there was no indication that the Axis offensive toward the Volga and the Caspian Sea had been definitely stopped.

In Egypt, Nazi planes which previously had attacked the Cairo airbase made a raid last night on Alexandria.

Cement Stockpile Shows A Decrease

AUSTIN, Tex. —Despite boosted production, demand for cement from Texas plants in June forced heavy withdrawals from stocks on hand, a report of the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research indicates.

Production last month totaled 1,045,000 barrels, up 29.7 per cent above June a year ago and 3 per cent above the May, 1941, output, but shipments of 1,321,000 barrels required a drain of 45.2 per cent from stocks that were on hand a month earlier.

Plants in this state have turned out 5,713,000 barrels during the first six months of 1942, a gain and better ways of beating the Axis.

Your Pay Raise

Has your pay been increased by at least 15 per cent since Jan. 1, 1941? If not, apparently it is the will of the War Labor Board that you should have such a raise.

Nobody who gets four for an answer when he adds two to two, believes that everybody can have a 15 per cent raise without forcing prices through the ceilings which Leon Henderson is trying so hard to maintain.

What of that? If the cost of living goes up another 15 per cent, the War Labor Board will give you another 15 per cent pay raise.

Of course, your wages always lag in such a game of economic follow-the-leader. Prices go up, then wages are adjusted, then prices go up, then wages are adjusted, then—

Then what? Then we have inflation, which New Dealers and Old Dealers agree might be fatal to the American way of life. Since this is almost the only thing on which New Dealers and Old Dealers ever have agreed, it seems reasonable to assume that inflation really is something to be avoided.

It seems to us that the anti-inflationists in Washington ought to get together. President Roosevelt has said: "Our standard of living will have to come down."

The War Labor Board says its 44-cent a day award to Little Steel employes is designed to protect "their established peacetime standards."

You figure that one out. Who is determining this nation's anti-inflation policy—President Roosevelt, or the War Labor Board he appointed? If it is the WLB, then why?

The argument seems to be between those who favor the virtual freezing of wages and those who favor "stabilization." The 12-letter word apparently means freezing modified by an allowance to those who are definitely underprivileged in their pay checks.

Certainly the Little Steel award is not "stabilization," since it went to one of the highest-paid strata of labor.

The award gave to 157,000 employes of Bethlehem, Inland, Republic and Youngstown a 44-cent a day raise. Inevitably, and quite properly, the CIO asks the same allowance for half a million who do the same work for U. S. Steel and miscellaneous independents.

There seems to be no fair reason why employes of Ford, Chrysler, General Motors, all now seeking raises, should be denied their 15 per cent increment.

If they get theirs, how about you and us and everybody else? Aren't we working for a living too? Haven't our living costs gone up 15 per cent?

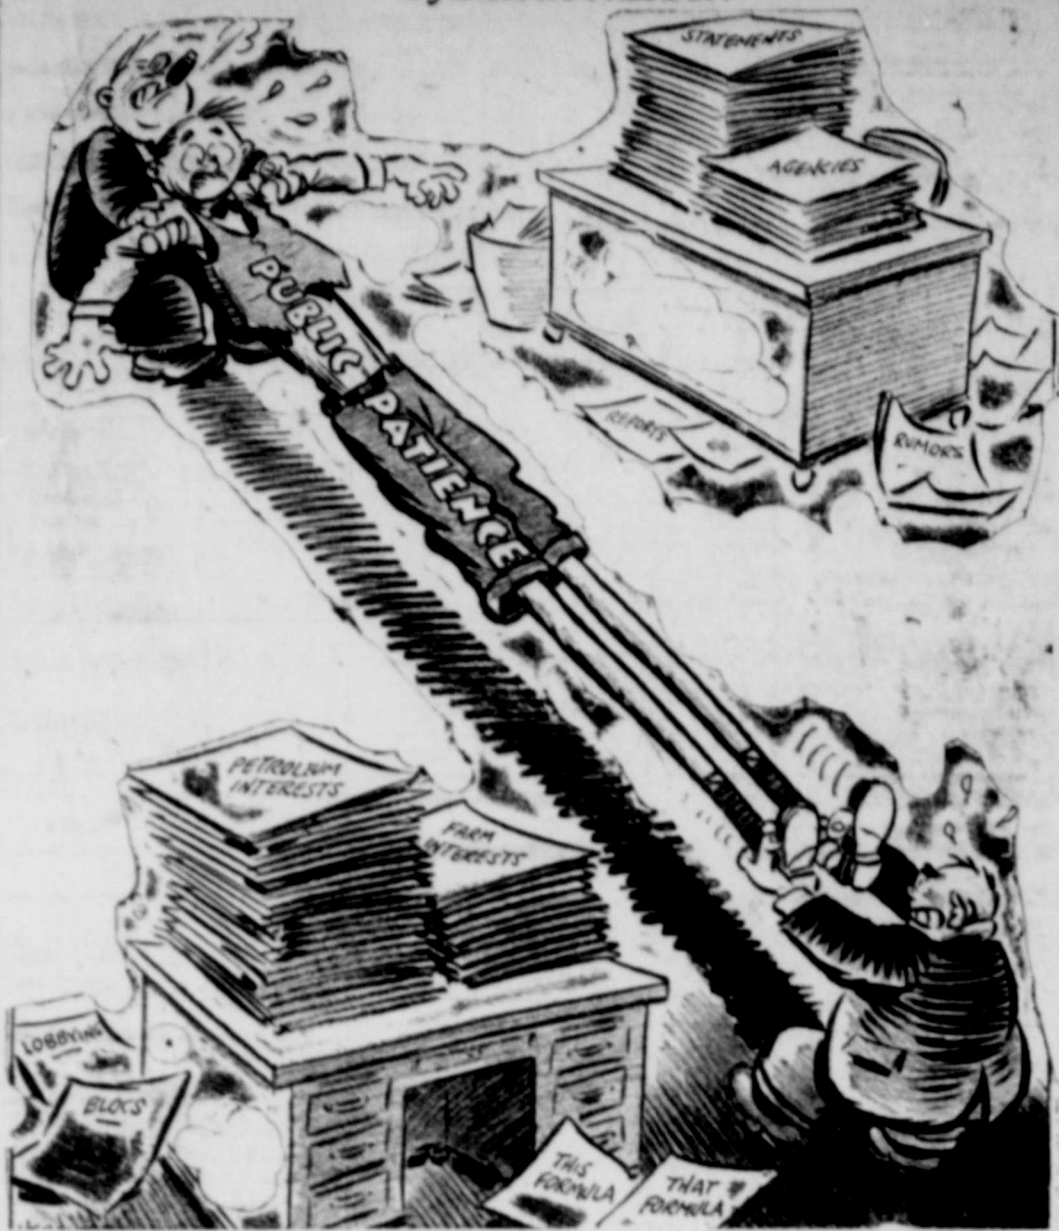

What a swell time we're going to have, if the WLB has its way from now on!

Synthetic Rubber!

BY PETER EDSON

NEA Service Washington Correspondent

ECONOMICALLY speaking, and from the point of view of the average citizen, the coming winter is going to be the coldest this country has experienced since Valley Forge.

Being a prophet of gloom is not nice work, though it is easy to get in these days of disaster. But this winter outlook is no secret, long-range weather forecast that must be kept from the enemy. It is hard fact that has to be faced.

Price Administrator Leon Henderson called the tune for this situation before the Small Business Committee of the House, whose chairman is Wright Patman of Texas, Tex. According to Henderson, the profit level reached its peak in March, and from here on smaller profits can be anticipated by business as a whole.

There is no real shortage of goods on the shelves now, as merchants are selling from inventory. But within five or six months shortages will be general. Some 15 additional items probably will be under rationing. If the necessary anti-inflation measures are taken, wages may be under control, though not necessarily frozen. And small business will be up against it, right to the point of being forced out of business.

THE effect of the various limitation orders issued by the War Production Board have been felt principally by manufacturers, and many of them have been able to get war orders or to keep going somehow. So far, all the worrying has been done about the 185,000 manufacturers, 128,500 of them are usually considered small. The two principal metal limitations orders, the second issued only a few days ago, cut off raw materials for the manufacture of some 600 items. Included in this second list were such insignificant items as perfume atomizers, book ends, cigaret lighters, compacts, door stops, finger bowls, jelly molds, letter openers, match boxes, mop wringers, necktie racks, pen holders, and wastebaskets.

Gradually, therefore, the war's effects will be trickling down below the manufacturing level, and when they do the real small businesses will begin to feel it something awful. Small business isn't only these 185,000 manufacturers, but in addition 72,000 wholesalers, 1,614,000 retailers, 438,000 service organizations like laundries and dry cleaning establishments, 300,000 building construction companies, 40,000 places of amusement and 25,000 hotels—a total of some two and three-quarters million business which normally employ over eight million people. What happens to them?

MANY won't be hurt—food wholesalers and retailers, for instance, and the amusement spots and hotels. All will be hit eventually by labor and transportation shortages and the rationing programs. But by and large they'll get by. Where the pinch will hit hardest is on the specialty stores—dealers who have built up a clientele in one principal item. For instance, the 33,000 auto dealers and the 228,000 filling stations. For them, this war is anything but fun, and the service establishments will take it on the chin.

The question is whether all these little businesses should be saved, or should be permitted to go down the drain pipe as casualties of war. Mr. Henderson still leans to the Canadian theory that the deserving cases should be saved by some sort of subsidy.

Not every small business need be saved by subsidy, even if subsidy is adopted. Over 450,000 business enterprises fail anyhow during the course of an average year. The important thing is that the subsidy idea isn't dead and congressmen may listen to this subsidy siren song for a program of business bonodoggery that will beat anything done by WPA in its best leaf-raking day.

Regulations For Hunting In Texas This Season Are Now Outlined

AUSTIN, Tex. — Regulations governing hunting of white-winged doves, mourning doves, waterfowl, geese and coot in Texas were clarified today by the Executive Secretary of the Game Department upon receipt of official copies of the Federal regulations, which often conflict with State laws pertaining to hunting some of these species.

The Legislature as long ago as 1933 gave the Game, Fish and Oyster Commission authority to make laws concerning ducks, geese and coot conform to Federal regulations. The commission at its regular quarterly meeting July 17 assented to the recently issued Federal waterfowl regulations and so there will be no conflicts in laws regarding these species this year, it was pointed out.

But conflicts exist in the dove laws, the Executive Secretary said, principally because the Game Commission has no Legislative authority to reconcile them. The white-winged dove open season this year, according to Federal regulations, will be September 16 to 25, inclusive, thus on the surface giving hunters 10 days of white-winged shooting. It is a fact, however, the Executive Secretary said, that virtually all white-winged doves in Texas concentrate each season in Webb, Starr, Zapata, Hidalgo, Cameron and Willacy Counties, and a special State law applicable to those Counties forbids shooting of white-winged and mourning doves except on Sundays, Tuesdays and Thursdays during the open season, and then only from 12 noon until sunset.

White-winged hunters in this concentration area thus will be allowed their favorite sport this year only on September 17th, 20th, and 22nd and 24th, and between the hours of 12 noon and sunset according to Federal regulations and State law.

Another white-wing country State law makes it unlawful to shoot white-wings or chachalacs between the Rio Grande River and U. S. highway 83 from the Zapata-Starr County line to the west boundary of the City Limits of Brownsville.

Culberson and Hudspeth Counties, in far West Texas, will have no dove season under the provisions of another special law.

Where no special shooting hours are prescribed, white-winged and mourning doves may be taken from 7 a. m. to sunset only, the Executive Secretary said.

Complete dove and waterfowl regulations for Texas this year, after all conflicts have been ironed out, were announced by the Game Department as follows:

SERIAL STORY SPORTING BLOOD

BY HARRY HARRISON KROLL

COPYRIGHT, 1942, NEA SERVICE, INC.

THE STORY: Hunter Dent, who manages wealthy Strickland Ballard's farm, is suspected of being involved in the robbery and murder of a bank messenger, through his protection of Ballard's dispirited son, Junior. Hunter found Junior lying unconscious beside a motor containing $17,000, the amount taken from the messenger. Hunter had put the boy to bed, discovered next day that Junior had not been drunk, but shot and seriously wounded.

Hunter hides the money, next day Sada it goes from a safe to which only he knew the combination. The tires of his car match the tracks of the "death car" which Junior drove and crashed on the stairs, and which Hunter is hiding. But the sheriff examines Hunter's tires. Sada there is no dust on them.

THE PACK GATHERS

SHERIFF ANDERSON folded his camera and dropped it back in the car seat. He continued to eye Hunter in a way the farm manager did not like. He murmured under his breath, "Um-mmmmm," took out a small notebook and wrote things down. Without being so at all he acted in a most disagreeable manner. He repeated the name, "Hunter Dent." He asked, "And your official title is farm manager, that it?" Hunter nodded. The two men drove off. Hunter and Red faced each other.

The afternoon was declining. Hunter had a strange sense of time, as if not hours but weeks and months had elapsed since all this began. Red dropped on the bottom step of the stairs. She talked as if to herself. "It couldn't have been Junior's car. It could not have been Junior. He was in town last night—yes. He came back some time in the night, that's true. But he was with some of the gang every minute. With Hankins Temple, with the Gibbertos, with the twins, with Neal, Bill—it couldn't have been Junior—" She became aware of Hunter's eyes closely upon her. Started out of thinking out loud, she rose. "I guess I'd better be going, Hunter."

She moved toward the house. With a growing uneasiness that he was shielding Junior at the dangerous expense of himself, Hunter returned to the woods. He had said his key was the only one to the old chain-and-lock. That was not true. There were two keys and Junior had the other. He reached the wrecked car. He could not go on lying too long about as big an exhibit as the automobile. When night came he must get in here and haul the car out. He could use the big truck. Where he would secrete the car was another question.

RED was gone when Hunter returned to the house. He asked Warwick, "Where did Miss Bella go?"

"To town, sir, I believe."

A sudden question, which overshadowed all the others, popped into Hunter's mind. Red standing there ruminating, making what amounted to an alibi for her brother. She named all present at the party except herself.

Hunter decided. "One thing seems sure. Red didn't know, couldn't vouch in her own mind, that Junior wasn't mixed in the stick-up, the killing. She suspects. She is afraid. She is beginning to be convinced that I am mixed in it, deeper than any one believes. But because she was not with the gang she can't know for sure, and has no way so far for finding out. Am I stupidly slipping a noose around my own neck?"

Hunter got the paper and read the fairly meager details. A girl and her boy friend were on their way home from the neighborhood where she can't know for sure, and had no way so far for finding out. Am I stupidly slipping a noose around my own neck?

Hunter went through the shrubbery and shadows around the west side of the mansion. Here the low-branched magnolia trees made the dark into ink. He crept up to the window, open to the bland evening. He could see the group. Hankins Temple, the McDougal girls, Mrs. Ballard's brother, Neal Frazier, the Gibbertos twins. Red and her fiance were not present. Frazier was leaning against the mantle, finishing a cigarette. He crushed it out in an ash tray. He was a short but powerful man. A bachelor hurrying into his late 30s, with a pretty westerner belly, he nevertheless had a bulldog face and pugilistic build. He occupied the advantage of being the oldest member of this rather cultish group that made sportsmanship their battle cry.

"I'll wager you the real culprit is not far from where we are," he said. "All of you read the Kiker girl's story in the afternoon paper. Without going into details at this moment, but speaking from some inside dope, which in turn is made up of many small things, I'm willing to lay odds on the killer's being right here. I mean on this place."

There was a hush. He finished. "I'm speaking of Hunter Dent, the manager here."

Your Pay Raise

Has your pay been increased by at least 15 per cent since Jan. 1, 1941? If not, apparently it is the will of the War Labor Board that you should have such a raise.

Nobody who gets four for an answer when he adds two to two, believes that everybody can have a 15 per cent raise without forcing prices through the ceilings which Leon Henderson is trying so hard to maintain.

What of that? If the cost of living goes up another 15 per cent, the War Labor Board will give you another 15 per cent pay raise.

Of course, your wages always lag in such a game of economic follow-the-leader. Prices go up, then wages are adjusted, then prices go up, then wages are adjusted, then—

Then what? Then we have inflation, which New Dealers and Old Dealers agree might be fatal to the American way of life. Since this is almost the only thing on which New Dealers and Old Dealers ever have agreed, it seems reasonable to assume that inflation really is something to be avoided.

It seems to us that the anti-inflationists in Washington ought to get together. President Roosevelt has said:

"Our standard of living will have to come down."

The War Labor Board says its 44-cent a day award to Little Steel employes is designed to protect "their established peacetime standards."

You figure that one out. Who is determining this nation's anti-inflation policy—President Roosevelt, or the War Labor Board he appointed? If it is the WLB, then why?

The argument seems to be between those who favor the virtual freezing of wages and those who favor "stabilization." The 12-letter word apparently means freezing modified by an allowance to those who are definitely underprivileged in their pay checks.

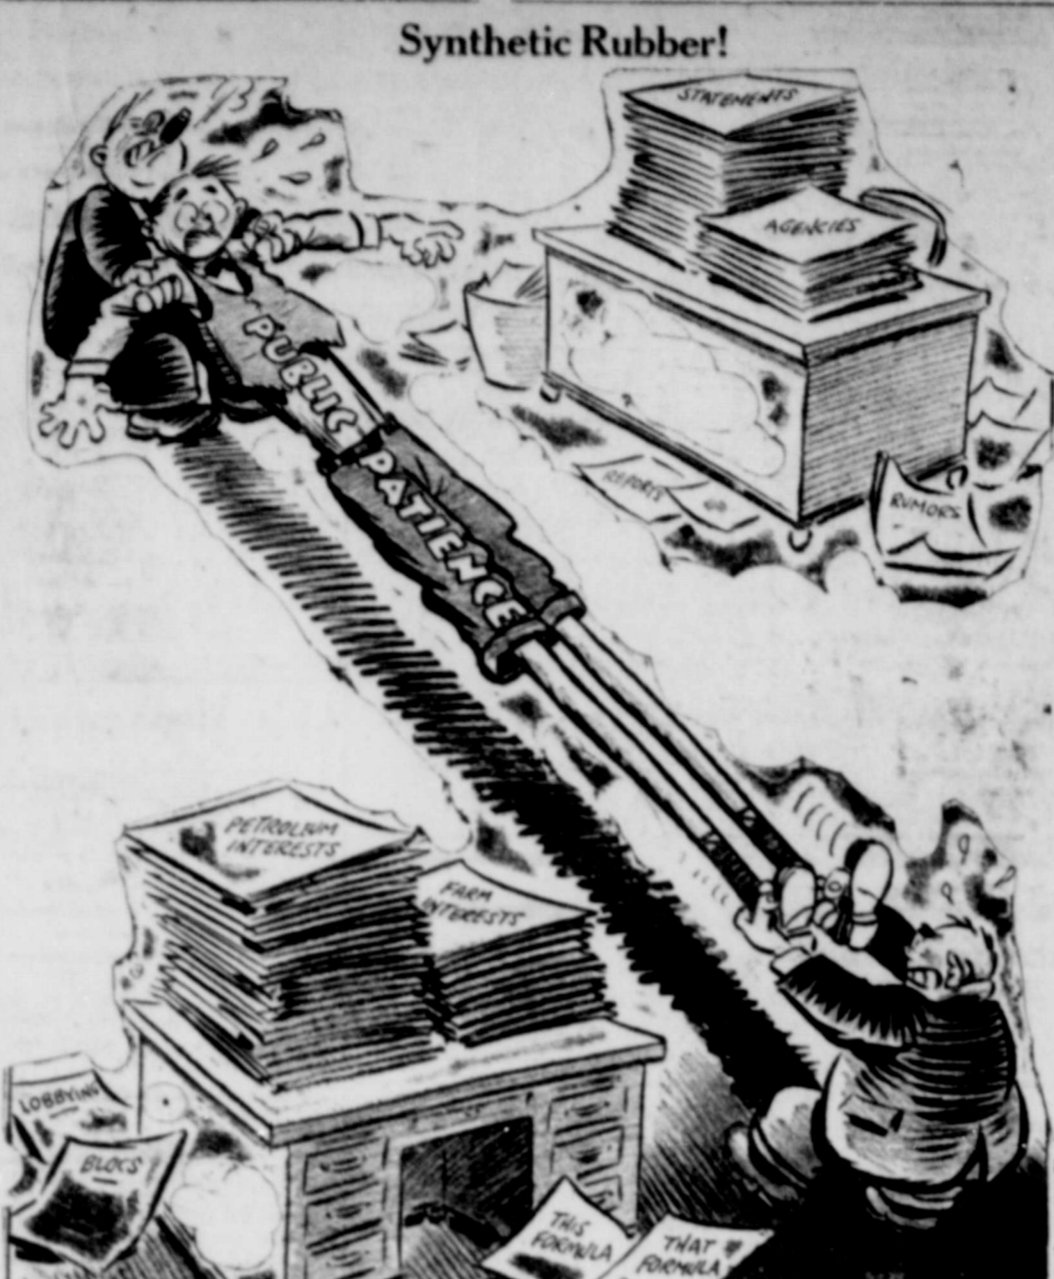

Certainly the Little Steel award is not "stabilization," since it went to one of the highest-paid strata of labor.

The award gave to 157,000 employes of Bethlehem, Inland, Republic and Youngstown a 44-cent a day raise. Inevitably, and quite properly, the CIO asks the same allowance for half a million who do the same work for U. S. Steel and miscellaneous independents.

There seems to be no fair reason why employes of Ford, Chrysler, General Motors, all now seeking raises, should be denied their 15 per cent increment.

If they get theirs, how about you and us and everybody else? Aren't we working for a living too? Haven't our living costs gone up 15 per cent?

What a swell time we're going to have, if the WLB has its way from now on!

BY PETER EDSON
 NEA Service Washington Correspondent

ECONOMICALLY speaking, and from the point of view of the average citizen, the coming winter is going to be the coldest this country has experienced since Valley Forge.

Being a prophet of gloom is not nice work, though it is easy to get in these days of disaster. But this winter outlook is no secret, long-range weather forecast that must be kept from the enemy. It is hard fact that has to be faced.

Price Administrator Leon Henderson called the tune for this situation before the Small Business Committee of the House, whose chairman is Wright Patman of Texas, Tex. According to Henderson, the profit level reached its peak in March, and from here on smaller profits can be anticipated by business as a whole.

There is no real shortage of goods on the shelves now, as merchants are selling from inventory. But within five or six months shortages will be general. Some 15 additional items probably will be under rationing. If the necessary anti-inflation measures are taken, wages may be under control, though not necessarily frozen. And small business will be up against it, right to the point of being forced out of business.

Edson

THE effect of the various limitation orders issued by the War Production Board have been felt principally by manufacturers, and many of them have been able to get war orders or to keep going somehow. So far, all the worrying has been done about the 185,000 manufacturers, 169,000 of whom are usually considered small. The two principal metal limitations orders, the second issued only a few days ago, cut off raw materials for the manufacture of some 600 items. Included in this second list were such insignificant items as perfume atomizers, book ends, cigaret lighters, compact, door stops, finger bowls, jelly molds, letter openers, match boxes, mop wringers, necktie racks, pen holders, and wastebaskets.

Gradually, therefore, the war's effects will be trickling down below the manufacturing level, and when they do the real small businesses will begin to feel it something awful. Small business isn't only these 169,000 manufacturers, but in addition 72,000 wholesalers, 1,514,000 retailers, 438,000 service organizations like laundries, book and dry cleaning establishments, 200,000 building construction companies, 40,000 places of amusement and 25,000 hotels—a total of some two and three-quarters million business which normally employ over eight million people. What happens to them?

MANY won't be hurt—foot wholesalers and retailers, for instance, and the amusement spots.

Appoint Mother As New Life Guard

PHILADELPHIA, Pa. (UP)—One of the last male citadels has been crashed.

The lifeguard, before the war an American institution synonymous with strong men and Johnny Weismuller physiques, is now a lady in Cheltenham township. And not only a lady, but a mother of three children.

Mrs. Marie Anderson, graduate-appointed head life guard following a teacher's college, has been owing completion of Red Cross life-saving courses. Along with her safety duties, Mrs. Anderson will organize water sport competition for children.

NEW YORK—Pennsylvania is now completely surrounded by race tracks—New York, Delaware, Maryland, West Virginia, Ohio, and finally New Jersey.

"What suckers we are," remarked a Philadelphian who returned with us from the Camden opening. "We contribute to the taxes of a half dozen states—furnish a good share of their play. I guess they want to keep Pennsylvania clean and new."

The shore line train which runs right through the parking lot does not serve the new Garden State Park, four miles out of Camden. Special buses are out. You can ride a taxicab from Camden, but not from Philadelphia.

The last of many obstructions was a terrific thunderstorm. But all this did not prevent 31,622 people from charging the windows for a chance to lose their money.

Regulations For Hunting In Texas This Season Are Now Outlined

AUSTIN, Tex. — Regulations governing hunting of white-winged doves, mourning doves, waterfowl, geese and coot in Texas were clarified today by the Executive Secretary of the Game Department upon receipt of official copies of the Federal Regulations, which often conflict with State laws pertaining to hunting some of these species.

The Legislature as long ago as 1933 gave the Game, Fish and Oyster Commission authority to make laws concerning ducks, geese and coot conform to Federal regulations. The commission at its regular quarterly meeting July 17 assented to the recently issued Federal waterfowl regulations, and so there will be no conflicts in laws regarding these species this year, it was pointed out.

But conflicts exist in the dove laws, the Executive Secretary said, principally because the Game Commission has no legislative authority to reconcile them.

The white-winged dove open season this year, according to a Federal regulation, will be September 16 to 25, inclusive, thus on the surface giving hunters 10 days of white-winged shooting. It is a fact, however, the Executive Secretary said, that virtually all white-winged doves in Texas concentrate each season in Webb, Starr, Zapata, Hidalgo, Cameron and Willacy Counties, and a special State law applicable to those Counties forbids shooting of white-winged and mourning doves except on Sundays, Tuesdays and Thursdays during the open season, and then only from 12 noon until sunset.

White-winged hunters in this concentration area thus will be allowed their favorite sport this year only on September 17th, 20th, and 22nd and 24th, between the hours of 12 noon and sunset according to Federal regulations and State law.

Another white-wing country State law makes it unlawful to shoot white-wings or chachalacs between the Rio Grande River and U. S. Highway 83 from the Zapata-Starr County line to the west boundary of the City Limits of Brownsville.

Callerton and Hudspeth Counties, in far West Texas, will have no dove season under the provisions of another special law.

Where no special shooting hours are prescribed, white-winged and mourning doves may be taken from 7 a. m. to sunset only, the Executive Secretary said.

Complete dove and waterfowl regulations for Texas this year, after all conflicts have been ironed out, were announced by the Game Department as follows:

DOVES
Daily Bag Limit—10 a day of either both species in the aggregate. Not more than one day's kill in possession.

Open season for Mourning Doves—

North Zone—September 1 to October 12, inclusive. (North zone is composed of Yoakum, Terry, Lynn Garza, Keat, Stonewall, Haskell, Throckmorton, Young, Palo Pinto, Parker, Johnson, Ellis, Kaufman, Van Zandt, Rains, Hopkins, Franklin and Red River Counties and all Counties north of the Counties named.)

South Zone—September 16 to October 27, inclusive. (South zone includes remainder of State with the exception of Callerton and Hudspeth Counties, which have no open season on doves.)

DUCKS, GEESE, COOT
Open season—November 2 to January 10, both days inclusive. Shooting hours—sunrise to sunset.

Bag Limit—10 a day. Possession limited to 20, including not more than six singly or in the aggregate of redheads and buffbreeds, not more than one wood duck.

Coot—25 a day or in possession. Geese—Two in a day but in addition to other geese four blue geese may be taken. If only blue geese are taken, six may be taken in one day. Possession is limited to two day's legal kill.

Warning—Not more than one day's limit of ducks and or geese may be possessed on opening day. Ducks, geese and coot may be possessed for only 30 days after the close of the season.

SERIAL STORY SPORTING BLOOD

BY HARRY HARRISON KROLL

COPYRIGHT, 1942, NEA SERVICE, INC.

THE STORY: Hunter Dent, who manages the Strickland Hall farm, is suspected of being involved in the robbery and murder of a bank messenger, through his protection of Hall's disreputable son, Junior. Hunter found Junior lying senseless inside a machine containing $17,000, the amount taken from the messenger. Hunter had put the boy to bed, discovered next day that Junior had not been drunk, but shot and seriously wounded.

THE PACK GATHERS

CHAPTER VI

SHERIFF ANDERSON folded his camera and dropped it back in the car seat. He continued to eye Hunter in a way the farm manager did not like. He murmured under his breath, "Um-mmm," took out a small notebook and wrote things down. Without being so at all he acted in a most disagreeable manner. He repeated the name, "Hunter Dent." He asked, "And your official title is farm manager, that is?" Hunter nodded. The two men drove off. Hunter and Red faced each other.

and haul the car out. He could use the big truck. Where he would secrete the car was another question.

RED was gone when Hunter returned to the house. He asked Warwick, "Where did Miss Della go?"

"To town, sir, I believe."

A sudden question, which overshadowed all the others, popped into Hunter's mind. Red standing there ruminating, making what amounted to an alibi for his brother. She named him present at the party except herself.

Hunter decided, "One thing seems sure. Red didn't know, couldn't vouch in her own mind, that Junior wasn't mixed in the stick-up, the killing. She suspects. She is afraid. She is beginning to be convinced that I am mixed in it, deeper than any one believes. But because she was not with the gang she can't know for sure, and has no way so far for finding out. Am I stupidly slipping a noose around my own neck?"

Hunter got the paper and read the fairly meager details. A girl and her boy friend were on their way home from the neighborhood picture show not far from the river front about midnight. This region of town was of fairly ill repute. Old frame houses, sorry little corner stores, dark stairways where dangerous characters lurked. The couple heard cries, shouts, a string of oaths, and some pistol shots. They darted into a dark doorway. A young man with hat drawn low over his face walked and ran past. He had something under his arm. Later it proved to be the leather bag with the money. Or that was the supposition. Another young man, in tails and silk hat, came along. He had a gun. He was running pretty fast after the young man ahead. He shouted, "Hey, stick 'em up!" It all happened so fast the couple hardly knew just how the details came. Anyway, there seemed to be two more people. Men. They just appeared. From nowhere, it would seem. The shots came fast now. When the girl screamed her boy friend clasped his hand to her mouth, telling her to keep it shut. They didn't want to get mixed in what was going on. So the rest of the doings were blurred. She didn't see the two again. The man in tails after shooting once seemed to have disappeared. She could hear running steps. The echoes jumped up and down in the cobble street. Then the police showed up and by that time the bank messenger, as he later proved to be, was lying in the middle of the narrow street, shot. The bag was gone. The girl and her boy friend couldn't run. The boy friend, however, escaped by running up the dark stairs and not coming to her rescue when the police nabbed her. The name was Sarah Kiker, and she worked part time at the munitions plant.

That was the jumbled story of an eye-witness. Sarah Kiker now was in jail. She declined to divulge the identity of her friend.

HUNTER went down to the barn. The time was almost dusk. He had to get Junior's car out, but what he would do with it afterward he could hardly think. He could put it temporarily here in the barn. He got out the heavy truck, some chains, and made ready for the wrecking job.

He ate supper. There was a small dining room attached to the servants' quarters for his use. By the time he was ready to attack the job in the woods cars bearing the guests were arriving. Hunter went out and stood in the shadows, so slashing headlights would not readily show him watching. The crowd was quiet. They entered the house without much talk and no laughter at all. Red didn't seem to be about. It struck Hunter with an ominous portent that he might be included in the topics to be discussed; for there was no question their purpose was with Junior.

Hunter went through the shrubbery and shadows around the west side of the mansion. Here the low-branched magnolia trees made the dark into ink. He crept up to the window, open to the bland evening. He could see the group. Hankins Temple, the McDougal girl, Mrs. Ballard's brother, Neal Frazier, the Gihbario twins. Red and her fiancé were not present. Frazier was leaning against the mantle, finishing a cigarette. He crushed it out in an ash tray. He was a short but powerful man. A bachelor hurrying into his late 30s, with a pretty watermelon belly, he nevertheless had a bulldog face and pugilistic build. He occupied the advantage of being the oldest member of this rather cultish group that made sportsmanship their battle cry.

"I'll wager you the real culprit is not far from where we are," he said. "All of you read the Kiker girl's story in the afternoon paper. Without going into details at this moment, but speaking from some inside dope, which in turn is made up of many small things, I'm willing to lay odds on the killer's being right here. There was a hush. He finished. "In speaking of Hunter Dent, the manager here."

Farmers Are Asked To Watch Dairy Product Quality

The government is gratified by the manner in which farmers have responded to its call for increased production of dairy products but is disturbed by the quality of some of these products, advices received by the Ranger, Eastland County News indicate.

"Too little and too late" will never be said of the efforts of the dairy farmers in the past year, according to T. G. Stitts, chief of the dairy and poultry division of the Agricultural Marketing Administration. In the case of almost all dairy products he has delivered a plenty, and right on schedule, too, he states.

On the other hand, J. O. Clarke, Chief of the Central district of the Food and Drug Administration, has served notice that war conditions, far from leading to relaxation in the vigilance and enforcement activities of his division will probably bring closer watchfulness over all who produce, handle and distribute the food for our citizens, our armed forces and our allies.

Fats are of particular importance, with shortages existing or impending, and butter, as one of the vitally necessary foods, is in for special attention. In normal times, Mr. Clarke points out, inspections were made chiefly of the finished product, but now that we are at war, and all steps deemed necessary to prevent the waste of food that results from poor quality must and will be taken.

Back of each instance of contaminated butter, says Mr. Clarke, almost invariably it will be found that the cream from which it was made had spoiled because something was wrong, or something was left undone, along the farm production line. The law covering the production, sale and handling of food has teeth in it—teeth designed to deal alike with the careless, negligent producer of unfit cream and the manufacturer who puts bad butter into the channels of commerce—and the Food and Drug Administration will not hesitate to use them.

Cream that has been allowed to spoil cannot be made good again, and to avoid a possible run-in with the law, state or federal, the farmer must make clean milk, rather than cleaned milk, his goal, according to Clarke. Particular care must be taken to prevent particles of any kind from dropping into the milk or cream, during milking or separation or while being held on the farm. While much of the foreign matter which may enter can be strained out of the milk, the full wholesomeness of an exceptionally delicate food product, once harmed, can never be wholly restored.

The days of the poor cream producer are numbered, Mr. Clarke believes, because more and more creameries are learning the wisdom of buying cream on grade and rejecting any that is unfit. He suggests this simple test for farmers wishing to check on the quality of their cream even before it leaves the farm: If you taste it and want to swallow it, that's good cream; if you taste it and spit it out, that's poor cream; if you won't even taste it, that's bad cream. Ultimately the producer and the buyer of bad cream but even those who produce or buy the doubtful product are on pretty dangerous ground.

The great live oak near Lamar Akansas County, is frequently referred to as the largest tree in Texas. Its trunk two feet above crown roots has a circumference of 29 feet, six inches. Maximum spread of limbs is 102 feet. It is known as the Lamar Oak and also as the Taylor Oak, from General Zachary Taylor who camped under it during the Mexican War.

TIRE WEAR CAUSED BY MIS-ALIGNED BRAKES

Not only is it extremely dangerous to drive a car with faulty brakes, but it causes unnatural wear on precious tires. It's a simple and inexpensive job to line brakes up properly, but it's a job you should trust to an expert.

You probably don't think the members of your family can be weighed like sugar or salt, but you must have a pretty high value for each and every one of them.
