Nazi Blitzkrieg Methods Boomerang

RED ARMY IN FIFTEEN MILES OF KOROSTEN

LONDON, Nov. 17 (Wednesday). (UP)—Soviet forces smashed within fifteen miles of the Ukraine rail and road junction of Korosten at three points Tuesday while another Red army column moved nine miles deeper into the eastern fringe of White Russia's Pripyet marshes in a drive that threatened to collapse the German's Gomel front.

Gen. Nikolai F. Vautin's First Ukraine Army tightened its siege around Korosten, forty-five miles north of Zhitomir, by moving within fifteen miles of the junction on the south, southeast and northeast. The southern column captured Turchinka, on the railroad to Zhitomir. On the southeast another column moved into Chepovichi, on the rail line to Kiev and on the northeast, a third group took the town of Ohkhoti.

Southeast of the Korosten-Zhitomir front, heavy German tank and infantry forces continued desperate counterattacks to hold Soviet troops threatening to close the encirclement of Nazi units within the Dnieper Bend. Communiqués broadcast by Radio Moscow said thirty-five tanks were lost by the Germans Tuesday near Fastov, where a battalion of Nazi foot soldiers was dispersed and partly wiped out by the Soviet Air Force.

Upwards of 6,100 Germans died Tuesday on the Russian front, Moscow reported. A full regiment of 1,000 men was slain in the Pripyet Marsh fighting as the Red Army moved nine miles westward from Demekhi to take Babichi, a station on the Gomel-Pinsk railroad.

The capture of Babichi gave the Russians control of a nine-mile stretch of railroad, one of the two rail escape routes from Gomel, and military observers agreed that the fall of Gomel was inevitable if indeed, the Germans had not already begun evacuating it.

Such an evacuation by rail now was possible only by the line leading to Minsk, and, if the Russians succeeded in cutting that route, the Germans would face a retreat.

LONDON, Nov. 17. (UP)—The Berlin radio acknowledged today that the Germans had been forced to withdraw their lines "several kilometers" in the area of Korosten, vital railroad junction in the northwest crisis, against which Moscow said the Red Army had closed a siege arc.

TWO EASTLAND COUNTY BOYS WIN CONTEST

Announcement has been made by L. L. Johnson, State Boys' club agent, of the winners of State and National 4-H Club contests. Eastland County has two winners.

Billy Henderson, of Rt. 2, Eastland, who has completed five years of club work is the state winner of the national 4-H leadership contest.

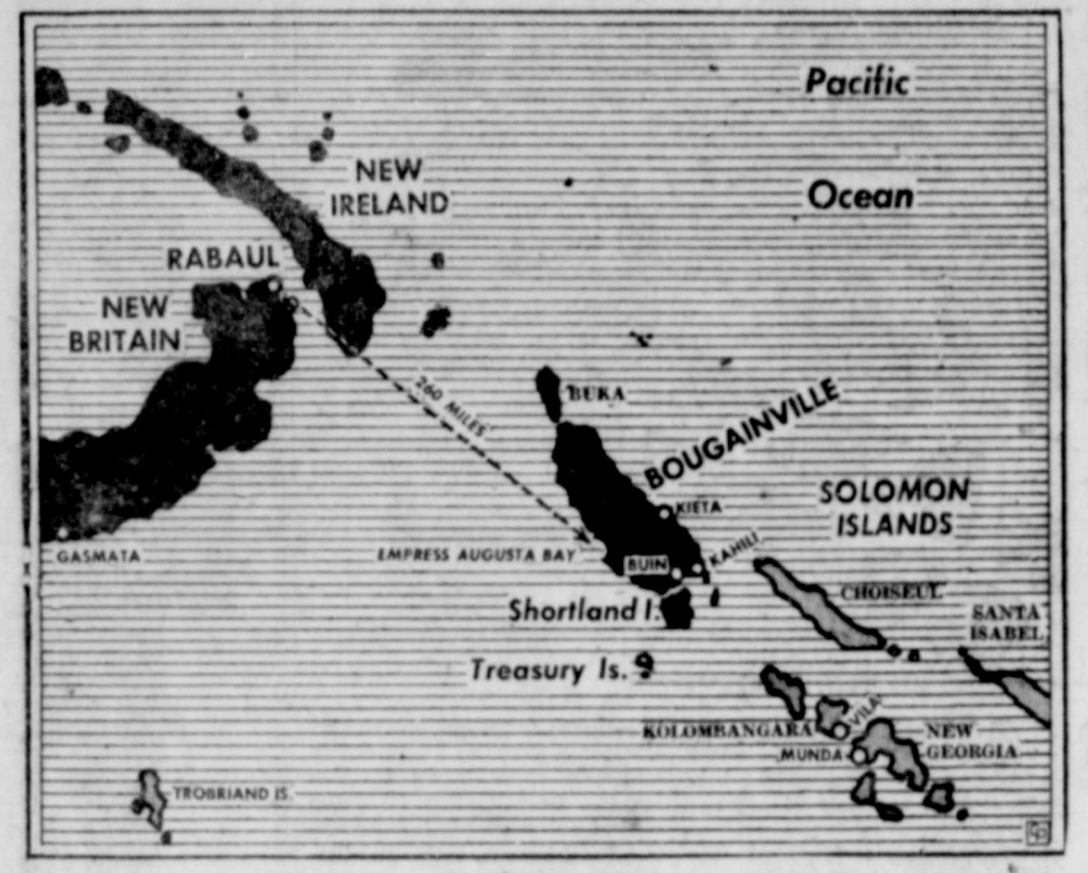

According to the interpretation of the contest, this will entitle Billy a trip to the 22nd national 4-H Club congress to be held in Chicago, December 21st, 1943. A certificate will be awarded the 1st place winner by H. A. Moses and the national committee on boys and girls club work. In addition, a beautiful silver trophy will be presented the national winner to be held during the year. This trophy offered to the club boy in the United States showing the most outstanding rural leadership is provided by Moses and is awarded annually by the International 4-H training school. A 200.00 scholarship will be awarded the 1st place national winning boy and a $100 scholarship will be awarded the 2nd place national winning boy by Edward Foss Wilson, Chicago, Illinois.

Donald Kinnaird, Jr., is one of six winners of the state on the national 4-H victory garden contest. This is Donald's first year in club work. According to an interpretation, he is awarded a $25.00 War Bond.

Donald's garden consisted of a back yard plot from which he grubbed trees in order to make a garden. By doing the work himself he eliminated all expenses except cost of seed, fertilizer, fence, and plowing. The variety of plants grown are as follows: okra, collards, chard, turnips, radishes, lettuce, onions, peas, cabbage, beans, pepper, beets. Donald kept a complete record which furnishes a report of total receipts (which included vegetables consumed, canned, given away) $43.63; total expenses: $18.80; net income or return: $24.83.

Donald states in a written report: "Making a garden is a small thing compared to what our boys in service are having to go through on the battlefield, and I am sure that there would be twice as many victory gardens if more people thought of it in this sense instead of as how much time, energy and work it would take to make a garden."

BOUGAINVILLE ISLAND WHERE YANKS HAVE INVADIED

THIS MAP shows the location of Bougainville island, where American air, naval and amphibious forces have combined to invade Empress Augusta Bay on the western coast. The Allied move threatens to unhinge the entire Jap position in the southwest Pacific. Empress Augusta Bay, which is 260 miles from the Jap base at Rabaul, New Britain, flanks all of Japan's airdromes on the southern portion of the island. Bougainville island is 115 miles long. It is studded with enemy airdromes. (International)

AMERICANS PAY PRICE FOR ADVANCES IN ITALY

NAZIS FORCE YANKS BACK ON VENAFCRO FRONT

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS in Algiers, Nov. 17. (UP)—The Allied command acknowledged Tuesday that American forces have been forced back from heights north of Venafero and it was made plain by fighting on the cold, rainy Italian front that bitter fighting awaits the Allies on the road to Rome.

"Neither Tunisia nor Sicily presented the difficulties which the Allied troops must overcome before they drive the enemy into northern Italy, and it is becoming obvious that neither of those campaigns cost the blood this drive will cost," said a dispatch from the Fifth Army Front.

For the time being, both the Allies and the Germans were digging into the mud for shelter from the inclement weather and from shell fire, and comparatively small yards of rocky hilltops, valuable only because they overlook a further goal.

The Nazis counterattacked twice Monday with strong, fresh troops to shove Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark's American infantry off positions they had won on Monte Santa Gorge, north of Venafero. This key peak dominates the entrance to a plain northwest of Mignano, which in turn gives access to the strategic city of Cassino on the main inland highway to Rome.

The British Eighth Army, defying the weather and consequent absence of air support, won some new high ground north of Ateza, fourteen miles from the Adriatic, and its patrols ranged across the Sangro River to feel out the enemy's strength. German resistance was stiff along the length of the front.

TEAM SPIRIT HIGH OVER FRIDAY'S GAME

Now certain that they can finish no lower than fifth in the District 9 AA football race, the Ranger Bulldogs will go into the game against Stephenville, here Friday night with the determination to improve that standing.

Although the Stephenville team has a much higher rating than the Ranger team, Coach Don Martin says that the Bulldogs "are conceding them nothing," and that most any upset may come with the improved playing of Freddie Larson, Bobbie Hickey, Pete Dawn, Wesley Walker and Jack Browning.

At least the Bulldogs are going into the game to win, not only this game, but to step up a bit on the district ladder. Each game of the season has shown a decided improvement in the team as well as individual players, and though the start may have been slow, the rapid strides made in the last few games may be indicative for more fight for Friday's game.

Friday's game is next to the last game of the 1943 season and the last game will be played against Weatherford at Ranger on Thanksgiving Day.

TO HEAD STEWARDS

At a meeting of the Boards of Stewards of the First Methodist church held Tuesday night, A. N. Larson was re-elected to the chairmanship of the board, to serve for the current conference year. Other members of the board who served the past year were also re-elected.

GRAND EXODUS MARKS OPENING DEER SEASON

November 15 marked the opening of deer season in Texas and if all communities in Texas gave forth with deer hunters as did Ranger, there'll likely be a closed season on deer for the next year or two, that is, if all hunters kill the limit.

Some of the hunters were well on their way before the season opened and others lost no time in getting on the move as the 15th dawned.

The grand exodus to the deer country was led by a party that usually makes the trip and was headed by H. H. Vangho, F. P. Kibbs, Ray Neely, A. H. Powell, and this year included S. O. Montgomery and M. L. King. This party planned to go to Mason County.

Another party that got an early start was composed of H. O. Woods, and son, Bobbie Leonard, Jack Donohue and Mat Robinson and will do their hunting in Blanco County.

From Tyler and East Texas came a party headed by O. R. Cooper of Tyler and was joined here by V. V. Cooper, Sr., and L. L. Brown.

Two more hunters left early Tuesday in search of the feet-footed animals, they were Jas T. McCluskey and J. F. Steed.

ALLIED NERVE BLITZ ON NAZI HAS GOEBBELS ON THE JUMP

(Editor's Note: Joanni W. Grigg was Berlin bureau manager of the United Press who Paul Joseph Goebbels, arch exponent of propaganda warfare, was unleashing his "nerve blitz" on European victims.)

By Joseph W. Grigg LONDON, Nov. 17. (UP)—Russia, Great Britain and the United States opened a new front against Germany this week—a combined assault upon Nazi nervous system which has Dr. Paul Goebbels hopping.

The "nerve blitz," carefully coordinated and planned, is part of the final softening up process preliminary to all-out assault against Germany in 1944.

By keeping the Nazis constantly on the jump, the Allies are using an improved and intensified form of the methods used by Goebbels against a succession of nations during the blitzkrieg period.

The purpose of these tactics is to keep the Nazi guessing where the next big Allied drive is coming from. Here are recent examples:

1. Gen. Jacob Devers statements of a forthcoming U. S. Army invasion rehearsal.
2. Declaration of forbidden areas and disclosure of vast exercises on the coast a couple of months ago.
3. Carefully calculated "accidents" and indiscretions, including Allied troop concentrations in the Balkans to keep the Nazis guessing as to mobile reserves.
4. Monday night's broadcast hinting a new offensive on the northern front.
5. Washington disclosure of development of Amphibious tanks.
6. Air Marshal Sir Arthur Harris warnings of intentions to "verize" German cities this winter.

Stewards Elect Officers For Conference Year

The first meeting of the conference year for the board of stewards of the First Methodist church was held at the church Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock and plans for the work of the church discussed.

Officers for the year were chosen with all who served last year being re-elected. Officers are chairman, A. N. Larson; vice-chairman, R. S. Palko; secretary, V. V. Cooper, Jr.; and treasurer, W. F. Crozier.

A meeting of the Board of Christian Education of the church preceded the stewards' meeting.

Three Texans Die In Crashes At Florida Field

FORT MYERS, Fla. Nov. 17. (UP)—Sixteen fliers were killed here Tuesday when two medium twin-motored bombers crashed within an hour of each other at the Buckingham Army Air Field.

The first plane crashed at 9:20 a. m. and the other about an hour later. Servicemen at the field who saw the first crash said the plane appeared to go out of control and immediately into a spin. It crashed from 1,000 feet, they said, killing the eight occupants instantly.

Before ambulance crews had departed from the scene the second plane, coming in for a landing, crashed and burst into flames. Eight men perished.

An investigation was ordered at once by Col. L. P. Hickey, commanding officer of the field. Both planes were on routine flights.

Among those killed in the first crash were Second Lieut. H. Findley, 23, pilot, Tatum, Texas, and Pfc. Peter L. Long, 21, San Antonio, Texas.

United Charity Fund Drive To Be Held Monday

The Churches United Charity Organization, sponsored by the Ranger Ministerial Alliance will have its annual drive to raise the funds for any necessary charity that will be extended during the coming year.

These funds are looked after by the Alliance and each case is investigated and if found to be needy cases, two ministers must sign a check drawn from the fund to care for the case.

Last year $300.00 was raised for the fund and $150.00 of that $300.00 was given to the School Nursery fund. It was decided at the Ranger Ministerial meeting, last Monday, that the organization would seek to raise $100 for this year's charity work. A committee will call on Ranger people Monday.

Soviet Russia Now Quits Stalin Encourages Desire For Broader Life for All

By HELEN ESSARY Central Press Columnist

WASHINGTON—The Soviet Union joined the United States, Great Britain and China in the Moscow war and peace pact because Premier Josef Stalin is determined to lead his people out of the darkness of suspicion into the sun of respectability.

This is the answer, according to a military man just back from Moscow, to the unexpected and confounding alliance of the four powers.

Stalin knows that the only way in which he can make a respectable place for his people and make the world forget the 'Red' stigma is to co-operate with those nations that have the most respectability to offer, continued his military friend.

The Soviet Union's greatest moment of triumph, to date, was that moment when United States Secretary of State Cordell Hull and British Secretary of Foreign Affairs Anthony Eden traveled all the way to Moscow, with a hat in hand, to urge Stalin, 'Come on in with us. The water's fine.'

If you are to understand Stalin at all, so I was told, you must remember that he is vain. All leaders are vain. Or they wouldn't step out from the crowd.

Stalin wants to be regarded as a great man. What use are those victories won against the Germans with blood and sweat if the world continues to be disturbed by the nations it most admires?

Didn't you know that Josef Stalin is tired of being thought of as a butcher boy? The returned traveler asked me. He is weary of being looked down on as a vulgarian. He wants to join the easy brotherhood of Franklin Roosevelt and Winston Churchill and Chiang Kai-shek, too—as a social equal.

Stalin wants to be a gentleman among gentlemen—a hero, not just another dictator in the history books.

I asked my Soviet authority to tell me more about the Stalin mind. Why, he continued, the whole thing is as understandable as kindergarten work. Stalin has killed all the people in his own country that need to be killed in order to preserve the republic.

His army has been winning gloriously. His co-operative farms, one of the great Soviet experiments, are very successful. Stalin knows, moreover, what new worlds he wants to conquer when peace comes.

So that his people will worship him as they now do Lenin, he plans to give them back traditions cut away by the revolution. A comfortable life also, with luxuries. And conventional religion and education.

From now on, the citizens of the Soviet must be regarded as equals of the English and Americans in elegance. The peace which they have won must be rewarded.

Stalin wants to dress up Russia. The man from Moscow told me. He's already begun to dress himself up. You notice that he received Hull and Eden in a glittering new marshal's uniform. His people want to dress up, too.

They want silk stockings, tiled bath rooms, automobiles, the clothes, washing machines—tricks of easy living that can be bought by being friends of the nations that have the most tricks to offer. Don't look surprised. The reasons for harmony in Moscow are as simple as this.

Stalin's determination to build up lost Russian traditions are being shown by many small but significant acts, my Moscow authority believes. There, for example, are the 'Twenty Rules for Students.'

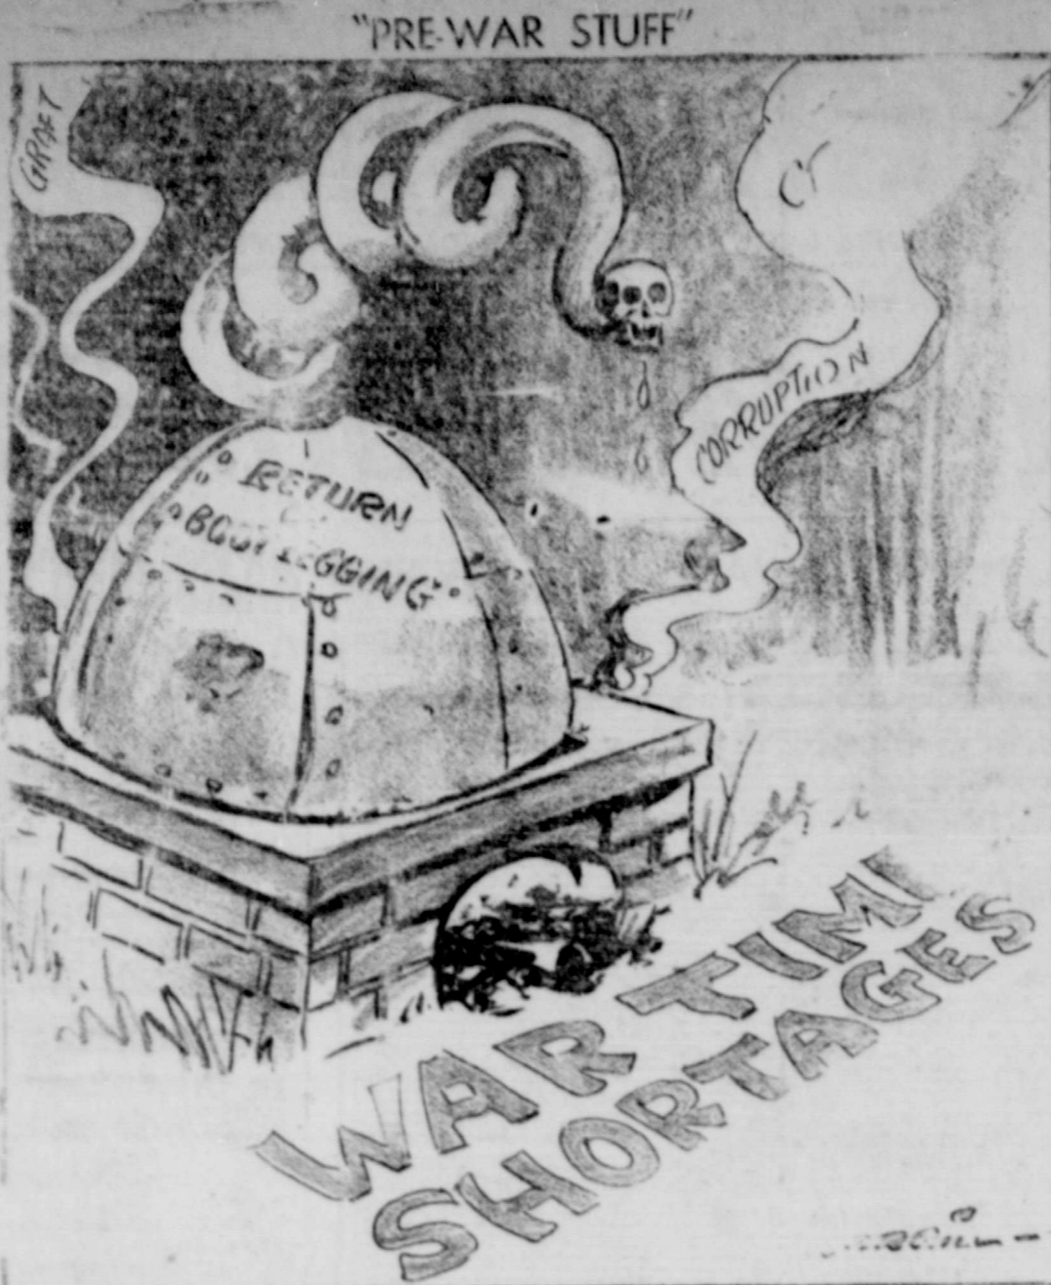

After the revolution the pendulum swung far to the left in education. All schools were made co-educational. Formal authority was gone away with. Lately, co-education has been abolished. Girls and boys go to separate schools. Every student has been made to learn the 'Twenty Rules.'

What are those rules? Not rules thought up by radical Soviet leaders. They are identical rules of deportment by which Russian King and boys were taught good manners and obedience in the old tsarist days.

It's getting harder to get a divorce in Russia than it was in the early days of the Union, I was told also. And another national trend toward conservatism is the new interest in religion.

The statutes that were out of the cathedrals by the revolutionaries are still off. The churches themselves continue to be used as magazines. But, those's names are against religious worship. A man may pray wherever he wants to. He may kneel down in the street at the inspiration comes.

A recent film shows a large group of Russians making the sign of the cross. This, according to my Soviet authority, was an old custom. A sort of protection is to show that you believe in God.

ALASKA FLIERS TAKE MINNIE UP FOR LUCK

AN ARMY AIRFIELD IN ALASKA, (UP)—Because of their heroic talents, 'Minnie the Goldfish' and Galena, a female husky pup, both Air Force pets here, have achieved fame among Army aviators from Natal to Nome.

The patient, a colonel, gave him seven goldfish, but on the return flight to Alaska the goldfish bowl froze solid and only Minnie survived.

Since then, at his Alaska station, Captain Staats has frequently returned to his quarters to find a door or window inadvertently left open and Minnie again thoroughly frapped. But on being thwarted out Minnie has always survived and been as active and decorative as before.

WAR SPURS USE OF VALUABLE TANTALUM ORE

WASHINGTON, (UP)—Tantalum, a rare and valuable metal, has been put to new uses in war work, including the field of surgery, according to the National Geographic Society.

A steel-gray metal costing $65 a pound, tantalum is characterized by durability, a high melting point and resistance to most chemicals. It is so hard to obtain that importations of ore are measured in pounds rather than in tons. Quantities greater than an ounce cannot be sold by manufacturers without a special allocation order.

One of its most important new uses is patching up war casualties. Thin plates of tantalum make the best substitutes for parts of the skull bone, as they are unaffected by body secretions. Tantalum wire so fine it is almost invisible is used to sew broken nerves. Heavier wire and screws of the metal are used to fasten shattered bones.

But perhaps its most valuable function is an "electron getter" in radar tubes. When heated, the tantalum filament absorbs stray electrons which man cannot remove from a vacuum by suction. Unless absorbed in this or some other fashion, these molecules interfere with a tube's efficiency and finally make it useless.

In camera lenses, tantalum gives a high index of refraction, making possible clear aerial photography from greater distances than with ordinary lenses. It is also used as a catalyst in making butadiene, important ingredient of synthetic rubber, and as an alloy in metal plating.

Tantalum can be worked easily, although it is as hard as rolled steel and three times as heavy as iron. These qualities make it a boon in medical and dental laboratories.

The only known source of the anthracite-like ore in the United States is the Black Hills of South Dakota, but deposits are too small for profitable mining. The major supply is imported from Australia, Brazil and the Belgian Congo.

Catnap Costs Man Full Billfold

DALLAS, Tex. (UP)—A sound sleeper woke up minus $137 the other day after a catnap in the Dallas Union Terminal.

B. T. Trammell of Gilmer, Tex., was afraid someone might steal his money so he carefully put his billfold in his hip pocket and covered it just as carefully with his overcoat and suit coat.

Believing that he had taken all necessary precautions, Trammell stretched out on a waiting room bench for a short nap. But while he slept, some persistent pickpocket cut through the three layers of cloth with a knife and removed the billfold.
