Allies Advance On Entire Normandy Front

5TH WAR LOAN OPENS MONDAY, RANGER'S PART IS $164,000

Ranger together with the entire United States Monday launches the Fifth War Loan Drive to finance the great struggle in which the country has been involved for the past two and one-half years. Ranger's quota is $164,000, more than any quota has ever been and at least half of this amount will have to be bought in Series E Bonds, those designed for the individual to purchase. This means that every individual in Ranger will have to buy the limit of his ability in order to meet the quota.

According to bankers of Eastland county, there is plenty of money in the county to meet the quota and all that is necessary is the cooperation of the people of the county.

W. F. Creager, chairman for the drive in Ranger, stated Saturday that members of the Boy Scout troops and Camp Fire Girls will cover the town Monday morning distributing literature with reference to the drive and the types of bonds which can be purchased. The public is asked to study the pamphlets and to purchase bonds with every available dollar.

The quota for Eastland county is $725,000 while the quota in the last War Loan was $550,000, making this loan $166,000 more than the last and largest.

Ranger so far has met every War Loan Quota and it is believed that the people will just as cheerfully meet this one but the effort will have to be much greater than ever before. Not only are the people urged to buy as many bonds as possible but they are asked to do it now and not wait until the last minute to purchase bonds.

No greater appeal can be made to the people of Ranger than the great battle that rages in Europe today and in which so many of the boys from Ranger are engaged. As one great leader said recently, "Consider the price they are paying, then ask yourself if your share of bonds for this drive is too great a price?"

Pastors Of Rome Condemn Conduct Of Italian Women

VATICAN CITY, June 10 (UP)—Pastors of various churches in Rome have denounced what was described as "the scandal of girls and women abandoning themselves audaciously to foreign soldiers," the semi-official Vatican News reported yesterday.

The reference to "foreign soldiers" was vague but it was understood it meant Americans as Italian girls and women had kept aloof from the Germans.

Most observers believed the denunciation related to the gay reception accord the doughboys Sunday night and Monday when every one in the Capital declared a Roman holiday.

Ross Cole Dies Strawn On Saturday Morning

Friends were advised early Saturday morning of the death of Ross Cole of Strawn. Death occurred at his home.

Mr. Cole has many friends here who regret to learn of his passing. He often visited in Ranger and he and his family have been popular singers in conventions held in Ranger.

Funeral arrangements had not been completed Saturday afternoon.

ALLIES TAKE 2 MORE TOWNS IN NORTH ITALY

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, NAPLES, June 10—(UP)—Allied troops have captured Tarquinia, 11 miles north of Civitavecchia, on the west coast of Italy and 51 miles above Rome, a communique announced today.

The text of the communique: Pursuit of the German 14th army continues. Viterbo, Tuscania and Tarquinia have been occupied. Troops of the eighth army still are engaged with enemy rear-guard east of the Tiber. Moxicone and Arsoili have been taken. Our troops in the Adriatic sector are now on the move and have crossed the river Foro at some places. Gulliano, Guardigliere and Orsogna have been occupied.

Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark's troops had spurred 50 miles across the plains north of Rome in five days, and the inability of the hard-hit German 14th army to make a stand now laid open the Nazi flank to attack by the eighth army.

Racing on 14 miles from the Tarquinia-Vetralla line, the fifth army seized Tuscania, while across the Apennines in the Adriatic sector the German retreat gained momentum under the impact of an eighth army assault.

British forces in the Adriatic area advanced an average of two and a half miles to capture Orsogna, 12 miles inland and one-time anchor of the Nazi defenses on that front; Guardigliere, four miles to the southwest; and the towns of Moxicone, Arsoili and Gulliano.

The advancing Allies crossed the Foro River and occupied the battered and burning villages of Filetto, two miles west of Orsogna, and Milgliaccio on the two and a half miles northwest of Tollo.

The Tiber River, far above Rome appeared to be the boundary between the German 14th and 10th armies. Clark's forces already had exposed a stretch of more than 20 miles of the 10th army flank, with the capture of Viterbo 21 miles farther north than Moxicone, where the eighth army was slowed down by heavy demolitions and harassing fire.

ALLIED PLANES INTERCEPT JAP TASK FORCE

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS in Southwest Pacific, June 10, (UP)—Mitchell medium bombers intercepted a Japanese task force 10 miles east of Bisk Island and sank or damaged five groups in the fourth attack in six days on enemy naval vessels off northwestern Dutch New Guinea, it was announced today.

Four destroyers were sunk by direct hits with 1,000-pound bombs and a fifth was damaged by the Mitchell in a mast-height attack on the task force Thursday afternoon as it steamed eastward through Geelvink Bay to Fak Island where U. S. troops recently captured an air base less than 90 miles from the Philippines.

Only one cruiser and another destroyer escaped from the enemy group, a communique said, although it was not explained whether the task force carried reinforcements or was enroute to Bisk to evacuate harassed Japanese troops.

Ten enemy planes attacked the American aerial fleet, which flew from advanced Allied bases in Dutch New Guinea, and Lightning fighter escorts shot down five of the Japanese aircraft and probably another. Three American planes were lost.

In the new attack the bombers raised their toll of Japanese warships sunk or damaged to eight in six days off Dutch New Guinea. One destroyer was sunk and another damaged Saturday night, while a heavy cruiser was damaged Tuesday.

American sixth army troops continued to clean out isolated enemy pockets northeast and northwest of Mooker airdrome, a communique said, in preparation for an advance on Barokke and Farido airdromes, one and two more respectively from Mooker.

Allier Sink One German Destroyer In Naval Battle

ALLIED SUPREME HEADQUARTERS LONDON June 10 (UP)—Allied destroyers sank one German destroyer off the coast of France last night, forced another to beach itself and drove off a force of heavily-armed enemy craft, it was announced today together with the disclosure that the first American destroyer sunk in the invasion operation Tuesday was hit by a Nazi mystery weapon.

Although the U. S. ship went down near their crew was in the water two hours under enemy snell fire and many were lost. The young skipper, whose name was withheld, said the destroyer sank shortly after "something hit us—I have a pretty good idea what—but better not say just what."

The German destroyer were hit in a running fight with eight Allied destroyers near Onnesant, 29 miles northwest of Brast. One was torpedoed by the British destroyer Ashanti and blew up on the spot. The other enemy craft, of the 2,000-ton narvik class, was chased furiously by the Canadian destroyers Haida and Hudson and hit the beach at a speed of at least 30 knots. Later she was beached and wrecked.

Two of the German destroyers in the force escaped westward after being hit by fire from the British destroyer Javelin and Fido. The third British ship, a tanker, taking part in the engagement was damaged and the crew suffered a few casualties when the vessel stalled through the enemy line, turned and opened fire on the leading German vessel. The other Allied ships were the Polish destroyers Flykawica and Florus.

Their arrival was announced yesterday by President Roosevelt in Washington.

The announcement from Allied Supreme Headquarters here said no further details of the three officers' arrival could be given, but added that the conferences which they would attend were "most important."

10 ATTACKS IN PACIFIC

Foods For Sale To Be Listed On Bulletin Board

The Ranger Chamber of Commerce in an effort to cooperate with the Victory Council of Eastland county which was recently organized for the promotion of food production for the war effort, will establish at the Chamber of Commerce office a bulletin board on which produce and foods for sale will be listed.

Farmers who have vegetables or other food items for sale may post them on the bulletin board and persons seeking such foods will thus be directed as to where they can find them. The board will be a medium for the seller as well as the purchaser and people of Ranger are urged to make use of this opportunity and thus assist the farmers who are eager to see that there is as little waste as possible in food.

Major Brasda was associated with the West Texas Hospital here and Major Wier was practicing medicine in Belen, New Mexico, though he had practiced here for a short while after finishing his internship.

BLOOD PLASMA SULFA DRUGS AID WOUNDED

By Dudley Ann Harmon

BRITISH INVASION PORT, June 9, (UP)—Blood plasma and sulfa drugs, saved many lives on the beaches of Normandy, it was revealed here with the arrival today of one of the largest groups of casualties and German war prisoners since the invasion.

The casualties, mostly airborne soldiers who suffered broken limbs in crashes, told me the plasma and drugs were dropped by parachute and administered in open fields under fire by medical officers who paraded to their tents.

"Lots of their equipment was scattered when the docs jumped," said Pvt. Glen Reeder, Mountain Grove, Mo., who was in the first airborne group. "It was wonderful how they managed to salvage it. I saw one major performing a serious operation in a stable. Bullets were hitting all around and Germans were everywhere."

Reeder said French peasants carried American wounded to safety in their carts. Some of the peasants threw casks of wine out of windows to wounded doughboys.

Reeder was leaning against a counter in the galley of a landing craft devouring sandwiches and coffee as he talked to me. His clothing was torn and grass stuck in his helmet was dry and faded. A neck wound he suffered from shrapnel had been bandaged carefully by an airborne medical officer and he was awaiting transportation to a hospital.

Reeder said he was most impressed by the operating tents set up on the beaches with doctors doing complicated surgery under fire.

The first cases that came off the boat were pale and many had their eyes closed. They were sped by ambulances to field hospitals which had been alerted six hours before.

Returning glider pilot said the French peasants stuck their heads out of windows and called "bon jour yankee" as parachutes fought in their backyards, on their lawns, around chicken coops and in and out of farm houses.

Dozer Devils Are Made Part Of Ninth Air Force

LONDON, June 10—(UP)—The "dozer devils," an engineering unit which is constructing airfields across the French battle fronts, was announced today as a branch of the ninth air force.

The new command, previously kept secret, is composed of aviation engineers, trained and armed for combat while constructing airfields on the continent.

The unit was activated within the air force under command of Brig. Gen. James Newman, Jr., of Washington, D. C.

ODT May Take On Rail, Bus Space

WASHINGTON—Defense Transportation Director J. Monroe Johnson, in what amounted to a stay-at-home request to would-be summer vacationists, today advised the public that railroad and bus space may be commandeered without notice because of returning invasion casualties.

CHINESE DEFEND CITY

CHUNGKING—Fierce battles are raging on the northern and eastern outskirts of Changsha, but Chinese defenders of the beleaguered Hunan Province rail junction still hold their main defense line on the Linyang River under heavy Japanese attack.

NAZIS REPORT ALLIES WITHIN TEN MILES OF CHERBOURG

Allied forces in France advanced along the entire front in Normandy today, Supreme Headquarters announced, and in several places crossed the main highway leading through Carentan, St. Mer-eglise and Valogne, the latter town being 10 miles from Cherbourg.

Farther to the east, Treveieres, between Isny and Bayeux, was among the places captured in the advances.

The Allies were meeting with stiff resistance all along the line but with the capture of Isny, on the Cherbourg-Paris highway six miles east of Carentan, they had linked their beachheads on a coastal stretch of nearly 60 miles.

Particularly heavy fighting was in progress at Carentan, which the Americans were storming, and in Caen.

The army newspapers Stars and Stripes disclosed that the Americans were fighting within 17 miles of Cherbourg while a German report said they were within ten miles.

It was announced officially that for the first time since Dunkerque in 1940 the Allies are using air bases on French soil, with American C-47 transports and Spitfires operating from two fields, on a landing strip and another a refueling base.

The Lt Transports were moving wounded.

The Germans had flooded an extensive coastal area to cover Carentan and the approaches to Cherbourg and the American's were advancing under difficulties.

Allied air forces resumed their all out support of the armies in France today when about 4,000 planes of all types smashed at troops and guns in the path of the land troops and pounded columns of German reinforcements moving up to the front.

Missouri County Is Already Over Its Loan Quota

SEDALIA, Mo. June 10 (UP)—Pettis County, Mo., already was over its quota today in the Fifth War Loan Drive, not due to open officially until Monday.

In a seven-hour special campaign yesterday in which county schools served as home front "induction centers," all business houses closed, and 500 workers aided in taking bond applications, more than $1,000,000 was subscribed, officials reported. The county's quota for the drive was $850,000.

O. O. P. Leaders' Coolness Toward Dewey a Puzzle

By HELEN ESSARY Central Press Columnist

WASHINGTON—President Roosevelt said the other day that when he was at Bernard Baruch's place in South Carolina he was away from Washington and so he could think I'd like to put that last phrase down exactly in his own words. But it is against the rules to quote the president of the United States directly.

Anyhow, you can easily understand what Mr. Roosevelt meant this time, which some people say isn't always possible. He meant that Washington with its pushing, pulling, squinting personalities and causes is hard on vision and brain power. There is too much to see and hear. And very little that seems to make sense.

Therefore, it is understandable that after you have wedged your way into a train or plane with nose turned away from the Potomac, you soon find you are asking yourself questions about this silly place.

Among the questions I asked myself the last time I was outward bound were these:

Why are many Republicans in Congress so lukewarm about Governor Thomas E. Dewey? They sort of mumble when you mention him and say, "Well, I don't know—well—" Obviously the able governor of New York has the convention votes he needs but you hear few personal cheers for him.

Why are the Republicans not too keen about any of their own people as presidential candidates? They saw red and greenish yellow when Willie was hunking about for the nomination. Can't they agree on any G. O. P. hopeful? Is their only point of agreement—the defeat of Franklin Roosevelt?

How do you explain the pogrom against Henry Wallace? There is a pogrom against the vice president. It is working within Mr. Wallace's own party. New Dealers and old line Democrats are trying to do the gentlemen from Iowa in. In and—out of Number Two place on the Chicago ticket.

But something tells me Wallace won't be done in. He has a cowlick. Cowlicks look easy scaping. But they aren't. Not if worn by a man who began as "A Mystic" (remember that was his early tag), and became the second most important official in the United States. If I were one of the boys bent on finishing Henry Wallace I'd stop a minute and pray for help in overcoming this corn-fed mystic with a practical hand.

Another question—how many of the people in Washington whom we now hear about or know will emerge after the war as definitely undesirable? Surely there are dozens of clever spies operating in the capital.

Ever so often in a flash of suspicion you think: "Could it be possible that she is a spy?" Or, "Why did he say that?" There were astonishing revelations after the last war when spies were easily detected with the naked eye.

The Matt Harris don't dress as they once did. The male secret agents are no longer done by Brooks Brothers and further adorned with dark red carnation boutonnieres. Undoubtedly we are much too careless and trusting!

ONE MORE QUESTION—Won't the House of Representatives be a good theater for one and all if and when the sticorate adds another charming actress to its floor show? Helen Gahagan from out in California's Hollywood has just won the Democratic nomination in the primary fight.

The winning was an extreme pleasure to Miss Gahagan and her friends. But it was a surprise to her husband, former Moving Picture Actor Melvyn Douglas.

Douglas, who enlisted in the Army as a private and worked his way up to captain, is at present in the India-China-Burma war theater. He didn't know that his wife was a candidate for Congress until he read the bright news of her victory in Yank magazine. Since then Miss Gahagan has wired Mr. Douglas confirming the news. She has had no reply. However, she has a hunch that Mr. Douglas won't mind.

Miss Gahagan is a lissome creature, slender and lovely. She can sing as well as act, look pretty, make smart speeches, ring voters' door bells and believe unblushingly in the New Deal.

I saw and heard Miss Gahagan in "Tonight or Never." I speak the truth when I say that Miss Gahagan or Mrs. Douglas, whatever you call her, will be a trial to Mrs. Clare Luce.

It will be marvelous to watch the two prima donnas, east and west coast variety, putting on their acts.

MINISTER PAYS TRIBUTE TO MISS RAWLINGS

By Wesley Mickey

Minister of the Church of Christ

Many hearts saddened to hear of the death of Miss Dora Rawlings who has served as a teacher in the Ranger school system, for 16 years. After the close of school term, Miss Rawlings had gone to her home in Austin to be with her mother and two sisters, while working around the house Thursday she became suddenly ill and died within a very short time. The funeral services for her were conducted Friday (June 9) at 5 o'clock from the University Church of Christ in Austin and the interment was in the Burnett Texas cemetery. Miss Rawlings was preeminently a Christian. She was a faithful member of the Church of Christ and was active in the work of the church having taught a children's Bible class almost every Sunday morning since coming to Ranger. In the Bible class it was never her purpose simply to entertain the pupils but rather she always gave them something that would be of permanent benefit.

Hundreds of students have come under the Christian influence of Miss Rawlings' teaching in the school room. Her splendid work as a teacher will live for many years in the lives of her pupils, some of whom are now grown and in the services of our country.

She was a patriotic citizen, having done much to stimulate interest among school children to take part in scrap drives, waste-paper drives and various other patriotic activities.

Besides her mother and two sisters she leaves many friends to mourn her departure.

One good friend and neighbor selected the following poem as being very characteristic of Miss Rawlings' life:

THE THINGS THAT COUNT

"Not what we have, but what we use;

Not what we see, but what we choose—

These are the things that mar or bless

The sum of human happiness.

"The things near by, not things afar;

Not what we seem, but what we are—

These are things that make or break,

That give the heart its joy or ache.

fingerprints who turns out to be 25 instead of 20," according to Miss Rhoda J. Milliken, director of the Women's Bureau of the Washington Metropolitan police department, "is often an enterprising and intelligent girl."

But, Miss Milliken added, such a girl got her patriotic motives mixed and set out from an unsatisfactory home to "see what it is all about."

Probation officers at the convention were vehement in protest against the assumption that the youngster is entirely to blame for the current rash of juvenile delinquency which has spread across the country.

"A large part of the conflict with youth," says Austin L. Porterfield, professor of sociology at Texas Christian University, "grows out of the pettiness, rejection, impatience, responsibility or criminal attitudes of those who complain."

Parents, most everyone is willing to agree, are usually to blame.

for the unsettled home conditions and lack of innocent recreational facilities which drive children out into the streets, according to the Convention consensus.

But these conditions, added Porterfield, are not always due to the parents, but in many cases attributable to neighbors, school teachers, or perhaps even a policeman who becomes cross and irritable with noisy children when the temperature coars and the kids must play in the streets for lack of a supervised playground.

These persons, according to Porterfield, are responsible for putting hundreds of children into jails or correctional institutions for offenses no more serious than tripping a paperboy, peeing or stealing peaches from a neighbor's tree.

Even the most seemingly-lame of the wartime delinquents, the "victim girl," is often the "victim of exploitation" according to Miss Milliken. Here the party-faced night clerk in a cheap hotel may befriend the adventuresome young girl he meets in a skating rink.

"Through his 'good offices' she meets a number of young soldiers who cheerfully assume that any girls they meet at the place were there for the express purpose of brightening their furlough time in every way." And, without quite knowing how it happened, the girl is classified as a sexual offender by the police.

But, warned the authorities, the problem is not one to be pushed into the postwar files. Today's problem, said Mark McCloskey, director of the Community War Services of the Federal Security Agency, must be handled today, and in a more efficient manner than it has been thus far.

World War II, he said, has not produced new classes of delinquency but has turned the spotlight on old ones. "The nation was shocked, he added at results they should have expected from disrupted homes, loosening of social restraints, fewer children at school and more children at work with more money to spend."

McCloskey concluded that unless we learn to combat the home-front scourge of delinquency with our most concerted efforts, "the post-war plight of the kids may be even harder than that of returned veterans."

Approximately 50,000,000 gallons of gasoline, fuel oil, lubricants and other petroleum products must be supplied to the armed forces each day.

PROBATIONERS FEAR POSTWAR DELINQUENCY

By ANN RYAN
United Press Staff Correspondent
CLEVELAND, (UP) — The hussy with the false eyelashes and the heavily rouged cheeks may be a sweet-faced child when her face is washed, but as a "Victory Girl" she constitutes a menace which is likely to get worse, not better, when the victory is won.
That was the consensus of juvenile authorities who gathered here for the 18th annual convention of the National Probation Assn. "The young lady with the green

Eisenhower, U. S. Naval Commander Watch Progress Of Invasion

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, supreme commander of the Allied invasion forces, is shown at left in this radiophoto as he watched new Allied landings in France from the deck of a warship off the coast

First View Of Invading Americans As Seen From French Soil

This is the first picture taken from French soil of American soldiers rifles at the ready, as they waded through the surf from their landing craft onto a French beachhead. The photographer who made this graphic shot was among the very first to reach the beachhead. Note the invasion craft in the background. This is a U. S. Army Signal Corps radiophoto. (International Soundphoto.)

Normandy, Where Allies Establish Beachheads

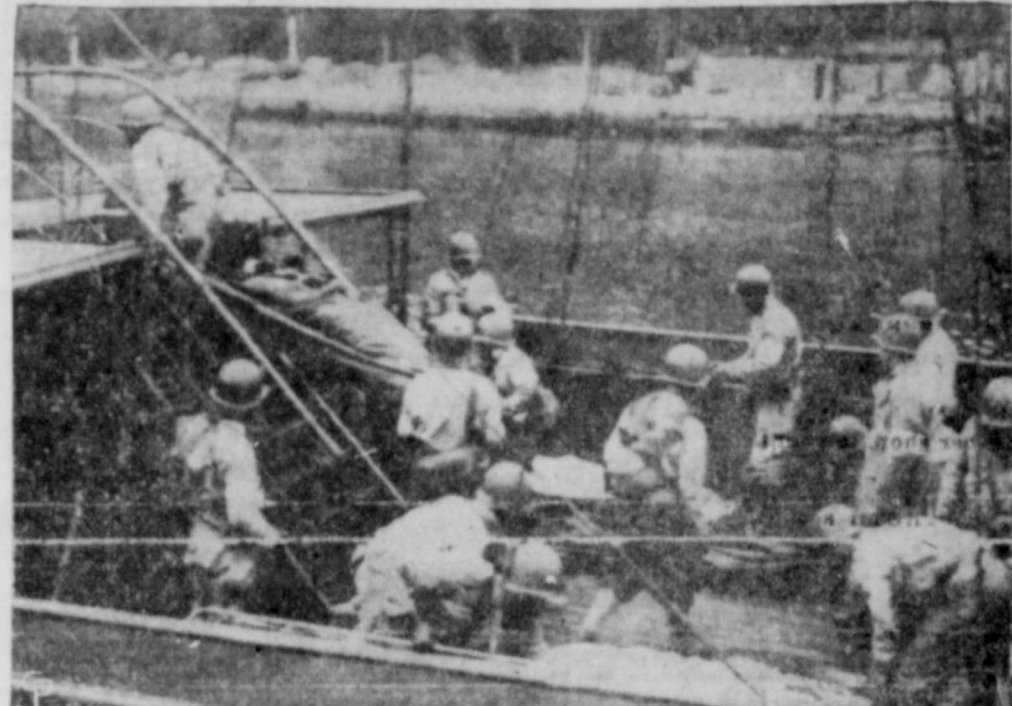

A panoramic view of the French Normandy coast where the invading Allies established first beachheads is shown above. Driving nearly 19 miles into the vaulted German West Wall, the Allies reached Caen (1), a pivotal link in the Cherbourg peninsula. Main beachheads, reports said, were established at points along the coast (2) indicated by blackened areas. Paratroop landings at Rouen (3) and others near Havre and Honfleur (4) were reported by German sources. Other German dispatches told of Allied efforts to isolate both Havre and Cherbourg with pincer movements (5); also Allied paratroop landings on the islands of Guernsey (A) and Jersey (B). (International.)

War Chiefs Report To President

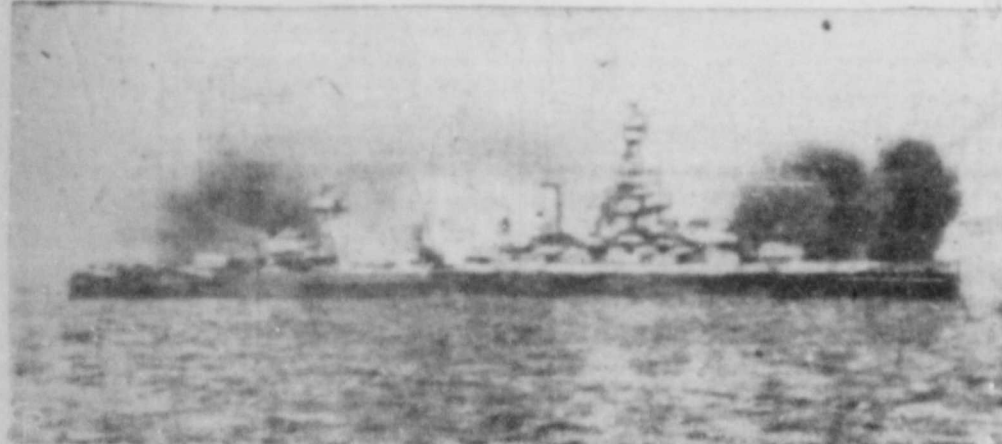

THE SALVAGES OF military, naval and air force chiefs are pictured above as they left the White House after reporting to President Roosevelt on the invasion of continental Europe. Left to right, front: Admiral Ernest J. King, chief of U. S. Naval operations, and Gen. George C. Marshall, chief-of-staff, U. S. Army. In rear is Gen. Henry H. Arnold, U. S. Army Air Force chief. Invasion Craft Bring Back American Wounded

Army medics here prepare to remove litters carrying American soldiers, wounded in action in the invasion of France, off an invasion craft which returned to England. These men were among the first to engage the enemy on French soil. This is a U. S. Signal Corps Radiophoto. (International Soundphoto.)

U. S. Battleship Texas Shelling French Coast

Army's New 'Stratosphere' Gun

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SERVICES

"God the Preserver of Man" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, June 11.

The Golden Text is: "I am with thee, saith the Lord, to save thee" (Jeremiah 30:11).

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "Our fathers understood not thy wonders in Egypt; they remembered not the multitude of thy mercies; but provoked him at the sea, even at the Red sea. Nevertheless, he saved them for his name's sake, that he might make his mighty power to be known" (Psalms 106:7, 8).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "The power of God brings deliverance to the captive. No power can withstand divine love" (page 224).

Six Of Ranger's Eight Majors Now In The Service Of The Armed Forces

Ranger has given many of its men to the services of the armed forces and in proportion to population has one of the highest percentages of men in service of any town in the state and in like proportion has had unusually heavy casualties. High, too, is the town's percentage of officers in service, and pictured above are six of Ranger's eight majors. The two not pictured are Major Robert Ray Herring who recently visited here after almost two years in the South Pacific and Major Charles B. Gholson, who recently visited here after almost two years in North Africa, Sicily and Italy. The six pictured above are all in foreign service and are from left to right, Major D. T. Wier, North Africa; Major Sanford D. Preslar, European Theatre; Major J. E. Fletcher, South Pacific Area; Major C. I. Jackson, North Africa; Major A. W. Brazda, in England, and Major Hershel E. Angus, in England.

Dionnes Have 20 In 100 Chances of Reaching 65

NEW YORK (UP)—The Dionne quintuplets, who entered their 11th year, May 28, have survived odds encountered by one person in living to the age of 60, and now have at least 20 chances in 100 of celebrating their 65th birthday together, according to statisticians of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co.

The Dionnes, only quintuplets to have lived so long, and the only set, with the exception of the recently reported Argentinian quintuplets, to have survived more than a short time after birth, are entering the safest period of their lives, the statisticians said.

"According to present average mortality conditions, the chances are 98 in 100 that the girls will all survive to 16; 68 in 100 that they will all reach 45," they said. "But actually their chances are much better than these average figures, because of the unusually good care those girls have had and probably will continue to have."
