Battle For Berlin Reported Entering Its Last Hours

NINTH POISED BEFORE BERLIN; REDS OPENING BIG OFFENSIVE

The American Broadcasting Station in Europe said today that the Ninth Army entry into Berlin is imminent. The battle for Berlin—and possibly for the whole Reich itself—entered its final hours today. The Nazis themselves announced the opening of a Red Army general offensive on a 300-mile front barely 30 miles east of Berlin as American armies west and south of Berlin entered the last lap of their race on the capital. American Ninth Army Infantrymen won a second bridgehead across the Elbe River at Barby, 15 miles southeast of Magdeburg and 57 miles southwest of Berlin. They were reported closing up fast in the wake of the Second Armored Division, whose tank columns crossed the river at an undisclosed point between Barby and Magdeburg 48 hours ago.

LAST RITES FOR FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT

The White House, Washington (UP)—An Episcopal funeral ritual for Franklin D. Roosevelt was read over his flag-draped casket today in the flower banked East Room of the White House. The solemn service for the dead was spoken in the presence of President Truman, Mrs. Roosevelt, members of the Roosevelt family, the leaders of the government and representatives of foreign states. The President's body arrived just before 9 A. M. today from Warm Springs, Ga., and was borne through the streets of Washington in a mile long military procession. Police estimated the crowd which watched the funeral procession at between 300,000 and 400,000, one of the greatest in the capital's history.

It was the last rite in the nations capital for the man who through 12 years, one month and eight days of peace and war, had led his country—longer than any other man since the founding of the Republic. Tonight the funeral train will steam north to the president's beloved Hyde Park Estate where his body will be placed to rest on Sunday morning.

Ranger Citizens paid tribute to the memory of Franklin Delano Roosevelt, late president of the United States, in fitting services at the Arcadia Theater Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

A packed house heard the opening prayer offered by Dr. W. H. Clark, pastor of the First Baptist church, and the large crowd joined in the singing of the Star Spangled Banner. A brief tribute was paid the late president by Rev. H. B. Johnson, dean of Ranger ministers after which the service was dismissed by a prayer offered by Mack Stirmann, minister of the Church of Christ.

Ranger stores remained closed until after funeral services for Judge W. S. Adamson which were held at the First Methodist church at 3:00 o'clock.

Connally, the column said, is one of Truman's oldest friends, and the new president will turn to old friends for advice and guidance.

Stettinius, Cordell Hull, Tom Copnally, Sol Bloom, Charles Eaton, and Virginia C. Gilderaleve.

Following is the resolution: Whereas, A world organization designed to preserve the peace appears to be necessary; and Whereas, it seems probable that such an organization may soon be established; and

Whereas, Such a world peace organization is more likely to be able to maintain peace if it is equipped to use force against aggressors; and

Whereas, Such a peace organization is more likely to succeed if the United States is a participating member; therefore be it Resolved that this Post No. 69, American Legion, assembly in a meeting on this 12th day of April 1945, favors the establishment of a world organization possessed of the authority to maintain peace throughout the world, using force against aggressor nations if necessary. Wilson And Roosevelt

By S. BURTON HEATH
NEA Staff Writer

It is inevitable that the sudden death of President Roosevelt should recall that of his former chief, or World War I President Woodrow Wilson, and should invite all sorts of comparison and contrast.

Each took an unprepared country into what had begun as a European war that we tried to avoid. Each had the tremendous task of arming this nation for ultimate victory while striking desperately to avert immediate disaster.

Because of this nation's strategic position, each assumed and exercised world leadership in the conduct of the war and in striving for a permanent peace. Each was the proud and hopeful father of plans for a world organization designed to make another such catastrophe improbable if not impossible.

Woodrow Wilson lived long enough to see World War I won militarily, to participate in the drafting of a peace treaty, and to see his League of Nations brought into being. Franklin Roosevelt lived to see the European phase of this war won. He died almost on the eve of the security conference that was to give final form to the international organization upon which he and Premier Churchill and Marshal Stalin had agreed.

Woodrow Wilson died, immediately, of a broken heart because his own country repudiated his League and his international leadership.

History probably will record that Franklin Roosevelt worked himself to death trying to avoid, for his United Nations organization, the hazards that proved fatal to Wilson's League of Nations.

How well President Roosevelt succeeded, only time can tell. At least he turns over to President Truman a public sentiment for such world organization in which there is no partisan division—a public sentiment that, unlike the one that Wilson faced, does not insist upon perfection or nothing, but is willing to start with the best we can get, and then seek improvements.

It Seems To Me
By Alta Starves

Henry Martin was a practical joker. He was often aided in the pranks he played by the men he employed. On one occasion they were making a long trip by wagon, and he conceived the idea of posing as a lunatic. Just before they reached the settlement he had the men chain him to the wagon. By strange noises and movements he attracted attention and as the crowd gathered he would laugh menacingly at them. This proved to him that wherever their business took them he repeated the performance; and at home this was his favorite story.

They were nearing a neighboring store and Martin asked as usual to be chained. Laughingly he promised to put on a good show today.

As they repeated their familiar procedure a curious crowd came out. Among them was a half wit boy. He was plainly frightened but fascinated. Holding a big stick in his hand he would edge closer and back again.

Martin decided to grab the boy and see what he would do. Just as he almost had him the boy was galloped into action by fear and he let Martin have all he had with the heavy trick.

When Martin came to the first thing he said was: "Unchain me boys!"

Many a person is suffering today because of the part he tried to act yesterday.

Miss Cox Becomes Bride Of Ensign Fyffe In Double Ring Ceremony

Miss Alice Ruth Cox, daughter of Mrs. M. D. Cox, was united in marriage with Ensign Harold D. Fyffe, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Fyffe of El Dorado, Illinois, and grandson of Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Hummell of Ranger, in an impressive candle light ceremony solemnized Wednesday evening at 9:30 o'clock in the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Harrell with Dr. W. H. Clark, pastor of the First Baptist Church performing the double ring ceremony.

The home was beautifully decorated with bridal wreath and fresh spring flowers.

Miss Rosemary Bruce, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. W. H. Clark, sang Because. Other pre-nuptial music was furnished by Mrs. Clark during which the candles were lighted by Lt. Vincent Hamilton, Jr., of Olden.

The traditional wedding marches were played by Mrs. Clark and during the ceremony, Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life and I Love You Truly were played softly.

Vows were exchanged in the living room of the home before an improvised altar, centered with a huge basket of roses, snapdragons and bridal wreath and flanked by tall white floor candelabra holding white tapers.

The bride wore a navy two piece crepe frock fashioned with a square neckline and buttoned on white pleated jabot. Her corsage was of white gardenias. Her accessories were white.

Mrs. Dayton Rutledge, the bride's only attendant, wore a gold crepe two piece dress with white accessories. Her corsage was of pink roses.

The groom was attended by R. V. Robinson, cousin of the bride. A reception was held immediately following the ceremony. The lace laid dining table was appointed with crystal and silver. The centerpiece was a floral arrangement of bridal wreath and pink and white roses on a mirror reflector flanked on either side by crystal candelabra holding white tapers.

Miss Inez Harrell presided in the dining room assisted by Mrs. R. V. Robinson who presided at the crystal punch bowl.

Only relatives and close friends attended.

The bride is a graduate of Ranger High School and attended Ranger Junior College. She was

Big Banquet --

It is going over successfully. The next important subject to come before the directors was a plan to secure persons interested in installing a cold storage locker plant in Ranger. Smaller towns than Ranger have accomplished this successfully and it is felt that Ranger is deserving of such an excellent opportunity. A committee was appointed to contact persons interested, and to have a report ready for the next meeting. Any person interested will have the support of the C. of C. 100 per cent. It is the directors' intention to bring any business to this town that will benefit Ranger and the surrounding area.

The directors also discussed in detail a play ground for small children for the summer months. There are many children who live in apartments in our town, who have no place to play. And it is planned to secure the lot used in past years, equip it with swings, slides, and sand piles, to have a supervisor and to keep it open until school takes up in the fall. Walker said. The leading clubs in town will be contacted and their support asked. "It should be given enthusiastically because of the pleasure the small children will get out of such a play ground would be immeasurable," Walker added.

The directors are eager for any person to make any suggestions that they would like to see the organization undertake. "This is your Chamber of Commerce and the more support you offer, the more accomplishments we can show," the president added.
