Decontrol Of Many Items Being Speeded

Well ...

dent Truman will likely follow the advice of the PAC and not remove controls on meat.

Then right on the heels of that Truman comes along and removes the controls and threatens to remove a lot more. At the same time he laid the blame for the meat situation on the Republicans in Congress.

Now, the question is who's got who?

Heard a veteran of World War I saying Monday how pleased he was at the opportunities being given veterans of World War II and pleased, too, to see the way they are accepting those opportunities.

To prove his point he referred to his own dismissal from service. He was given $60.00 mustering out pay and rail fare to the point of his enlistment. When he got to the point of enlistment, he couldn't even buy a single civilian suit for $60 and furthermore his income tax for the year was exactly $60.

While the veterans' educational program is one of the finest things that has ever happened to this country, it is definitely changing the educational plans for many students who were not in service.

So crowded are the institutions of high education that most of them hold out little encouragement to students for entrance. The University of Texas says that if you can find a place to stay, "you may be able to get into classes."

Others take much the same stand. In talking with one student Monday, it was pointed out to us that the situation is just a continuation of the influence the war has had on the education of some.

The class that started in high school in 1941 has had their entire high school education influenced by war and now their college education is feeling the results.

Dr. Bain is known throughout the country for his ability as a director and never have we heard anything that we enjoyed more than a program by his choir.

Those organizations that underwrote the performance for the $150 have done a fine thing for Ranger and are to be congratulated in the speed and enthusiasm with which it was handled.

If you've never heard that choir, or if you have, don't miss their program. We believe that you will agree with us afterward that it's one of the most inspirational things that you have ever heard.

And all you have to do is put on your bonnet and go. The organizations are footing the bill.

Your disbelief in dreams might be slightly shaken by the following story told us yesterday.

A few nights before the recent Coleman - Ranger football game one of the Bulldogs had a dream and in that dream he played a football game against Coleman. The score at the end of the dream game was 19 to 0, but in favor of whom the dream did not make clear. The Bulldogs, heard the story from their team mate.

So when Coleman defeated Ranger 19 to 0, the boys had an odd feeling about the whole deal.

Discourtesy To Soviet Regretted

WASHINGTON (UP) — The State Department said today it "deeply regrets" any discourtesy shown to Russian Ambassador Nikolai Novikov by U. S. customs officials in New York, but added that an investigation showed no evidence of international discourtesy or other breach of diplomatic etiquette.

SCHEDULE FOR CONCERTS IS ANNOUNCED

Officials of the Eastland County Community Concert Association have announced the schedule of concerts for the season with the first program to be given on November 27.

The fourth concert is scheduled for March 12 to be given by Solveig Lunde, brilliant pianist. She is a graduate of the Juilliard School of Music and is a pupil of Olga Samaroff-Stokowski. She made a successful Town Hall debut on December 6, 1944 and is a noted radio and orchestra artist.

Franco Spain Again In Fore At Council Meet

LAKE SUCCESS (UP) — Franco Spain the only nation specifically barred from membership in the United Nations, again becomes a center of controversy in the UN Security Council today.

The reappearance of the once-debated Franco case was in the form of differences over a report prepared by the 11-council delegates by their committee of experts.

PARIS PEACE CONFERENCE IS ADJOURNED

PARIS (UP) — The Paris Peace Conference adjourned today after 11 weeks and two days of almost constant bickering. Its wind up was marred by a boycott by Yugoslavia, which accused the delegates of unjust dealing with problems of Yugoslav interest.

Yugoslavia's refusal to attend the last formal session cast a pall over it and sent the delegates on their way to the next deliberations in New York without much hope.

The meeting had been planned as a final friendly champagne and roses affair to end an admittedly unsuccessful conference. The absence of the Yugoslavs and their brusque charges that they had been discriminated against took all the warmth out of the nobly phrased oratory.

Absenting itself from the last meeting, the Yugoslav delegation explained that it considered the conference had acted "incorrectly" and in an "essentially unjust manner" in its work on phases of the Italian treaty affecting the Yugoslavs.

U. S. Secretary of State James F. Byrnes, ignoring Yugoslavias absence, again appealed for wartime unity.

Eleven Nazis Nearing End Of Reign of Crime

NUERNBERG (UP) — Hermann Goering, Joachim Von Ribbentrop and nine more of Nazi-doms top war criminals neared the end of the road today, and by all signs will begin their march to the gallows at midnight—5 p. m. CST.

All of the condemned Nazis, save one—Alfred Rosenberg, the chief Nazi ideologist—were reported reading the Bible and seeking spiritual solace as their last hours ticked away.

An Army public relations announcement said today that no news about the executions will be available before 5 a. m., 10 p. m. CST tonight.

Few Banquet Tickets Still Available

Committeemen in charge of ticket sales for the Sportsman Club's Bulldog banquet Wednesday night, stated today that there were a few more tickets available and can be bought at the L. E. Gray Barber Shop.

The banquet will be given at the banquet hall of the First Methodist church Wednesday night and will be in honor of members of the Bulldog football squad.

DELEGATION APPEALS FOR AID ON ROAD

Following up a petition that had already been sent to the State Highway Department, a group of business men from Ranger, Eastland, Breckenridge and Caddo went to Austin Monday to appear before the department in the interest of an improved road from Ranger to Caddo.

Those attending the hearing were County Judge P. L. Crossley, County Auditor Don Parker of Eastland; L. R. Pearson, J. J. Kelly, A. N. Larson, P. C. MacDonald, County Commissioner H. V. Davenport and R. V. Galloway of Ranger; Tom Downing of Caddo and County Judge-Elect John Landerdale and County Commissioner Lewis of Breckenridge.

The delegation presented facts showing the necessity of the state taking over the Caddo-Ranger road as a farm to market road. During the boom in this area, Eastland and Stephens counties spent about a quarter of a million dollars paving this road and the expense of building and maintaining the road were borne without state aid.

In the petition which was signed by 75 to 100 people living along the road, it was pointed out that the road is essential not only as a farm to market road but that medical service is not now available due to the condition of the road. School buses that run over the route are unable to make the trip during bad weather because of the bad condition of the road and furthermore it would be a direct route to Possum Kingdom Lake. It was further pointed out that the fact that the counties originally spent money to build the road shows the necessity for it.

Members of the delegation in Austin Monday stated today that a reply to the petition and hearing should be received within the next ten days.

Magazine Story Tells Ranger Man's Experience

E. R. Bryan, who has been with the Community Public Service Company in Gainesville, and son of Mr. and Mrs. L. N. Bryan of Ranger, is the subject of an interesting article appearing in the September issue of the company magazine.

Bryan recently returned from service with the Army of Occupation in Italy and his experiences during that time are related in the story along with pictures illustrating his experiences.

During the time that he was in Italy his group lived in a 15-room villa which belonged to the Countess Tomasi. The villa had been commandeered for the use of the Americans and the countess and her entourage moved to the servants' quarters. A corps of servants, including a good cook, ran the place for the soldiers.

The villa was located near Milan where Bryan served as a special agent with the Counter Intelligence Corps.

He stated that there is great unrest in Northern Italy and that many of the Italian people feel that the United States acted prematurely in removing the troops from their country.

Bryan visited his parents here Monday while enroute to Pecos where he will be manager for the Community Public Service Company.

Public Address System To Be Used At Game

Dr. G. C. Boswell announced today that a public address system belonging to the Abilene Army Recruiting station will be installed for the Brownwood-Ranger game Friday night and the plays broadcast to the grandstands.

The installation of the system was arranged this morning.

Dr. Boswell also stated that the pressbox will be lighted and opened for the use of the press representatives.

Mrs. Heitman died suddenly at her home in the Pleasant Grove Community Monday afternoon, October 14, 1946. She was born in Germany April 18, 1885 and came to America with her parents when very young. She was married to J. F. Heitman February 18, 1904 and to them five children were born, four of whom survive.

Education Of Germans Making Little Progress

WASHINGTON (UP) — The Allies have made little progress toward fulfilling their Potsdam pledge to re-educate the German people for Democracy and peace, a U. S. educational mission to the Reich reported today.

They have failed because no proper economic basis for Democracy exists in Germany, the mission said.

George F. Zook, chairman of the group of 10 leading U. S. educators, said that "iron curtains" divide the four zones of Germany and the German people are being taught four different brands of so-called Democracy.

A CAPPELLA CHOIR TO BE HEARD HERE

At a meeting of representatives of various business men's and women's organizations held Monday afternoon at the Chamber of Commerce, the group agreed to finance an appearance of Dr. Wilford C. Bain's A Cappella choir in Ranger on Sunday evening, October 27. The program will be presented at the Recreation building.

The choir which is a North Texas State Teachers College organization, is one of the most famous A Cappella choirs in the country and is much in demand for concerts.

The concert will be given at 8:15 o'clock and will be free to the public. Homes will have to be provided for forty members of the choir and those homes taking members will be asked to serve them breakfast.

Mrs. C. L. Jackson served as chairman for the meeting and was elected to serve in that capacity until after the program and Mrs. J. Floyd Killingsworth was named secretary. Committee chairman appointed at the meeting Monday are: Mrs. Arthur Deffebach, arrangement with churches; housing, Mrs. F. M. Kuykendall, building arrangements; Dr. G. C. Boswell; ushers, Mrs. Homer Healy; further financing, H. C. Henderson and publicity, Mrs. John Ducker.

Organizations and representatives at the meeting Monday were: Sportsman Club, H. C. Henderson; Lions Club, J. A. Knox; Rotary Club, B. A. Tunnell and O. G. Lanier; 1920 Club, Mrs. Killingsworth, Mrs. M. H. Hagaman, and Mrs. B. A. Tunnell; New Era Club, Mrs. Ira Wolford and Mrs. L. L. Bruce; Ranger branch of the American Association of University Women, Mrs. Deffebach; Child Welfare Club, Mrs. Kuykendall and Columbia Study Club, Mrs. J. P. Morris.

A rifle bullet was fired into a transformer at the strikebound Pittsburgh Utility Company today, resulting in widespread power failures, in what was described as the third instance of sabotage since the strike began 22 days ago.

In other important labor developments, Hollywood strikers agreed to abandon mass picketing before nine film studios, and 26 New York hospitals were cut off from oxygen supplies as a result of a strike which city officials warned would "cost more than 100 lives a day."

SWEEPING NEW DECONTROL ACTION NEXT MONTH

WASHINGTON (UP) — The government put plans in motion today to abandon ceiling prices on many other items in the wake of the decontrol of meat.

This sweeping new decontrol action will go into effect early next month and will take the price lid off hundreds of things.

The Office of Price Administration announced it is preparing a long list of products on which price ceilings will be retained.

Everything not on this list will be decontrolled the OPA said, in accord with the speed up ordered by President Truman when he took ceilings off meat.

OPA said ceilings will be retained on automobiles, building materials, basic clothing items, furniture, household appliances and farm equipment, among other things.

Price ceilings came off all livestock and meat one minute after midnight today. Secretary of Agriculture Clinton P. Anderson and Price Chief Paul Porter issued the formal orders carrying out the decision announced by Mr. Truman last night.

All OPA slaughter controls also were removed.

Control - free trading opened today in livestock trading opened shut up from 50 to 90 per cent over yesterday's quotations. Receipts were about the same as yesterday—negligible. It will take a few days enough livestock to reach market to determine what prices are going to be for even the near future.

Mr. Truman ordered a speedup in the removal of wage controls, opening the way for abandoning them entirely by the end of the year if not sooner.

Rent control, he said, will have to be kept for a long time. But many other price controls now will go quickly.

Mr. Truman said his decontrol decision was made because Congress had given him a price control law so feeble he could not make it work.

Ft. Worth Stock Market Getting Record Prices

FORT WORTH (UP) — Lambs brought an all time high price at the Fort Worth stockyards today and hogs were selling at $25.00 per hundred as price controls vanished.

All classes of cattle were bringing from 50 cents to $1.00 per hundred above yesterday's close and one load brought $2.00 over the old ceiling.

Buyers for packers were back entering bids for the first time since resumption of OPA controls in July.

Only 25 hogs were offered today and they sold for $9.00 above the old ceiling price. Feeder cattle were going as killers and lambs brought an all time high of $21.00 per hundred in spirited trade.

ANOTHER INDUSTRIAL CONFERENCE?

It is almost a year since representatives of management and labor gathered in Washington, at the Secretary of Labor's invitation, to work out a formula for industrial peace and speedy reconversion. We don't remember much about that conference except that at one point John L. Lewis said to Philip Murray, "Nuts to you," and Murray replied, "Nuts to you too, sir."

We believe, however, that the recollection is an accurate synthesis of what took place. Rival union groups bickered. So did labor and management representatives. The sorry industrial history of the ensuing months reveals how little was accomplished.

Now Walter Reuther, president of the CIO United Automobile Workers, has asked the automobile industry to join with the UAW in petitioning President Truman to call another labor-management-public conference.

There are a couple of interesting points to the UAW leader's proposal. This time it is a labor representative and not a government official who is suggesting a conference. And this time Reuther is not aiming angry polemics at industry executives. The tone of his statement suggests his conviction that the situation is too serious for wild claims, wilder demands and mutually bitter accusations such as have distinguished UAW-industry dealings in the past.

Well, perhaps another conference would do some good. We believe that the facts are already at hand, and that the greatest need is for the responsible parties to face them squarely and act upon them. But it still might be well for labor and management and the public to get together again in the light of the bitter industrial lessons that 1946 has taught.

Perhaps labor and management are ready at last to take open minds and good manners in the conference table and attempt a really sensible production program. We don't know.

But we do feel certain that Reuther is being unwise in excluding government from his projected meeting. At last year's conference the government role was largely that of host and adviser. Yet another glance at the first nine months of 1946 reveals that government played a leading part in a sorry economic drama.

Labor, management and the public might bring the best will in the world to the problem of ending the wave of strikes, getting production going and halting the inflationary spiral. But they could not hope for much success without at least a general idea of what and how much the government plans to do, and when.

WASHINGTON COLUMN

BY PETER EDSON NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, D. C.—(NEA)—If what Henry Wallace said in March has any relation to what Henry Wallace has just said in September, an argument can be made that the outspoken and controversial secretary of commerce has paved the way with a ban appeal for his own slip, fall and resignation from the Truman cabinet.

Edson

It was on March 19 that Wallace, speaking before the Women's Democratic Club of Washington, brewed up another of the tepid tempers for which he has acquired considerable reputation, if not a grand world championship.

At this luncheon of six months ago, Wallace originally reported to have declared that senators and congressmen who split the party votes on fundamental issues should be expelled from the party. The big idea was that he thought strict party discipline should be imposed on major political policy determined by the President, the majority leader of the Senate and the speaker of the House.

That's the way the record stood for about three weeks, then on April 10, when the secretary appeared before the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee in opposition to some bill or other, the record was revised. Under questioning from Republican Senator Clyde Reed of Kansas and Albert W. Hawkes of New Jersey, Wallace said he wasn't proposing a "purge" of congressmen who didn't follow the party line, nor was he seeking to deny congressmen their rights to their own views.

All he had meant to propose, he said, was that after administration policy on the major issues had been determined, those in the party who didn't go along and vote for it should not receive committee appointments and similar favors or honors which the party had bestowed.

Wallace hit this idea again in speeches at Los Angeles on April 11 and at San Francisco on April 23. Both speeches, incidentally, were before P. A. C. rallies.

Of course all this that Wallace was talking about had to do with senators and congressmen, of which Wallace has never been one. His remarks had nothing to do with members of the cabinet of which he is one. That is a very neat technical alibi and out.

WALLACE has another alibi in that he showed the text of his New York speech to the President and got clearance on it before delivery.

In his remarks before the Democratic women last March, Wallace himself identified four major party issues. They were the full-employment program, control of atomic energy, the British loan and foreign relations as applied to the United Kingdom and the U. S. S. F.

It's the last-mentioned, of course, on which Wallace stubbed his toe in his speech before the New York P. A. C. rally last week. By sticking to his guns after he got back to Washington, and by saying that he would speak on this subject again, it might be said in his own words that "he just set fire to the living room."

DEVIL'S LAUGHTER

XXV

"So now you're a follower of Florence Nightingale?" he asked. "A noble profession, indeed. I might even add the noblest profession for a woman."

Before I could answer, Ellen was back again with whiskey and hot water, which Colin received with delighted thanks, suggesting that we join him in a toast. But he was still shivering and Cousin Ellen hovered about anxiously, begging him to take care of himself.

I was suddenly furious. Ellen was a poor, half-sick woman herself and should be in bed, instead of worrying over him, and he was a stubborn fool. And I was no longer just little Celia who helped out in the kitchen. I was a graduate nurse with quite a bit of nursing experience and I was not going to stand weakly by while Ellen took cold again and Colin, laughingly developed pneumonia.

"Go back to bed at once, Ellen," I said with such an unheard-of note of authority in my voice that, startled, she obeyed me.

And carried away by my success with Ellen, I dared speak to Colin with the same note of authority.

"You're going to get out of those clothes and into dry ones," I told him. "And I'm going to take your temperature."

He was intensely amused, his dark eyes dancing.

"By heaven," he said, "you've got plenty of spirit, haven't you? How I love a woman with spirit! He came toward me. 'I can't believe it, Little Saint Cecilia!'"

I did not answer him. I got my thermometer and, surprisingly enough, he let me take his temperature, though he continued to treat it as a huge joke.

He had more than a touch of fever, as I had feared, but when I ordered him to bed, he laughed again. And then, taking me suddenly in his arms, he kissed me.

I SLAPPED him, hard. I did not say, "How dare you!" (Does anyone ever really say that, I wonder?) But I did slap him, and he was delighted. He kissed me again. And all at once his arms loosed their hold on me. He staggered over to the big leather chair and fell into it, breathing heavily. And the next moment he was lying across the chair arm, unconscious.

I stood staring at him stupidly for a moment, my heart beating madly, my lips still warm from his kisses. Then, thoroughly aroused and horrified, I flew up the stairs to waken Mark.

It took me a little while to make him understand what had happened, he had been so deeply asleep and he had heard nothing, but when he finally realized what I was trying to tell him, he came down at once. And between us we got Colin to bed.

I was reminded sharply of that night five years before, as we went up the stairs, and I imagined that Mark was also.

He was quite alarmed, however, at Colin's condition now. There was no doubt in our minds that Colin must have been exposed to the storm for several hours.

By the time we got him to bed, with plenty of blankets over him, he was delirious and Mark left me to call the doctor. And then, to our consternation and true to Ellen's prediction, we found that we were cut off from the town.

The wires were down and we had that way of contacting anyone. Mark gazed at first that he go for the doctor himself, but I feared he wouldn't be able to make it and I told him it would be best for him to stay where he could assist me, if I needed him.

And, strangely enough, he abided by my decision.

MY position in the household was changed from then on. Both Mark and Ellen deferred to me as having more knowledge of what to do in this emergency. For the storm was intense, developing into a blizzard, and it was a full week before Father Gene and the doctor could get through to us.

And Colin contracted pneumonia.

He was very ill and, naturally, the entire care of him fell upon me. And I knew then that if he died, part of me would die, also. I had assured myself that these years, while I grew from child to woman and dedicated myself to my work at the hospital, had made me forget my childish admiration for this man. But now I knew that nothing would ever make me forget him. I had been fooling myself all this time. One glimpse of him in the doorway that night had shattered any illusions I might have to the contrary.

I was mad about him. Sometimes during the long hours of the nights, while I kept my vigil beside Colin, I felt frightened and forlorn. I was so very young, only 23, after all, though I knew myself to be older in many ways than most girls of my age. There was such a responsibility weighing on me, such anxiety, such a dread that I might fail to do everything that could be done to save him. And then, at other times, I felt ageless, and I seemed to float through my day in a semi-conscious state.

There was a night when he seemed to be on fire, when his pulse was so feeble that I was sure he was all but gone, that he could not possibly live till morning.

I was lightheaded that night, certainly, and I sat by the bed in such a stupor of weariness that I must have been overcome for a while. For the next thing I remember the sound of Colin's voice was in my ears and Mark and Ellen were in the room.

Colin, in his mind, was a child again back in Ireland, his voice going on and on, calling to his mother and to his brother Mark, his wonderful older brother, who could do everything so much better than anyone else.

REBECCA SCHEDULED FOR RETURN SHOWING

Theatergoers of Ranger will soon see the return engagement of one of the most discussed and distinguished pictures of all time.

The Arcadia theatre, because of repeated requests for a re-showing of David O. Selznick's "Rebecca", will show the picture Wednesday and Thursday.

Since its first screening here Laurence Olivier who stars with Joan Fontaine, has become one of America's favorite stage stars. His recent triumphs as Henry IV both on the stage and in a picture together with other successes of his recent American and European tours, stamp him as one of the theater's foremost performers. Gripping mystery and a haunting quality of suspense are the outstanding qualities of "Rebecca" winner of both the Academy Award and the National Critics' Poll.

Directed by Alfred Hitchcock, universally recognized as a master of melodramatic thrillers.

"Rebecca" is based on the novel by Daphne du Maurier, one of the biggest best-sellers of the past decade. It tells the absorbing story of a young, reticent girl who becomes the second wife of a handsome young Englishman, owner of a Cornwall estate known as Manderley. When the couple return to his huge, rather forbidding home which seems to throw out an aura of ominous mystery from the past, the new Mrs. de Winter has a feeling that her life is being strangely dominated by the dead Rebecca, her husband's first wife. Rebecca was admittedly beautiful and fascinating, and her most zealous admirer, Mrs. Danvers, housekeeper at Manderley, is determined to make life miserable for her successor. Mrs. Danvers from the start resents the presence of the second Mrs. de Winter and does everything in her power to harass her.

After an elaborate ball given at Manderley for the new mistress of the house, stunning and overwhelming disclosures are made. Following some unexpected developments, in which suspicion of murder fills the air, the story moves toward the explosive climax. The big emotional scene of this climax takes place in an abandoned boat-house, with Miss Fontaine and Olivier entirely alone "on stage." Because of the high-tension emotional character of the scene, the director ordered that the stars have absolute privacy while it was being filmed. The sequence takes about eight minutes on the screen but as a result of the special care taken in its filming, took three days to complete.

Try Frau Goering

Frau Emmy Goering, wife of the convicted Nazi reichsmarshal, will be tried by a German denazification court on charges of being a Nazi "activist." Charges are based on fact she owed her position as an actress to her Nazi connections, drew profits from the party and by personal and film appearances helped propagandize Nazi aims and ideas.

Women Drivers May Be As Bad As Men Claim

AUSTIN, Tex. (UP)—It may be true what men say of feminine drivers.

Recently automobiles were stalled in four directions at a downtown intersection in Austin for 20 minutes of the mid-morning rush hour.

A traffic policeman, who had arrived to the accompaniment of blaring horns, narrowed the situation down to one cause: A woman who ran out of gas and left her car parked in the middle of the street while she went to telephone a service station.

Approximately 2,351,000 persons in the U.S. each year play at least 10 rounds of golf a year. More than 68,000,000,000 games are played annually on the nation's 6,299 courses.

Challenges Army

Col. John H. Amen, attorney for Maj. David A. Watson, above, of Burlingame, Calif., who is charged with the theft of $1,500,000 worth of Hessian crown jewels, challenged the U. S. Army to prosecute all officers who have looted property from Germany. He declared that if Major Watson is guilty, "proof is readily attainable" of similar thefts by generals and other high-ranking officers. Major Watson is being held for court-martial in Frankfurt, Germany.

Hobby Brings Man $1000 Prize

AUSTIN, Tex. (UP)—Barney Boling, cartographer for the state highway department, has a profitable hobby.

While in the navy, he handcarved a polished wood set of chess men and a box of them with a checker board inlaid on the cover. Urged by friends to enter his set in a USO hobby contest, Boling won a prize of $1,000.

He used the prize money to finish payments on his home. But now that he has his home, he is too busy "fixing screen doors and doing other household chores" to give any time to his hobby.

BETTER HEALTH PROGRAM PROPOSED FOR SECURITY

CHICAGO (UP)—The Research Council for Economic Security foresees a better-planned medical service program in the United States which would include helicopters to fly doctors over impassable roads.

The council found that in some respects "our existing health organization is orthodox and inelastic in application."

Among developments, the council expects state-wide free ambulance routes to get operative cases to the hospital quickly, mobile health clinics for isolated settlements, and public health teams working regular routes like postmen.

The study, entitled "Our National Health Problem," was based upon a statistical report made by Gerhard Hirschfeld director of the council and Carl W. Strow, associate director. Their statistics were published originally in the American Sociological Review.

The council found out that medical needs in every state and locality are different. "Those who advocate some single measure to safeguard the national health fail to realize the complexity of the problem," the council reported.

Close study of data, the council said, reveals "enormous fluctuations" between the 48 states in population, medical facilities, sanitation and other matters relating to health.

Seven of the nine states having the highest mortality rate from heart disease are in New England. But, the council said, people live longer in New England and the death rate from heart disease reflects the longevity.

Of the ten states leading in tuberculosis mortality rates, eight are in the south. Tennessee and Kentucky have a death rate from tuberculosis four times as high as Utah, Wyoming, and Nebraska.

Studies by the council show that the cancer mortality is most pronounced among older persons having good incomes and living in cities. Six of the seven states with greatest number of deaths from cancer are in New England.

Influenza and pneumonia deaths are highest in the south where poverty and poor sanitation are important contributing factors.

The council concluded that "the causes of death show how much the health problems of one locality, one age group, or one income group differ from those of others. We would waste part of our effort if we blanketed the country with a packaged program."

Besides Gunpowder China Started Kraut

CHICAGO (UP)—The Germans may not know it but the Chinese served the first dish of their favorite food. The National Kraut Packers Association has discovered the Chinese invented sauerkraut.

In fact, the association found, sauerkraut, by a different name, was so popular as a strength-giving food more than 2,300 years ago that it was served to the laborers who built the Great Wall of China.

The Chinese still use the original recipe, which called for fermenting cabbage in wine. Later the Egyptians started eating sauerkraut, the association said. They liked it so well they built altars to it.

Nearly 400,000 pure-bred Guernsey cattle are registered in the United States.
