Sound Defense Must Have 3 Arms Says Patterson

WASHINGTON (UP) — There must be three arms of equal standing in any sound defense structure, Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson told the United Press today in response to inquiries about Army-Navy modernization developments.

Those arms, the secretary continued, are ground, sea and air. Patterson's attention was called to published reports that the question whether the air forces would in the modernization program still become a separate organization is a matter of discussion or disagreement within the war department.

Nebraska U. Lengthens Law Course One Year

LINCOLN, Neb. (UP) — The theory and practice of teaching law at the University of Nebraska has been completely reorganized, to meet the demands of the legal profession.

The new course places Nebraska at the forefront of development in modern legal education, Dean Frederick K. Beutel of the law college, said. By lengthening the curriculum from five to six years more time is provided for the study of court procedure, legal and social science and public law.

Law students at Nebraska now must qualify for two degrees—the B. S. in law, awarded at the end of four years work, and the Bachelor of Laws degree, given at the close of the sixth year. The latter entitles the graduate to practice law.

TRUMAN MAKES LAST MINUTE EFFORT TO HALT WALKOUT

BY UNITED PRESS

Railroads began preparations today for a possible nationwide strike tomorrow as President Truman made a final attempt to avert the walkout without government seizure.

Preparations for a possible walkout were started as the President called union and management representatives to the White House for conferences beginning at 2:30 p. m. in a last minute attempt to prevent the walkout scheduled for 4 p. m.—local time—tomorrow on all the Class 1 railroads.

The office of defense transportation and the army were geared to carry out presidential seizure orders, although the two railroad brotherhoods involved had given no assurances that workers would remain on the job under government operation.

WASHINGTON (UP) — An Army Air Force spokesman said today the Air Transport Command is making plans to take over and operate about 1,000 freight and passenger planes in an event of a railroad strike. These planes belong to private, non-scheduled airlines.

Gen. Henry H. Arnold, former commander of the army air forces, has been called back from retirement by President Truman to handle this phase of the prospective transportation crisis.

Army sources said all available army transports also would be used.

Says Rebellion Quelled At Camp Near Havana

HAVANA (UP) — Government forces were reported in semi-official quarters to have put down with tank and machine gun fire an armed rebellion early today at the Columbia Military Camp outside Havana, Cuba's main military base.

Authorities clamped a rigid censorship on the outbreak at Columbia, where for more than an hour the clatter of automatic gunfire, rumbling of tanks and sounds of explosions were heard.

The newspaper Manana, close to the government, said President Ramon Grau San Martins forces suppressed a rebellion.

Auditor Reminds Texas Has Own 'Hatch' Law

AUSTIN (UP) — State auditor H. Cavness issued a timely reminder to state employes that Texas has its own "Hatch" law. Cavness, in filing one of his department reports, noted that some of the employes had not been furnished with a copy of the law prohibiting political aid.

Beside the restrictions put upon state employes, there is also prohibition against use of any state vehicle or state owned equipment of any sort, in the interest of any candidacy. For instance a state-owned mimeographing machine cannot be used by a department employe, even after office hours, to grind out political material.

NYLONS MAKE IT GALA STATE COLLEGE, N. M. (UP) — New Mexico A. & M. students had a gala opening of their remodeled Aggie Corral with a series of contests ranging from table tennis to jitterbug contests.

Winners—in the feminine competition—were awarded nylon hose—while the men had to be content with less valuable awards.

VA GUIDANCE HELPING DISABLED WIN COMEBACK

By JOSEPH SWARTZ
United Press Staff Correspondent
BOSTON (UP) — The outlook was bleak for World War II veteran Christodal Thomas who had been struck by infantile paralysis while stationed in India.

All his prewar jobs had depended on the use of his legs, and the paralysis made him feel he was virtually helpless. Then someone recommended that he look into the rehabilitation program sponsored by the Veterans Administration.

Now, a scant two years later, Thomas is a production manager at Radio Station WMEH, has married, has a son and has bought his own home. He spent the interim period studying at Boston radio schools.

"The rehabilitation program really helped me," Thomas said gratefully. "Thought I was all washed up when I got back, but radio gave me a break."

That sort of success story is a common occurrence to authorities at Veterans Administration offices in New England. They can cite scores of instances of veterans, both male and female, who considered themselves hopeless cases only to be guided to happy and fruitful occupations by the rehabilitation program.

For example, an arthritic condition forced nurse Constance Eaworthy of Allston to leave the service. Discouraged as having to give up her profession, she was persuaded to study medical-secretarial work at a business school.

New employed in the clinical records department of the veterans' hospital at West Roxbury, Miss Eaworthy is especially pleased with her work because it is in the medical field.

When Harold J. Russell, a former paratrooper from Cambridge, lost both hands above the wrist, he still maintained high spirits. At Walter Reed General Hospital, he learned the use of his artificial hands. Then he registered at Boston University and from there was called to Hollywood to play in a movie called "Diary of a Sergeant."

Before the war, Charlie Massi worked in a Barre, Vt., granite quarry, handling heavy chipping hammers and sometimes boring holes to take the heavy fuses that sliced off the blocks from Vermont's rugged hills.

Massi came back from overseas.

Do You Know?

That many costly oil well fishing jobs were caused by the failure to "hold on" to the pipe? A string of pipe should be supported at all times with the spider and slips, the casing elevators, or the casing clamps.

disabled in such a manner that he was unable to stand the dust or the noise of heavy work at the quarry. But he always enjoyed working with his hands, and that disclosure helped the Veterans Administration lead him to a new trade.

As the first step, he was sent to the Elgin watch plant in Illinois to learn the art of watch repairing. When he returns, he'll be well equipped to earn a living for his wife and child as a watchmaker and repairman.

Perhaps one of the most heart-warming stories of all is that of Ernest Gay of East Boston. Blinded by a Nazi mine while serving with Patton's third army, he went to an Army hospital for rehabilitation.

While learning Braille, Gay fell in love with his teacher, Miss Rosalie Cohen of New York who had been blind since childhood. Now married, the couple has purchased a farm at Abington through the VA's loan guaranty offices—where they plan to raise chickens.

NO DEVELOPMENTS IN BURGLARY CASES

No new development in the recent burglary cases here had been announced by officers investigating the cases at press time Thursday afternoon. The places burglarized were the McGraw Motor Company, Warren Motor Company and Coca-Cola Bottling Company. Something more than $100 was secured from the safe at the McGraw Motor Company. $15 was taken from a cash box at Warren Motor Company, and nothing was missing at Coca-Cola where entrance to the safe was not gained.

T-Sgt. Speaking of the Other Fellow's troubles

... suppose, for instance, that he moves an old house or erects a new structure on a lot without first knowing some thing about the title to the lot. This is being done in every town in the county. What will happen later on is obvious. Fixed improvements become a part of the real estate. If the title to the real estate proves to be faulty the whole investment becomes of doubtful value. The morale is, get an abstract first—buy and improve later!

BOYS LOOT BIRD TRAP
GOLDENDALE, Wash. (UP)—Einar Anderson of Goldendale built a better bird trap, but complained that too many boys beat a path to its door.
The trap, six feet square, constructed of fine mesh wire and baited with meat, captured plenty of crows and magpies, but was looted by youngsters, who collected the bounty paid for the predators by the Klickitat Hunters and Anglers club and the state game commission.

The Kentucky Court of Appeals has held that persons who fought in the Confederate Army during the Civil War rendered a "public service" and therefore were entitled to a pension.
