American-Made Planes

Evidence is accumulating that American-made bombers and fighters really are good, and that the violent criticism to which they were subjected for a time was erroneous.

It has been difficult to get at the truth because so many of the pertinent facts were held to be military secrets. Some of them unquestionably should not be discussed. Others were held back, apparently, through that same excess of secretiveness which in other fields and on other occasions has proved unnecessary, unjustifiable and harmful to the national morale.

Now, stung by criticism, American brass hats have permitted publication of data comparable to what the British never held back. In the light of that information, experts are able to say that the later American planes are at least as good as their counterparts in England, Germany and Japan.

If our planes were as bad as rumor said, then we could not help wondering whether our pilots and their crews being destroyed wholesale. But the fact is that on every front our planes have taken toll of the enemy two, three and four to one.

American pilots are good. None are better. We can be excused if we feel that none are quite so good. But man for man, American flyers are not three or four times as good as German and Japanese flyers. They are not enough better to inflict the damage they have unless their planes were substantially as good as the enemy's.

Then there was the unfortunate story—could it have originated with a psychological saboteur?—that the British were trying to divert us from the building of large long-range planes so that after the war we should not be in position to dominate the international air lanes.

The facts, fortunately, dispel these wonders and rumors. They show that our planes were designed for protection of a country shut off from potential enemies by broad oceans, while the British were designed for a nation just over the board fence from international criminals.

They show, also, that the older models were being contrasted with the newest British and German adaptations, and did not show up well, but that model for model and use for use, we now have planes at least as good as those of any other country, and in most instances better.

Apparently we did get way to a slow start, but now have more than caught up. Which is all to the good.

LAST OF THE LINE

By HARRY GRAYSON, NEA Service Sports Editor

NEW YORK—Bill Kern was in New York with West Virginia for the Fordham game, and the conversation swung around to the two most celebrated fifth down instances in football history.

Kern's Carnegie Tech team was outplaying Notre Dame late in the third period of a scoreless battle in South Bend in 1938. "Johnny Getchell, the referee, was blamed for that fifth down," explained Kern, "although it actually was the fault of Joe Lippe, the line man."

"Lippe turned the downs stick too late. Getchell saw the 3 and said: 'Third and one.' "Paul Friedlander, my quarterback, pointed to the scoreboard and said: 'The scoreboard says it's fourth down.'"

"BALL was exactly in mid-field. Friedlander wanted to kick and put Notre Dame in the hole, but when Getchell insisted it was third down, and threatened to penalize us for taking too much time out, the quarterback sent Ray Carnelly through the line. "By this time Getchell realized his mistake, but we lost the ball."

"One of the ball on what turned out to be an excusable mistake, and the long argument that followed, so upset my kids that on the first play Milt Peipal ran smack dab through the middle of our line for 36 yards, and then Bill Kerr scored the only touchdown of the game."

A LITTLE grumbling is beginning to be heard in Washington to the effect that the trouble with the American war production effort, the manpower situation and all the other related war activities is that there is no master plan. In other words, no grand strategy.

The complaint runs that the Army has simply asked for and is letting contracts for limitless quantities of everything in sight, without knowing whether they can be produced and almost without knowing whether they will be needed. That is a pretty serious charge. Army supply officers like to kiss it off as a lot of malicious gossip. This is a master plan, they insist, an exact, overall bill of requirements which was made up in December and January, after Pearl Harbor. There is a plan for 1942 and a plan for 1943, with definite goals on every item. There is even supposed to be one for 1944.

The mere size of the program has been one handicap to confining its specifications to paper. The changes in the war situation, necessitating the making of brand new plans, have also made accurate planning next to impossible. Difficulties of making national inventories cannot be ignored. Beyond that point, the Army position on this master plan can not be stated. The grand strategy is of course the secret of the top command and it is right that it should remain so.

LOOKING at this master plan of the War Production Board point of view, however, it soon becomes apparent that while the Army may have its goals for every item of supply, these totals are not the figures on which the War Production Board can base its calculations, for the WPB must cover not only Army, Navy, Coast Guard, United Nations and the atomium requirements for the American civilian population as well.

WPB spokesmen admit that WPB does not yet have this overall bill of requirements. It is claimed that these totals are rapidly being assembled through the WPB requirements committee now headed by Ferdinand Eberstadt,

ARMY CRASH BOATS ALERT IN CARIBBEAN

SOMEWHERE in the CARIBBEAN (UPI)—Speedy, rakish, ocean going P-22 crash boats lie ready at this port day and night to go to the assistance of aviators whose planes have crashed at sea.

The 72-foot aircraft rescue boats—part of the Army's navy—are built for maneuverability, speed and seaworthiness. Manned by from six to eight men, including two skippers, the craft were assigned originally to the Air Force, but they are now under the orders of the Quarter masters Corps.

The Army's P-22's are not built for fighting, but carry a tommy-gun or two which all the men aboard could use if they were set upon by hostile craft while effecting a rescue. When a plane goes down at sea, the P-22's are called out. Their duty is to reach the crashed plane as fast as possible, take aboard

KITCHEN ACCIDENTS in wartime cut down on the efficiency of the home front. Injured members of the family slow down war work and threaten morale. Let's prevent all accidents in the kitchen. Study the following check list and apply it where you can.

Keep windows closed or shielded so as not to cause draft that might blow out gas flames and cause possible asphyxiation. Keep garbage pails, water buckets, etc., out of the path so they will not cause falls. Be particularly careful when cooking to prevent hot fat and boiling water from falling on you. In washing dishes, watch out for chipped plates, knives and sharp forks. Always dry hands before touching electrical equipment to prevent possibility of electric shock.

Use gloves when polishing silver and using cleaners to prevent any harm to skin. Wield breadknives carefully to avoid cutting fingers. Carefully check all electrical connections to make sure plugs and wires are in good condition. Check on electric refrigerators, toasters, mixers and other appliances to be sure they are in first-class working condition. Do not store rags, mops and brooms in closets containing inflammable materials, such as cleaning fluids, benzene, wax and polishes. This will prevent spontaneous combustion.

Use firm step-ladders, not chairs, in taking foods from high closets. Keep matches away from reach of children. Keep Kitchen floors free from grease. In other words, run the Seventh Column out of your kitchen. Prevent all possible accidents by intelligent planning and care as you cook the family meals.

MONDAY'S MENU

BREAKFAST: Grapefruit and cranberry juice, fried scrapple, cornbread, coffee, milk. LUNCHEON: Onion soup with grated cheese, toaster French bread, green salad, fresh fruit, cookies, tea, milk. DINNER: Veal and kidney pie, pastry top, baked potatoes, buttered carrots, green pepper and lettuce salad, ginger pears, sponge cake, coffee, milk.

the crew, do what they can to assist in saving the plane or get the injured, if any back to land as fast as possible. They are not short-ranged vessels and can stay out from ten days to two weeks, if the occasion arises. A little bunk room forward can accommodate from six to eight men and a small galley affords adequate cooking facilities.

AMERICAN oysters are the finest in the world and today they are shipped widely. Use them on meatless days—but first it's learn from Billy the Oysterman, one of New York's great experts, how to make a perfect cocktail sauce.

Oyster Cocktail Sauce

(Serves 6) Four ounces of tomato ketchup, one ounce chili sauce, one tablespoon Worcestershire sauce, 5 drops tobacco sauce, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, one teaspoon sugar, one-half teaspoon salt, 2 ounces vinegar or lemon juice. Stir all together.

Long Island Oysters and Macaroni Au Gratin

(Serves 3)

This masterpiece of American cooking is inexpensive and easy to make. It really is a one-dish meal for Sunday night supper, or any other day. One-half a pound of macaroni, 1 medium-sized Long Island oyster (save the oyster liquor), 1/2 tablespoon of butter, two tablespoons of flour, salt and pepper, one pint of milk and four ounces of grated cheese.

Cook the macaroni in salted water for 20 minutes, rinse with cold water and drain. Heat the oysters in their liquor until the liquor curd. Make a sauce of butter, flour, milk and oyster liquor. Season. Place a layer of the oiled macaroni in buttered baking dish or individual casserole, then place a layer of the cooked oysters, then another layer of macaroni, then oysters, then macaroni. Pour over the sauce and cover with grated cheese. Bake in 300 deg. F. oven for 20 to 30 minutes or until cheese is browned.

TOMORROW'S MENU

BREAKFAST: Grapefruit juice, fried cornmeal mush, syrup, coffee, milk. LUNCHEON: Lentil soup, boiled potatoes, green salad, fresh fruit, tea, milk. DINNER: Tomato juice, Long Island oysters and macaroni, green beans, mixed green salad, deep dish apple pie, cheese, coffee, milk.

TO TEST ARMY RIFLE RANGE AS SCRAP SOURCE

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Army plans to explore the rifle ranges at Ft. Knox, Ky., for scrap metal from ammunition which has been fired at targets and embedded in the ground. Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson has disclosed. If the search there recovers sufficient copper, nickel, steel and lead, he said, similar reclamation operations will be conducted at rifle ranges throughout the country. The entire crew is trained to take the wheel and its members are thoroughly experienced in navigation procedure.

Caution Urged For Duck Hunters

AUSTIN, Tex. —As the hunting season approaches, the Texas State Health Department urges caution in handling firearms. More than 200 Texans were killed in 1941 as a result of carelessness in handling guns, and at this time when human lives are being snuffed out in the war that is enveloping the entire world, it is more than ever important that we should conserve human lives on the home front. With the inauguration of meat rationing and the reduced supply of this particular food, there is a possibility of more hunters going into the field than has been the custom for many years.

"It is not enough to deplore the waste of human lives caused by the careless handling of firearms," asserts Dr. Gen. W. Cox, State Health Officer, "we should learn from the deaths of these victims the lessons of safety which will prevent this needless and shocking waste."

The State Department of Health suggests the following suggestions in handling guns:

While hunting be sure that the loaded gun is on safety until ready to fire. Never shoot without seeing your target clearly. Never crawl through a fence carrying a loaded gun. If hunting with a companion stay close to him. Do not strike the ground or wounded game with the butt of a loaded gun. Never scuffle while holding a loaded gun or point it at a person "for fun". Always unload a gun before attempting to clean it. Always unload guns before taking them into the home. All guns should be carefully put away in the home out of reach of the small children.

Bullock Elected As State Senator

Pat Bullock of Scurry County a candidate for state senator, in the special election to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of John Lee Smith of Throckmorton, elected lieutenant governor, today emerged victor over five other candidates in the race.

Additional returns from the special election of Tuesday to fill the vacancy from this district created by election of John Lee Smith as lieutenant governor, widened and made safe the lead that Bullock held over Frank S. Roberts, Breckenridge attorney, in the six-man contest for the Bullock will be no stranger in the capital. He now is a member of the lower house from the 118th district, which includes Scurry, Borden, Dickens, Garza, Stone, Wall and Kent counties. He once was rural school supervisor of the state department of education and also has been chief auditor of the general land office. He is a former county superintendent in Scurry county.

SERIAL STORY OF BRIGHTNESS GONE

BY HOLLY WATTERSON

COPYRIGHT, 1942, NEA SERVICE, INC.

END OF LONELINESS CHAPTER XXVI

CANDACE was shaking. In the chart room she gave Peter's name to the operator, listened while the loud-speaker in the corridor picked it up. "Dr. Frazier, Dr. Frazier." And then Peter's own voice on the phone, steady, reassuring.

"Peter," she said, careless of the given name, of possible listeners, "I don't know what I've done. She knows. Hurry."

"I'll be right there," he said quietly. "Call your relief, tell her to come on at once. You wait for me in the chart room."

She put in a call for the relief nurse, made a notation on 721's chart, "Hypo, 3-03," the last of Peter's orders for Faith she had carried out.

She went to the window, stood looking blindly into the courtyard. In there at the bottom of the well made by the walls of the court was Emergency, where she and Peter had last worked. She had always been a good nurse, an efficient one, there was nothing with which to reproach herself on that score.

But if she hadn't let herself get so warped, so bitter, she might have been more human too, she might even have let herself get some fun out of those years. Might have had some patience, an occasional kindly word for the boys, overworked, overwrought, on the ambulance assignment who liked to slip in there occasionally for a word of cheer.

She thought of a proverb, read or heard somewhere, "Life is a mirror from which we see reflected back our own faces." Well, life had certainly shown her herself, reflected in Faith Hartshorne, with only this difference, that while it was Faith's body it was in her own case her mind that had been made mad.

She realized how just how hard, wrapped up in her own bitterness as she was, selfish she had been. Peter was right to reproach her. Peter... In her breast was a heavy ache. Because he had loved her as a child, because he had understood, Peter had had patience with her for a long time. But even he had given out finally. It was true that he still looked her up for an occasional case; but that was only because he knew her to be a good nurse. Or at least, he had thought her a good nurse up until now—

Now she wondered if Peter would even think of her as a good nurse. What she had just done to Faith Hartshorne might not even give her claim to that title any longer.

Certainly, Faith was near death, and what she had just told her—that Martin had never loved her—was as severe a shock as could possibly have been given.

What if Faith died because of that shock? Even Peter could not forgive that, if it happened. Candace was sick with apprehension.

BEHIND her Peter said, "Get your wrap. You're going home."

She whirled, in swift alarm. "Is she—?"

"She's all right," Peter said. He looked grimly triumphant and she had an instant's suspicion that he had planned all this, that he had wished it so. "She's asked for toast and tea, after refusing food for days, she sent for her husband and I've just left on the beginning of a very touching reunion between them. She's going to be all right," he repeated. "It's you. You looked bushed."

She felt "bushed." She felt limp and nerveless, something without volition. She followed him docilely to his car, sat quietly while he wrapped a rug about her legs. He didn't drive straight to her house, but out along the Parkway, on the road to the lake.

He was being kind to her. Probably he was grateful. Because, incredible as it would seem after what had happened, Mrs. Eustis would now get well, all her friends would say how wonderful Dr. Frazier was, to have snatched her from the jaws of death that way, and would come to him. That would mean that he could get married. "And they lived happily ever after—" Mrs. Eustis and her husband, too, would make it up, they too would live "happily ever after." Only she would be alone.

She needn't be, there was always Duffy. He hadn't missed out on a single chance, these past hectic days, to prove his devotion; and Mrs. Harper hadn't been angry after all, not permanently, that is; she had rather respected Candace for daring to cross her. She could still have Duffy if she wanted him. But she didn't want him any more, she didn't want the life he offered with its drab, ugly compromises—

Peter said suddenly, "Great stuff, my gal. She told me everything. Stiff dose you handed out, but just what the doctor would have ordered."

HE sat staring straight ahead, and his hands gripped the wheel so hard that his knuckles showed white. "Tell me," he said, suppose the positions were reversed. Suppose you had had a dull, unexciting, but on the whole fairly decent young man in love with you for a long time— What I mean, Candace, is—could you take your own medicine, if the dose included me?"

Candace gasped. She said, stunned, stammering, "But—you're going to be married!" "Sure," he said, trying to laugh, trying to make light of it. "To you—I hope."

"But—Dr. Patterson—you told him—"

He did laugh then. "I told him I was darn' glad to get the Eustis case because then maybe I could get married. Sure, I told him that. But I didn't say who the girl was. Answer me quickly," he commanded, "I can't stand much more waiting—could you?"

Like a balloon that's been blown too full, the tension in Candace's head burst, her thought scattered into madly whirling pieces. But the pieces were bright, as in a kaleidoscope, and when the whirling stopped and they fitted into place they made pictures. There was Faith and her Harvey; there was Duffy laughing with a coterie of dancing girls with fans of feathers, girls with doves, girls with or without various things; and there was—herself and Peter. All the ache, all the loneliness was suddenly gone.

STAMP SALE From the fifth through the eighth grades at Hodges Oak Park stamp sales have been conducted each week for several weeks now. Each room has a special day of the week set aside for this stamp drive. The total amount of money invested in stamps for these rooms is $254.10.

The eighth grade has led the field in this worthwhile endeavor, having sold more than twice as much as any other room. Beginning November 9 all schools throughout the state are being asked to conduct these stamp sales.

A NEW THOUGHT FOR ARMISTICE DAY

As Armistice Day draws nearer our thoughts turn to a new and we hope not too far distant Armistice Day.

Do you know that England is contributing sixty per cent of her national income to the war effort? New Zealand is also contributing sixty per cent. Canada is contributing fifty per cent of her national income to the same cause.

We are only asked to contribute ten per cent of our income to the buying of war stamps and bonds. Isn't it worth that much to you to help ring about that Armistice Day that we are all praying for and waiting for?

IS CHEATING EVER JUSTIFIED

I think when a person cheats he is going through a mental collapse, for any man person would immediately catch that he was doing himself alone an injustice.

In interviewing the following students and teachers I find that their reactions to cheating coincide very closely with mine. Jimmie Heintz says that cheating only puts one ahead.

Mrs. Leif-foot says that she had just as soon steal a dime from a person as to steal his knowledge by cheating. Richard Kelly believes that cheating hurts the student and not the teacher.

Mrs. David M. Phillips says that cheating in early years is liable to create a habit that will go with one through life.

Col. Garland Is In Command Of Chidress Field

SAN ANGELO AAF BOMBARDIER SCHOOL—Lt Colonel William Garland of Ft. Worth, Texas has been named commanding officer of the Army Air Force Bombardier School which is now building at Chidress, Texas. He will assume his duties there Nov. 12.

Colonel Garland has been director of training at the San Angelo bombardier school since June. He will be succeeded here by Lt. Colonel Harry Crucher, Jr., of Dallas, who has been operations officer and assistant director of training.

BERKELEY, Cal. (UP)—Superior Judge Edward J. Tyrrell has granted a decree of divorce to Mrs. Carol J. Shore, 21, on the grounds that the 15 cents a day which her husband, now in the navy, allowed her each day for food was not adequate.

ARCADIA SUNDAY - MONDAY Now... on the Screen! My Sister Eileen

Colonel Garland was graduated in 1932 by the United States Military Academy at West Point, New York. He completed his flying training and received his wings at Kelly Field in October 1933. After serving for more than three years with the Seventh Bombardment Camp at Hamilton Field, California, he was transferred to France Field in the Canal Zone for two years of foreign instruction at the AAF Bombardier School at Midland and promoted to lieutenant colonel. Last June he was assigned to the AAF Bombardier School in San Angelo as director of training.
