Home Fires

The eastern states—the same 17 plus the District of Columbia which have been experimenting with gasoline rationing—are looking forward to a cold winter.

Just as it has been found impossible to supply their motorists with automobile fuel, because of transportation difficulties, so it is going to be impossible to provide sufficient fuel for their oil burners.

There is no "wolf, wolf" in the warnings that are being broadcast. If there were, the nation's largest petroleum company would not have substituted coal equipment in place of oil burning.

Unfortunately, changes have been coming thick and fast, interspersed with just enough false alarms so that the eastern public is a bit apathetic. There is a general and dangerous tendency for the home owner to let the matter of next winter's fuel drift, in hope that, rather than see the public suffer, government will find some rabbit to pull out of the hat.

During January and February, in the eastern area, ordinarily 1,130,000 barrels a day of fuel oil are burned. The best that is forecast for the coming winter is 791,000 barrels a day. Obviously this leaves a shortage of about 340,000 barrels a day, or approximately one-third of the normal usage.

Much fuel oil is used industrially. So the reduction to householders may exceed one-third of what they have been using.

This has been reiterated time after time, and still householders neglect to do anything in preparation.

Some 400,000 of them have furnaces originally built for coal but converted to oil. About all these would need to do is have the oil burners removed and grates installed.

The government is going out of its way to permit the manufacture of grates for this purpose, from metal needed elsewhere. The Federal Reserve Board has made an exception liberalizing credit restrictions, to help householders finance the conversion from oil to coal and also to cover the cost of weather-stripping, insulation and other fuel-saving devices.

That, probably, is about all the government can do. Uncle Sam can hardly be expected to provide the conversion free, or to send his workmen to do the job.

And even now, we retain more civilian comforts and conveniences than most peoples possessed before they began giving up bread for guns.

Eddie Mahan, Ex-Harvard Grid Star, Says Long War Will Likely Make Many Changes In Football

By RAY WARWICK United Press Staff Correspondent JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UP)—Big money college football may give way to football "played for fun" if the war lasts long. Harvard's legendary Eddie Mahan predicted today. "The longer the war lasts the more it will hurt present-day football," he said. "If it goes on three or four years, then maybe football will be a pastime as it should be—a game played for fun." Mahan's fame has never faded at Harvard, where he played fullback on the varsity teams of '13, '14 and '15 and made Walter Camp's All-American three straight years. As Lt. Comdr. Edward W. Mahan he is on duty at the Jacksonville Naval Air Station. Mahan was reluctant to talk of his gridiron exploits, but eager to talk about football past and present. The game is fundamentally the same, he said, although passing has "opened up a lot." Linemen are bigger and heavier, but he believes the collegelienmen of today do not take full advantage of using their hands on defense. "In the old days a lineman would take maybe a half-step forward when the ball was snapped and hold back his man with the but of his hand. It gave him time to look around and see where the ball was going, instead of charging right in and maybe getting caught in a mousetrap." And it seems to him the players worked harder in his playing days—longer anyway. "There was no such thing as playing ten minutes and then getting relief. You were in there to stay. And there wasn't so much time between plays." Mahan mourns the passing of the dropkick. "They've legislated the foot out of football," he said regretfully. The placekick is easier, he agreed, but added that "you get a higher trajectory with the dropkick." However, with the goal posts further back this is not so important, he said. Mahan hopes the war may change football into what might be called a "more democratic" sport—a game to be played by many instead of "just a business" played by a few and watched by hundreds of thousands. Physical fitness is what Mahan seems most interested in—programs of athletic in the schools. "Most intramural programs today are just a joke," he said. "The educators insist on too much time for classes and there's no time left for athletics. Students ought to get in the habit of regular exercise, of changing their clothes and taking a shower, just like the athletes. It won't take away from their education—it will add to it."

Drummer Waltzes With A Princess

LONDON (UP)—There was a Princess in the dance hall, and there was a Drummer. The band struck up a waltz. Before he realized it the drummer had got up, walked across the floor toward the Princess, and was dancing with her in his arms. Just like that. The drummer was Reggie Benstead, 26, of the Grand Ole Opry. His dancing partner was Princess Elizabeth, who, as a Colonel in the Grenadiers, had just finished an inspection. "It all happened so quickly. I did not realize what I had done until I found myself with the Princess in my arms," said Drummer Benstead. "As we started off, Princess Elizabeth said to me, 'I'm afraid I am not very good at the waltz.' But I soon found she was a wonderful dancer and much better than me. "She seemed quite ready to talk, but somehow I could not think of anything to say. She must have thought I was a bit dumb, but I was still a bit scared by what I had done. "At the end of the waltz she said, 'well, I had better go now and dance with the Captain.' "The other fellows have been pulling my leg a bit, but most of them are envious. And I'll say I'm proud I shall remember it all my life."

Edson

BY PETER EDSON NEA Service Washington Correspondent THIS one is open to argument, but the question is whether the U. S. is doing itself more harm than good by spreading broadside propaganda lies which the axis short wave medicine men capocet and hope people will swallow. The way it works now, practically nobody listens to foreign shortwave broadcasts except the people who get paid for it. There's usually so much static that it isn't fit to listen to and, under good receptive conditions, listening in on European stations becomes a once-in-a-while fad. People listen in on Lord Haw Haw and his succession of American counterparts now performing over the German station Debutant, not to be informed but for a good laugh. Consequently, does it do any good to pick up the mouthings of these cute misinformation specialists, report them as government handouts, then broadcast them through the press and over the standard wave radio? The Federal Communications Commission's Foreign Broadcast Monitoring Service now listens in on and records all these enemy radio stations. The transcript of all these words is run through a duplicating machine daily, and the gathered sheets make a book half an inch thick. It would take three or four hours to read it if any busy little government official had that much time. So a digest is made in which can be read in half an hour or so. So in various U. S. government departments men are assigned to study these reports and pick out the items that may be of interest to their chiefs, whether they be generals, co-ordinators, or associated assistant secretaries. The foreign radio being notorious for its inaccuracies and deliberate lies, these studies make the most complete analysis of misinformation ever made by man. What good does it do? Well, a kind of game has been evolved. Propaganda analysis experts who only a few months ago were probably respectable newspaper men, sit around behind their horn rims trying to figure out why the German radio took time to vigorously deny that cooking fats are being produced from the corpses of air raid victims in bombed cities. It doesn't stop there. A press release is prepared on this item, and it is spread through the newspapers and over the radio. Or if the German radio has told some nasty lie about the U. S. it is promptly and officially denied, and the denial is given more publicity than the original lie would ever have received. The theory behind this was that even though the original lie may not have received wide attention, the fact that it may have been planted anywhere made it necessary to spike the lie before it was spread further—by the would have to be a private matter. Maybe only Hankins and his father, and the parties who were to get the money, know about the business. Hank didn't mean, perhaps, to let it slip. But it was between friends. All right. The gang is there, hears, and Hank has to go. They make their wagers. Suppose, just as a hypothesis, the Ghibarto twins make a wager no one there could intercept the messenger and take that roll off him. Or it could have been any one else present who bet. Junior, with a little too much under his belt as usual, took the bet up. The party broke. Hankins Temple dispatched the money by the messenger. The time was not far from midnight. Why the money had to move at such an hour, and in such a way, is not easy to explain unless you consider another thing or two.

Plants Ahead of Schedule Have To Mark Time

BY S. BURTON HEATH NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON.—The nation's steel picture has changed greatly during the past few weeks. Little more than a month ago, both private and Government agencies agreed that our ingot-producing capacity was ample. The only bottleneck was in the intermediate fabrication of steel, notably into plate and structures. (Continued on page 4.)

Molten steel pour: Into ingot molds—but not fast enough to keep up with the speed of America's war production.

WPB Allotments "Rob Peter to Give Paul Steel"

BY S. BURTON HEATH NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON.—The War Production Administration has decided to cancel the Higgins contract. That is why, from time to time, one hears of shipyards laying off men, though we need every type of ship so badly. That is why, in this shipping crisis, the Maritime Commission had to cancel the Higgins contract.

WPB RECOMMENDS BIG STEEL INCREASE

And this is why, after a survey, the WPB has recommended expanding the steel ingot capacity to 28,279,970 tons by the middle of 1945, an increase of 9,710,000 tons above the present rated capacity.

This represents substantially less than the expansion originally approved last September. It has been reviewed carefully to permit giving as much critical material as possible.

Steel expansion uses plates and structural forms—which are needed also for building ships, among other things. Whenever a new bottleneck threatens, the WPB has to consider whether the material required for a plant to break that bottleneck can be spared from the immediate war production.

In other words, often the WPB has to choose between a ship now, planes now, guns now, tanks now—to keep Hitler from winning the war before we are ready—and ships, planes, tanks and guns in 1943 or 1944 or 1945.

In addition to this difficulty, arising out of the efficiency of American mass production, there is a further fundamental problem which probably never can be solved fully.

From day to day, from week to week and from month to month the world war situation changes, because of developments controlled by Axis successes, usually, and occasionally reverses.

STEEL DEMANDS ARE FLUCTUATING

One week the situation may make ships more important than anything else, as in the long run, they are. Another week, however, there may be pressure for a lot of medium tanks in a hurry, or a lot of planes, or many guns or much ammunition.

Production emphasis must be shifted to meet these situations. As emphasis shifts, allotments must be changed.

Needs For Cargo Space Stops Toys For Canal Zone

BALBOA, Canal Zone (UP)—Christmas this year will not be a very gay time for youngsters in the Canal Zone.

This month the commissary division, which operates the United States government-controlled department stores for employes on government construction projects in the zone, issued an early warning that no toys, ornaments, lights or large Christmas trees will be brought to the Isthmus this year.

The bulletin, signed by V. T. Corwell, acting general manager, said: "For the purpose of conserving valuable cargo space, no toys, trees larger than table size, ornaments, lights or other Christmas decorations will be sold by the commissary division during the coming Christmas season. Greeting cards, wrapping paper, seals and ribbon are available however."

The warning was issued at this early date because it will take several months for Isthmian residents to receive orders for Christmas gifts placed in the United States due to postal restrictions on size, weight, and number of packages which may be received by any one person in a single week.

PROMOTOR OF STAMFORD RODEO TO CONSIDER A RODEO HERE SEPT. 7-9

Bill Lyons of Petrolia, who has staged the annual rodeo in connection with the Cow Boy Reunion and Rodeo at Stamford, and who furnishes stock for that event, will confer with Ranger business men Monday morning at 10 o'clock, about staging a rodeo here Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, Sept. 7, 8, and 9.

Lyons is staging the rodeo at Breckenridge this week and will furnish the stock for the rodeo at Mineral Wells prior to Labor Day, it was stated here today.

Lyons wants to meet with as many Ranger people as possible at the meeting Monday morning in order that all details of the annual event may be discussed.

Lyons stated at Breckenridge Thursday, where he was interviewed by Pheas E. Moore, secretary of the Ranger Chamber of Commerce, that he would have the same stock used in Stamford available for the Ranger Labor Day Rodeo. He has two bunches of stock, so that the same animals are not used two days in succession, but are alternated in order that they will be fresh for each performance.

Dr. P. M. Kaykendall, chairman of the local rodeo committee, has urged that everyone who can attend the meeting Monday morning, in order that they may take part in all discussions pertaining to the rodeo, and to have first-hand information about all matters to be discussed at the meeting.

Mrs. Thomas who has made her home in Ranger for a number of years is a graduate of Ranger High school and Mr. Thomas is a graduate of the Strawn schools and of Texas A. & M. College. He is now vocational agriculture teacher at Peacock.

Official U. S. Treasury War Bond Quotas for August

Washington, D. C., August 5.—While maintaining a tentative annual level of twelve billion dollars as its goal, the Treasury Department today fixed the August quota for the sale of War Bonds at $815,000,000 as shown by the accompanying map by states.

In lowering the quota from a billion dollars in July to $815,000,000 in August, the Treasury has given recognition to certain factors which may be expected to result in variations in sales over the 12-month period, such as the seasonal character of farm income.

These factors have been taken into account in determining each state's share for the national quota for August and will be given consideration in fixing quotas for subsequent months.

In addition to the state quotas as set out in the map there is a federal payroll allotment quota of $9,750,000 and territorial quotas as follows: Alaska, $700,000; Canal Zone, $215,000; Hawaii, $4,800,000; Puerto Rico, $440,000, and the Virgin Islands, $17,000.

WAYNESVILLE, N. C., (AP)—Each of the 125,000 red spruce and balsam trees in the North Carolina Confederate Memorial Forest near here will stand as a living memorial to one of the soldiers furnished by this State to the Confederacy.

A tract of 125,000 acres in Pisces National Forest has been leased from the federal government and dedicated by the North Carolina Daughters of the Confederacy. About half the memorial trees have been planted and the rest will be set this fall and winter. Many of them will bear individual markers memorializing certain soldiers, and a bronze tablet will mark the entrance to the memorial reservation.

The nation's auto "gravytrain" is expected to yield 4,500,000 tons of scrap this year for the war effort. In May, 383,000 tons of scrap were shipped from wrecker's yards, which was 10 per cent more than April shipments and 100 per cent greater than the average monthly recovery during 1941.

Need For Special College Courses Being Stressed

Dr. G. C. Baerwell, president of Ranger Junior College, in announcing special courses to qualify young men and women to meet the demand for specialized workers, today issued the following statement concerning the courses and the need for them at this time.

"Every young person should avail himself of the opportunity of attending college this year for the American nation is needing specialized workers in shorthand, typing, medical corps, first aid, nursing methods, background of American life, trigonometry, physics, chemistry, mathematics, a language, mechanical drawing, civil engineering courses, biology, sociology, accounting, office practice, economics, government and a number of other allied courses.

"All of the above courses and many more are offered by Ranger Junior College. There is a splendid opportunity for young people who have the determination, who have the will power and who expect to get "on top" so to speak, but it is going to take education, personal work, guidance and a good understanding of psychology because there are a number of excellent positions available.

"Young men and young women, why not prepare to meet the demands of your country?"

Runaway Causes No Damage And No Excitement

What was perhaps the first runaway in Ranger in many years occurred this morning, without causing either damage or excitement.

The mule team which pulls the city-operated trash wagon staged a short, and unscoring runaway down the alley between Pine and Elm streets, when the driver left the wagon for a few minutes to pick up trash behind the NYA metal shop.

The mules started up at a rapid clip, but soon lost their enthusiasm, and by the time the wagon reached South Austin street they had slowed to a fast trot. The wagon barely missed a light pole on the corner of South Austin and the alley, and the team stopped behind the fire station, where the driver overtook them.
