RANGER, TEXAS, FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 13, 1946

PRICE FIVE CENTS No. 75

Well...
J. Dunno,
But...

Appearing in this edition of the Times is the notice that December 11th has been named as the date for the planting of pecan trees and abelia shrubs all over Eastland county and especially along the highway.

The program of planting will be dedicated to World War II veterans with the trees and shrubs as living memorials to the services of these men.

It is being sponsored by the State Highway Department as a beautification move for Texas and each county has been asked to select a tree and a shrub for use over the entire county.

Individuals as well as business firms will be asked to purchase and plant the trees and shrubs and an announcement from the committee will be made soon as to where the two can be purchased.

The program is of tremendous scope and deserves the cooperation of every person in Ranger. Just how successful the campaign is here depends on the cooperation it gets, and it would be too bad, that if through lack of cooperation, Ranger's stretch of highways would be less beautified than those of other sections in the county.

You will be called upon to do your part and your part is important to the whole program. It will be but a few years until the beauty of the effort will be in full bloom and we can boast with pride of our tree and shrub lined sections of the highways.

Ranger's residential sections can stand more trees, too, and it has been found that the pecan is not only a pretty tree but is hardy in this section. They prove profitable, also, and if properly budded can produce luscious nuts.

Start now to select the places where you will plant your trees and shrubs and be ready for the mass planting on December 11th. Mrs. J. Floyd Killingsworth is Ranger's chairman for the move and is completing plans for the organization of the campaign.

Like we've said before we lay no claim to being a football analyst but we sure do know when we get a big thrill out of a game. And there's just nothing like the thrill that comes when a long pass is completed and the player gets off for the touchdown, just like some of the boys did in Thursday night's game.

Personally, we think the Bulldogs' passing setup looks pretty good and some of the blocking Thursday night was noticeably effective. The fact that Ranger made both placement kicks count, was a source of satisfaction to fans, who recalled that the Bulldogs' inability to convert the extra point in past years had been noticeable. A check of last year's games showed very few extra points made. Anyway, the boys have won their first game played before a pretty good crowd, considering the weather. DeLeon brought along quite a few, themselves and with five cute pep leaders to lead them, did some lousy yelling.

Heard somebody say today that the high school students were not giving their team enough cheering and of the loud noisy type. Could be. And the cheering counts for those boys on the field.

Incidentally, we wish someone who has the authority would provide a marker for the big score board at the end of the Bulldog stadium. It's a nice board, but it never has anything on it. Sometimes fans are puzzled about plays that aren't clear and if there were someone handling that board that could keep an accurate record of the game on it, we think it would be an asset to the games.

It would, of course, be more confusing than helpful, if the marking up of the score and downs, etc. were sloppily done and inaccurate. But it used to be done efficiently and it could be again.

My, my, here we are talking about the weather again. But it just does so many things that we can't get off the subject. But we still say, Ranger events have had the breaks on recent rains. The rodeo got 'em in a cooling rain a few days before the show started, then cleared off; the golf tournament followed rains that ceased just in time, though they did have some wet weather during the games and last night the Bulldogs got the breaks when afternoon rains ceased until after the game. Only a light sprinkle fell once (Continued on page six)

County Highway Beautification Group Has Meet

Mrs. James Horton, County Chairman of the Highway Beautification program was hostess to other chairmen over the County Wednesday afternoon at her home corner Halverson and Pershing.

The committee planned to plant pecan trees supplemented with abelia shrubs on the highways and streets in Eastland County. They urge every home to plant a pecan tree as a memorial honoring World War II veterans.

The County agent informed the chairman the second week in December was the best time to plant pecan trees. The committee decided on December 11th as the planting date for Eastland County.

The abelia shrub is a semi-evergreen. The shrub in this locality stays green all winter if it has plenty of moisture.

Those attending were: Mrs. Eugene Baker and Mrs. Brummett, of Gorman; Mrs. Claude Stubblefield, Carbon; Mrs. Alex Spear, and Mrs. John Shertzer, Cisco; Mrs. Floyd Killingsworth and Mrs. W. L. Jackson, Ranger; Mrs. Frank Castleberry and Mrs. James Horton, Eastland.

CLAIMS MEAT BLACK MARKET NOT PRESENT

Meat industry spokesmen said today that there is almost no black market because "there's not enough meat to start one."

In a nationwide survey by United Press, the only city reporting definite evidence of an organized black market was New York.

Slight black market symptoms were reported in Philadelphia, Dallas, Texas, San Francisco, Minneapolis and St. Paul.

In other cities there were scattered reports of a few over-ceiling sales, but no evidence of organized illegal traffic. OPA investigators, however were anticipating black market developments across the nation.

Among the major cities reporting almost no signs of a black market were St. Louis, Cleveland, Detroit, New Orleans, Atlanta, Ga.; Portland, Ore.; Salt Lake City; Des Moines, Ia.; Omaha, Neb.; and Milwaukee, Wis.

Substitutes were Lanier, Crossley, Cole, Deaton, Heinzel, Imholz, Wright and Langley.

Officials were Elliot Chipps (TCU) umpire, and Bob Worley (Howard Payne) head line man.

Following the Ranger-DeLeon football game here Thursday night members of the football squad, Coach Jimmie Marshall, Coach Onis Warden, Dr. G. C. Boswell and G. B. Rush were entertained at a supper at the Elks Club with members of the Elks Lodge as hosts.

Guests were greeted by members of the Lodge and ushered to the supper table where a big feed was spread. It was reported today that all but one member of the squad was present for the supper.

Following the supper the squad went to the Teen Canteen which was open for dancing.

Hopes For Settlement Of Strike Are Brighter

BULLDOGS USE AERIAL ATTACK TO WIN GAME

In the opening game of the 1946 football season the Ranger Bulldogs defeated the Class A DeLeon Bears by a score of 14 to 0.

Ranger's two touchdowns were made in the second and third quarters and both resulted from a passing attack. The first was made on a long pass from Arterburn to Frasier who ran about 30 yards for the first score. The extra point was kicked by Frasier.

The second touchdown came after a long pass from Arterburn to Frasier who lateraled to MacDonald who went over for 14 yards and a second marker. The extra point was again made on a placement kick.

DeLeon kicked off to Ranger and after a try at line play the Bulldogs punted to the Bears who lost the ball to Ranger when they failed on a try for the fourth down. An attempted pass by Ranger failed as did line play and they again punted to DeLeon.

The Bears tried the aerial route but punted to Ranger after Jaye of DeLeon got in one long run. After Ranger's passing attack got into full swing, spectators were kept on their toes as players got away for long gains. Arterburn intercepted a long DeLeon pass and with effective blocking by Frasier, made a 400 yard gain in the latter part of the game. Spectacular gains were also made by Gray.

First downs were about even for the two teams with Ranger taking the biggest loss of yardage through penalties, mostly for off sides offenses. Ranger completed the most passes and intercepted the most. Ranger outgained the opponents in total yardage by better than 100 yards.

Starting line-ups for the two teams were:

- Pos. Ranger DeLeon
- LE—McDonald Campbell
- LT—Carlin Terrell
- LG—Don Ford Goates
- C—Griffin Upshaw
- RG—Hardy Miller
- RT—Balch Ragland
- RE—Frasier Nolan
- QB—Arterburn Stimpson
- RB—Williams Jaye
- LB—Gray Page
- FB—Elder Blitch

Substitutes were Lanier, Crossley, Cole, Deaton, Heinzel, Imholz, Wright and Langley.

Officials were Elliot Chipps (TCU) umpire, and Bob Worley (Howard Payne) head line man.

Eastland Rites Saturday For Former Resident

John H. Hollman, 87, former resident of the Colony community in Eastland county, died at his home in San Benito. The body was due to arrive at Eastland on the 7:30 Sunshine Special train this (Friday) afternoon. Funeral services were to be held at the Eastland Church of Christ Saturday with the pastor Dr. Orval Pilbeck, officiating. The hour, however, was indefinite because it was undetermined at what time some of the relatives would arrive. Interment, with Hamner's of Eastland in charge, will be in the Eastland Cemetery.

The deceased was for a long time a resident of Eastland county, leaving in 1920. Survivors include his widow, two daughters and one son. He is the father-in-law of Ed Reeves of San Benito, formerly of Cisco.

Clixto Navares is chairman of arrangements which call for a dance with music furnished by James Metcalf and his band and a parade on September 16.

Mexico won her independence from Spain in September 1810 marking this the 136th anniversary of its independence.

BRITON WALKS OUT OF PEACE CONFERENCE

PARIS (UP)—Britain's First Lord of the Admiralty A. V. Alexander walked out of the Peace Conference Military Commission today in protest after the Russian General Slavine accused him and U. S. Admiral Richard L. Connolly of representing "old fashioned democracy."

Alexander's action came just before the commission voted 15 to 4, with one abstention and one absentee, to invite Albania to express its views on the military clause of the Italian treaty.

Alexander left a subordinate to cast one of the four dissenting votes, with France, the United States and Greece.

Belgium abstained and Brazil was absent. Australia's Col. William R. Hodgson earlier had injected a bitter attack on the "arbitrary, irresponsible dictatorial" use of the veto by big powers in the United Nations Security Council into Peace Conference discussion of the Trieste problem.

Missouri Seeks Skilled Labor

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (UP)—There's a job for you in Missouri if you're a glass bender or a steeple jack.

And there are many other job openings ranging from sewing machine operators to aeronautical engineers.

Officials of the U. S. employment service office here are pleading for workers to hard to fill positions. They reveal there is a serious surplus of employees in many Missouri communities and at the same time a critical shortage in some occupations.

Offered as an example are women sewing machine operators, who are in great demand in the state's textile mills. St. Louis employers don't even require experience in the work.

Next in order of demand are women office workers, such as entry clerks, file clerks, stenographers, calculating machine and computer operators and clerk typists. Auto mechanics and auto body repairmen also are high on the shortage list.

Necktie Flood in Johnstown
JOHNSTOWN, Pa. (UP)—Earl McKillop has 210 military ties, autographed by former servicemen from eight states. McKillop started collecting ties when a group of servicemen held a get-together in his restaurant.

RAIDERS TURN CITIES INTO BIG TURMOIL

JERUSALEM (UP)—Jewish underground raiders today threw Tel Aviv and Jaffa into turmoil with attacks against four banks and the Jaffa prison and running gun battles in which at least four persons were killed, five wounded and possibly eight extremists captured.

An estimated 50 extremists carried out the attacks. The amount of loot seized in the holdups was uncertain. Latest reports placed the figure at about $10,000 after earlier estimates running as high as $420,000.

Police explained that in running gun battles they had captured a number of raiders and a major portion of the stolen cash with which they had hoped to finance underground activity.

The attacks were made in the heart of crowded Jaffa and Tel Aviv. Wild bursts of gun fire scattered through the crowded streets as the raiders sought to fight their way out through hastily summoned emergency squads of police and troops.

Thousands of shoppers fled about in the streets as the fight raged.

Dentist, Ninety After 60 Years Still Active

WATKINS GLEN, N. Y. (UP)—Dr. James Ovenshire, 90, has been practicing for 60 years and is one of the oldest active dentists in the United States.

Dr. Ovenshire lives with his 90 year old sister, Mrs. Mary Jean Frencher, who verifies his most proud boast.

"I made her a set of dentures 51 years ago—and they're still perfect."

Look for Diamond In Your Turkey

WINDLAY, O. (UP)—Someone will get far more than he bargained for when biting into one of Mrs. Nellie Blake's turkeys come Thanksgiving Day.

Mrs. Blake Hancock county turkey raiser, was putting her flock of some 1,000 turkeys out on the range when one gambler grabbed a $400 diamond out of the setting of a ring Mrs. Blake wore.

So far, the diamond has not been recovered. If you happen to bite down on the diamond on the holiday, Mrs. Blake would like to "talk turkey" with you.

DIRECTOR TO SUGGEST CIO MEN GET SAME AS AFL SEAMEN

WASHINGTON (UP)—Prospects for settlement of the entire maritime strike brightened today when the Maritime Commission labor relations director said he would recommend that CIO seamen be given the same wage increases as AFL maritime unions received.

Godfrey Butler, maritime commission labor relations director, said he was confident that the commission would approve his recommendation.

He disclosed the recommendation a few hours after CIO maritime workers struck for the higher wage scales involved in the nationwide strike of AFL seamen.

Butler planned to lay his proposal before the commission during the day.

CIO maritime workers had been idle by respecting picket lines of the striking AFL seamen, but did not go out on strike until last night.

Wallace Warns Against Tough Policy With Reds

NEW YORK (UP)—Secretary of Commerce Henry A. Wallace, keynoting the administration's fall election campaign, charged the Republican party last night with being the "party of economic nationalism" and urged continued efforts to get along with Russia.

Wallace warned against a "get tough with Russia" policy in an address at Madison Square Garden and urged the United States not to interfere in the political affairs of Eastern Europe where current Soviet-British policies "may eventually lead to war."

Wallace was hinted at several points in his speech. The first time it occurred was when he mentioned President Truman's aims and a second outbreak occurred when Wallace was discussing American aims in China.

Disraeli's Last Home Goes On The Old Block

LONDON (UP)—The last home of Disraeli, famous Victorian British prime minister—now no more than an empty shell—has been placed on sale.

Outside of the house at No. 17 Curzon St., crowds waited in 1931 for the news of the passing of one of the greatest figures of Victorian England.

The Curzon street mansion was only one of Disraeli's London homes. After the death of his wife in 1875, he lived in No. 2 Whitehall Gardens and prior to that he lived in his wife's home at 93 Park Lane.

AUSTRALIAN COUNTRY BOY

It seems incredible that so violent a dispute could have been provoked by Australia's original dispassionate suggestion that, before reparations are finally imposed upon the former Axis nations, it should be determined whether they can be paid.

So far as can be determined from news dispatches the Aussies did not question whether the reparations asked by Russia and her satellites are justified, or dispute that they are payable.

Soviet spokesman Vishinsky says that Colonel Hodgson is like a country boy come to the big city and eager to try out the gadgets. That is not only untrue and unfair, but the weakest sort of argument.

It is extremely doubtful that the Aussies have any sympathy for any Axis nation. They may be 15,000 miles from Paris, but they have plenty of gold star homes to prove that they were at the very heart of World War II.

Colonel Hodgson and his associates contend that the small Allied nations are entitled to a voice in the peace they fought to make possible. He feels that no nation, however small, should be expected to sign a treaty unless it has been told what has gone into that treaty.

Maybe he is wrong, though it is hard to see how any sincere believer in democracy could argue against his position.

Right or wrong, he has the right to make the argument. If the preservation of peace henceforth is to be in the hands of a United Nations, in which all peace-loving peoples are participants, then the fact that his country is small located thousands of miles from Paris, is immaterial.

It was high time that somebody should raise the question whether the glorious world of the future is to be fashioned by open covenants openly arrived at by majority rule, or whether it is to revert to secret power covenants forced by the Big Four upon everybody else.

WASHINGTON COLUMN

BY PETER EDSON NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, D. C.—(NEA)—Tremendous truffles shake the course of current events.

Fiorelli LaGuardia is greeted with a stein of beer in Prague—and the food supplies of the Czech nation are imperiled.

A GI whistles at a Latin American beauty of high degree—and the relations between the United States and Peru become strained.

Secretary of State Byrnes, presiding over the Paris peace conference, makes a ruling that denies Russian delegate Vishinsky the right to speak when he wants to—and the whole Soviet union is insulted.

Again, Secretary Byrnes pats the hand of Italian Premier de Gasperi after his appeal to the peace conference—and the touchy French protest that an agreement that no sympathy shall be shown the defeated enemy nations at Paris has been violated.

A few hotbeds in Jerusalem plant a bomb in British headquarters—and the future of tens of thousands of refugees is hung in the balance.

Chinese grafters and war-lords insist on their traditional saving of face—and the noble cause of peace in China is dealt a grave blow.

BIGNESS in men seems gone out of the world. The major objectives in making a durable peace are lost sight of in concentration on what should be trivialities.

Do the newspapers overplay these little incidents in the making of history? Perhaps. But these dramatic asides, played by the star actors on today's stage, are the bits of business that we average folk in the audience can understand.

The dispatch of an American aircraft-carrier to the Mediterranean may in itself be nothing of importance. Yet the battleship Missouri recently concluded another of these god-will tours to the same region.

Then there was the little incident of an American transport plane being forced down by military aircraft of Yugoslavia. And a few American soldiers were ambushed at Trieste.

THERE is fear of a Yugoslav coup in the territory around Trieste, bordering on Italy. There is increasing participation of the United States government in the affairs of Palestine.

There is consideration of a proposal to have the United States replace Japan as one of the governing nations of the Montreux convention, under which the Dardanelles are controlled. There are American loans to Greece and Saudi Arabia.

In the light of all these other incidents, the Secretary's pat of encouragement to Premier de Gasperi takes on significance.

SPORTS

BY HARRY GRAYSON NEA Sports Editor

THIS has been a year of despair at the Polo Grounds and faithful followers of the Giants find little balm in the events surrounding Walker Cooper, gilt-edged catcher who was purchased from the Cardinals this spring for the tidy sum of $175,000.

Indeed, there are those who fear that the "St. Louis bust" story, which began with Dizzy Dean's sale to the Cubs and continued with Mort Cooper's transfer to the Braves, may produce a harrowing sequel in the case of brother Walker who, because of injuries and ill luck, has been reduced to the status of a very ordinary mittman.

Walker Cooper had three consecutive days in which he committed errors, either by throwing wildly to bases or by muffed throws to the plate. The inglorious streak reared its head in Chicago where he dropped a simple toss from the outfield and permitted the winning run to clatter home.

There is good reason for the retarded play of the man who has been called the finest catcher in baseball. This spring, shortly after joining the Giants amid much trumpeted blowing, he suffered a fractured little finger on his throwing hand. A "pinkie" is an important part of a $30,000 per year catcher. Because it failed to heal properly, Cooper can no longer close his hand for a firm grip on a bat or ball, has shown a natural tendency to favor the injured member in taking throws at the plate.

Cooper is willing to have the rest of his pinkie amputated, but Mrs. Cooper shudders at the thought. Advisers insist, however, that a long lay-off and a thorough surgical job must be endured if the strapping maskman is to remain a $175,000 specimen. Manager Mel Ott admits this too, but is reluctant to side-track his best man on the theory that Cooper, laid hand or no, remains a valuable asset with his hitting and speed. Mel, who still dreams hazy dreams of a fourth-place finish, cannot help but feel that Walker's plight can also be traced to his returning to baseball directly from the Navy, without benefit of a full training season.

WHILE it seems unjust to bracket this case with that of Dean and Mort Cooper, who never regained stardom after they were sold, the Walker Cooper incident nevertheless supports the old contention that good ball players never die on the Cardinals. Sam Breadon deals them away for handsome returns, lets them live their declining years on rival clubs.

In 1938 he peddled Dean to the Cubs for $185,000 and three sound players. Die succumbed to a bad arm and proved a bust, yet there was some consolation in the fact that he did win seven games, and they contributed to a National League championship.

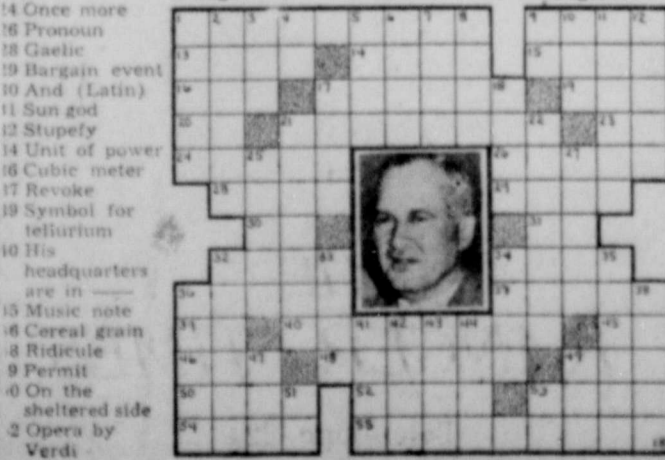

In 1945 Breadon unloaded Mort Cooper's chipped elbow on the Braves for $60,000 and pitcher Red Barrett, who promptly won 23 games to Mort's name. But here, too, there was solace, for Mort's failures were generally forgotten in the upswing of the Braves' fortunes.

But if Walker Cooper follows the pattern of Dizzy Dean and Mort, there will be no permanent upswing at the Polo Grounds to comfort grieving Giant fans. It appears they will be shackled to a second-division ball club—and for some time to come.

 ... is the popular way of saying that we act before we think. It is a state of mind not confined to the ignorant, nor to the mentally ill, but to all classes of people, some at times, others at all times. For instance, we buy property without an abstract. We spend several thousand dollars for improvements. Along comes a buyer who thinks before he acts and offers to purchase but wants an abstract first. How about your title Mr. Seller? Can you deliver?

 By Alice M. Laverick

THE STORY: Cecelia Hart, was only 17 when I came to Innisfail that eventful summer to help out Cousin Ellen, who was the Fitzgeralds' housekeeper. Lovely Cecelia Brent captured my heart immediately but, unfortunately, old Cousin Fitzgerald, who ruled the household from a sick bed, frightened me. I was terribly homesick and Professor Mark told me I could read any of his books that I wanted.

VII
 I went to sleep then and dreamed that old lady Fitzgerald was playing the piano and Mark Fitzgerald was dancing on top of it with, of all people, Cousin Ellen. And the next day, which seemed at its beginning to be a day like any other, should have been marked in red letters on the calendar. Innisfail, house of Fitzgerald, would never be quite the same again. And never again that summer would it be quiet for any length of time.

For Colin Fitzgerald came home. COLIN FITZGERALD arrived at Innisfail in the midst of a thunder storm late that afternoon and there was no one to receive him but myself.

Miss Charlotte and the Professor had gone to town shortly after breakfast and a little later Cousin Ellen left for market, with strict instructions to me to make myself useful in her absence.

I was in the library dusting the books and, incidentally, looking over "The Hours of the Basilicas" when I heard the sound of a car door closing and the ringing of the doorbell.

I replaced the book quickly and went to answer the door. And there was Colin.

He stood in the doorway with his raincoat slung across his shoulders and four be-labeled bags beside him, and he smiled at me and said, "Hello, I don't believe we've met before, have we?" In a quick, charming voice and what sounded like an English accent faintly splashed with Killarney, "I'm that vagrant, Colin Fitzgerald," he told me.

"Oh, yes, sir. Of course. I'm Cecelia—Cecelia Hart," I said, and I think I must have blushed. "Little Saint Cecelia," he said. "Well, well, and do you play the organ, too? And do the angels shower roses down upon you?" "Oh, no," I said hastily. "I help Cousin Ellen in the kitchen. I'm here for the summer."

"Ah, that's good. Then we'll be seeing more of each other, won't we?" And he came into the hall and threw down his wet coat and his bag, and immediately the house seemed to sit up and take notice, like a big dog which has long been half asleep and suddenly rouses and becomes excited at the sound of a familiar voice.

I FELT oddly excited, myself, and somehow it seemed fitting that Colin Fitzgerald should return against a background of wind and thunder.

I said breathlessly, "Won't you let me take your things?" But he hadn't heard me. He had left me and gone into the living room, though after a few quick glances around the room, he was back, and the hall came alive again. A flash of lightning made his olive skin look bronze and his eyes and hair very dark, and I saw that he had a thin line of a black mustache.

"Beware of a black Irishman!" How often had I heard my mother say that. (All her people were sandy.) I had always tried to do my mother's bidding, but today I looked up into Colin Fitzgerald's dark eyes and I fell in love with him instantly. Thin and freckled and gauche I was, and young for my age, but I knew in that instant that never again would I meet such a magnetic man as this black Irishman.

"Where is everyone, Cecelia?" he said. "How is my mother?" And at this, old Honora herself heard his voice and screamed. Was that her Colin, she wanted to know. It was her Colin, she knew it was her Colin, and he was to come up and see her. "At once, at once, do you hear?" Colin took the stairs three at a time and I heard her glad cry when he went into the room and then his voice calling her endearing names over and over.

DEVIL'S LAUGHTER

By Alice M. Laverick Copyright, 1946, NEA SERVICE, INC.

THE STORY: Cecelia Hart, who was only 17 when I came to Indianapolis that eventful summer to find out Cousin Ellen, who was the Fitzgerald's housekeeper. Lovely Charlotte Brent captured my heart immediately but anticlerical old Honora Fitzgerald, who raised the household from a sick bed, frightened me. I was terribly homesick until Professor Mark told me I could read any of his books that I wanted. Then Colin Fitzgerald came home and everything paled beside his magnetic charm.

VIII
WHILE I was standing there at the foot of the stairs, still glowing over Colin's sweetness to his old mother, Mark and Miss Charlotte came, bringing Father Burke with them. They were all quite wet and Father Burke, being momentarily blinded by his rain-splashed glasses, nearly fell over Colin's bags there in the hall. He seemed to think this quite amusing, but Mark's eyes, fixed on the bags, were not amused. Indeed, they looked very grim and there was an edge on his voice as he said, "So the prodigal has returned once more."

Charlotte flashed an anxious glance at him, then smiled at me as I took her wet things. Mark said, "Do you know Cecelia Hart, Father?" "Ah, yes, Cecelia." Father Burke's near-sighted brown eyes were twinkling as he wiped his glasses. "That would be Tom Hart's daughter, wouldn't it? Over in North Lynchester, Saint Dominic's parish? Sure, I know Tom well. Good evening, Cecelia."

"Good evening, Father," I said with an embarrassed little bow. I retreated to the kitchen, where Cousin Ellen was inclined to be quite vexed with me, until I told her Colin had come home.

"Thank God he's home at last," she said, the dour look leaving her face. "That'll be enough to cure herself entirely. Get out the best linen, Celia, and get your apron on. Ah, he's the one that knows the good things to eat and appreciates them, Colin is."

Development of new wheat varieties requires 10 to 12 years of patient and careful work.

Rural mail carriers were authorized to receive and deliver registered mail on April 12, 1900.

An acre-foot of water is the amount required to cover an acre to the depth of one foot. It totals 325,800 gallons.

SHORTLY before dinnertime, Mrs. Fitzgerald horrified everyone by declaring that she was going to get out of bed and come down to the dining room and have dinner with Colin. And for a while there was quite a furor.

What magic words Colin finally used on her no one ever knew, but in the end she ate her meal, as usual, in bed and in seeming contentment. To be sure, Colin sat beside her while she ate and when the nurse and I carried in the trays, he was making outrageously complimentary speeches to the old lady, over her delighted protests. He even persuaded her to take a little nap, promising to look in on her again after his own dinner.

The dinner, so far as the food was concerned, was excellent, and I managed to serve without mishap, even to pouring the wine into fragile crystal goblets without spilling a drop. What with Colin's enthusiastic comments on the sauce for the crab cocktails and on the onion soup, both special concoctions of hers, Ellen was in fine feather when we came back to the kitchen.

"What did I tell you?" she said triumphantly. "I told you he'd appreciate it, didn't I? Ah, just wait till he tastes my roast ducklings. And didn't the table look grand, Celia, with those irises of the Professor's in the silver bowl?"

I agreed that it did. The irises from Mark's garden were just the color of Miss Charlotte's eyes and her dress in the candle light. And from the way he kept looking at her, Colin Fitzgerald must have appreciated this fact as well as that Cousin Ellen was a superb cook.

Colin was doing most of the talking, of course, which was as it should be. After all, was he not the traveler just returned from far-off lands? It was only natural that such a one should monopolize the conversation, especially one so gifted in the art as that same black Irishman. Miss Charlotte's eyes were sparkling and she laughed excitedly and often and Father Gene was intensely interested in Colin's tales. But Mark was not impressed you could see that.

It was when I carried in the salad that he flared up at Colin and I nearly dropped the tray in my agitation. I laid it down carefully on the sideboard and stood there unnoticed while the storm swept by me.

Colin was saying, "So they haven't made you a bishop yet Father? Sure, it's a crying shame I thought by now a man like yourself, with your personality and ability, would have the whole diocese to—"

"Never mind what you thought," Mark broke in furiously. "Have some respect for Father Gene and for the cloth he wears. Because you've been among those who hold nothing sacred, there's no need of your spicing them."

"Upon my word, you'd do well to do a little traveling yourself, my dear Mark," said Colin hotly. "This provincial life is certainly making you more narrow-minded than ever, which is saying a lot."

Miss Charlotte's eyes were wide with distress and Father Burke said quickly, "Now, I'll not be the bone of contention between you two. It was noble of you, Mark, to take up the cudgels for me, but I'm sure Colin meant no harm."

"My apologies to you, Father," said Mark, "for my burst of temper and for my brother's insolence. And to you, Charlotte."

"I was not aware of being insolent," Colin's dark eyes were flashing. "And, in any case, I am able to make my own apologies."

"Come, come now. Remember, both of you, you have a very sick mother," Father Gene said. "Stop acting like two hot-headed school-boys."

The two men stopped glaring at each other. Mark muttered, "Sorry." And Colin laughed. "Mea, maxima culpa, Father Gene," he said. And I dared to serve the salad.

AVERAGE COST OF ELECTRIC SERVICE IN HOME

1937 — 10 YEARS — 1946

Housewives say "thanks" for the recent reduction in the cost of their electric service and in the same breath ask "how can you do it in the face of higher costs?"

That is a logical question. Facts are that housewives like to use electric service — and have been using it in increasing quantities. The increased volume of business, together with savings resulting from technical progress and lower costs of capital have enabled us to make the reduction.

In return we say "thanks for your increased use" — electric service is one of the few items in the household budget which costs less than before the war.
