United Nations Takes Up Spanish Issue

Well... I Dunno. But...

Churches and ministers of the Ranger Churches have been most cooperative in arranging their evening services that members of the congregation may attend the NTSC A Cappella Choir concert here Sunday night.

Personally, we can't think of anything that is more spiritually inspiring than the music of such a choir. Much of the music is of a religious nature but were it not, it would still be inspiring.

Dr. Bain says that the choir is unaccompanied, that is by instrument, but adds that the choir accompanies itself. And that's the truth. The blending of the voices, in fact, at times sounds like an organ.

Those organizations that have joined together to bring this great program to Ranger are to be commended.

Though the Bulldogs didn't get the big end of the score Friday night, some of the plays were sure thrilling. For instance, when Frazier with one arm in a cast, caught that pass from Arterburn with the other arm, to take off down the field for a touchdown. Then, that 60 yard run by Paul MacDonald, for the first touchdown, after he received the pass from Arterburn, had the grandstands roaring.

We saw Everett pull down his man with a thud on several occasions and Deaton was all over the game. Arterburn's 40 yard return of a punt also was a thriller.

We'll have to admit, though, that the ball was Breckenridge's most of the time.

Anyway, the people were sure interested in that game and the gate receipts showed that. Dr. Boswell told us today that receipts at the game Friday night were larger than on any other occasion in the past six football seasons.

Our next game is with Mineral Wells at Mineral Wells next Friday night and the next game at Ranger is the November 11 game with Cisco. We'd sure like to see those Bulldogs win that last game at home, anyway.

The North Side Steers, Fort Worth, practically took over Ranger Friday during the noon hour when stopping here to eat while enroute for their game at Big Spring.

There was a generous sprinkling of fans along with the Steers and reports this morning were to the effect that they beat Big Spring 20 to 7.

Heard a man venturing an opinion this morning that Odessa looks good for a bet on the state championship and their 64 to 0 victory over San Angelo would indicate something like that.

Then there was the man that thought we ought to do something about trying to provide a dressing room for the visiting teams at hometown football games. That would be a courtesy that should be looked into.

Another suggestion this week. Someone thinking that it would be fine if some organization in Ranger would landscape the grounds at each end of the Bulldog stadium.

And those ends do look pretty bare.

Might plant some pecan trees and a shrub.

D. C. Arterburn who is helping the Times staff keep football game records this year, is one of the best. D. C. not only is definitely football minded and knows the game thoroughly, but he's got a real interest in that team—one of the main reasons being the kid brother with the limber arm.

In fact all of the Arterburns are football fans, mama included and why not since four of the five sons have been Bulldog stars.

Almost a quart of water leaves the skin during one day of ordinary weather and more than a pint per day is exhaled in the breath.

NATURE OF CHOIR DRAWS MUSIC LOVERS' INTEREST

Because the properly trained human voice is the supreme musical instrument and because the A Cappella Choir itself transcends in versatility the average club or chorus, the program to be offered by the North Texas College A Cappella Choir under the direction of Dr. Wilfred C. Bain here Sunday at 8:15 p.m., in the Recreation Building will be of wide interest to music lovers.

Dr. Bain's group of 40 musicians from North Texas State has been recognized as one of the outstanding A Cappella Choirs in the Southwest and offers a program that embodies all the peculiarly rich and beautiful qualities of A Cappella music.

"A Cappella", a term which means "unaccompanied", is applied to all choirs singing without instrumental accompaniment, but few people realize that the real idea of the "A Cappella" Choir transcends the literal meaning of the phrase," says Dr. Bain. "The choir does not sing unaccompanied,—it accompanies itself."

The conductor of NTSC's choir believes that even the organ, the so called "king of instruments" is but a collection of cold pipes and mechanical devices in comparison with the warm and vibrant human voice, supplemented always by the personality of the singer and his emotional interpretation of the music and words which often permit him to transcend the score.

"The A Cappella organization combines and harmonizes individual voices of all grades and shades of total quality into one incomparable instrument," says Bain. "Each voice is capable in itself of entire scales and varying shades of meaning, and with the entire choir swayed not alone by the hands of the director but by an emotional intensity compellingly human—it is small wonder that A Cappella renditions of familiar music are unprecedented in their freshness and richness of their moving qualities. The A Cappella Choir no more needs accompaniment than does the organ; it is its own accompaniment."

The usually versatile A Cappella Choir also lends itself to unusual antiphonal effects, many of the compositions of Bach being sung with two complete choirs blending with each other in the most complex movements, Dr. Bain explains.

Ministers of the churches of Ranger are cooperating in having the program here by either dismissing their evening services for the occasion or arranging the hour so that members of the congregations can attend the program.

It was announced today that Hall Walker, president of the Chamber of Commerce, one of the sponsoring organizations, will preside at the program and present Dr. Bain and his choir.

BRECKENRIDGE DOWNS RANGER BY 39 TO 14

In a game that got off with a series of punts from first one and then the other team, the Breckenridge Puckeros defeated the Ranger Bulldogs by a score of 39 to 14 in Ranger's second conference game of the season played in Ranger Friday night.

Ranger kicked off to Breckenridge and after a series of unsuccessful ground plays, the Bucks kicked to Ranger. The Bulldogs bucked the Breckenridge line to no avail, then punted.

The first score of the game came in the first quarter after a line play and a 30 yard pass from White to Spencer, followed by a short gain through line by Warford with White finally going over center for the Buck's first 6 x 1 x points. A pass from White to Spencer was good for the extra point.

Breckenridge failed to score again until the second quarter when a pass from White to Thompson placed the ball in scoring distance. Witcher and Warford finished the gains with Warford going over for the second six marks. A pass try for the extra point failed making the score 13 to 0 at the end of the half.

The Bulldogs came back fighting in the second half but Rogers of the Bucks managed an over left guard play for another marker before the Bulldogs could score. White converted the extra point in a placement kick.

On a long pass from Arterburn to MacDonald, the latter made a 60 yard dash for the Bulldog's first score. Frazier kicked the extra point. Then in the third quarter on another Arterburn pass, Frazier, carrying one arm in a cast, received the ball in the end zone and gained 15 yards after the quarter change another Arterburn to Frazier pass was good for the touchdown with Frazier receiving in the end zone. Again he kicked the extra point to make Ranger's score 14.

In the fourth quarter Breckenridge scored two more touchdowns and made one extra point making their score 39. The first marker in the fourth was made by White who carried through the line and who also kicked the extra point. The last touchdown came when Breckenridge blocked a punt, and Spencer carried over for 6 points.

May Place Two Island Groups Under UN Care

UNITED NATIONS HALL, Flushing, N. Y. (UP) — The United States soon may take first small steps toward placing the Caroline and the Marshall Islands under the projected United Nations trusteeship council, it was learned today.

Officials said the U. S. might announce during the current session of the UN General Assembly its intention of making the former mandated islands trust territories. The actual type of trusteeship which the U. S. will propose probably will not be outlined for some time, however, and the hard-won Pacific islands will remain under American control in the interim.

WORLD WAR II VETERANS GET CHALLENGE

It was announced today that a World War I veterans have challenged World War II veterans to compete in an attendance meeting to be held Thursday night at the American Legion hall.

It was stated that the lowest in attendance will be penalized, the penalty to be determined at the meeting which is being sponsored by the Carl Barnes Post of the American Legion.

It was pointed out that this is not a membership drive but just a get-together for the veterans of both wars. Those in charge jokingly said that they particularly wanted all World War II veterans to attend since the Number One's did not mind losing.

At the meeting arrangements will be made for the big November 11 smoker which the legion will sponsor on that date, a nod which is an annual affair.

Work Underway On Building Of Livestock Barn

Actual hauling of native rocks to the Ranger Round-Up grounds for use in construction of the big livestock barn got underway today with 40 Future Farmers of America, under the leadership of their sponsor, R. B. Thomas, Jr., doing the hauling.

The FFA chapter have agreed that all of their spare time will be spent in working toward the building of the barn which is being sponsored by the Ranger Junior Chamber of Commerce. The building is being built by the Jaycees for use in spring livestock shows for FFA and 4-H Club boys of this area.

The site for the barn was surveyed last week by Howard Oliver and has been cleared for construction.

Civilians Defy Army's Order To Evacuate Hotel

ROME (UP) — Twenty-four civilians employees of the War Department today defied an Army order to get out of the Excelsior Hotel.

The Army wanted the Americans to give up their quarters needed for wives and families of army officers, and go to the Hotel Nuova Roma, which the more outspoken members of the group called a "rat trap."

Just To Prove A Point

Dr. Francisco Castillo Najera, Chief Mexican delegate to the United Nations General Assembly, left, who opened the general debate in New York voicing the small nations' opposition to "indiscriminate" use of the Big 5 vet power in the Security Council, discusses a point with Adolfo Costa Durels, chief delegate from Bolivia. ### RANGER TO BE DISTRIBUTOR FOR PRODUCT

O. T. Stephenson, a former Ranger resident, and J. D. Cox, of San Diego, California are now renovating one of the business sections of the Guaranty Bank Building on Austin street which will house their wholesale and retail business for the Creama manufacturers of San Diego.

The building will be used for a storage house for the product and Ranger will be the distributing point for other retail sales stores in Texas.

The product which was developed by the Cornell-Giles Products Company of San Diego, is a cleaning agent designed for many uses and especially for removing heavy stains and dirt from hands of persons employed in garages, machine shops, etc.

Stephenson in speaking of the product stated that so far they have not found anything that the cream will not remove. It has an oily base and cannot be used on upholstering or rugs and such, but can be used on most anything else.

SAYS NAVY READY FOR EMERGENCY

INDIANAPOLIS (UP) — Fleet Admiral Chester W. Nimitz said today that the U. S. Navy is strong enough to meet "any emergency that could arise within the predictable future."

The chief of naval operations, speaking at an Indianapolis Navy Day luncheon, also said that tests had proved that ships at sea would make "unprofitable targets" for atomic bombs.

"Your Navy of today, while down to about one-sixth its peak wartime size, is still strong enough to meet any immediate threat to our own security," Nimitz said.

Nimitz said that it was too early to completely evaluate the results of the atom bomb tests at Bikini Atoll last summer. But he said this country already knew "in which direction naval design must go to counter best this new threat."

CHINESE RIOT HONG KONG (UP) — Chinese mobs fought British troops and police for seven hours today in one of the worst riots here since the general strike of 1925.

Texas has 132 government hospitals within its border.

DELEGATE FROM CHILE RAISES ISSUE AT ASSEMBLY

UNITED NATIONS HALL, Flushing, N. Y. (UP) — The United Nations turned today to the question of Franco Spain with a demand for action to eliminate dictatorial regimes resulting from Fascist intervention.

The Spanish issue was raised by Dr. Felix Nieto Del Rio of Chile, first of four speakers today before the UN General Assembly.

Norway called upon the Assembly to schedule a formal debate on Spain with a view to finding "ways and means" for common action to unseat the regime of General Francisco Franco and establish in Spain a free, democratic regime.

Del Rio defended the principle of non-intervention in the internal affairs of a state but said that the case was different for "dictatorial regimes resulting from Fascist intervention."

"It makes no difference that the powers which intervened have disappeared in the tumult of the war," he said. "What is important is to destroy the work resulting from their intervention."

Del Rio said that while Chile was not a fervent advocate of the Big Five veto power she agreed with President Paul Henri Spaak of the General Assembly that this is not the moment to open up the charter for revision. He expressed confidence that difficulties over the veto use would prove amenable to settlement.

Says Agencies Want Socialized Housing Program

DETROIT (UP) — An American Legion national committee member charged today that federal agencies were hoarding critically scarce housing materials to force a socialized housing program.

Arthur R. Marcus, member of a seven-man committee named by the American Legion National Convention to make a nationwide investigation of housing, said he had used his powers, granted by the War Assets Administration, to go into any government warehouse, for a seven-state check.

"My investigations indicated that vast stores of building materials are being hoarded by government officials in an effort to prove that private industry is incapable of providing housing for veterans," Marcus said.

Claim Goering Had Poison With Him From Arrest

NUERNBERG (UP) — A four-power Allied commission announced today that Herman Goering had had the poison with which he committed suicide in his possession ever since he was captured in the last phase of the war.

The evidence showed Goering had kept the potassium of cyanide hidden in three different places during the time of his confinement and the more than 10 months of the trial.

The places of concealment were Goering's umbilicus, his alimentary tract, and a well hidden recess under the overhanging lip of the toilet seat in his cell.

In an undeclared war with France, 1797 to 1801, Coast Guard cutter cooperated with the navy for the first time.

WASHINGTON COLUMN

BY PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, D. C.—(NEA)—Behind all the... around of international notes on what to do about controlling the Turkish Straits of the Dardanelles, there is one question every U. S. citizen should know the answers to. It is, "What business has the United States in such affairs?"

If you go for the Henry Wallace point of view, "We could recognize that we have no more business in the political affairs of Eastern Europe than Russia has in the political affairs of Latin America, Western Europe or the United States."

That this is also the view of the American isolationists is a strange coincidence. But the case of the Dardanelles is a perfect example on which to test the Wallace doctrine. There are a number of angles.

From a coldly practical standpoint, the United States has a direct interest in what goes on there. The U. S. Army is occupying Austria. The Danube River flows through Austria and on east to the Black Sea. The Black Sea gets to the Mediterranean and the rest of the world through the Dardanelles. Free movement of commerce on all international waterways is a primary U. S. objective in promoting world trade.

In a broader sense, the United States agreed under the United Nations Charter, "to take collective measures for the prevention and removal of threats to the peace. To achieve international co-operation in solving international problems of an economic character."

There is no question about the Dardanelles being a threat to the peace of the world. The question is, "How come the United States got mixed up in the Dardanelles problem in the first place?"

At the Big Three Potsdam conference of Truman, Stalin and Attlee in July, 1945, it was proposed that the Montreux Convention of 1923 should be revised. This is the last of the international agreements over control of these straits. The decision was that each of the Big Three—the United States, Britain and Russia—should make suggestions to the Turkish government on how the convention should be revised.

The United States led off the parade last November by proposing three principles. The straits should be open to merchant ships of all nations. It should be open to war vessels of the Black Sea powers—Turkey, Russia, Bulgaria and Romania. Warships of other nations should pass through only if given special permission.

Everybody seems willing to accept these three points. But the Soviet government has a couple more. Russia believes control of the straits should be the concern of only the Black Sea powers and defense of the straits should be the concern of only the Black Sea powers.

To these two points the Americans, British and Turks object. The American position is that defense should be left to Turkey alone, because the Turks occupy both shores and both ends. In case of war, if Turkey were unable to defend the Dardanelles the force of the United Nations Security Council would be thrown to its aid.

SPORTS

BY HARRY GREENE
NEA Sports Editor

ROBERT WILLIAM ANDREW FELLER was not only leading in his million-dollar season at the end of the season, he was leading in his million-dollar season at the end of the season.

Bob Feller seemed to realize he was jeopardizing his future in baseball when he said: "If everything hangs together, I believe I have a good chance."

I wonder what Feller thought he would do with the record. When a pitcher is struck out, the front office doesn't ask him how many he struck out. It takes into consideration only how many he won.

Feller's feat did little more than revive to old-timers the memory of the legendary Waddell, and the Iowa Farm Boy's frenzied pursuit of 344 strikeouts no doubt increased his admiration for the southpaw who was so eccentric that all left-handers since his day have been supposed to be more or less goofy.

FELLER did not require an additional strikeout accomplishment to make him a more magnetic bucks office draw. He was already the top attraction in his profession.

The bulk of the fans of today never had heard of Waddell, who blew the ball past 343 batters for the Athletics in 1904. All the knowledge the larger share of the remainder had of Waddell was garnered from books.

Waddell had no thought of establishing a record when he fanned 343. The Rubes did it during the normal run of the season, attained the total naturally, wasn't pressing.

As Inter-American Shipments Mount

NEW ORLEANS (UP)—When an air freighter sets down at Moisant International Airport these days, you can expect to see almost anything come off when workers begin to unload its cargo.

Business in air freight is booming. It apparently has no limits. The avocado you eat for dinner may have been flown to New Orleans earlier in the day from Havana at an altitude so high the usual icing arrangements were eliminated.

Already the big planes roar over the skylines with bulls, fillies, bananas, mahogany, tractors, and even camellias. It's no trick at all to fly eight tractors to Mexico City, and then pick up 10,000 pounds of bananas for Los Angeles.

The air express division of the Railway Express Agency reported here that business was up 25 per cent over last year. L. E. C. Sparks, the company's chief clerk said air express was now handling about 5,000 shipments monthly, a total close to 100,000 tons.

Moisant is the agency's gateway to points far south, such as Brazil and Panama. But domestic shipments also comprised a heavy share of air express' business. One of the biggest items, Sparks said, was seafood from New Orleans for points across the nation.

In air freighting, you get business like orchids from South America, Sparks said, or 1,000 baby chicks found for Puerto Rico. Dogs and cats, too.

Cranberry Speeded Up NORTH BEND, Ore. (UP)—A new suction harvester which permits one man to do the work of five ordinary pickers is in operation in cranberry bogs of the North Bend area. Resembling a Rube Goldberg invention, the new harvester is said by cranberry men to strip a bog completely in a day and partially clean the berries to boot.

It's impossible, J. C. Adams states in The American Magazine, to whistle and blow your nose at the same time.

1938, he continued to work to crack marks in intercollegiate competition. His big record year was in 1937 when he cleared 14 feet 11 inches at the World Outdoor Meet in Los Angeles and 14 feet 7 1/2 inches in an indoor meet in Boston. He also set marks in dual meets in London and Stockholm. Today, 200 trophies attest to his world-wide prowess.

During the war, Meadows was athletic director under Fred Thomsen, former football and track coach at the University of Arkansas, who was special service officer for the 14th Air Force combat intelligence in China.

Upon returning from service, with the rank of captain, Meadows married last February, and received offers to sing (he's a lyric baritone) on New York radio stations and a nationwide network program.

"The offers looked big, but my heart was in the athletic world," Meadows said, "so I passed up everything except the offer from Paschal."

POLE VAULT CHAMPION OUT TO BUILD ANOTHER

FORT WORTH, Tex., (UP)—Thirteen years after he began smashing pole vault records, Earle Meadows is back at his alma mater in Fort Worth with ambitions for building a still greater champion.

The gangling vaulter has taken up new duties at Paschal High School as assistant coach in track and field events under his beloved mentor and builder of many champions—C. W. Berry.

"My days of competition as an athlete are over... my big ambition now is to ultimately become an athletic director in a college and build a world champion pole vaulter," Meadows grinned confidently.

In addition to his coaching duties, Meadows is also teaching five classes a day—in general science, biology and public speech.

While it has been 13 years since the elongated Paschal whiz (in high school he also competed in the high jump, half-mile, 440-yard sprint, 440-yard relay and the javelin throw) started cracking pole vault records, Meadows says he still gets "one whale of a thrill" when he turns to reminiscing about the glories that came his way.

"I'll never forget that moment in the big stadium Hitler built in Berlin for the Olympics in 1936," Meadows beamed.

"I had set a new Olympic record (14 feet 3 1/4 inches) by out-vaulting two Japanese, and the Olympic officials had presented me with the various awards and trophies," he said.

"Then the band struck up the Star Spangled Banner, and 120,000 people rose to their feet. It was an experience which will give me a tingling thrill every time I turn back the clock to the 'days when.'"

He recalled that the two Japs, with whom he renewed friendships at subsequent international meets and who were killed during the war in the Philippines as fighter pilots, had out-vaulted him at 13 feet, 11 inches.

"I don't know what you might call it, but a chilling determination suddenly gripped me for my third and final try," Meadows recalled.

"It was a feeling that I never before experienced, and I have never had anything like it since. Anyway, luck came my way and I cleared the cross-bar at 13-11, and went on to set the new mark."

Meadows, who started pole vaulting at the age of 10, set city, district and state high school records in 1933 at 13 feet, 2 inches.

At the University of Southern California, where he graduated in 1938, he continued to work to crack marks in intercollegiate competition.

Louis Budenz, former editor of the Communist Daily Worker, who recently offered to disclose any official government agency the name of the "secret individual who directs communist activities in the U. S.," has been invited to do just that before the House committee on un-American activities. Budenz, now an instructor at Fordham University, renounced communist principles last year and rejoined the Catholic Church.

Rattling Good Idea

Make no bones about it, members of the Financial Employees Guild (CIO) were in dead earnest when they recently picketed the Wall Street office of the Bankers Trust Co., in New York City. They brought a skeleton along to emphasize their contention that "the skeleton in the bankers' closet is low wages."

Birth Of Ether 100 Years Ago Honored By Doctors In Boston

By Estelle Bond
 United Press Staff Correspondent
BOSTON (UP)—A century ago—on Oct. 16, 1846—a little drama was enacted here that subsequently affected the lives of most of the peoples of the earth.

The setting was a room in the Massachusetts General Hospital, and the actors were a dentist, a handful of doctors and a patient suffering from a tumor of the neck.

The dentist, Dr. William T. G. Morton, stepped forward and administered his new preparation called ether which the patient, 20-year-old Gilbert Abbot, inhaled.

Abbott fell into a state of unconsciousness, during which Dr. J. C. Warren performed the operation.

In another Boston doctor's office today, 100 years of medical history paraded into the present. Surrendered by photographs and other mementos of the past, Dr. Reginald Fitz told of the ether centenary being celebrated Oct. 14-16 at the Massachusetts General Hospital.

On the last day, he will deliver a speech outlining the way in which ether gradually was accepted as an operative aid throughout the world.

Doctors from 25 countries are attending the sessions.

"It's amazing," he said, "the way luck often dominated the scene."

For instance, the very first time Dr. Morton used his ether preparation was in removing an ulcerated tooth from a patient. The operation was during the evening of Sept. 30, 1846, and the light glowed only fitfully from the kerosene lamps.

"So, in order to see better," Dr. Fitz explained, "they held a lamp close to the patient's head. And you know ether is combustible. It was only luck that they didn't get blown up."

The success of the first and subsequent trial operations with ether so electrified those Boston medical men fortunate enough to view them that they started writing to their doctor friends abroad to tell them of the new "miracle."

And according to Dr. Fitz, it was typical of American skepticism even at that time that only when English and French medical journals placed their stamp of approval on the use of ether did the procedure spread beyond Boston to other medical centers in this nation.

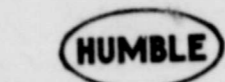

By that time, of course, ether was accepted all over the world.

SCREEN'S NEW SISTER ACT ALMOST REAL THING

"Sister acts"—whether singing or dancing teams, orchestras or acrobats—have always had one widely-suspected common denominator; the fact that the "sisters" are not sisters at all, or even remotely related.

The truth is readily apparent in the casting of June Haver, Vivian Blaine and Vera-Ellen as the three sisters of 20th Century-Fox's new Technicolor hit, "Three Little Girls in Blue," which opens today at the Arcadia Theatre. But even more than producer Mack Gordon realized, the background of all three bionic beauties is so similar to be able to match even those rare instances of true sister teams.

All three come from middle class homes, in medium-sized cities, where they began acting at an early age, and not one ever worked anywhere but in the entertainment field. They all come from non-theatrical families who didn't raise their daughters for the movies.

June Haver who calls Rock Island, Illinois, her home town, made her debut at the age of five in a little theatre production. By the time she was eleven, she had her own radio program sponsored by a dairy company. At thirteen, she was singing professionally with such bands as Dick Jurgens, Ted Flo-Rita, and Freddy Martin. Her next step was right into the arms of the movie.

Vivian Blaine's career is almost a duplicate of June's except that she came from New York, N. J. and did her singing with Jay Mills and Erwin Kent. She started warbling at fourteen, and five years later, a movie scout, saw her at New York's Glass Hat night club, and sent her to Hollywood.

Vera-Ellen, who hails from Cincinnati, also sings and dances more than she sings. As a small child, her mother sent her to dancing school so she would get some exercise. Vera-Ellen took to it like a duck to water, and by the time she was fourteen had danced before practically every fraternal, charitable and service organization in Ohio and Kentucky. She also started her professional career by working with dance orchestras and in night clubs.

If the girls had been sisters, working as a trio, their careers couldn't have been more parallel. They've done the same sort of thing, in the same sort of places, and reached their present positions by the same sort of route.

Not being a trio of sisters, they did it in different places. Besides, who would believe one set of parents could be that lucky as to have June Haver, Vivian Blaine and Vera-Ellen.

Mrs. Lola Brimberry of Abilene is the guest of her brother, Beauford Anderson.

Mrs. Nicol Crawford has returned from Dublin where she was called by the illness of her mother.

A. (Red) Neill of Cross Plains, formerly of Ranger, visited with Ranger friends Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Fullbright and son of Hebronville were the guests of Miss Alma Fullbright, Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Hise and their son, Joseph Le Roy Hise and Mrs. Hise, of San Diego, California are visiting friends and relatives. They with Mr. and Mrs. Leo Hise and Mr. and Mrs. C. L. McKinney attended the icecreams in Ft. Worth Thursday. The visitors expect to return to California the latter part of this week.

Among those home from college for the week-end were Jimmie Kelly, Frank Johnson, and Luke Morton, from A&M; Norman Bailey, Dean Ervin, and M. A. Ervin, from Hardin College in Wichita Falls; and Jack Pearsall from Texas University.

Word has been received of the birth of a baby boy to Mr. and Mrs. Max Walton of Ft. Worth. The baby was born Monday, October 21 at the Harris Memorial Hospital in Ft. Worth. Mrs. Walton is the former Miss Dixie Gilger, niece of Mrs. Vance Blauser with whom she made her home while attending school in Ranger.

Fabon Williams of Odessa is here to spend the week-end with his children, Barbara Ann and Jimmie, who make their home with their maternal grandmother, Mrs. J. Way Harmon.

Hitler Lives?

Former Lt.-Col. William F. Heimlich, of Columbus, Ohio, until recently chief of U. S. ## BORDER SLEUTHS GRAB SLACKERS ON RIO GRANDE

BROWNSVILLE, Tex. (UP)—The debris of war still floats along the Rio Grande and the "men without a country" is no idle phrase.

Each week at customs houses up and down the international boundary between Mexico and the United States, officials arrest and turn over to Federal Bureau of Investigation agents several draft evaders who have served out World War II in Mexico.

Americans by birth, many have been living in Mexico for years, and now that the shooting is over, have started drifting back into the country.

M. W. Acers, special agent in charge of the San Antonio, Tex., FBI office, said the total arrested in the southern Texas district in the year and a half since the war's end numbers several hundred.

Most of the men arrested, he said, are between the ages of 18 and 25 and are single "drifters" whose parents worked as alien farm laborers. They show birth certificates from such widely scattered points as Michigan, California, Idaho, Kansas, Texas and other areas which have employed Mexican farm labor during the past quarter century.

The government is inclined to be lenient with violators of Mexican ancestry, he said, and ordinarily if the man can pass a physical examination he is inducted into the army without trial.

The majority of Mexican-Americans with dual citizenship, U. S. Immigration officials at Brownsville say, have registered for military service. Thousands of such dual citizenship exist.

Those whose records reveal deliberate attempts to avoid military service are tried and sentenced, Acers said, and after sentencing remain liable for military service.

The "men without a country" are of a different breed, according to the FBI official. They principally are Anglo-Americans who deliberately fled this country when war began, to avoid serving in the armed forces.

Under the expatriation act passed by the 78th Congress, these men have been deprived of their citizenship and though no punitive action is taken against them, their names are listed at all ports of entry and they are forbidden to enter the United States again.

Many of these individuals, Acers said, are ignorant of their draft status and are turned back from the border after a hearing by immigration officials. Lacking American or any other citizenship, they cannot become a citizen of any country. Mexican authorities do not deport them, but they have become expatriates for the remainder of their lives.

"It is a hard fate," Acers said, "but a just one for those who wanted only the privileges and not the obligations of their country."

Many of the Mexican-American evaders are illiterate and often deny knowledge of any war, Acers said. They tell officials they know nothing of the law that required all American citizens, at home or abroad, to register for military service.

Arrests of armed men with criminal records occasionally result from the current campaign of the FBI against draft dodgers.

Often, too, wearing of the discharge button by persons who never have served in the armed forces provides the basis of a case against evaders, since it indicates that the violator knew the meaning of his evasion and was seeking to conceal it.

Maximum penalty for draft evasion, although rarely invoked except in extreme cases, is five years' imprisonment and a $10,000 fine.

Acers believes that arrests of draft dodgers will continue because officials know there are many violators still abroad who will drift back to the United States when they think it safe.

Unless the policy and law of the United States are changed, however, they never will be safe, he said.

Bare Hunter Found By Police

A 30-year-old man clad only in blue shorts and shaking from hunger and cold was found sitting on a log by the Trinity River in Ft. Worth.

The man claimed the last thing he remembered was that he left Popular Bluff, Missouri for Dexter, about 25 miles away. The man gave his name as Wayne D. Foreman of Dexter, Missouri.

His mother, Mrs. J. E. Foreman of Dexter said he wired from Los Angeles saying he was coming home. She said he was a Sgt. in the Army and had been working for a movie company in Hollywood since his discharge.

Maritime Strike Settled After 26 Days Duration

NEW YORK (UP)—A settlement of the 26-day-old maritime strike was signed here today, and it was believed that the first of almost 1,200 ships which have been tied up on the east and gulf coasts would be moving within 48 hours.

The agreement reached between representatives of 44 shipping companies and the negotiating committee of the Masters, Mates and Pilots Union, AFL, must be ratified by locals of the union, but a speedy affirmative vote was regarded as a foregone conclusion.

Would Restrain Russia's Use Of Veto Power

LONDON (UP)—A foreign office source said today that Great Britain had prepared a secret plan of action designed to restrain Russia from so-called "reckless" use of the veto in the United Nations Security Council.

The source said the British formula would be placed before the UN Assembly in New York "at the proper time" but declined to indicate the content on the ground that publicity now might prejudice the chances of success.
