

Ranger Youth In German Prison Writes To Mother

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd E. Miller, Route 2, Ranger, whose son, Lloyd E. Miller, has been captured by the crew of a German submarine, and who is now in a prison camp somewhere in Germany, have received a letter from their son, dated two months ago. Young Miller was captured when the ship on which he was sailing was sunk by a submarine.

The letter, which mentions a birthday already passed, reads in full as follows:

"Dearest Mom, and all:
Just a few more lines to be sure and have some one writing to me. Say, Mom, be sure and celebrate my birthday with fried chicken and all the fixings. Be sure and leave the potatoes and soup off. You might have a bit of chocolate candy or something of the sort. Speaking of my birthday, I think that I will celebrate it like a WPA worker.

"Mom, be sure and tell everyone to write. I won't be able to answer them all, but I sure can read. I can write only two letters and two postcards a month.

"I have plenty of clothes except underwear and socks. I could also stand a little tooth paste and soap.

"The Red Cross will tell you how much you can send, if you like. Razor blades are also very few. Mom, see if you are allowed to send tobacco and cigarettes. Would sure enjoy a Camel.

"The space is growing very slim so had better come to a stop. I hate to ask for so much, but it just comes natural under the circumstances.

"So long for the present. Love to all your son, Bud."

Nutrition Class See Movie Feature On Vital Food

The Red Cross Nutrition Class viewed a showing of the sound motion picture, Meat and Romance, produced for the National Livestock and Meat Board, a non-profit organization, representing the entire livestock and meat industry, at Ranger High School Auditorium on Thursday, November 12, at 9 o'clock.

This motion picture is the result of collaboration between authorities in the meat and livestock industries and the United States Bureau of Home Economics in Washington.

This claim is made that the entire subject of meat, its value and costs according to cuts, the proper methods of its cooking, of its serving and carving, as well as its relative nutritional properties, has never been so thoroughly or so conveniently covered in any one presentation.

This sound motion picture, partly in color, is an entertaining as it is instructive. It tells the story of a young hurried couple who solve the problem of meal planning and of making the food dollar go farther. Jaded cooks buying and varying the meat courses of the dinner, all with economy, are highlighted.

Much misinformation about meat is corrected with authoritative support. Audiences receive the benefit of the best advice about the roasting of meat, the relative merits of low and high temperature cooking, the variations required for different types and cuts of meat for best results.

The place of meat in the diet is also well covered. Women will enjoy the sections that explain how they may retain their figure without starving themselves. Men will delight in the portions that demonstrate the proper methods of the arduous task of carving. Nutritional facts are presented with convincing simplicity.

The picture will be shown again Monday at 11 a. m., 2 p. m. and 3 p. m. in the high school auditorium. Anyone who desires to attend is cordially invited.

Good Attendance Is Maintained At Weekly Singing

By Charles Ashcraft
With the coming of gasoline rationing the Ranger Community Singing may become altogether a local gathering. Let us hope that our social life will not disintegrate in the religious, and fraternal organizations. So far, we have received cooperation from our own people, as well as considerable assistance from trained singers in nearby villages. We also have enjoyed fine recognition by the local paper. And the meeting this week end was no exception.

The Cole quartet from Strawn is one of the best trained and well balanced we know, and is unusual for being all in one family—father, son, and two daughters. This time they rendered two spirituals which were well received. Then the two daughters—Mildred and Opal, assisted Mr. Clyde Fisher and Judge R. R. Rust in two convention quartets. Mildred also directed a church hymn, and drew applause for clear volume on high tones.

A group of Olden young people including Doris Phillips, Dorothy Copeland, and Wanda Sue Watson, vocalists, James Parke, Edwin Moroney, and Wesley Graham, with stringed instruments rendered two numbers, assisted by T. L. Stewart with electric guitar. Jean Capriles sang "America" in Spanish.

Request numbers were directed by E. L. Brummett, Judge R. L. Rust, Peggy Johnson, J. J. Beck, H. L. Horn and Miss Dorothy Copeland, respectively. Plans included Mrs. Earl Rea, Miss Mildred Cole, Bernice and Lillian Aircraft. Several were present for the first time including Mrs. Campbell from San Marcos, who is visiting in the home of T. M. Campbell. The church was decorated with three vases of beautiful flowers.

Potential bases for the bombing of Italy, Sicily and Sardinia—axis Mediterranean strongholds—are gained in the occupation of Algeria and Tunisia by American-British forces. "Cruiser" Will Be In Ranger On Tuesday, Nov. 17

D. L. Fenter of the Eastland Navy Recruiting Office announces that a group of Navy Recruiters, made up of Medical Examiners and Yeomen will be in Eastland and Ranger on Tuesday November 17. This group will have the facilities to give applicants their final physical examination, making their enlistment complete even to swearing the applicant in to the U. S. Navy. Here is a chance for Eastland County men to complete their enlistment right here at home. Any man desiring to take advantage of this convenience should contact the full time recruiting office in the basement of the post office in Eastland and make out their application ahead of time in order to speed things for the Cruiser Crew on Tuesday.

This group is making a tour of Texas, working with recruiting stations in an effort to make November another banner month for enlistments in the Dallas district. Fenter states that reports show they have been well received everywhere they have gone and it is hoped that Eastland County men will keep them busy while they are here. In October, Eastland County led all other counties in the United States Navy and are well on the way to another month at the top place in November.

Men who have received final orders for induction into the Army are still eligible for enlistment in the Navy. Help make and keep the United States Navy the best Navy in the world.

Young School 4-H Girls In Meeting

The girls' division of the Young School 4-H club held their fourth meeting Thursday, November 12. The meeting was called to order by the president, Beulah Edna Smith and the minutes were read by the secretary, Veda Myrtle Sneed. The roll call was answered by each member with one thing that makes a girl attractive.

The meeting was turned over to the program chairman who had not prepared one. The sponsor, Miss Helen Childress, handed out the 4-H club yearbooks and gave each girl a chart labeled "Be Your Best Self" to fill out and return at the end of the year.

One of the most important jobs the 4-H club girls are working on is the 4-H army. Every goal they reach they receive a promotion. The 4-H girls have but one important goal to reach this year. That goal is what every man, woman and child in America is working for, victory.

Highway Work Is Going On Despite War

AUSTIN, Tex. (UP)—Any impression that highway work has been brought to a standstill in Texas due to war is erroneous. Repair work is going on and construction is being continued on roads that have been designated as being of military importance, in fact war establishments have caused some construction that would have not been started except for the war.

The bulletin of the State Highway Department, for the week ending Nov. 9, for instance, warns motorists that they will find traffic interruptions on 15 U. S. highways and 18 State Highways.

On some of the heavily-traveled routes, construction is under way at more than one place, and there are 39 construction jobs underway that are of sufficient size to affect normal traffic.

The length of detour varies from a jog around a bridge on State Highway 24 between Decatur and Bridgeport to 28 and one-half miles of State Highway 185 leading to Port O'Connor. On a stretch of more than 25 miles of U. S. Highway 80 between El Paso and Fabens, traffic is being kept moving over old paving while the road is being widened. Travel over the same highway is using a temporary route for 11 miles east of Barstow, and bridge work is under way over the Pecos river.

Cadet Ready To Praise The Lord And Pass, Etc.

SAN ANTONIO AVIATION CADET CENTER, Tex.—(UP)—Aviation Cadet, Homer S. Timmons, of Hitchland, Tex., will leave here soon and he will be especially qualified to "Praise the Lord and Pass the Ammunition." He's taking his pre-flight training now at the center here, but soon Timmons will be a combat aircrew pilot. His background for the "praising" is excellent.

Cadet Timmons acted as an Oklahoma deputy sheriff for several years, and graduated in the Methodist church for three years. He says he is deeply religious, but that doesn't conflict with his ideas of passing ammunition for the winning of the war.

Passenger Cars May Not Come In Necessity Bracket

WACO—Owners of passenger cars are not eligible for Certificates of War Necessity unless "The vehicle has undergone a genuine structural change, reasonably permanent in nature, which makes it likely that property, rather than passengers, will be carried," the District Office of Defense Transportation said today.

Moreover, the owner must establish the fact that his business or occupation requires the use of a property-carrying vehicle, rather than a passenger-carrying one, in order to qualify for a certificate.

Merely painting the windows of a vehicle, or removing seat cushions, or removing a door, or attaching a towing device to the axle of the vehicle, does not make it a commercial vehicle," Ray Martin, District Manager of the Division of Motor Transport, said.

Mr. Martin made it clear that "If the vehicle is merely converted for the purpose of getting more gasoline, or for the purpose of avoiding turning in idle tires under OPA Regulations, and there is no bona fide transportation of property intended," the application for a Certificate will be denied by the ODT.

The Allied nutcracker tightened in Africa today with indications that the battle for Tunisia was well under way.

Axis radios reported that two big naval battles were in progress in the new war theater, one off the American base at Algiers and the other somewhere in the vicinity of Gibraltar.

Spanish reports said that a powerful concentration of Allied warships, including a battleship, three aircraft carriers and several cruisers, had steamed away from their Gibraltar anchorage.

The situation in Tunisia itself was obscured by lack of official Allied reports.

However, the Axis radio said that the British First Army had moved across the frontier at dawn in support of French troops who were said by correspondents at Allied headquarters in Africa to be fighting Nazi occupation forces in Tunisia.

To the East Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's pull-neck retreat was continuing. One report placed the main remnants of the German Afrika Korps well west of Derna, some 200 miles inside of Libya. No attempt at a stand by Rommel was likely east of El Agheila and possibly not until he entered Tripolitania.

The American command at Algiers appeared to be dithering with Admiral Jean Francois Darlan in an obvious attempt to win further support in Africa, probably in Tunisia and Senegal, where the French base of Dakar is located.

Marshal Henri Philippe Petain issued a statement in Vichy repudiating Darlan and sources in London expressed concern at the possibility that Darlan might plan any permanent part in the French set-up in North Africa.

The Royal Air Force made another heavy attack on Genoa, northern Italy supply base for Axis forces to the south.

Beyond The Alps

We make no pretension to being a military authority. And most certainly we feel very uncomfortable pouring cold water upon the first real heart-warming the United Nations have enjoyed for a long time.

Nevertheless, nobody who seeks to help interpret current events would be living up to his obligations if, in appraising what is going on in North Africa, he failed to get out an atlas and consult the physical features of Southern Europe, which we assume is to constitute the site of the effective second front.

This can be done without giving information to the Nazis who know every rock and footpath of those mountainous regions which for our casual purpose consist of variations in the ink colors on maps.

Look briefly at any good physical map of Southern Europe. You will see that there is just one narrow path up from the sea which is not obstructed by mountain ranges. That is through the Rhone Valley. The mouth of the Rhone, the foot of its valley, lies west of Marseilles, France.

To the west of the Rhone lie the Cevennes mountains, ranging upward to more than a mile in height, but with relatively low foothills and generally good transportation facilities. To the east of the Rhone Valley lie the Alps, heralded by Mont Blanc, almost 16,000 feet high.

Italy itself is cut off from the rest of the axis by ranges of the Alps towering upward from 6000 feet, with only one gap until, to the east, the foothills toward the Danube Valley are reached.

Thus even the most amateur consideration reveals that reasonably convenient access from the Mediterranean coast to the expanded Reich is narrowly limited. The Nazis can concentrate their defenses in a relatively few strong points which we must assume have been thoroughly prepared against any such threat as now looms.

This does not mean that the United Nations can not march to Berlin from the Mediterranean. It does mean that the current operations are child's play as contrasted with what is to come if this really is preliminary to a second European front. It means that the casualty lists are nearly all in the future. It means that in the light of the most realistic information available from Central Europe those who now talk of peace in a twelve month must have locked their brains in dead storage before they opened their mouths.

The news is swell. Even second-guessing, we agree with the strategists who planned our present course. If it fails, we shall still think they did the proper thing at a good time.

But we want to give solemn heartfelt warning that premature optimism is going to result in unnecessary heartbreak later. For us, this war is just getting ready to begin.

Many Tons Of Tin Salvaged In The Nation

Thousands of tons of precious tin lie on bath cabinet shelves at a time when the government is reported to have gone so far as to fly 47 tons of the metal out to the Far East in order to help relieve a critical shortage, according to W. M. Rose, President of the Tin Salvage Institute (agent of the Metals Reserve Company, a government agency).

"This tin," said Rose, "is empty tooth paste and shaving cream tubes which some householders are 'hoarding' under the impression that at some later time the tube-former order will be extended to cover products other than tooth paste and shaving cream. I have dissected this very point with everyone concerned in Washington, and I can say authoritatively that there is absolutely no justification for the impression that any medicinals or any goods other than tooth paste and shaving cream will be brought under this order. For that reason I vigorously urge everyone who has one or more 'extra' empty collapsible metal tubes such as are used for tooth paste and shaving cream, to turn them in as soon as possible. The government needs them. They are needed now, not later. Turn them in to your drug store, grocery store, variety store, or any other retail establishment that sells tooth paste or shaving cream."

"They are not doing anyone any good lying on the shelf. They will help win the war if they are turned in. It is not generally known, but a good slice of the tin that has already been reclaimed from the turned in tubes has been put to use against the enemy. I know of some, for example, that have gone into aircraft and radio condensers for the armed forces. So, it's a short straight line between your bath cabinet and the enemy lines for tooth paste and shaving cream tubes."

"The public has been splendid so far. Most people have responded with all the cooperation possible. We who work with this day after day are able to congratulate the American people on the 2x-ft response that has been made as evidenced by the great increase in our receipt of tubes. For example, during September, we received some 80,000 pounds of empty tubes per week, but by October were receiving them at the rate of 112,000 pounds per week.

"A few, very few, misguided persons have attempted to sabotage this successful salvage drive with the assertion that one single tooth paste tube can't be worth the effort to collect it. The terrible truth is that every tube is of vast importance. Only 240 are required, for example, to provide all the solder needed on a Flying Fortress.

That's how important these tubes are. And in the aggregate they assume staggering proportions. Up to the end of September we had reclaimed some 260,000 pounds of tin, by the end of October we had reclaimed more than 342,800 pounds. That is tin from single tubes turned in all over the country. Your tubes will help win the war, if you get them off your bath cabinet shelf and into the fight. Take them down to your store today and let us send them out to fight the enemy."

The Tin Salvage Institute is directed and supervised by the pharmaceutical manufacturing and the manufacturers of collapsible metal tubes who serve on a voluntary basis is without pay. It is an agency of the Metals Reserve Company, which is itself a subsidiary of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. The Institute is under the direction of C. W. Nichols, vice president of the Metals Reserve Company. It is a governmental operation which is putting its own way and undoubtedly will show a profit to the taxpayer.

Insect Control Plans Are Given

It is a good practice to clean out bins and grain bins well where old grain has been stored in them before putting in new grain. The walls should be sprayed with just common oil emulsion. Where this practice is followed less damage is done by the stored grain pests. It may be applied before the practice of treating the bins of grain with highlife will be necessary.

The formula for preparing the oil-emulsion follows: one gallon Lubrication oil, one gallon Potash (potassium) fish oil soap, one pound Water, one half gallon.

The ingredients are mixed together, the whole brought to a boil, and then while still hot pumped at least twice through a small opening, such as that in a spray gun or a very coarse disk nozzle.

For further information see or write your County Agent.

Experiments have shown by the Bureau of Entomology and Plant Quarantine, as well as abundant ranch practices that the abundance of cattle grubs can be greatly reduced and the annoyance by the adults, or beetles, very largely eliminated by applications to the backs of infested cattle of a soapy wash containing powdered roset of either derris or cube. The wash should be applied before any of the grubs drop from the backs of cattle, and the application should be repeated about once a month during the season when the grubs are present on the backs of the cattle.

Now is the time to treat the cattle and any dairyman or rancher should contact County Agent Floyd Lynch if you desire to begin a control program.

Fifty Years Ago

... people did things that they dare not do today. Many bought their homes without an abstract, and the title usually was good. But times have changed! Multiplied thousands of titles were clouded during the oil boom days and since, by the passing of time. And the property you have in mind buying now without an abstract may be one of them. Play safe when you buy real estate. Always demand an abstract.
