Labor Day Not To Halt Shipbuilding On Navy Vessels

NEW ORLEANS, La., Sept. 3.—Six ships for the U. S. Navy to promote the cause of the Allied Nations will be either launched or the keels laid on September 7, Labor Day, in the Eighth Naval District. It was announced by the Public Relations Office today.

The Navy is cooperating with government agencies and with labor management to make Labor Day an inspiring occasion in the war production program. While brief ceremonies will be held in shipyards in the District where launching will take place, the yards will be open for work on Labor Day. The theme "Free Labor Will Win" has been adopted to show the broad meaning and wider purpose of this historic Labor Day and to emphasize the work and opportunity of free labor in the fight against the Axis.

In the Eighth Naval District there will be four launchings and two keel layings. The activity and shipyard location where these events will take place are:

Keel laying and launching at the Higgins Industries, New Orleans, Louisiana.

Launching at the Westgard Boat Works, Biloxi, Miss.

Launching at the Gulf Shipbuilding Corp., Chickasaw, Alabama.

Launching and keel laying at the Nashville Bridge Co., Nashville, Tennessee.

WPB Gives Scrap Producers Merit Award To Pullman

H. Pullman, manager of the Eastland Iron and Metal Company, scrap dealer, has received the first War Production Board Scrap Producer Merit Award ever made in this part of Texas and is one of the 14 dealers out of 215 in Texas who have been cited for his shipping scrap tonnage for the benefit of the war effort.

Presentation of the award was made by C. E. Stewart, salvage inspector for the War Production Board's Automobile Graveyard Section. "The Eastland Iron and Metal Company has demonstrated its ability to accelerate movement of scrap to the Nation's steel mills and foundries at a time when the need was never greater," Stewart said.

Stewart said that steel production was at an all-time high but mill scrap stocks are extremely low. He said 17,000,000 additional tons of scrap must be made available to steel mills during the latter part of 1942 than was consumed during the first six months of the year. This tremendous tonnage, he added, must flow through scrap dealer yards to be prepared, graded and cut to specification before shipment to steel mills.

Pullman said he was extremely grateful that his firm and its organization had been selected for this first WPB award for meritorious scrap collections and shipments. "We shall continue to do our share in the prosecution of the war effort," he said.

Cash Income of Texas Farmers is Still on Increase

AUSTIN, Tex.—Cash income for Texas farmers continues to surpass that of a year ago, the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research reports.

Receipts for farm commodities for the first seven months of 1942 total $334,942,000, as compared with $206,979,000 for the similar period of 1941, the Bureau's report shows.

Index of agricultural income for July stood at 148.1, or 48.4 per cent above the average for July for the five-year period 1928-32. This index compares with a mere 85.5 for July a year ago.

Increases over last year were recorded in every section of the state.

Justice of Peace Accidently Takes Golf Pro Rating

BEEVILLE, Tex. (UP)—I. N. Booths, justice of the peace here, lost his amateur golf standing recently. Technically, it will be three years before he again becomes an "amateur."

Judge Booths, who has been "off his game" for quite a while and had "given the darn stuff up," was lounging around the course a recent Sunday afternoon.

A former fellow-golfer, C. I. Roberts saw the judge and asked why, if he had given up golf, was he hanging around the course.

"Oh, I'm not going to play," the judge responded, "I'm just going to cadly."

Roberts hired him for the afternoon.

Shortly after they moved off the first green, rain poured down from almost clear skies. The men took shelter under a tree.

The judge demanded his caddy fee—whether or not his friend Roberts completed his game. Roberts paid off.

But Roberts, checking rule books, discovered that the judge accepted a fee on the course, qualifies as a professional.

The judge had no comment.

Quarter of Million Texans are in the U. S. Armed Forces

AUSTIN, Tex.—Texans in the Armed Forces now number almost a quarter of a million, Governor Coke Stevenson was advised today by Brigadier General J. Watt Page, the Adjutant General of Texas.

Texas has more volunteers in the Armed Forces than any other state.

As of August 15, 1942, Texas had 140,000 volunteers, with 100,000 not volunteers who were inducted through Selective Service, making a total of 240,000 Texans in the Armed Forces.

The License Examiners, who play a vital part in keeping down costly accidents that sap the state's productive and economic strength, will report to Camp Mabey Sept. 7 to begin a two-week training school devoted entirely to examination work. There is sufficient time, Garrison said, to give them the full seven-week State Police training course.

Applications now are being taken from prospective Highway Patrolmen. A statewide examination will be held soon in each of the 12 Highway Patrol District headquarters. On Nov. 1 70 top-ranking applicants will begin their strenuous seven week training course at Camp Mabey.

Peace-time requirements for Patrol applicants are still in force, Garrison noted, "because a lot of this war is being fought on the home front, and we've got to have capable men."

Applicants must be between 22 and 35 years old and not less than five feet eight inches of height at time of appointment, have a high school education or its equivalent, and be able to pass strict physical, mental and moral scrutiny.

Application forms are available by writing Col. Homer Garrison, Director, Department of Public Safety, Austin.

Governor is Proud Of Rotary Record

AUSTIN, Tex. (UP)—Gov. Coke R. Stevenson, a Rotarian, is proud of his attendance record at Rotary meetings but he never was happier to attend one than this week's session of the Austin Rotary Club.

Just before noon on a Rotary Day, a Federal Welfare representative gained access to the Governor's office and began telling him of a plan to ration babies.

She said some women raising babies are not fit for motherhood.

The governor listened until there was a momentary pause in the one-sided conversation.

Then he asked to be excused. He explained that he had to attend a Rotary meeting.

He didn't remember her name except that she was a "Miss."

War Cuts Supply of Creamery Butter

AUSTIN, Tex.—If creamery butter is harder to get than it was last year, you can blame it on the war.

The demand for fluid milk by army camps has cut into the production of creamery butter in Texas, the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research reported recently. July production of butter declined 18.6 per cent from the mark set in July, 1941.

This drop in conversion of milk into manufactured dairy products is explained by the increasing demands for fluid milk by Texas military bases, declared Dr. P. A. Buchel, associate director of the Bureau. The total amount of milk used for manufactured products in July was approximately 9 million pounds less than the amount used a year ago, he reported.

TAX BILL TO FORCE SAVING IS SUGGESTED

WASHINGTON, D. C. (UP)—Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, Jr., today recommended a two-point revenue program designed to draw $6,500,000 more into the treasury annually—$2,000,000,000 of it as a tax and the remainder to be repaid to individuals after the war is over.

The new plan would make the tax bill total about $11,770,000,000.

Morgenthau and the Treasury Department's general counsel, Randolph Paul, asked the senate finance committee to add these features to the house-approved tax bill for 1942.

1. Tax on consumer spending, beginning at 10 per cent, which would reach into the lowest income group above the level of bare subsistence income and provide a high penalty rate for luxury spending.

This would be in addition to income taxes. Part of this spending would be returned after the war, this would amount to enforced savings.

2. A further lowering of exemptions from income tax applying to family income.

Cattle Shipments Continue to Climb

AUSTIN, Tex.—Shipments of Texas livestock to market during July continued to climb, as 6,067 cars moved, compared to 4,847 in July of last year, the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research reports.

Shipments for the first seven months of 1942 totaled 51,107, as compared with 41,029 for the similar period of 1941.

Railroad Revenue From Petroleum Is Up 55 per cent

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Emergency movement of crude oil and petroleum products to the East Coast by railroad tank car to offset the lack of tank ship transportation is reflected in greatly increased rail revenues in the first three months of 1942.

Freight revenues from petroleum in this period, which was sometimes before the peak movement was attained, already showed an increase of 55 per cent compared with the same period of 1941, reports of the Interstate Commerce Commission reveal.

Total railroad revenues from crude oil and petroleum products in the first quarter of 1942 amounted to $80,722,729, or more than 14 per cent of all railroad freight revenues. This compares with first-quarter 1941 receipts of $52,188,299 from petroleum.

Petroleum products, exclusive of crude oil and asphalt, paid more than one-third of the total railroad revenue from all manufactured products.

The greatest increase was in the movement of crude oil, revenue from which jumped from $1,957,145 in the first three months of 1941 to $15,015,991 in 1942.

Every classification of petroleum products, however, contributed to the increase in railroad revenues. Light petroleum products, including gasoline paid more than $35,000,000, against $29,000,000 last year; fuel oils, almost $19,000,000, compared with $12,400,000; lubricants, $9,000,000 against $5,500,000.

That the shortage of tank-ship transportation to the East Coast was responsible for most of the 1942 increase is obvious. In New England region, for example, the first quarter of 1941 brought a revenue of only $108 from the movement of crude oil, in the same period of 1942, crude oil revenues amounted to $309,282.

In the Eastern District, 1941 first quarter revenues from crude oil were $302,647, compared with $7,995,587 in 1942.

Since the railroad movement of petroleum to the East Coast increased tremendously after the first quarter, and is still growing, it is certain that petroleum revenues will make up a huge part of total 1942 railroad freight receipts.

No Man Can Do Everything

President Roosevelt deserves credit for the zeal with which he has tried to supervise everything connected with the prosecution of this war.

Unfortunately, utter sincerity and unswerving devotion are not enough to transform an almost pacifistic economy into the world's most powerful military machine.

That transformation requires the exercise of technical industrial skill which can be acquired only by operating successfully huge factories such as are this nation's pride.

It calls for the application of financial principles which can be learned only by dealing successfully with large-scale fiscal problems.

It involves the juggling of raw materials which no American ever has had to learn, but with which executives of the more complicated industrial plants have had most experience.

It necessitates the ingenious utilization of overworked transportation facilities, which brilliant men devote their lives to attempting to master.

It depends upon planning and training, along purely military lines, which in the face of such an enemy as Germany can be desperately perilous unless they are tempered with caution born of experience.

In all of these things we shall fail unless we act with daring, vision, imagination and a large measure of iconoclastic scorn for tradition. But in all we shall fail, also, unless we draw upon sound experience to avoid hopeless experimentation that can only waste time, money, materials and lives.

We need somebody to say: This has never been done; we do not know how to do it; but if it were done, it would help to win the war.

We need somebody else to say: Find out how it can be done, and then do it.

And we need still another somebody—a multitudinously collective somebody—to do it.

Thus far the President has insisted upon being the fountain-head of all authority in each of these subdivisions.

Mr. Roosevelt should adopt the policy of all successful men this country possesses. He should delegate authority to the best men this country possesses. He should give them carte blanche, within the broadest of directives. He should hold them responsible for only one thing: Results.

Don't get the impression that because the U. S. Marines mopped up in the Solomons they're a bunch of scrubs.

Maybe it's only natural that blood relations usually are the ones who bleed you.

It isn't what the waves are saying anymore—it's what a swell job the WAVES are doing.

NO football coach ever switched players around like Frank Leahy of Notre Dame.

Last fall, among other changes, he transferred Bernie Crimmins from fullback to guard, Harry Wright from guard to blocking quarterback and Wally Ziemba from tackle to center.

The Irish were undefeated, as you may recall, and Leahy tagged Crimmins his most valuable man despite the player's totally strange surroundings.

Now Leahy is at it again. Bob Dove, All-America end of 1941, will be at left guard. At right guard will be Harry the Horse Wright, the former guard who performed at quarterback last trip.

These changes stress the importance Leahy places on downfield blocking speed.

To make even better use of Angelo Bertelli's remarkable passing, Leahy is staking his reputation and Coach Beed's chances on a change-back from the traditional Notre Dame shift to the T, which was used in the early days of Knute Rockne and by Rock's tutor, Jess Harper.

Because his running and blocking doesn't come close to matching his pitching, Tailback Bertelli of 1941 will be at quarterback as a junior, feeding the ball to other backs and tossing forward and lateral passes. Dippy Evans will be back at left half, having been at fullback last season, where he led the Irish in rushing and scoring.

THE PLAYERS OF THE UNFINISHED FOOTBALL COACH is to fit his style of play to his personnel.

Frank Leahy doesn't hesitate to play his cards.

FACED with playing a Washington club that reminds Walter Johnson of those he pitched for, the great Yankees had to call on baseball's Forgotten Man to make a respectable showing for Army and Navy Relief.

Babe Ruth was the principal attraction that pulled 69,136 paid admissions into the Yankee Stadium he made possible.

Although fat and 47, Ruth put on a typical Ruthian performance with a couple into the stands.

It perhaps was the final chapter of the most fabulous career in the history of the sport.

To me, the most unusual thing about Ruth is that the game for which he did so much can't find a place for him.

What other business would dismiss a man who, following an absence of eight years, could attract nearly 70,000 people for a mere exhibition?

But then, just take a look at some of our baseball executives. As Barney Dreyfus once remarked: "Baseball succeeds despite those at its head."

BY PETER EDSON NEA Service Washington Correspondent.

ANYONE feeling particularly brilliant during this depressing season of dog days might step up and offer a solution to the Finnish problem which now is so complicated that it's harder to figure out than the relationship of Gloria Swanson's and Constance Bennett's present and ex-husbands. It is a good bit like an old-time Hatfield-McCoy mountain feud. Who is mad at whom, who is siding whom and what for, have been somewhat lost sight of, but one thing is certain—the feud is still on.

The Finns are still for Finland, first last and all the time, but in fighting for their beloved independence, they have got their fur-lined britches snagged on every point of an antlered dilemma. Talk about history repeating itself! Not here, for you will search the pages of history in vain to find any parallel for this Finnish predicament.

Sooner, rather than later, however, this thing will have to be solved, in spite of the fact that the Finns themselves are playing this chess game for a stalemate. Their strategy seems to be to sit tight until perhaps both Germany and Russia are worn out. Should this happen, Finland has a chance of winning her war. Otherwise, how can she?

TO make it easy, suppose Soviet Russia should tell the Finns to write their own ticket on a peace treaty and that the Soviet could offer satisfactory guarantees that it would abide by the terms. Because there was no such guarantee when peace feelers were made by the United States last November, nothing happened. But suppose such a guarantee could be made today, could Finland make a peace?

The answer is probably no, because to make peace with the Soviet, Finland would have to make war on Germany, because in northern Finland there are from six to 10 German divisions. There are only two ways in which Finland could make peace with the Soviet.

The first would be through granting the Soviet armies permission to occupy Finland to fight the Nazi army in the north. The chances of such a development are practically nil. Finland's enemy is the Soviet—not Germany, for from the Nazis Finland has had only help.

The only other development which might enable Finland to break with Germany would be for a United Nations force to reconquer Norway and then defeat the German army occupying northern Finland. That, too, is practically an impossibility for all this northern tip of the Scandinavian peninsula is a mountainous, rugged,

Scrap Drive Has Brought Out Joke On State Rights

Weeks joke about the Texas capitol was based on Maj. Gen. Richard Donovan's call for scrap ping metal objects "without particular historical value."

"Why not let them have the States rights monument on the capitol grounds?" Ask one wag. "States Rights seem to have no particular historical value nowadays."

Should the need for scrap metal go on, the capitol grounds could furnish considerable bronze-though stone instead of metal forms the principal part of the memorials. Biggest metal memorial is that to Terry's Texas Rangers, an immense figure of a mounted soldier. There is a smaller modern bronze cowboy monument of horse and rider.

Washington, Eng. has Welcome for Yank

WASHINGTON, Durham county Eng. (UP)—An Anglo-American hospitality committee has been formed here, the home of George Washington's ancestors. Its object is to make members of the United States armed forces feel at home if and when they come this way.

Washington is a coal mining village. It has known hard times, but committee members said there had been an excellent response to an appeal to provide meals and sleeping accommodation to any "Yank" who requests them.

War Department and OPA Assures Enough Fur For Felt Hats This Fall

HOLLYWOOD—The War Department's decision to discontinue the use of the fur felt campaign hat in favor of the overseas cap and helmet, and the cooperation of Leon Henderson's Price Administration are responsible for men's fine fur felt hats being available again this fall. Something like a sigh of relief must well from masculine breasts at knowing that at least one part of their apparel is still available in its best form even though they are ready to sacrifice this, too, if need be.

However, while fur felt hats taken their place to make men's fur felt hats more attractive. This is especially true of a fur felt hat which is named for "Desperate Journey", the sensational picture featuring Ronald Reagan and produced by Warner Bros.

A wide band and broad brim trimmed with a flat wide band edge give this hat plenty of character. A snap to its brim provides graceful sweep that appeals to any man with a sense of easy manner.

Lending added attraction to this "Journeyer" is the much talked of self-conforming feature which will be shown this fall, there will be almost a complete absence of any of the lighter shades so dear to the heart of many. The pastel grays, tans, and cream colors that caught the man's fancy in past years are absent this season. Europe, from whence they came, thinks of things of no connection with fur. Australia's ports the net from which the fur for men's hats came, supplies only the darker furs. Even this source is now closed. Thus, the present supply dwindles but remains within easy reach of every man through prices that were frozen by the Price Administration.

Colors have been sacrificed to some extent, but new trims have is creating favorable attention everywhere. Based on the fact that no two headshapes are alike, this self-conforming feature adjusts itself to them all. Outwardly, these hats look exactly like any other in the leather construction, but placed on a man's head, the leather shapes itself without distorting the hat style in the least.

T "Journeyer" is a Resistal Self-Conforming Hat, one of the many smart fall styles worn by such popular screen stars as Errol Flynn, George Brent, Ronald Reagan, George Raft, Dennis Morgan and other Warner Brother featured players.

Parking Meters In Cities Are Getting Few Nickels Now

AUSTIN, Tex.—Fewer nickels are dropping into city parking meters these days, and it can be blamed on the war, declares Lynn P. Anderson, assistant in the Bureau of Municipal Research at the University of Texas.

Writing in the August issue of "Texas Municipalities" Anderson declares that the decline in parking meter receipts is typical of the decline in other municipal revenues. The war, he writes, is making great changes in the municipal economic picture, while rationing and curtailed use of automobiles will make revision of taxing procedures necessary.

Figures on parking meter revenue in Austin show that from January, 1942, through May of this year, receipts dropped 8.6 per cent from receipts of last year. This decline will doubtless continue as long as tire rationing is continued, Anderson believes.

SERIAL STORY

SPECIAL INVESTIGATOR

BY BLANCHE ROBERTS

COPYRIGHT, 1942, NEA SERVICE, INC.

THE STORY: Judith Kingsley and Tom Burke, employees of an airplane factory, are on route to the beach again. When foreign agents kidnap Tom from an airplane, Judith leaves the plane with the new bomber plane which Tom had slipped to her. Pursued by the agents, she finds Tom in a cabin, leaves him fighting his captor, thumps a ride with a truck driver, escapes again in a small western town, just as the pursuers are closing in on her.

ANOTHER RIDE

JUDITH huddled in the dark against the cabin wall and tried to think of a way to escape. In a moment, one of the men asked for a cabin.

"Sure—that one right yonder. Put your car right next to the end cabin," instructed the woman.

Judith realized with a start that she had to act now. She darted across the vacant lot to the next building and hid in its shadow.

Down the street she saw a filling station, and as she watched, the lights went off and a young man went about closing up for the night. A small car stood beside the building.

"Maybe he'll drive me to San Diego," she thought as she made her way carefully, avoiding the street. The bushes tore at her stockings, but she hardly felt them.

"Sorry, lady, but I just closed," he told her as she walked up. "No more sales tonight."

"I don't want any gasoline," she said, with a smile. "Would you like to make $50?"

"Who wouldn't?" he grinned. Then he eyed her a bit suspiciously. "Are you on the level?"

"Oh, yes. I want to reach San Diego as soon as I can. It's urgent. Something happened to the car I was riding in. I've had an awful time getting this far. Can you give me three tonight?" she pleaded.

"Sure, I'll drive you," he said quickly. "But I'll have to call mom and tell her where I'm off to. She'd worry if I didn't show up."

He unlocked the door of the station office and went in. When he phoned, Judith got in the car, keeping her close watch down the street for the big black car.

The youth came out and got in the car.

"WELL, we're all set, I guess," he started the car.

As they sped down the highway, Judith opened her purse and drew out some bills.

"I'll pay you now, in advance," she told him. If anything went wrong she wanted the boy to have his pay.

"Oh, I trust you," he assured her. But he took the money and pocketed it. "I should have idly of time to get you to the city and be back here by 7 to open up."

"Drive as fast as you like," she said, smiling. "The faster the better. I'm in a hurry, and you seem to be a good driver."

"Sure," he said, pressing hard on the accelerator. "Mom won't ever ride over 30 with me."

Judith held her breath but never uttered a sound as they wound around the mountains, climbing steep inclines and scotching down again. Confident in the boy's driving, she relaxed and dozed a few minutes.

Suddenly, she awoke with a scream of terror.

"It's only a tire, lady," he said hurriedly and brought the car to a jolting stop by the side of the road.

"I'll won't take me long to fix it."

But Judith was shaking when she stepped from the car. She stared behind them, but only darkness met her eyes.

"Look," she began impulsively as he prepared to change his tire. "I'll be honest with you. There are some spies after me and if they catch me, it will mean harm to the government as well as the end of my life."

The young man straightened with a jerk and gulped.

"They were back there at the camp when we left town."

"Oh, my gosh!" he exclaimed hoarsely. "That's mean! I told her I was taking a girl to San Diego. They may find out from her. She's an awful talker!"

Judith's heart seemed to stop; then her cool-headedness took over, pushing back the threatening hysteria.

"If you don't mind, I'll just hide while you fix that flat. I am not taking any chances."

"This will be the quickest change I ever made." There was haste in his actions, but even so, it was slow going in the dark.

Judith found protection under a culvert and huddled there, almost paralyzed with fear. Bugs brushed against her face. If she ever got out of this, she told herself, she would never claim that she loved danger again. She would lead a peaceful, quiet life. That thought brought Tom Burke to her mind. But before she had time to dwell on him, she heard the hum of a motor approaching from around the mountain. Almost immediately, the car roared over her hiding place and came to a squealing stop by the boy.

"YOU got somebody with you?" demanded a voice she recognized as Heavy's. The car door banged as he got out.

"Not now," the boy said. "I did have a girl I was taking to San Diego. But when I got this flat, she hopped another car going by and left me. After promising to pay me, too."

"Was she a redhead?"

"I think so. I couldn't be sure."

"How long ago she hopped another ride?"

"Twenty minutes, I guess. Maybe 15."

"What kind of car?"

"I dunno, but I think it was a dark red one. I was so mad I didn't pay it any mind."

"Think he's telling the truth?" asked Karl.

"Sure," answered Heavy. "That dame's sicker'n an eel. Thank, buddy."

The car roared off.

Judith crawled out and shook the dead leaves and dust from her clothes.

"I'll never be able to thank you enough for what you just did," she said. There were tears of gratitude in her blue eyes.

"I was glad to do it," the boy said, and sat down suddenly on the running board of his car. "I was scared stiff and I don't mind admitting it."

Judith sat down by him. She unfastened a small jeweled watch on her wrist; it was a gift from Tom on her last birthday. She reached for his hand and dropped the watch into his palm.

"This is for you. Give it to your best girl friend."

"Gee, lady, I couldn't take that," he objected and tried to give the watch back to her. "You don't owe me anything more."

"I owe my life and what I am carrying to San Diego to you. And I want you to have this little token—at least, I want the girl you love to have it." She made him take it. She loved the little jeweled piece; it was her dearest possession. "Any time you hear of Judith Kingsley, you can remember this night."

In a few minutes they were off again.

"I know a different route to the city and we'll take it," he said. "Of course, it's longer and rougher but I sure don't want to run into those men again."

SEVERAL hours later they reached San Diego. It was still dark, and Judith was almost unconscious from weariness and lack of sleep.

Here in the city, she thought, her pursuers surely could not catch up with her. She decided to get some sleep, and go to the airplane factory in the morning.

She asked the youth to drive her to a hotel. When they found one, she thanked him again, and stumbled wearily to the desk to get a room.

PARADE SATURDAY WILL START RANGER'S ANNUAL LABOR DAY CELEBRATION

Four Big Performances Of Rodeo, Saturday Afternoon Sunday Afternoon, Monday Afternoon and Monday Night Expected To Draw A Record Crowd

Ranger's fifth annual Labor Day Rodeo will start Saturday with a big parade at 1:30 p. m. in the afternoon, and the first performance at 8:30 Saturday night. Performances will also be held Sunday afternoon and Monday afternoon and night.

Fire Chief G. A. Murphy has been appointed marshal of the parade, with Jack Chapman and L. W. Meadow as assistant marshals.

The parade will form on North Commerce Street, north of Main Street, in time to start promptly at 1:30, Chief Murphy stated.

"This does not mean that the parade will begin to form at 1:30," Chief Murphy said, "but that it will form earlier, in time to start at 1:30. I want the two assistant marshals to help in getting the parade off on time, and I am sure it will do so."

After leaving Commerce street the parade will go up Main and will proceed over most of the streets of the business section.

Several good features will be staged at the rodeo, in addition to the regular events. These will include a cowgirl's musical chair contest, junior calf roping, the Cresson Square Dance Team on horseback, a bullfighting clown, a cutting horse contest and match roping between George Witherspoon and Roy Matthews of Fort Worth, pitted against Zelma and Phelton Herrington of Ranger. This match will be for an eight calf average, and bareback bronc riding.

Entrance fees for the calf roping events will be $10, with $100 added to the entrance fees to be divided among the winners.

Bronc riding entrance fees will be $5, with added money amounting to $100 being added.

Bull riding entrance fees will also be $5, with $100 being added to the purse.

George Glascock of Cresson, who staged rodeos in Ranger for several years, will be arena director, and George Witherspoon of Fort Worth and Sig Faircloth of Ranger will be judges.

Because of the Labor Day holiday which will be observed in Ranger by all stores, the two performances staged that day, as well as the one Saturday night and Sunday afternoon, are expected to draw the largest gate ever seen at a Ranger Rodeo.
