CIO Threatens To Block Back To Work Move

By United Press
Striking AFL longshoremen in New York harbor began a back-to-work movement today, and there was strong indication that the government might sanction substantial wage boosts as other strikes continued unabated.

A United Press survey showed that strikes, most of them over wages, idled 453,000 workers across the nation.
However to offset the brighter picture in New York the National Maritime Union CIO threatened to block the back-to-work movement until all striking longshoremen in the harbor area voted unanimously to return to their jobs.

Winter Heating Up To Germans

BERLIN (UP) — Germans in the American-occupied zone may be fed additional rations by the U. S. Army this winter if an emergency develops, but the problem of keeping warm is strictly their own, Lt. Gen. Lucius D. Clay, deputy to Gen. Dwight Eisenhower said last night.

General Ike To Be Staff Chief

FRANKFURT (UP) — Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower has expected today to return to Washington perhaps within a week and almost certainly by November 1 to become U. S. Army Chief of Staff.

RESOLUTION DOWNED
CHICAGO (UP) — The American veterans of world war II, in their first annual convention, today voted down a resolution demanding that ex-service men should not be required to join a labor organization as a condition of employment.

ARGENTINE GOVERNMENT TAKES PERON

BUENOS AIRES (UP) — Col. Juan D. Peron, fallen Argentine strong man, was arrested today by federal police who told him he had better surrender so that it would not appear he was encouraging resistance to the government change.
The arrest of the former strong man was confirmed by Evita Duarte, radio actress and protégée of Peron.
Police armed with rifles and submachine guns cleared the Plaza San Martin where thousands of citizens had assembled again today to await developments.
President Gen. Edelmiro J. Farrell formally accepted the resignations of the cabinet which were submitted to him yesterday with the exception of those of Gen. Eduardo Azaola, now war minister, and Admiral Verezgo Lima, now navy minister.
This was taken to indicate Farrell still hoped to retain his office despite civilian demand that he also quit and turn over power to the supreme court.

Kerrville Grets Its Most Famous Seaman Citizen
KERRVILLE (UP) — Chester W. Nimitz forgot for today that he was the world's most famous seaman and swapped jokes and reminiscences with the people among whom he grew up in this picturesque mountain town.
He planted a hearty kiss on the lips of a former school mate and spotted old acquaintances in the huge crowd of hill country folks and signed his autograph for all the school kids who gathered from miles around.

DeGaulle Silent On Plea To Save Pierre Laval
PARIS (UP) — Defense counsel said today that President Gen. Charles DeGaulle had reversed decision on their plea to set aside a French high court's conviction of Pierre Laval for treason and grant him a new trial.
They said, however, that they were not hopeful of a new trial and expected that the former Vichy premier would be executed "very soon" if their plea was denied.

POSTOFFICE CLERK GETS ODD PACKAGES
FORT WORTH, Tex. (UP) — Life is just one surprise package after another for J. F. Lionberger, post office employe.
Because his title happens to be clerk in charge, dead parcel post branch, especially during these last four years.
A Japanese rifle, dagger, a German sniper's rifle, Nazi helmets and flags, and a Pacific grass skirt are included in his war trophies. The latest acquisition measures 15 feet of snake — it's a huge python which came unaddressed all the way from India.
Luckily for Lionberger, the python was quite dead. In fact, it had been tanned and was ready to be made into billfolds, shoes, or what have you.
Whether he's fond of them or not, Lionberger will be stuck with his trophies until at least late fall at the time of the auction. He says confidently, "Somebody will want them, though. Nothing is ever left over after an auction."

TROOPS UNLOAD SHIPS
LONDON (UP) — Truckloads of urgently needed food rolled off the docks at Britain's major ports today as British soldiers replaced striking stevedores and began unloading ships that had been tied at the port for 17 days.

West Coast City Follow Workers Apartments

PORTLAND, Ore. (UP) Buildings which housed men and women who built ships for the United States' wartime fleet are now going to house the men who repair the ships.
Units of Vanport City, adjacent to Portland, Ore., built to accommodate the huge influx of shipyard workers are being moved to Bremerton, Wash., where critical lumber shortages and high priority ship repairs and military personnel have combined to create a serious housing shortage.
Bremerton workers will receive 1204 of the Vanport apartments which provide emergency shelter for Portland's unsheltered war workers.
Units of the world's No. 1 housing project to be moved are mostly 14-apartment buildings which are dismantled, catalogued for easy reassembly, placed on a truck and sent on their way to the repair yard city. Flushing and cabinet work remain in the apartment on the journey. Doors and windows are left in the woodwork and as little is done to the wiring as possible.
Along with the moving of the 1,204 units there was the problem of moving 740 occupants to other quarters within Vanport city. At its peak, Vanport city housed 40,000 war workers. Its current population hovers around 26,000 with approximately 75 per cent of the units occupied.

Tech Student Has Been Given Croix De Guerre

LUBBOCK, — Assisting five prominent Frenchmen to escape from a Nazi box car while enroute with them to execution in a gas chamber has won for Flight Officer Joel Stevenson of Sweetwater, and student of Texas Technological College, the Croix de Guerre. He has just been notified of the honor.
The young former officer in the Royal Canadian Air Force had been a Nazi prisoner 34 days at the time of the escape. He was condemned to death for being caught behind enemy lines in civilian clothes without military identification and had been in a 90-man group in a box car for three days when he gained freedom. He and the Frenchmen walked 150 miles in 10 days to Allied territory.
Stevenson was shot down July 4, 1944, on his 30th mission when a wing of his plane was shot off by anti-aircraft guns manned by German warriors. He bailed out at 600 feet.
While imprisoned, he says, he was given a bowl of soup a day and many types of torture. He walked in darkness in a chamber with a revolving floor of cobblestones. He looked at a checkboard wall for 18 hours while lights flashed on it every 20 seconds. He was dunked up and down in ice water until he nearly drowned, after which an electric charge was applied beneath his arms for five minutes.
He is the son of T. H. Stevenson, 404 East Arkansas, Sweetwater.

Insurance Agent Urges Consistent Work, Service

HOLDREGE, Neb. (UP) — Consistent work and service to policy holders are responsible for Carl R. Hendrickson's record of $1,027,000 worth of insurance last year in a rural area, according to the agent.
Hendrickson, a 1944 honorary member of the Million Dollar Roundtable club of national underwriters, reports he made 267 policy sales from 1,009 calls in 275 days. He led the entire sales force of the Bankers Life Insurance Co. last year, and since 1937, with the exception of 1939, had led in Nebraska for his company.
"Life insurance men should treat vocation in such a manner as to merit the confidence of every policyholder," the veteran agent advises other salesmen.

Says Outlook Bright For Holiday Turkeys

LINCOLN, Neb. (UP) — Plenty of turkeys, bigger and better than ever, will be available for civilians over the coming Thanksgiving and Christmas holidays, Prof. F. E. Muschel, University of Nebraska Poultryman, predicts.
Production has increased through the efforts of managers who understand the breeding of birds for marketability, he explains. Buyers also can expect large supplies following the lifting of the embargo on sales to civilians.
This year's turkey crop probably will be from 18 to 20 per cent larger than that of 1944, the professor estimated. Consumers will have a wide choice in the size of bird selected for the holidays, since toms at 26 weeks should weigh 23-24 pounds, and hens, 15-16 pounds.

1,781 Veterans To Take Work In Texas Schools

AUSTIN, Texas — Junior College educators in conference at the University of Texas recently were informed that 1,781 veterans are now in training in Texas schools, or are expecting to be soon.
According to V. B. Watson, chief of the training sub-service men are particularly interested in business administration, teaching, and the clergy. His office, he said, receives approximately 4,000 applications per month under the GI Bill of Rights.
The University of Texas has 644 veterans currently enrolled.

Training Rifle Follows Sgt. Out To Pacific

FORT RILEY, Kan. (UP) — When Staff Sgt. Miller Perich picked up a rifle in the Pacific he received the surprise of his life.
He said he just ran across the rifle and picked it up to putter with it. He opened the cleaning kit compartment in the butt of the rifle and drew out a piece of paper.
"Corp. Miller Perich, Fort Riley Kan.," was written on the paper. It was the gun he had used in training here back in 1942.

Union Votes To Continue Fight On Wage Cuts

A meeting of the Oil Workers International Union, Local 478, met in Breckenridge Thursday evening to discuss plans for the future. W. A. Garrett, president, presided at the meeting in which it was voted to back the union in its continued fight against wage cuts.
It was pointed out at the meeting that five objectives have to far been achieved by the union. They are as follows:
1. For the first time in the annals of oil industry a national strike was conducted under the OWIU.
2. The oil industry met in conference with the Union also for the first time.
3. In arrogant defiance of the U. S. Government, oil companies refused to arbitrate. In response, Pres. Truman on Oct. 4 ordered the U. S. Navy to seize 25 oil companies.
4. The groundwork has now been established for industry-wide bargaining.
5. The OWIU is leading Labor's nationwide fight for 52-40, and the continuation of a higher standard of living.
The meeting was adjourned until Monday night at 8:00 p. m. when a meeting is to be held at the American Legion Hall, Ranger, Texas.

Mother of R. J. Taylor Dies In Temple, Okla.

Mrs. R. J. Taylor received word late Friday night of the death of her husband's mother, Mrs. Fannie Taylor, of Temple, Oklahoma. Funeral arrangements had not been completed Saturday. Mrs. Taylor was to leave Sunday morning for Temple to join her husband who was with his mother at the time of her death.
Mrs. Taylor had been ill for some time following a stroke and her condition had been critical for a number of weeks. Mr. Taylor had been with his mother most of the time during her illness.

FIRST THE CHICKENS THEN HAWKS WANTED

In the October 9th edition of the Times there was published a story about the sudden appearance of a large flock of chicken eating hawks northwest of town. The story stated that it might be good sport for hunters and at the same time a kindly act for chicken raisers, if the birds were picked off.
At least one Times reader had a different idea about it, for in the mail Saturday the clipping from the Times concerning the hawks was enclosed in an unsigned communication with this terse comment: "He must have sent them to destroy my neighbors chickens. I surely hope so, as they seem unable to keep their chickens from destroying my property."
Who knows? 'Tis said, God moves in a mysterious way, His wonders to perform.

English Comic Opera Subject Of New Book

Austin Texas — The English comic opera, forerunner of our present day musical comedy and opera, has been a new field in dramatic history explored by Dr. Michael Winesanker, recently added to the University of Texas music department faculty.
Dr. Winesanker's book "A Record of English Musical Drama, 1750-1800," which he based upon his study of 2,000 comic operas, is now in the hands of the publishing committee of Columbia University.
The tendency which developed in the middle of the 18th century to write new music for dramatic productions instead of using popular songs is traced by the author along with the development of the overture.
Dr. Winesanker touches upon all phases of the comic opera, outstanding composers, librettists, the theaters, actors and actresses, dancers, and even the dramatic criticisms of the time.
A study of 75 original scores, original newspapers and contemporary writings was made by Dr. Winesanker in his account of the change-over from the straight dialogue type of production into the musical entertainment of today.
Formerly on the staff at the Hamburg Conservatory of Music at Toronto, Canada, Dr. Winesanker received his master of arts degree from the University of Michigan and his doctorate degree from Cornell. He arrived at the University of Texas in September to be professor of musicology.

Texas School Of Journalism To Have Library

AUSTIN, Texas — The ninth journalism school in the United States to have a special journalism library will be that at the University of Texas, which is soon to be established.
Boosted with a $1,000 war bond from Theta Sigma Phi, honorary and professional fraternity for women in journalism, 1,750,000 volume library will be set up under the direction of Alexander Moffitt, librarian, Paul J. Thompson, chairman of the department of journalism, has announced.
Books concerning journalism, advertising, publicity, printing, engraving, paper-making, and news photography will be moved from the main library to the journalism library. Fifty daily and weekly newspapers will be donated by the publishers, and ten off-state daily newspapers and 25 trade magazines will be filed in the library.
A "morgue" of clippings, pictures, and other references similar to a regular newspaper reference library, will also be included.

Army Offering Homing Pigeons For Direct Sale

FT. WORTH — Thousands of Army homing pigeons, veteran "G I" message carriers of good breeding stock, are now being offered for direct sale to civilians, according to the Office of Surplus Property of the Department of Commerce.
The war birds, all Army banded and bred for message carrying and other military purposes, may be purchased in 5 pair lots at $25.00 a lot by any person on application to the Department in Washington, D. C. The pigeons are from one to five years of age.
Bird fanciers, 4-H Club members and breeders on the lookout for exceptional stock are invited to write to the Office of Surplus Property, General Products Section, for full information.
Of exceptional lineage, these birds are descendants of some of the country's finest homing pigeon breeding stock and were presented to the Government at the start of the war by pigeon fanciers to aid in rapid formation of large flocks of message carriers. Buyers of the lots of five pairs of pigeons will receive certificates of service from the army for each bird. This will provide evidence of ownership of the birds which wear Army leg bands. The Government does not furnish information, however, regarding strain, sire, dam, or racing records because of the work involved.

Denton College To Add School Of Social Service

DENTON, Texas — Approval has been given by the Board of Regents of Texas State Teachers Colleges for the addition of a School of Social Service at North Texas State College, according to Dr. W. J. McConnell, president.
McConnell has been authorized to obtain the services of a director for the new department of the college which will be set up in the spring under the requirements of the American Association of Schools of Social Work.
One hundred and fifty students are now pursuing the offerings at the college in social work, and with the opening of the department in the spring, Dr. McConnell has announced that a number of students have indicated their intentions of taking a major in the field.
According to the records of the American Association of Schools of Social Work, Our Lady of the Lake College in San Antonio is the only approved school of social work in Texas.

ATOMIC BOMB CRATER, N. M.—Dr. J. Robert Oppenheimer, the young University of California physicist who was in charge of the scientific work in developing the atomic bomb, says he would like to go some place and run a lunchroom.

As a Hollywood scientist, he probably wouldn't be much good. No whiskers. His brown hair is crew-cut and unruly. He is slender and of medium height. He wears youthful clothes, crowned with a tan felt pork-pie hat so battered it is positively collegiate.

AFTER all, he says, scientists are primarily humanists. People are inclined to forget that. Scientists aren't interested in the things that are in a narrow sense. It is the effect of what they do on humanity and everyday life that counts.

On that line of reasoning, the atom wasn't split just to make a better bomb. It wasn't even split to end the war in a hurry, though that is certainly a humanistic goal in itself.

ALREADY conditions may have been created to knock the bottom out of the world radium market. That's big news. If the price of radium goes down, it means that more hospitals will be able to afford the tiny capsules with such miraculous curative powers.

When the President sends to Congress his promised special message on control of the atomic secret, it should not be considered merely as a military problem. It is bigger than that.

WE FLEW Without GUNS

This is a true story of the men who by the "hump"—driving passenger and cargo over the high Himalayas between India and China. Pilots call it the toughest airline route in the world.

"PUPS ARE NOT ALLOWED"

"SO sorry, Sahib," the hotel clerk said when he saw Spitz and Margot poke their heads out of the basket and blink up at him there in the lobby. "Pups are not allowed in the hotel. Government regulations."

"These aren't pups," I said. "They're kittens, and they won't cause any trouble. We'll keep them right in our room. They're the quietest and cleanest little fellows you ever saw. They'll be all right."

"I cannot help it, Sahib. They cannot be kept in the hotel." Gingsias picked up the basket and said, "Go ahead and sign for a room, Gen. I'll take the cats to a veterinary and board them until we leave."

That was an easy solution. There was a small veterinary shop a couple of blocks from the hotel, and the old Englishman who operated it was familiar with baby leopards. He told us about giving them barley water with their milk as a means of helping digestion; he also gave them their first taste of meat.

Tony Mercedes and Suzy Q arrived in Karachi a day ahead of his original schedule, so we immediately arranged for train transportation to Bombay. The trip to Bombay is about 700 miles through desert country, and the passenger accommodations are more or less an afterthought, consisting of one or two sleeping cars casually added onto a slow, noisy line of freight cars. Even so, the compartments were all well filled and it cost us an extra five rupees to get the conductor to assure us a compartment to ourselves.

As we showed our tickets before climbing aboard, the uniformed inspector looked suspiciously at the big basket I was carrying. "What's in there?" he asked snappishly. "No pup, allowed on the train, you know."

"Pups?" I repeated, laughing as if that were a very funny joke. "What would I be doing with pups? This is just our laundry—soiled cloth, you know." I took hold of the shirttail that I had left showing from under the newly acquired cover for the basket.

"Best not to get the dirty things mixed up with the clean!" I explained airily—and hustled on ahead of Gingsias and Tony. One of the little devils tucked in there under the dirty shirts was starting to whine. . . . Before we reached Bombay we had refueled five times to allow anyone, even the conductor, to enter our compartment. . . .

ONCE during the night the train stopped on sidings some distance out of the next village. Gingsias and I stepped outside for a few minutes, leaving Tony to guard the cats. The heat from the sand blowing into the compartment had been bad enough all day, but the increasingly foul smell of the cats was making the night really wretched. Standing out there breathing in clean air was a treat. Gingsias thought it would be a good idea to bring the cats out and air them and their basket and as far as we could figure it out later, that must have been when the cats were discovered.

In the morning, about an hour before we were due in Bombay, the smell was almost as bad as it had been before the airing, and I knew that we had no chance of fooling the inspectors who would be waiting to inspect everyone's baggage at the depot.

Finally we got an idea. We had noticed that the train always slowed down to a bare crawl as it approached a station, so Gingsias was elected to jump off the train with the cats as soon as we got to the outskirts of town. We emptied the clothes out of two canvas duffie bags, cut holes in their sides, and put the cats into them; Spitzie in one and the two females in the other. Then we opened the compartment door and tossed the basket—fetid smells and all—out on the sand. When the train slowed down to about five miles an hour a few minutes after we entered the city, Gingsias said, "If I'm not at the Delmar Hotel in half an hour you'll find me in the clinic." Then he took himself to the ground with the other and was gone.

The minute the train stopped there was a pounding on our compartment door. Tony turned the handle and two burly Indians wearing baggage inspector's uniforms barged in. "You got some pups in here?" one of them shouted. "We got a wire. Where they at?"

"I don't know what you're talking about," I said. "You can see for yourself that there aren't any pups in here."

"You got them in a basket," the man said angrily, his fainty brown eyes scanning the little room.

Tony growled and his big ham of a hand pushed me to one side as he moved forward, shoulders hunched menacingly. "Get out of here, you fools," he said. "The wire was mistaken. You can see that for yourself. Now beat it."

The two men looked at each other in bewilderment. They glanced around the compartment again, but there was no sign of pups or basket. At last they shrugged, mumbled their apologies, and withdrew. Tony and I, with a show of great indignation, summoned a porter to handle our bags and stalked from the train. (To Be Continued)

GUEST WIFE IS A RIOT OF FILM FUN, HERE SUNDAY

In "Guest Wife," which opens today at the Arcadia Theatre, all the elements for a zany comedy are neatly rolled together—and what comes out is one of the season's brightest, more sophisticated farces.

Such expert hands as Claudette Colbert and Don Ameche, ably abetted by Dick Foran and such sterling performers as Charles Dingle, Grant Mitchell, Wilma Francis and Chester Clute, really must have enjoyed making this picture. They seem to get the most out of the hilariously amusing situations which the screenplay provides.

Chris Price (Dick Foran) and his adoring wife, Mary (Claudette Colbert) are about to depart for New York on a belated honeymoon. Their gay plans, however, are disturbed by the unexpected arrival of Joe Parker (Don Ameche), Chris' best friend, college chum and globe-trotting reporter, who is enroute to New York from the Orient.

In the last-minute confusion, Chris misses the train. Next, Mary finds herself in New York with Joe... and is mistaken for his wife. To save Joe from possible disaster, Mary continues the deception. This hoax—known as a "kibble"—dangerously gathers momentum. A "kibble", incidentally, is a story you tell someone and then get a third person to confirm.

Chris, unfortunately, is detained in Keetonson, and Mary, left to her own devices, finds herself an unwilling participant in one compromising situation after another.

Precious days go by and the belated honeymooners haven't even seen each other. When Chris finally arrives, Mary takes matters in her own hand and professes a mad infatuation for Joe. That's her "kibble" and the objective is to break up the "beautiful" friendship that has already clouded two honeymoon attempts.

Chris nibbles at the bait in the grand finale, Mary is on the sidelines watching her master plan unfold—and what merry, madcap situations evolve.

Security Over High Wages Is Vet's Choice

CHICAGO (UP) — The veteran of World War II is more interested in getting security than high wages from his postwar job, T. E. Delehanty, Chicago bureau supervisor of the Veterans' Placement Committee, believes.

"This is one of the healthiest trends noticeable in dealing with veterans," Delehanty said. Not only discharged servicemen are taking advantage of the vocational counseling sponsored by the in uniform also are seeking guidance, he said. Many men still are.

A total of 57 veterans were placed in jobs during August, the committee reported. An additional 507 sought advice from the veterans' committee in Chicago.

Couturiers Go To The Louvre For Their Ideas PARIS (UP) — The Louvre's famous paintings, back again after five years in provincial cellars inspire the fall collections of many designers who paid the newly opened rooms a visit. Lucien Lelong is showing an evening costume copied from the painting of a young girl by Franz Hals. It is made of black taffeta trimmed with collar and cuffs of white organdy trimmed in points. Paquin has designed a gown of pearl embroidery on black inspired by Coluet's portrait of Elizabeth of Austria. Many of the designer's richest costumes are named for famous Louvre paintings.

Former State Officials Among Army Dischargees

AUSTIN, Tex. — Army dischargees will bring many faces back into the political picture in Texas.

Former Railroad Commissioner Jerry Sadler is due to go off Army duty and is already counted a candidate for governor.

Former Sen. Marshall Formby of Plainview, who entered the Army during his senatorial term is back in Texas. His successor, Sen. Sterling Parrish is a hold-over so Formby is not expected to make a race next year.

Former Rep. Jimmy Phillips of Angleton probably will match a race with Sen. W. E. Stone of Galveston if he is out of uniform in time.

INDEPENDENT OIL OPERATORS CONFER ON RECONVERSION PLAN

Independent oil men across the Nation are gathering in Tulsa for the Sixteenth Annual Meeting of the Independent Petroleum Association of America to discuss reconversion problems of the oil and gas industries and to lay plans for supporting the industrial prosperity the Nations is anticipating in the years ahead. A four-day meeting is scheduled to begin Sunday, October 14.

Vast expansion in the oil industry is expected by the independents, with many new and untapped areas being the drill for the first time. This phase of exploration, the question of crude oil price on which depended wildcat effort depends to a very large degree; protection of the domestic industry against imports of cheap foreign oil, taxation, and economic matters will be the primary concern of the oil men in meeting.

A number of nationally prominent speakers will address the convention. Among these will be Major General W. E. R. Covell, just retired, who until recently has been stationed in the India-Burma theater in charge of distribution of oil and gas to our fighting men. R. T. Zook, president of the Association, who has just returned from London where he took part in the conferences that led to the signing of the Anglo-American Oil Agreement on September 24, will address the group on the relation of this Agreement to the domestic industry.

Local directors and state vice presidents will attend the meeting and will elect a new president to succeed R. T. Zook, who is retiring his post.

The establishment of a national policy on oil; one that will assure a healthy domestic industry capable of meeting our peacetime requirements and for the future protection of the Nation, is a major objective of the independents. The Association has long held that for our National security it is essential that reserves of petroleum sufficient to meet any emergency, be developed in the oil areas of the Nation. Not only will such development accrue to the industry and economic stability of the people but it will provide the backing of crude oil found so essential when we were called upon to supply oil and fuels for the Allies in World War II.

W. G. Shelly, president of Seely Oil Company, is chairman of the general arrangements committee, with details being under the direction of National Headquarters of the Association, in Tulsa. A full program is scheduled for the meeting with an analysis to be made of the many problems that confront the domestic industry in the first months of reconversion.

Before the war one of the chief attractions at Yokosuka for visiting Japanese was Admiral Togo's flagship, the Mikasa, which rode peacefully at anchor on a concrete base. The ship, which fought in the Russo-Japanese war of 1905 was preserved as a reminder of Japan's victory and the nation's growing sea power.

Local directors and state vice presidents will attend the meeting and will elect a new president to succeed R. T. Zook, who is retiring his post.

Castilian Mallow Searched For Medical Use

AUSTIN, Texas — The possibilities of medical properties in the Castilian mallow, an herb with demulcent properties or soft downy leaves, is being studied in research laboratories of the University of Texas by a graduate pharmacy student.

Miss Mary Ellen White of Carrizo Springs has been granted funds by Upjohn, manufacturers of pharmaceutical products, to determine the value of the mallow plant common in the Southwest. Miss White obtains her specimens from the apothecary garden of the University.

"Before making any chemical analyses, I have been studying the histological phase of the plants," Miss White said. "This includes a study of cell and tissue structure of the root, stem, and leaf of the plant."

A mallow is any plant with the genus malva, Miss White explained, and an herb familiar to Europe for many years. Research in the medical properties was begun before the war, and study was resumed this fall.

The cool or marsh bird is not a duck, although it often feeds with the divers, is shot for a duck by amateurs, and is classed with the duck in the hunting laws.

Jerry Devore, is now stationed with the Air Transport Command in India. He stated in his letter that he was enjoying his assignment and seemed very happy.
