WASHINGTON COLUMN

BY PETER EDSON, NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, D. C.—(NEA)—Congressmen are besieging the State Department in numbers to get some of their constituents home from Europe—in time to vote—but there isn't much the dear old department can do about it.

It is caused primarily by lack of sufficient passenger ships and transport airplanes to haul the available traffic. Reconversion of the Cunard line, Queen Elizabeth, now making her second "maiden" voyage to New York, will help some.

And the American civilians now stranded in Europe are too snooty to come home on troopships.

OF primary importance is the fact that people claiming U. S. citizenship but living or stranded in Europe during the war had to start for home by Oct. 14 or run the risk of losing their citizenship.

The State Department has a legal opinion permitting it to give consideration to extending the October 14 deadline in cases of duress where it can be proved that individuals had difficulty in obtaining exit visas from foreign countries or difficulty in obtaining transportation.

IN every instance the rights of citizens will be protected unless their claims are proved false. The law was not written, however, so that people could easily take advantage of it, and in many cases there may be considerable delay before claims can be ruled upon.

During the month two ships have been scheduled out of Italy, one out of Bremerhaven, but none from Polish or Greek ports.

Air transport capacity from all European points for August is estimated to have been 300 planes with 13,900 seats. September figures will be 20 per cent higher and October figures still higher.

SPORTS

BY HARRY GRAYSON, NEA Sports Editor

NEW YORK—(NEA)—Al Schacht gained fame and fortune clowning through baseball, but he never successfully managed a club.

You can't clown a team into a pennant, but you can clown it out of one.

Wisecrackers, muggers, grimacers, etc., fall by the wayside. Frank Frisch was a great infielder, equally adept at umpire-baiting as a field marshal.

Banjo-playing Charley Grimm, one of the greatest grimacers among major league pilots, is getting a tolerant third chance with the Cubs.

Casey Stengel, another droll chap, never was even a whispering success as a pilot.

Infielder Sibby Sisti is returning to the Braves next spring after batting .343 for Indianapolis.

"Sibby may make it this trip," remarked a veteran National League. "Billy Southworth will be there to teach him something. All Casey did was imitate him."

THE numerous managerial changes this year stress the fact that running the baseball works is no monkey business.

There on the balanced side have failed too, of course, but not for lack of soundness on the field or application.

Rogers Hornsby, for example, didn't flunk for anything he did or did not do on the field.

The staid Bill McKechnie and Joe McCarthy just got tired. Luke Sewell was the victim of an impatient owner.

From the days of Cap Anson, the sobersides were the ones who put their aggregations in the front-running and kept them there—Seale, Hanlon, Clarke, McGraw, Chance, Moran, McKechnie, McCarthy, Terry, Southworth, and, currently, Eddie Dyer in the National.

WHILE Ed Barrow was winning four pennants before building the Yankee empire, his nickname was Simon Legree.

True, Hughie Jennings was picturesque and a colorful coach at third base, with his lifted knee and never-to-be-forgotten "E-yah" but with the scholarly tap-kick of the Tigers it was dead earnest enthusiasm rather than buffoonery.

It's a 24-hour-a-day job, and the modern player, like the old, becomes disrespectful of a cut-up. Even Leo Durocher, ham actor and would-be radio eng-man, is serious in his own way when managing the Dodgers in an environment where seriousness is next to ungodliness. Lippy Leo is all manager from 2 o'clock till 5.

Leo Durocher is garrulously aggressive when he dashes out to argue a dispute, point with an umpire, at which times he is deadly serious. Which in itself is funny—at Ebbets Field.

Freckles and His Friends

CALL ME LIZ by Rene Ryerson Mart

THE STORY: Red McFan, army pilot, comes home with a chestful of ribbons and a cocky swagger. He visits the varnish plant where he worked before the war as laboratory helper and the old gang gather round to greet him.

Illustrated by Walt Scott

"The uncomfortable" time lasted a long minute. It was Jim Gary himself who broke it. "That's right, Red, I never went in at all. Guess I do owe you that dollar." He fumbled in his pocket and brought out his bill fold and took out a greenback.

HE led the way to the inner room and motioned Red to a seat on a leather couch. Sat down beside him. His ruddy face was beaming under his silvery hair.

Red flapped one of his big hands up and down illustrating the evasive action of a plane. "I saw two planes go in, in less time than it takes to tell about it. I looked back and there was Russ right behind me. There was smoke coming from his tail and I knew he was in trouble. I cut out of formation and circled and came in behind him. Then I saw this Messerschmidt coming down on top of him. I just went up and shot it out with the Messerschmidt—and I was lucky, that was all. I got him before he got me."

For a moment he couldn't go on. "It wasn't any more than Russ would have done for me," Red said with simple honesty. "Over there it was all our necks. We had to stick together."

READ THE CLASSIFIED

THE MINUTE MAN—THEN AND NOW

Millions of Americans will see the new Minute Man on a Treasury poster (right) which will spark a nationwide publicity drive in behalf of the savings bonds program from Nov. 11 to Dec. 7. At the left you see the defense and war bond symbol as it was from 1941 to 1945 with the Minute Man turning away from his plow as he grasps his musket in defense of our country's freedom. In the new design, an adaptation from the famous Daniel Chester French statue at Concord, Mass., the Minute Man has shifted his musket to his left hand but has now grasped the plow of peace again with his right hand. On the base of the peacetime symbol appears the keynote of U. S. Savings stamp and bond program: the word "Security."

CAPTURED PAPERS REVEAL HITLER-MUSSOLINI BREAK

WASHINGTON (UP)—Captured German documents have disclosed that Adolf Hitler was alarmed by the Allied invasion of Sicily and gave Benito Mussolini a severe breakfast tongue-lashing on the "unsoldierly" conduct of Italian troops.

The documents, made public by the State Department, showed that the Italian partner of the Rome-Berlin axis was summoned before the one-time leader of the German state for a conference in northern Italy on July 19, 1943—nine days after Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's forces stormed a shore in Sicily.

Their "conversation" consisted largely of a long and bitter harangue by Hitler who, for perhaps the first time, openly expressed qualms about eventual victory.

He had committed large numbers of his own best troops to the Sicilian campaign and was wavering toward a full evacuation as wiser than an all-out assault designed to push the invaders into the sea.

But he feared that "set backs" on the "fringes" of the temporary German state would only add to his troubles at home—a growing shortage of raw materials, uprisings by partisans in the Balkans, heavy losses inflicted by the Russians in the east and even difficulty in convincing German naval officers that he knew what he was doing.

He was perplexed lest a depletion of raw materials would mean the end of the Axis' capacity to carry on the war, and specifically worried over northern Norway where iron ore was transhipped from Sweden, nickel deposits from Finland and Balkan copper and chrome.

On top of all this, he told Il Duce, he was having trouble convincing the German navy that its proud cruisers should be used for troop transports and that naval rifles should be stripped from battleships for use in coastal defenses.

Playing Mussolini for the "un-soldierly and unsoldierly" conduct of Italian troops, he recommended that the Italian leader use "barbaric severity" in improving their shortcomings. He was particularly incensed by the Italian slowness in repairing bomb damage to airstrips and the heavy loss of German fighter planes through inept handling by ground crews.

Business Men Advised To Take Noon Naps

CLEVELAND (UP)—Tired business men should take noon-day naps if they expect a long and useful life in this era of high speed, Dr. Irvine H. Preis, research director of the Cleveland Clinic, advises.

High blood pressure, he warned an audience, is the No. 1 killer of the average business executive.

"Get adequate rest, maintain your peace of mind, and follow a normal diet," he said. "Take a nap at noon whenever possible."

A lint yield of 488 pounds per acre is indicated in New Mexico this year.

NEW MEANS SOUGHT TO FIGHT WAR ON POLIO, FLU

CLEVELAND (UP) — A double-barreled attack on the viruses that cause poliomyelitis and influenza is being carried out by the Western Reserve University's school of medicine with the use of one-celled animals and a variety of plants.

Dr. Harve J. Carlson, assistant professor of bacteriology in the department of pediatrics, is in charge of the project. The attack follows a new line, taken up after the failure of penicillin and the sulfa drugs in curing such infections as polio and flu.

Dr. Carlson plans to "train" such one-celled animals as paramecium, euglena and the stentor to "eat" polio and influenza microbes. He also is extracting active substances from 375 different plants which might prove effective against the viruses that cause these diseases.

Parentless Baby Has 12 Mamas

COLUMBUS, O. (UP) — A three-month-old baby is going to school at Ohio State University. His name is Jimmy and he has no parents, but he probably has more mothers than any other baby in Columbus. Jimmy has 12 each quarter.

His "mothers" are students in the home economics department at the university. Jimmy is their class work and their baby. They feed him has nothing to do with things

"We don't want to spoil Jimmy," she said, "but we do want him to have the love and affection which he needs."
Jimmy lives at the home management house near the university campus. Each quarter two groups of six home economics seniors live there for six weeks, taking their classwork in an actual home.
The baby is the ward of a social agency and will remain at the home management house until he is a year old. Then he will be returned to the agency for adoption.

Under The Dome
At Austin

By Henry A. Zimmerman
United Press Staff Correspondent
AUSTIN, Tex. (UP)—Revival of the campaign by the League of Women Voters for passage of a "secret ballot" law during the next session of the Texas Legislature brings up the question of just how secret is the ballot in Texas.

Under the Australian (paper) ballot system in use throughout the United States, secrecy of the ballot in any state depends upon the honesty and qualifications of the election judges. Most judges are honest, but a well-organized, crooked political machine can see to it that some judges are appointed from its "approved" list. It is the responsibility of these crooked judges to see that honest voters whose names are on the machine list are not marked in some way, so that in a counting a check can be made to see if the ballot was voted "right".

The present law in Texas makes identification simple for such a judge, or anyone else interested in the counting. As the voter enters the poll and has his name checked on the precinct registration list, a number is placed by the name and on the ballot. If anyone is interested in learning his vote, all that is necessary is to learn the number and watch for it when the ballots are counted.

The theory behind this numbering system is that it would enable judges in contested elections to know just who voted and how. Experience has proved, however, that most election contests arise over the total amount rather than because of individual ballots. This is one of the arguments presented by the League in favor seal is put on in such a way that any attempt to remove it would be so difficult as to attract the attention of those watching the counting. If necessary, individual votes may be checked in legal proceedings by removing the seal.

The fundamental principle in maintaining secret ballots and honest elections lies in selection of qualified election judges for the polls, experts say. If they are not only honest, but have a good knowledge of election laws and methods of fraud, all will go well in any election.

Many states now use some form of numbering system on their ballots, with either a single or double detachable stub. In the latter case, one stub may be retained by the voter. The proposed law for Texas would use the single stub.

In either case, the stubs are detached completely before the ballot is placed in the box. Missouri, however, used a non-detachable stub, but after the numbers have been compared, a seal is placed over the number before the ballot is placed in the box. The

CUSTOMERS STARTLED BY MALE LIBRARIAN

POMONA, Cal. (UP) — Take it from D. J. Caldwell, Pomona's first male librarian, it's no easy task for the reading public to become accustomed to a man librarian.

lan. Caldwell, holder of a bachelor's degree in library science from the University of Southern California, had been on the job only a few days when a little girl entered the library.

Loaded with books, she hoisted them to the loan desk, looked up for the first time and saw Caldwell. She let out a whoop and fled from the building, crying, "Mommie, it's a man."

Caldwell succeeded Miss Sarah Jacobus, local librarian for 40 years before her retirement.

"When I answered the phone," he said, "a lot of people would hang up, thinking they had the wrong number because a woman hadn't answered."

Only the shell of the crown of some baby teeth falls out of a child's mouth, while the root is absorbed. This is true of the central milk incisors, which generally fall out during the seventh year.

Beware Coughs Following Flu

After the flu is over and gone, though that follows may develop into chronic bronchitis if neglected. Creomulsion relieves promptly because it goes right to the seat of the trouble to help loosen and expel germ laden phlegm, and aid nature to soothe and heal raw, tender, inflamed bronchial mucous membranes. No matter how many medicines you have tried, tell your druggist to sell you a bottle of Creomulsion with the understanding you must like the way it quickly allays the cough or you are to have your money back.

How Your Dollar Shrinks

What you bought in 1941 for 69 cents will cost a dollar now, says the Bureau of Labor Statistics. Purchasing value of the 1941 dollar dropped to 76 cents in June, and went down another seven cents in mid-September.

How the purchasing value of the dollar has been cut since 1941 is indicated on the Newchart above. And the end is not yet in sight, say Bureau of Labor Statistics officials. Foods make up 44.3 per cent of price index. BLS uses for measuring dollar's buying power.
