I GIVE YOU TEXAS

The sympathizing, half-angry, old, black mammy bore her weeping, sobbing charge to the nursery and bound up his broken heart and soothed him to sleep with her old-time lullaby:

O, don't you cry, little baby;

Good Peanut Bags

WHILE THEY LAST!

don't you cry, no mo',
For it hurts ole mammy's feelin's
for to hear you weepin' so.
Why do dey bring temptation to de little makes 'em feel?
What makes 'em 'buse de baby,
kase de jam and 'tarves am
sweet?

O, de sorrows, tribulations, dat
de joys of mortals break.
O, it's heaven when we slumber,
it's trouble when we wake.

O, go to sleep, my darlin', now
close dem little eyes
And dream uv de shinin' angles
an' de blessed paradise;
O, dream uv de blood-red roses
and de birds on snowy wing;
O, dream uv de fallin' waters and
de nebbber-endin' spring!
O, de roses! O, de rainbows! O, de music's gentle swell!

In de dreamland uv little children
where adribbled spirits dwell,
And then she tucked him away in de paradise of his childish slumbers.

The bow in its sweep grew slow and tremulous. It brooded like a gentle spirit over the violin, and the music added into a mournful tone. A little coffin sat by an empty cradle. The prints of baby fingers were on the window panes
the tops were scattered on the floor, the lullaby was hushed, the mirth and mischief and little feet
and midnight screams of pain
were no longer in the way to vex
and worry. Sunny curls dropped above eyelids that were closed
forever; two little dimpled cheeks
were bloodless and cold; two little dimpled hands were folded on a motionless breast.

The vibrant instrument sighed
and wept. It rang the church bell's knell; and the second story of life, which is the sequel of the first, was told. I caught glimpses of half-lived paradise and I saw the hazy stretches of its landscapes and heard faint echoes of its distant music. I saw the flash of white wings that never weary.
A string snapped; the music ended;
my vision vanished.

WE FLEW Without GUNS

This is a true story of the men who by the "hump" carried passengers and cargo over the high Himalayas between India and China. Pilots call it the toughest airline route in the world.

SPITFIRE MAKES A FRIEND

GINGISS was waiting for us in front of the Delamar Hotel in Bombay. He waited outside until we had signed up for rooms. When he saw us head for the elevator he came in and briskly walked across the lobby to join us. All the way up in the elevator he complained in a loud voice about the taxi situation in Bombay, continuing his lousy lament until all our baggage had been brought to the rooms and the porters were paid off and the doors closed. Then he sat down on the canvas bags and dropped into a chair, exhausted. In the welcome silence we could then hear the protesting whines of the cats.

We had arranged for transportation to Durbin on the east coast of South Africa aboard the British passenger ship Strathmore, and during our stay in Bombay we gave considerable thought to how we were going to get the cats aboard without letting the ship's crew know anything about it. The best bet finally seemed to be to put them back in the two canvas bags, and that is what we did. I took one bag with Spitfire and Tony took the other containing Margot and Suzy Q. Gingsiss said I was up to us to get them out of Bombay; he had gotten them in. I stalled around until the last minute before the ship sailed, in the excitement of our late arrival, together with the fact that we were still wearing our service uniforms, the port authorities gave us no trouble at all.

Copyright, 1945, J. C. Winston Co.; Distributed NEA

to his full height, glaring at me in outraged dignity.

"Just a leopard, Captain," I said. "Cute little fellow—just a kitten. Captured him myself in the jungle. Taking him home—back to the States, you know—look now, just put out your hand, real slowly. He'll come over to be petted."

Cautiously the Captain bent down a little and stretched out a hand. Spitfire studied it warily a moment, then he got up and trotted forward. The Captain touched the back of his head, twiddled his ears, stroked his back.

There was a trying moment a couple of hours later when Gingsiss and Tony and I trotted out all three of the leopards for the Captain's inspection, but after a certain amount of protest and spitting he calmed down and agreed to expand the accommodations then being prepared for Spitfire in the stateroom.

NOTE in the entire affair then, and that was that Gingsiss' Margot was acting strangely. She preferred lying down to standing and she didn't want to play with the other cats or even to be petted by Al. She hadn't eaten well for 12 hours or more and the way she curled up when she was lying down suggested stomach pains. The reason, we knew, was that she wasn't getting barley water with her milk. In the excitement of getting the cats on the boat at Bombay we had forgotten to lay in a supply of that essential dieting aid, and there was none of it available on the boat.

When the captain noticed Margot's lethargy he summoned the ship's doctor. For the next two days, under his treatment—which consisted of adding a couple of drops of brandy to the milk—she showed some improvement. And then one night at 2:30 a. m. the little leopard let out a last feeble whine and died.

"Looky heah, Jedge; I ain't no lawyer—I can't talking without thinking."

A favorite story related by Associate Justice Milburn Long of the Court of Civil Appeals is told in the book and another was obtained from Justice of the Peace Ernest Wood of Eastland. There are three stories about Rising Star and even one about Henry Helms, the leader of the Santa Claus bank robbers.

House gives special acknowledgment also to Judge Elzo Bean and to Bill Kitterell, formerly of Cince for stories. The author formerly lived in Eastland County, "Texas—Proud and Loud" exhausted five editions (20,000 copies) in four weeks. It is the third volume of humor by House, the others being "I Give You Texas" and "Tall Talk from Texas". He also is the author of two books on Eastland County: "Were You In Ranger?" and "Oil Boom."

The first Texas railroad was the Buffalo Bayou, Brazos and Colorado Railroad, chartered in 1850. It was the second line west of the Mississippi since the Pacific Railroad in Missouri went into operation two months earlier.

All the Rocky Mountain states except Wyoming showed slight increases in federal employment during the past year, according to the civil service commission.

FOUNDATION WILL FOSTER YOUNG TALENT

SAN FRANCISCO (UP)—Louis P. Gainsborough, president of the Legan Corporation, international trading organization here, announced the establishment of the Gainsborough Music Foundation to find and assist talented young men and women in their musical education and to give them the opportunity of appearing with some of the great orchestras of the world.

The foundation, a non-profit organization incorporated under the laws of California, has been endowed with a substantial sum of money by Mr. Gainsborough. He intends to contribute a portion of the profits of his world wide import and export business to the new enterprise.

The Gainsborough Music Foundation will have no restrictions as to race, creed or color. To emphasize this fact, representatives of all of the religious and labor groups and leaders in the field of education and business will be named to the executive committee.

The activities of the Foundation will be world-wide in scope and will give concerts in San Francisco, New York, Hollywood, London, Buenos Aires, Rio de Janeiro and other cities.

Another objective of the Foundation will be to encourage the establishment of a youth symphony orchestra in California, which, however, would either have to be supported by the state or by private subscription; with the Gainsborough Foundation as one of its contributors.

Uncle Sam tells us there will be plenty of radios for Christmas gifts. We doubt, however, that the music will have charms to soothe the savage appetite.

If there were no old maids in the world, who would use the expression, "We girls"?

The best tips in connection with vacation are those you save by not taking one.

The leaves will soon begin to blush to think how green they've been all summer.

It's good news to the family when Mom puts up preserves—and they all spread it around.

At last the Nips are where they belong—down on their Japanese!

NEED BULBS? KEEP Spares on Hand

● Are you short of lamp bulbs? Chances are there are at least three empty sockets in your lamps, lighting fixtures or wall bracket lamps. Now is the time to fill those sockets with new, low priced lamp bulbs that are more efficient than ever. Your neighborhood grocery store, drug store, electrical appliance store or any other store which sells lamp bulbs now has ample stocks of all sizes of bulbs on hand. Count your empty sockets and plan to fill them all with proper size bulbs.

Buy lamp bulbs by the carton — keep extras on hand for emergencies.

Nearly all stores sell bulbs — buy 'em when you shop

After All's Said And Done -

... There is a feeling of satisfaction following the completion of a task well done. It may be as simple as peeling pears or plowing peanuts. A prominent attorney remarked to us a few days ago that he liked the plate in our abstracts. A plat is a little thing, but important if well done. And if we seem to take more time than necessary on your orders, remember that the very nature of abstracting requires it.
