Assembly Awaits U.S. Policy Statement

Well... I Dunno, But...

They tell us that the Ranger band will not only accompany the Bulldogs to Mineral Wells Friday night but will be there to perform on the field between halves.

That is a dream come true. For several years now, Ranger has had no band to either play or perform and it was missed. And it was needed. So in their trim new uniforms that boys and girls will be out there Friday night to form the Ranger letters to the tune of their own music.

And that band's doing all right with the music. too.

If Ranger doesn't have some real football teams in the future it surely won't be for lack of material. They are really starting 'em early now and there are two under teams being matched for game now, the ward school team and the B team.

They tell us that the ward school boys really put on a show in Cisco Tuesday night and came off with the big end of the score. Coach Munnerlyn was right proud of his boys, today. Having no equipment of their own, they've borrowed suits from the B team, and after they got 'em on, the coach couldn't find the boys. But when they got on the football field those suits really came to life and all of the bagging and bulging those suits could do, didn't stop those little fighters.

Coach Warden has his B team matched up with Breckenridge for a game here Thursday night.

So if the A team needs any substitutes, they've a wide field to draw 'from.

"Never say die," must be the motto of those rodeo minded Jaycees, for having taken a licking at one calf and steer roping show, they are gonna put on another one.

The event is planned for November 20, on Saturday afternoon and two matched calf roping contests and a jackpot roping contest will be staged.

The Texas Drug Store has added its name to the long list of Ranger business houses that have been undergoing a face lifting.

George D. Nicholson, one of the owners of the store said that the prescription department has been enlarged and redecorated and that the engagement makes room for an increased stock of drugs which has been placed in the store. He said that the department is now equipped and supplied to fill any prescription wanted.

The most modern conveniences have been added to the department, speeding work and adding to its efficiency. In fact, it is as modern and well equipped as any prescription department to be found anywhere.

One of the most fitting phases of the county wide planting program due to take place here December 11 is the program being worked out for memorial plants and trees to be placed in Memorial park on Highway 80 east.

This will be carried out by the Gold Star mothers, sisters and a division of the men who gave their lives during World War II and is being directed by Mrs. A. H. Powell and Mrs. Julia McCleskey.

The ground was being cleared today in the park and markers placed where the trees will be planted. There will be 42 markers out by tonight and Gold Star mothers, sisters and wives are asked to contact one of the above mentioned women to make arrangements for selection of the spot where they wish to plant their tree.

The city is assisting in this work and has furnished the equipment to clear and clean the park before the planting takes place.

The whole state wide highway beautification plan is a memorial program to the men who fought in World War II and to those who gave their lives in the war.

CBS SUED BY TEMPERANCE ORGANIZATION

LOUISVILLE, Kentucky (UP)—The National Temperance and Prohibition Council sued the Columbia Broadcasting System for $15,000,000 in federal court today on the grounds that CBS refused broadcast time to church and prohibition forces but had sold to liquor interests to "glamorize wine and beer drinking."

The suit also asked that $18,000,000, "a surplus built up by CBS," be impounded by the court for use in broadcasts for the "public interest."

The suit named CBS controlling stockholders and Schenley Distilleries as defendants, and charged that "choice radio time" had been sold to commercial liquor interests.

The suit, first of its kind, was filed by Sam Morris, known nationally as "the voice of temperance," and Henry Johnson, a Louisville attorney who is president of the Kentucky Sunday School Association.

The suit demanded that the court place CBS in receivership and revoke licenses of seven network stations.

CHIEF ASKS CLEAN FUN THURSDAY

Chief George Murphy today appealed to the boys and girls of Ranger to have their Halloween fun without destroying anybody's property or doing anything that might cause others to get hurt.

Chief Murphy stated that the police force has no intention of curbing the fun of the youngsters so long as they stay within the bounds of law and reason. He even added that the force would help them have a good time of the right sort.

However, he made it clear that the force will be on the alert for any unnecessary and unlawful conduct and will not hesitate to take action to stop or prevent this.

Another event to be included on the program that afternoon will be a jackpot roping contest. This will be open to all who want to enter and the amount of the pot depends on how many enter. The pot in this contest is made up of the entry fees of those in the contest. The first four winners will get the money in the jackpot contest.

G. M. Munnerlyn's ward school football team went to Cisco Tuesday night for a game with the ward school team there and came back with the scalps of the Cisco team to the tune of 12 to 7.

J. Comacho, fleet footed left half, found himself covered as he attempted a pass and took off down the field for a 40 yard run and a touch down.

Ranger's second touchdown came on a pass from McKinney to Bonney, the latter taking the ball over for the second marker.

Starting line-up for the game was, LE, R. Comacho; LT, Sharp; LG, Clyde; C, Flourist; RG, Young; RT, Lemley; RE, Pearson; FB, McKinney; RH, Simpson; QB, Bonney and IH, J. Comacho.

The team is composed of boys from both Young School and Hodges Oak Park School.

The grant includes not only the building with all heating and lighting fixtures but is complete with science laboratory equipment and tablet arm chairs.

Joann is also the niece of Mrs. R. E. Rogers and Mrs. Bill Rainwater both of Ranger.

QUESTIONS RAISED BY MOLOTOV TO BE ANSWERED

UNITED NATIONS HALL, Flushing, N. Y. (UP)—A "very important declaration of American policy" will be placed before the United Nations General Assembly by U. S. delegate Warren R. Austin late today, U. S. delegation sources said today.

The American declaration, it was learned, will not be a direct answer to the address by Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov. However, it will constitute a statement of American policy on questions raised by Molotov.

It was understood that the American policy will constitute an effort to "take the ball away from Molotov" rather than reply to his speech point by point.

Austin's address has been subject to substantial revision in the light of Molotov's proposal for world disarmament and his sharp criticism of American and British policy.

Greece today became the first nation to support Russia's disarmament proposal in the Assembly. Greece recommended international control to make disarmament effective and sanctions against any nation which violated the disarmament convention.

Australia made the first reply to Molotov's speech. It branded Russia's charges that revision of the veto rule would undermine the United Nations as "serious and totally unjustified."

Share Grid Honors

Departing from precedent of naming one outstanding football player as the top gridman of the week, the United Press selected Virgil Eikenberg, left, and Windell Williams, 85, of Rice Institute, Houston, Texas, to share the honor for this week. It was largely due to the efforts of this pair that Rice handed Texas University its first defeat of the season. (NEA Photo).

SOCIAL SECURITY BENEFITS FOR CERTAIN APPOINTEE OFFICERS

EDITOR'S NOTE: Following is the second in a series of four articles written for the Times relative to the amendments that will be voted upon in the November election.

By L. R. PEARSON
State Representative

The basis for this proposed amendment is House Joint Resolution No. 10. This proposed amendment will appear in Place 2 on the official ballot on November 5th. It proposes to amend Article VI of the Constitution by adding two sections. The first provides that the Legislature may have the right to levy taxes to provide a retirement, disability, and death compensation fund for the appointive officers and employees of the State; provides that the amount contributed by the State to such fund shall equal the amount paid in for the same purpose from the income of each person and not to exceed 5 per cent of that person's compensation paid by the State, and shall in no one year exceed the sum of $180.00 for any such person.

Stated differently, the second section gives the Commissioners' Court, after being authorized by a majority vote of the people of the county, the same powers regarding appointive county officers as Section One gives to the Legislature regarding appointive State officers and employees. The proposed amendment provides that a person receiving such benefits shall not be eligible for "other pensions, funds, or direct aid from the State of Texas."

This proposed amendment authorizes the Legislature and the Commissioners' Court to establish very much the same system of "retirement pay" or "pensions" for appointive officers and employees of the State and counties as the teachers' retirement system adopted several years ago.

WASHINGTON COLUMN

By Peter Edson
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, D. C.—(NEA)—In the year and eight months that James F. Byrnes of Spartanburg, S. C., has been Secretary of State, he has been away from his desk for eight months. But not on vacation. Returning now to Washington from the Paris peace conference, the seventh international pow-wow he has attended, he must immediately prepare for the eighth, ninth and tenth—the United Nations Assembly and Foreign Ministers' Council meetings in New York, the German and Austrian peace conferences wherever and whenever held.

The avil chorus of criticism is already clanging at the Byrnes record. This being an election year, the Republicans are trying to make something of it, though foreign policy is supposed to be a non-partisan, bi-partisan affair.

No peace treaties have been signed, nothing has been settled except the loan to Britain. Trouble is piling up on nearly every corner of the globe. A fair appraisal of Jimmy Byrnes, however, must include a list of good starts. The war having thrown the whole world into confusion for over five years, it would be impossible for even a Republican to bring order out of the chaos in a little over a year.

The Byrnes critics are from two extremes—reactionaries who consider him an appeaser, left-wingers who say he is not co-operating with Soviet Russia for peace. Actually, there have been no great changes from the foreign policy objectives laid down by Cordell Hull.

BYRNES has not run a one-man State Department nor a one-man foreign policy. He has delegated authority in great chunks. Byrnes' two greatest problems are relations with Russia and the atomic bomb. He has concentrated on these, particularly the former, leaving his assistants to run the department in his enforced absences. Even the shaping of policy on atomic bomb control was delegated to a commission headed by Undersecretary Dean Acheson.

It is a popular belief that Byrnes was thrown into foreign affairs cold and inexperienced, and that this accounts for his early setbacks at Paris and London and Moscow. What is generally forgotten is that Byrnes was principal adviser to Roosevelt at the Yalta Conference with Churchill and Stalin, when postwar policy was first outlined. Then Byrnes went to Potsdam with Truman.

IN dealing with Russia, Byrnes has pushed consistently the rights of small nations, the speeding-up of peace-treaty-making, the freeing of world trade and information channels, the re-establishment of stability. At first he showed a willingness to give and treat fairly for co-operation. When he found that did no good, he stiffened sharply. Rumors of rifts between the President and Byrnes have been proved false. Whether the President realizes it or not, Byrnes is his strong right arm—not the White House clowns and Missourians. Reports that Byrnes will resign are to be discounted, unless his health fails completely. He is not a quitter.

SPORTS

By Harry Grayson

NEW YORK—(NEA)—Eddie Dyer of the Cardinals sees a four-club National League race in 1947, lists the Dodgers, Cubs and Braves as the principal opposition. But the St. Louis manager knows from which direction the main trouble is coming.

Trouble-shooter Dyer didn't spend years under Branch Rickey for nothing. Dyer thoroughly realizes that "Wait till next year" is no idle cry in Flatbush this trip. The Brooklyn club now has 300 players in its 22-club farm system, the bulk of them hand-picked youngsters.

No other outfit has such a plethora of promising talent. Catcher Edwards, pitchers Hatten, Behrman, Branca, Lombardi, Barney, Taylor and Minner and outfielders Furillo, Whitman and Hermanski should be vastly more formidable with the past season under their belts.

The Bums ran away and hid from the Red Birds in the chair-store business this year, with a Little World Series championship, five play-off titles and four pennants. In all, 13 of the 20 minor league clubs affiliated with the Brooks throughout the season finished in the first division.

BROOKLYN farm directors and scouts speak of glowing prospects by the hour. So enthusiastic is Branch Rickey, Jr., director of the Flatbush stores, that he is talking about the Superbas' prevailing by 25 lengths in 1948. Young Rickey may be a bit on the optimistic side, but the organization is gaid that way. Such a feat would take the boys back to 1902, when the Pirates practically lapped the Dodgers in finishing in front by 27 1/2 games.

Among names more prominently mentioned as Brooks of the future are those of Jackie Robinson, Duke Snider and Gil Hodges, the latter pair perhaps a year away, as the baseball man says.

DEVIL'S LAUGHTER

By Alice M. Laverick

CHARLOTTE returned Colin's look and there was a faint smile on her lips. And then her eyes went to Mark's and she uttered a little cry.

And as she called Mark by name and held out her arms to him, Ellen began to weep loudly and to thank God over and over at the top of her lungs, so that I was forced to lead her hastily from the room for fear the noise would disturb Charlotte.

In a room across the hall, where I took her, Ellen told me the story of the fire. It had had a good start, she said, before she even realized that there was a fire. She had, of course, called the department at once, and Mark, who was spending the evening at Father Gene's. But in the meantime a distance from town, the harm was done before anyone could get there. The house was in flames. And Ellen could not get Charlotte to come down the stairs.

"We would have both perished, Celia," she said, "because I could not leave her alone to die. But when Father Gene and Mark got there, Colin was with them, praise be to God. Colin was up the stairs in a flash and carried Charlotte down almost before the other two were out of the car." Ellen howled again at this. But when I murmured something about the remarkable coincidence, she flashed out, "Call it coincidence, if you like. I know the hand of God was in it."

Colin himself tried to be flip-pant about it all.

"I was like the marines," he said, "arriving at the critical moment, the well-known nick of time." But his hand was trembling as he greeted me.

"THIS was a little later," after I had persuaded Ellen to take a sedative and lie down for a while. I had gone back to my post and Father Gene and Colin had stopped by the desk. They had left Mark alone with Charlotte for a while.

My own hand was like ice, when Colin took it in his. I remember wondering just how much emotion the human heart could stand in one day. However, I managed to speak to Colin in a fairly steady voice, and if he saw how shaken I really was, he could attribute it all to the miracle I had just witnessed.

Father Gene said, "I'm taking you and Ellen and Mark over to the parish house until we see what's to be done. Come along now, Colin. We had better let Cecelia get on with her duties."

Colin said quickly, "Not yet." And his dark eyes were on me. "I'd like to talk to Cecelia for a minute, Father. Do you mind?"

"To Cecelia?" Father Gene stared at him and then at me. "Ah," he said. And again, "Ah." And, as he turned away, I saw the light of comprehension flash into the good man's eyes, and the twinkle of delight.

Colin said, "Isn't there somewhere I can talk to you for just five minutes, Cecelia? Away from this eternal nursery of angels of mercy?"

I REMEMBER mentioning the diet kitchen as a possible retreat and we must have gone there. For my next memory is of leaning against the sink in the kitchen with Colin's dark face close above me. And of how my heart seemed at one moment to have stopped beating entirely, and the next to have taken on a new lease of life.

For it was there that Colin told me. "It was the thought of you, Cecelia, that kept me steady," he was saying. "And the hope that one day I might be free to tell you. But I could not speak until—what happened today—did happen."

I put my hands behind me and held onto the edge of the sink. "I've got a little house," he said, smiling. I thought fleetingly of Inisfaul and of how it had seemed the right setting for him. I tried to imagine him in a little house. "I don't need a very big house, Cecelia," he said. "I'm not a very big man. I'm a working man." He said it humbly. Colin Fitzgerald—humble. Oh no, not that, not that. "But I need you, Cecelia. I want you—very much."

I let go of the sink. I was crushed in his arms. He kissed me and continued to kiss me before two delighted ladies and an astonished boy with cigarette, who happened along.

Then Colin lifted his head and saw his audience. "Well, don't stand there staring," he yelled, his dark eyes flashing. "Go along about your business!"

And I laughed with delight, as he took me in his arms. "I'm an Irishman had not changed too much—not too much."

Ladies Should Be Be Ladies Even In Policy Game

BOSTON (UP)—A female judge here expects ladies to act like ladies, and gentlemen to be gallant at all times.

After fining a woman $100 for being involved in the operation of a lottery, Judge Jennie Leitman Barron said "It seems funny to have the female of the species writing numbers."

She added, "Perhaps the male for whom she works will reimburse her for the $100 fine."

WOULD HAVE GOVERNMENT AID COTTON

WASHINGTON (UP)—Wass-Burnet Maybank, D. S. C., today asked the White House to revive direct Government cotton purchases at parity prices through the Commodity Credit Corp. to stabilize the sagging cotton market.

He disclosed the request as cotton exchanges at New York, Chicago, Dallas, New Orleans and Houston suspended trading for the day on the heels of another $10 a bale drop in cotton prices yesterday.

Meantime the Agriculture Department, in an effort to bolster the cotton market, noted that the Commodity Credit Corp. has disposed of its "very large accumulations of cotton." It said in a formal statement that the only remaining stocks in government possession are earmarked for export, so there can be no question of dumping on the domestic market.

The parity price of 15-16 inch middling cotton, which is traded on most markets, was 27.23 cents a pound as of Oct. 15—the last day on which cotton parity prices were computed. The average spot price yesterday was 29.20 cents a pound compared with the 26-year high of 38.93 cents a pound on Oct. 2. The government may purchase cotton when it drops to parity. On the basis of yesterday's average price, another $10 a bale drop would bring the market price down to parity. Maybank today urged outright purchase at full parity for distress cases.

JAPANESE BUDIST SECT. FIGHT COMMUNIST RISE

Editors Note: The attitude of one of the world's largest religious sects toward Communism is given in the following dispatch by the United Press general manager for the Asiatic area.

UNITED PRESS STAFF CORRESPONDENT KYOTO, Japan, (UP)—More than 11,000,000 Japanese Buddhists, communicants of the East Honwanji sect of the Nipponese Buddhism, have gone on record as entirely opposed to Communism.

They will announce their stand formally to the world soon, Kocho Ohtani, chief abbot of the sect, told this correspondent in an exclusive interview.

The position of the Higashi (East) Honwanji sect now is being set down in an extensive memorandum being sent to the World Buddhist Council in London. "We oppose Communism for a number of reasons," the Buddhist leader, whose position in his church is similar to that of the Pope in the Roman Catholic Church, said. "The chief reason, of course is the Communist attitude towards religion, the sanctity of the home and general morals."

Commenting on Lenin's assertion that "religion is the opiate of the masses," the Buddhist leader said Communism is making no headway among members of his church. He added that, in his opinion, Communism is entirely unacceptable to a majority of the Japanese people.

During a long conversation, followed by luncheon in one of the pavilions which overlook magnificent gardens built 300 years ago by the great landscape artist, Kōbō Enshū, the chief abbot and his consort (who is a sister of Empress Nagakō) made these points:

The East Honwanji sect welcomes the expanded activities of accidental Christian missionaries in Japan and is cooperating with them. There is no conflict between Christianity and Buddhism and the East Honwanji sect will continue to follow a policy of "live and let live" with regard to other religious faiths. "All great religions are good," the chief abbot said. "And there is room in Japan for all great religious faiths." East Honwanji confines its proselyting activities to Japan and has no missions abroad. It has no special connection with Buddhist sects in Burma, Ceylon, India, China and elsewhere. The chief abbot and his consort are extremely anxious to visit the United States and other western countries and hope to make a foreign tour when conditions will permit—probably within the next three years.

The war and post-war periods in Japan have been marked by a widespread break-down in morals and the abbot had instructed all his priests to intensify their efforts to restore public virtue. The increase in divorces brought on by the war is especially to be deplored, since Japan is a nation held together by the family system and all Japanese traditionally are closely bound by home ties.

The chief abbot fully approves the provision of the new Japanese constitution renouncing war. He believes that the new Japan, as a nation which has utterly renounced armed force, has a chance to establish herself in an enviable place in the world of tomorrow.

Toy Autos In Courtroom Speed Traffic Cases

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UP)—The city police judge has a hard time convincing onlookers he is conducting court and not playing kid games.

Recently he bought seven toy cars, and had six city maps drawn showing various types of intersections.

Now, when he has a traffic accident case, defendants place the toy cars in location to demonstrate circumstances.

The judge insists the new procedure speeds up cases.
