RECORD RAIDS SPREAD RUIN AT SALAMAUA

Nearly four tons of bombs per minute for 45 minutes dropped by big bombers

By Brydon Taves
United Press Staff Correspondent

Under the watchful eyes and protective hands of Company B of the Texas State Guard and members of the Ranger Fire Department, the Ranger Airport literally went up in smoke Friday night. And now we can watch planes come in without feeling like running out to warn alerting pilots of the abundant grass burr crop.

The Guards and firemen volunteered to do the job when they loomed prospects of a flying school coming to Ranger, and though the blaze and smoke from the fire could be seen for miles, the burning of the airport grass and weeds was accomplished without casualties except for a singed chicken and the dialing of thousands of grass hoppers. And the grass hoppers were making some kind of a speed record in getting out of there, with the result that innocent bystanders felt like they had been hit by a rifle bullet when happening to intercept one of them.

The patriotic men who volunteered to do this job deserve the thanks of the entire town for removing a dangerous fire hazard and an unsightly spot that should be one of which we could be proud.

Ground troops were poised only a few miles from the northeast New Guinea coastal base, waiting to plunge in on the garrison. The air attack, which caused big fires and explosions, was the largest ever staged in the Southwest Pacific.

Incidentally, while we're on the subject of the airport, if you know someone who is interested in taking flying lessons, pass the word on about the school that is being considered for Ranger. Information about the school can be had at the Chamber of Commerce office.

The bombers met light anti-aircraft fire and no interception. One explosion on the Salamaua isthmus appeared to have occurred in a munition or fuel dump while the whole area was covered with dust and smoke that rose 6,000 feet. The communique said "the whole area is in ruins."

Dog, Mascot of Army Saves Two Trapped Soldiers

SAN DIEGO, Aug. 14. (UP)—"General MacArthur" a mongrel dog who serves as mascot for an army medical detachment stationed at a local brewery, today was credited with saving the lives of a soldier and a brewer's engineer who became trapped inside a large refrigerator.

At Bougainville, in the Northern Solomons, Liberators, escorted by Corsairs and Warhawks, dropped 26 tons of bombs on Kahili airfield Thursday and pictures showed 32 of 42 enemy bombers and fighters were caught on the field and destroyed or badly damaged.

The soldier, Pfc. Lucas Armbruster, of Festus, Mo., and Jack Gates, engineer, were inside the refrigerator checking medical supplies stored there when a watchman noticing the door ajar slammed and locked it.

The advance by the southwestern flank of the troops ringed Bairoko Harbor, last enemy stronghold on New Georgia, brought American troops within three and one-half miles of the Japanese garrison on that wing.

"I peered through a tiny hole in the door and saw 'General MacArthur,' Armbruster related.

Under such pressure as the Allies propose to employ, it is thought that Marshal Badoglio's position will become impossible," The Daily Mail said. "It is the opinion of observers in London that the time is drawing near when another government may be formed in Rome with powers as well as a desire to fulfill the unconditional surrender terms."

"Now, 'Mac' appeared to be the only way out for us. When I saw him, I kept pounding and yelling, although by this time I realized no one could hear us through those doors.

Today's communique from Allied headquarters in North Africa said the Rome bombers did "great damage" to the Littorio and San Lorenzo railroad switch yards, and with their escorting fighters, shot down at least five Axis fighters.

How Allies Advanced to Victory in Sicily

The four-week victory march of Allied armies in Sicily from their original beachheads on the southern coast to the final battles in the northwestern corner is shown by attack arrows on map. Even before the complete victory at Messina, Allied forces may strike out to invade the Italian mainland, which has already been shelled at Vibo Valentia and Crotona.

CRY FOR PEACE GOES UP FROM RAIDED CITIES

By J. Edward Murray
United Press Staff Correspondent

LONDON, Aug. 14. (UP)—New cries for peace echoed through the streets of bomb-raided Rome, Milan and Turin following the latest series of Anglo-American raids. European news agencies said today, and the London Daily Mail predicted that the intensified aerial offensive may drive the Badoglio government out of office.

Mussolini Being Held In Castle

MADRID, Aug. 14. (UP)—Benito Mussolini is held under heavy guard at Castel Porcia O, the summer residence of King Victor Emmanuel near Rome, on the monarch's own orders, recent travelers from the Italian capital said today.

GAS RATIONING SCHEDULE FOR NATION GIVEN

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14. (UP)—The new gasoline orders create this rationing set-up for the nation:

These travelers also brought confirmation of reports that Mussolini's Fascist grand council deserted along with the king that he abandon the premiership. Mussolini was arrested, it was said, on orders of Marshal Pietro Badoglio, who succeeded him. He was taken into custody on the grand staircase of the king's palace by two police officers. As Mussolini left an audience with the king where he had been informed that his resignation was in order, an officer was said to have stopped him.

1. States affected by the new curtailment: Midwest—Ohio, Kentucky, Tennessee, Indiana, Michigan, Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, Missouri, Oklahoma, Kansas, Nebraska, South and North Dakota; Gulf and Southwest—Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Arkansas, Texas and New Mexico. (All coupons worth three gallons a week.)

Reinforcements of military police and troops were called out to put down peace demonstrations in Milan, hardest hit of the three cities, and are maintaining constant patrols to prevent further outbreaks, Swiss dispatches reported.

When Mussolini made a gesture as if to argue, the officer added, "Marshal Badoglio's orders, your excellency." Mussolini then followed the two officers down a back staircase where a red cross ambulance waited. It took him to a military fort near Rome.

2. States with the pleasure driving ban, with the "A" ration value of one and a half gallons a week and "B" and "C" ration values at two and a half gallons a week: The six New England States, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, eight eastern counties of West Virginia and the district of Columbia.

All London newspapers said the three heavy raids were only a forerunner of what awaits Italy as the result of Premier Marshal Pietro Badoglio's failure to accept the Allied demand for unconditional surrender.

Later, it was said, the king inquired of Badoglio on Mussolini's whereabouts and was told he was guarded in a military fort. "No, that is wrong," the king said. "He is decorated with the Collar of the Order of the Annunziata, after all. Send him to one of my summer residences but closely guarded."

3. States in the eastern shortage area unaffected by the pleasure ban, with the "A" ration value 1 and one-half gallons a week and "B" and "C" ration values at three gallons weekly: Georgia, the Carolinas, Florida and the western counties of West Virginia.

Under such pressure as the Allies propose to employ, it is thought that Marshal Badoglio's position will become impossible," The Daily Mail said. "It is the opinion of observers in London that the time is drawing near when another government may be formed in Rome with powers as well as a desire to fulfill the unconditional surrender terms."

The order of Annunziata, Italy's highest decoration, makes its recipients "cousins" of the monarch.

4. States with a ration value of four gallons for "A," "B" and "C" coupons: All the Rocky Mountains and Pacific Coast States not listed in other categories. In this group, in other words, the ration situation remains unchanged by the present order.

Today's communique from Allied headquarters in North Africa said the Rome bombers did "great damage" to the Littorio and San Lorenzo railroad switch yards, and with their escorting fighters, shot down at least five Axis fighters.

ALBANY, Ore. Aug. 14. (UP)—Prosecutors of Mrs. Catherine Wright, 26, charged with the abduction of a two-day-old baby, learned today that she was convicted of a theft committed in Honolulu the day Pearl Harbor was bombed.

Two children died in Hutchinson hospitals yesterday from the disease and one death was reported at the same time in Wichita.

Major Woods explained that exchanges within the United States were taking part in the Conservation program.

Mrs. Wright's former husband, Harry Morgan, said the injuries she suffered on Pearl Harbor day were the result of a fall from the porch of their home.

At Marysville, the death of a 38-year-old cafe operator, Roy Stroller, brought death toll from the disease in that town during the past nine days to four. State board of health officials said earlier in the week that the situation in the northeast part of the State was "especially serious."

U.S. CHIEFS OF STAFF ARRIVE FOR MEETINGS

United Press Staff Correspondent
QUEBEC, Que., Aug. 14. (UP)—The arrival here of the United States chiefs of staff was accepted today as indicating that President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Winston Churchill would soon follow for their sixth meeting.

Clemency Asked For Old-Time Political Boss

KANSAS CITY, Mo. Aug. 14. (UP)—An appeal for executive clemency or a change in terms of the probation on which one-time boss T. J. Pendegast is at liberty has been filed by a group of business and professional leaders here, it was revealed today.

Reliable sources in London said foreign secretary Anthony Eden was "likely to come here to attend the Roosevelt-Churchill conferences. They thought the President and Prime Minister might take "special measures" to increase Anglo-American collaboration with Russia but were not certain whether Eden later would go to Moscow.

Federal Judge Merrill E. Otis said he had "refused to recommend favorable action" on the appeal.

The time of arrival of the principals was a closely guarded secret.

The move was revealed when the jurist filed two letters with the clerk of the Federal court. They were a letter from Daniel M. Lyons, pardon attorney for the Department of Justice at Washington, and Otis' reply.

Admiral William D. Leahy, who has offices in the White House and is in constant communication with Mr. Roosevelt on all military matters as chief of staff to the commander in chief, headed the American military personages arriving for the conference.

Otis said he agreed that the former head of a political machine which for more than a decade dominated Kansas City government and much of the political activity in the state had "complied with the terms of his probation faithfully."

The other were: General George C. Marshall, chief of staff, U. S. Army, Admiral Ernest J. King, commander in chief of the fleet, General H. H. Arnold, commanding the army air force, and General Brehon B. Somervell, chief of supplies.

The letter from Lyons asked Otis' recommendations on the appeal to the president, made by a group that included several nationally known Missourians.

It was assumed that the chiefs of staff would at once settle down to working out the master military strategy with the British experts who arrived with Churchill which, it is hoped, may knock the European Axis out of the war this year.

Suddenly, police said, there was a grinding crash as another street car plunged into the rear of the stalled and darkened vehicle, ripping into the compartment where the children, 8 to 15 years old, were standing.

Study plans whereby the war may be carried to Japan, while not relenting the offensive on the European front.

All were taken to hospitals for treatment of injuries which attendants today said were believed not critical.

Court Test on OPA Action May Upset Authority

OKLAHOMA CITY, Aug. 14. (UP)—A court test on the right of the Office of Price Administration to set cotton gin rates was foreseen today after the OPA Oklahoma ceiling prices.

Other speakers will include Gov. Robert S. Kerr. Plans for the conference are being developed by Robert S. Huffman of Tulsa, chairman of the general committee for the meeting and also chairman of the Oklahoma advisory group of the national committee for the conservation of manpower in war industries.

The OPA fixed the rates of 27 cents a hundred pounds for picked cotton and 30.25 cents for sacked cotton, a 5 per cent increase over last year.

Other speakers will include Gov. Robert S. Kerr. Plans for the conference are being developed by Robert S. Huffman of Tulsa, chairman of the general committee for the meeting and also chairman of the Oklahoma advisory group of the national committee for the conservation of manpower in war industries.

Cotton ginner, at a hearing here this week, had requested rates of 40 cents and 45 cents. If a court test is filed, the corporation commission would file it on the premise that cotton gins are public utilities and under control of the commission. If they were found to be public utilities, the OPA would not have authority to regulate them, it was pointed out.

DECLARATION BROADCAST BY STEFANI NEWS

ALLIES not bound to accept status until every condition of international law is met

LONDON (UP)—The Italian government declared Rome an "open city" today, but authoritative sources here said the British and hence presumably the entire Allied position was not affected by the unilateral declaration.

The Italian move to immunize Rome against Allied aerial bombardment only 24 hours after the second American raid on the city "cannot, of course, affect the full liberty of action of the Allied command," a spokesman said.

The conversion of a city into an open or non-military and undefended city is a two way affair requiring mutual agreement, and in the case of Rome the Allies would be entirely justified in holding off acceptance of the declaration until every last condition had been met.

First word of the government declaration was broadcast from Rome by the Official Stefani news agency. Swiss frontier advisers confirmed it.

The government now is taking all the necessary measures in accordance with international law," The Stefani broadcast concluded.

The Allies were on the verge of two great victories today and American might fell on Germany in a new sector.

The war's tide brought these developments:

1. Throngs of beaten Axis troops fled across the narrow straits of Messina to escape the Sicilian death trap in the sixth week and final phase of the island campaign.

2. Russian troops were reporting fighting in the streets of Kharkov against bitter German rear guard resistance. Fall of the fourth Russian city to the advancing Red Army appeared not far off.

3. American Liberators made a 2,600 mile record daylight raid on the Vienna area yesterday, bringing home to Hitler the vulnerability of every corner of his perimeter of conquest.

German troops raced across the Messina Straits to Italy by every available boat, braving intense Allied air attacks, as their rear guard lines crumbled.

American and British forces drove ahead two to seven miles in Sicily, capturing five more towns, and went over to certain domination of the Mount Etna area, probably trapping thousands of Germans and Italians in the hills.

A rapidly closing Allied sea patrol hemmed in the three to 10 mile wide Messina Straits and already British motor boats had slipped into Messina harbor to torpedo three merchant vessels.

Which Way?

The answer is obvious. American troops took the road to the right and it proved to be the right road to victory.
