Felix Aikie Is Found Dead At Eastland Home

Felix Aikie, a long time resident of Eastland, was found dead at his home in the northern part of Eastland on Highway 67, about noon Tuesday, Justice E. E. Wood, who held an inquest, rendered a verdict of "death from natural causes."

Members of the deceased's family are living in Chicago. Gus Powers of Eastland, who lived near the Aikie residence, became suspicious that something was wrong when groceries he had bought for Aikie at his request, remained overnight on the porch where he left them, and called officers who forced a locked door open and found the body.

Aikie, who did concrete and rock work, had been working out of town and only came in occasionally on week-ends.

Funeral arrangements are pending instructions from the family.

RANGER GOES OVER ON WAR CHEST DRIVE

L. R. Pearson, chairman for the United War Chest drive in Ranger, announced today that Ranger's quota of $2,750 has been over-subscribed and the total contributed now stands at $2,833.91. It was also stated that small donations are still coming in and the fund will be slightly higher than it now stands.

Pearson expressed his appreciation to the public for their ready response and to the committee members for their splendid work in the drive. Pearson said that so responsive was the public to the drive that it was conducted with a minimum of effort and this he appreciated very much.

Reports from other towns in the county are not yet available and therefore no report on the county as a whole can be announced at this time.

Lowly Worm Is Termed A Vital Soil Enricher

ROSCOE, Cal. (UP)—To ordinary folks a worm is a worm, but to Dr. Thomas J. Barrett authority on worm culture, this lowly inhabitant of the earth is one of the world's most interesting and useful creatures.

Slowly eating his way through the ground, the worm swallows soil in his path, adds his own excretions and produces the richest top soil known to science, increasing production of crops from 100 to 300 per cent. Ten worms per square foot or a million to an acre produces 200 tons of invaluable top soil in a year, according to Dr. Barrett.

THREE TEXANS COMPLETE TWO YEARS OVERSEA

With the Army Air Force Engineer Command in Sardinia — Three Texans, Sgt. James E. Wall of Route 2, Hurnleigh, Technician 5th Grade Paul W. Greenhaw, of 616 Foch Street, Ranger, and Technician 5th Grade R. P. Hooper of Desdemona, recently completed two years overseas service with a veteran airborne aviation engineer company in the Mediterranean Theater of Operations.

Hand picked when the unit was formed for their "toughness," the members of this company were never given a chance to show they could be otherwise. It was off the shores of North Africa that they received their first taste of action. As not enough combat engineers for the first wave were available, the members of this company were chosen for the job. Trained primarily in construction, and supposedly non-combatant, they nevertheless helped secure the beachhead.

Following the front lines through Algeria and Tunisia they worked on airfield, after airfield, doing construction on enemy bases right after their capture. Heroism marked their exploits. When an enemy night air raid caught them unaware, with fires lit, one engineer refused to seek the safety of his foxhole and remained exposed while he extinguished every fire, blinding out the field so the Nazi fliers could not find the target.

The Tunisian campaign was barely over when they took to the air, landing on Pantelleria. The field they built there was responsible for the fighter support which covered assault troops in their landing on Sicily.

Perhaps their dirtiest assignment was the construction of airfields on Sardinia. Single-handed the small group of men built and maintained scores of airfields on the island which more than paid for themselves when the bombers they housed pulverized the shores of Southern France preparatory to that invasion. During operations on this island they earned the nickname of "Henry Kaiser's overseas representatives" when they built an emergency field at night by flash light in three hours to enable an RAF bomber forced down in a meadow to return to its base to participate in the bombing of the French invasion coast on D-Day.

"I've never seen a group of men quite like them," says their Commanding Officer, Captain Waid H. Woehler of Garnett, Kansas. "They've my confidence 100 per cent."

November 23 Set As Deadline For Canning Sugar

The last date for acceptance of applications for home canning sugar has been set as November 23rd, according to an announcement by the Eastland War Price and Rationing Board.

Any person that might be worried about fruit which will be available after the 23rd should bear in mind the fact that all sugar coupons issued for home canning remain valid until February 28, 1945.

This means that, although the issuance of canning sugar is not continued, those who receive their coupons are in a position to use their coupons as late as February 28, 1945. Also, sugar stamp No. 46 in War Ration Book 4 remains valid until February 28, 1945.

Distillers Will Produce Again In January

WASHINGTON—War Production Board Chairman J. A. Krug today notified the nation's grain beverage distillers that they will be permitted to make liquor again during January.

The release of the facilities for production of liquor follows WPB policy of releasing production not needed for war production.

Distillers will return to industrial alcohol production in February, Krug said.

Family Cars Won't Give Way To Planes Yet

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. (UP)—Do not expect to buy that small plane or helicopter as soon as the war ends. According to Dr. David J. Peery, of the aeronautical engineering department of Pennsylvania State College, reconversion from war to private planes in the aircraft industry will take at least five years.

It will probably be ten years before most of your neighbors will replace the family bus with a private "roadable" airplane or helicopter. Many of these small planes will be capable of running on highways as well as in the air, and folding wings and landing gear designed for one-way landing strips along highways or in town may be added features, Dr. Peery states.

If you live in the East, Dr. Peery predicts that your choice will be a helicopter, because of its suitability for rough topography and population congestion. The postwar airplane, however, should be more popular in the wide open country of the midwest and West.

Privately Owned Project To House 422 Families

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UP)—With the opening recently of the first group of apartments, one of the largest private-financed multiple dwelling projects in Michigan is nearing completion.

When finished, the project called Pittsfield Village, will house 422 families and comprise 106 buildings, containing two-, four- and six-family apartment homes, a proposed public school and community center.

Pittsfield Village is to be a model community of big-windowed homes, which, when landscaping is completed, will be in a veritable garden setting, with its spacious grounds, winding boulevards and 12 beautiful parks and playgrounds.

The community will provide playgrounds, parks, grounds maintenance, garbage collection, sewers, water, gas, electricity, telephone services and mail delivery.

FDR Guess 100 Short of His Final Total

WASHINGTON, (UP)—President Roosevelt, back at the White House in a jubilant mood, confessed to a news conference today that he had guessed the electoral vote would be 325 for himself and 196 for Gov. Dewey.

Latest figures show—Roosevelt 432 electorals, Dewey 99.

Next Congress set up — Senate—56 Demos, 37 Repubs., one Progressive, two undecided. House—243 Demos, 184 Repubs., one Amer. Labor, one Progressive, 7 undecided. Soldier vote deciding doubtfuls.

More Than 1,350 Heavies, Fighters Bomb Germany

LONDON (UP)—More than 1,350 American heavy bombers and fighters swarmed across the Western Front today to bomb and strafe Germany's first line fighter bases and communications centers in the Cologne and Frankfurt areas.

The Fortresses and Liberators dropped more than 2,000 tons of bombs through the clouds. They flew through intense cold all the way.

POWERFUL AIR SUPPORT 36 Military pressure on Germany increased from two sides today, while Prime Minister Winston Churchill revealed that the Germans have been bombarding England for several weeks with comet-like V-2 rockets which come down faster than sound, unseen and unheard, from 60 to 70 miles in the stratosphere. Churchill said casualties and damage so far have not been heavy.

Gen. Patton's Third Army was attacking with elements of at least 7 divisions and powerful air support on an irregular 87 mile line facing the Saar. South of Metz the Americans punched as much as 3 miles through enemy lines to capture Chateau Salins and gained a group of German strong points north of the town.

On the eastern front, Soviet dispatches reported intense artillery bombardment on the East Prussian and Baltic fronts in an apparent prelude to a renewed offensive.

PARIS — American troops and armor swung through a 26 mile breach in the German lines below Metz today after seizing the anchor towns of Louvigny and Chateau Salins, while other third army forces to the north brushed aside two Nazi counterattacks and pushed on to within 15 miles of the turned guns of the old Maginot Line.

Riga dispatches indicated that the Russians already had begun a major assault against 30 German divisions pinned against the Baltic coast of Latvia.

In Hungary, Soviet troops began a new offensive from a 450-mile bridgehead on the western bank of the Tisza river, driving toward Budapest from the east while other forces massed for an assault on the capital from the south.

On Leyte island in the Philippines, fierce fighting raged in the northern stretches of the narrow Ormoc corridor where at least 35,000 fresh Japanese troops battled fanatically against hard-driving 24th division infantrymen and dismounted troops of the First Cavalry division.

CAP Class Urged To Finish Details Of Enrollment

D. S. Miller who is in charge of the registration of students in CAP ground school course stated today that Lt. Lacy Bird of Abilene is expected to be in Ranger for the meeting next Wednesday night and completion of all registration matters is urged by that time.

Miller said that today is the last day for having pictures made if they are to be ready for use next Wednesday and every person in the class who has not attended to this detail is urged to do so at once. Finger printing has not been completed and it is hoped that, too, can be finished by Wednesday night.

The membership of the class is not full yet and Miller stated that persons wishing to enroll in the course should sign up at once in order to get the full benefit of the work.

URGES UNRESTRICTED BUSINESS REY, N. Christians Still Stand For Peace, Although Engaged in a World War

Text: Matthew 5:43-48; Romans 12:1-7

BY WILLIAM E. GILROY, D.D.
PEACEMAKERS are still blessed, and the Christian Church still stands for peace. It is true, though, that we have been engaged in a world war, and the Church through its leaders, its Army and Navy chaplains, and its many members both inside and outside of the armed forces, have supported our country and the Allied cause. A few individuals here and there have maintained an attitude of aloofness, still preaching ultra-pacifism; but for the most part they have been like men ineffectively and pathetically talking about good health while others fought an epidemic of disease threatening to decimate humanity.

The analogy is not inept. One does not believe less in good health because he fights an epidemic of disease, but he knows that when an epidemic does strike, regardless of its causes and the contributing negligence of its victims, theories and ideals, and even preventive measures, no longer suffice. It must be fought with resources and measures adequate for its conquest. The same thing is true of war.

SURELY we have discovered that it is useless to say that we will preach and practice peace, that we will never under any circumstance take up arms, as thousands of our young men were saying a few years ago, while we allow others to build up the armies and armament with which to destroy us. Instead of overcoming evil with good, we were allowing evil to become so strong and powerful that it could not only destroy vast numbers of good men and women, but threaten the destruction of all ideals and agencies of good.

We had forgotten that it is as much the Christian's part to fight and restrain evil, as it is to overcome it with good. We have been learning, in a cruel and terrible way, lessons that both the Bible and history might well have taught us. The Bible is a book of wars, as well as a book of peace. Its great heroes were uncompromising foes of evil, and often that meant warfare, physical as well as spiritual.

BUT there are testing days ahead. Will we use the victory for peace, or for selfish purposes of gain? Will it be our purpose to bind up the wounds, pouring in oil and wine, in the spirit of the Good Samaritan, or shall we let hate and revenge conquer? We shall help to pave the way for another war if we deal lightly with criminal perpetrators of the present horrors, but we shall not build peace unless we win those of all nations who are peaceably inclined, and help them to better living in a better world.

Two plain tasks are before us, and they are Christian tasks as well as tasks of government: to punish past wrongdoers, and curb potential wrongdoers, with no futile compromise with evil, and at the same time to encourage every art and act of peace, and to win to the cause of peace every person that can be won, regardless of whether he was our ally or our enemy.

The records of that office will be made available to assist the buyer in locating an automobile.

PAPER SHORTAGE TO CONTINUE

The public can expect no relief from existing paper shortages until about the middle of 1945 because of the heavy wartime requirements of news print, magazine and book paper and the manpower shortages in this industry, the War Production Board reports.

ARMY DOCTOR RECRUITMENT ENDED

Recruitment of civilian physicians for the army has been discontinued according to information received from the War Department by Paul V. McNutt, Chairman of the War Manpower Commission. At the same time, Mr. McNutt said that recruitment for the navy must continue since it has urgent need for approximately 3,000 additional medical officers. The Public Health Service of the Federal Security Agency and the Veterans Administration are also continuing to recruit physicians.

ABILENE LIONS TO SPONSOR PASSION PLAY

The first showing of the famed Leamen Passion Play of the Black Hills will be presented to theatergoers on November 23 at the Fair Park Auditorium, Abilene, Texas. This great play is being brought here under the sponsorship of the Lions Club of Abilene.

Joseph Meier, raised in the tradition of the Passion Play portrays the role of the Christ. Mr. Meier, at 39, is hailed as the greatest living portrayer of the Life of Christ. Regardless of religion, sect or creed, the story's dramatic appeal is as wide as human nature. A fitting climax to each of the twenty beautiful scenes will be to all witnesses a remembrance to their

"Bride By Mistake" Marked By Zestful Merriment and Comedy

A hazardous but amusing way to determine the motive of a suitor is the basis for RKO Radio's romantic comedy, "Bride By Mistake," beginning today at the Arcadia. Alan Marshall and Laraine Day are co-starred in this their first appearance in roles so sprightly as to headline the mas a team in this production that deals with fast paced courtship in high life.

Maschal's role is that of Captain Tony Travis a returned army flier in a rest camp adjacent the big estate of the wealthy North Hunter (Laraine Day) owner of the Hunter Shipyard. She is so wealthy that, to discourage fortune hunters and newspaper publicity, she uses Sylvia, her best friend and secretary, to impersonate her whenever she appears in public.

Sylvia is weary of this role, and her husband, Philip, is furious because he wants her to himself. If only they could find a nice husband for North, everything would be fine. North's last fiancé has just broken their engagement because he doesn't want to "marry a corporation."

Sylvia arranges a tea party at the Hunter estate for the neighboring fliers, hoping that her employer will meet some eligible young man. Travis, attend, and makes quite a play for Sylvia, thinking, of course, that she is the wealthy North. Although she is attracted to Travis, North wants to satisfy herself that he is no fortune hunter. She gives a week end party at her beach home and deliberately encourages the match between Sylvia and Travis.

Travis proposes to Sylvia, more to see if this presumably wealthy girl will accept him than through any actual romantic urge. During a lapse of memory she accepts; which astonishes him, but which horrifies North and Philip who, of course, know perfectly well that Sylvia is married.

The developments arising from this situation are hilarious, and lead to a climax in which the hero clears himself of any suggestion that he's a fortune hunter, incidentally releasing Sylvia to her husband.

The screen play was written by Phoebe and Harry Epfron, authors of "Three's a Family," from an original story by Norman Krasna. Bert Granet produced under the supervision of Sid Rogell, and Richard Wallace directed.

The War Activities Committee of the Motion Picture Industry has arranged to distribute this picture to the armed forces both at home and abroad.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Fonville of Ranger were callers Saturday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. O. Hazard of this community.

Robert Barber, who has been ill and confined to his bed for the past several weeks, is able to be up and it is hoped will soon be out and enjoying good health again.

THE STORY: Leo Kabbatnick, lately broke, is in the money now that he's prime legal adviser to racketeer Virgil Boggio. He has just moved into the swank Columbus Towers. Boggio's girl friend, Ginger, conspires to come over for a business-arrangement. Boggio is out of town, Ginger makes a play for Kabbatnick, but he's not having any. She hangs out.

VIII
It wasn't until I was shaving next morning that I decided what to do. I could have kicked myself for having been such a damned fool. Who was I to take that jollier-than-thou attitude. That statement about remaining good friends was about the dumbest thing I could have said to a woman like Ginger.

Immediately after her departure I'd been pretty sore. I'd shifted all the blame on her. Why did she have to bounce out like that, merely because I'd hinted we were beginning to tread on dangerous ground? Was that an insult? Couldn't she have taken it in the spirit that it had been said? And then I'd started picking back and forth, trying to figure out how I should have handled the situation. I wasn't only annoyed because of the unpleasant taste the whole thing left in my mouth, but also because I don't like to feel I've made a mistake.

The sight of the remains of our dinner and the empty champagne bottle had irritated me so I'd sent for the waiter. He must have been surprised to find me alone, but didn't show it. He merely inquired if everything had been satisfactory. I don't remember what I barked at him, but he wheeled the cart out in a hurry. My entire evening had been spoiled. All the joy of moving was gone.

But this morning, with the sunshine streaming in through the bathroom window, things began to look different. When a fellow's shaving it's a good time for him to formulate plans. And shaving in this place was an entirely painless procedure.

BY the time I was through I knew how I was going to handle Ginger. She'd been so anxious to come over not because she wanted to see the apartment but because she wanted to see me. What better opportunity could there be? Boggio was out of town and here was a perfect excuse for paying me a visit. She'd figured out what she was going to do even before she'd hung up the receiver. I should have known better than to imagine that the champagne had anything to do with her frame of mind.

The more I thought about it, the better I could see how her mind had been working. Here we were, Ginger and I, thrown together by our relationship with Boggio. We both hated him and—even though I didn't care to admit it to myself—feared him. But we also knew how to play our cards and make Boggio come across handsomely for whatever he was getting.

Since Ginger's relationship with him was based upon purely financial reasons, she was going to be careful not to jeopardize her standing. I bet one couldn't count the guys who'd made passes at her.

And then she'd discovered me. I was the perfect soul mate. I had the same reasons for discretion as she had. And since I'd suddenly come up in the worst, this was the appropriate moment. Now, more than ever, I'd wish to remain in Boggio's good graces. It was all so simple that a child could have reasoned it out.

But the strange thing was my own frame of mind. I'd never thought of Ginger as being accessible to me and I try to avoid doing that which is inadvisable. But now the situation had changed. She'd practically thrown herself at my head and the reason I'd bungled was because I'd been taken unawares.

I HEARD the bell at the end of the line ring and ring. Ginger wasn't in when she finally answered. Her voice was thick with sleep. "Hello."

"Oh, hello, Ginger. How are you?"

She grunted something that could be construed any way I pleased. I let it go and continued in my most cheerful manner.

"Hope I didn't wake you up, Ginger. Maybe I'm calling a little early."

"Virgil's not here. He's still out of town."

"I know, Ginger. I don't want to talk to Virgil. I want to talk to you."

"You needn't bother."

"Come now, Ginger. Don't tell me you're still mad."

"I'm not mad. I'm just not interested."

If the telephone line was sensitive to a drop in temperature it would soon be snapping in half a dozen different places.

"Now listen, Ginger, I only wanted to tell you—"

That's as far as I got. She hung up on me. I waited for a few moments, then asked the operator to get the number again. The phone rang for what seemed to be an eternity and at last the operator cut in.

"There's no answer."

"That's all right," said. "Keep on ringing."

At the end of the line the receiver was suddenly yanked off the cradle. Still no answer.

This was going to be harder than I thought.
