★ WASHINGTON COLUMN

BY PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, D. C.—(NEA)—In spite of recently improved relations between the United States and the Argentine, chances are slim that the Pan American Union will immediately okay a call for the long-delayed conference of American Republics at Rio de Janeiro.

The Pan American Union meets in Washington the first Wednesday of every month. Approval of the Rio conference at the March or April meetings is possible. But before that can happen the host nation of Brazil must issue an official invitation. And Brazil's foreign minister recently declared that the time for issuing the invitation had not yet arrived. Best guess now is that the conference will be held in the late summer or early fall.

Big business at this Rio conference will be working out a mutual defense pact, as agreed to by the 21 American republics in the Act of Chapultepec, signed at Mexico City in the spring of 1945.

Delay in calling the Rio conference has been due to strained relations with the Argentine government of Col.-President Juan Peron. The official line of U. S. foreign policy towards Peron is that his government still has too many links with a Nazi past. Three things were demanded to rid the Peron government of this taint.

First, that it close the Nazi schools and stop Nazi propaganda. This was complied with satisfactorily. Secondly, that some 600 Nazi agents be brought to trial or expelled and turned over to British and American authorities as war criminals. Of these 600, perhaps 150 were considered important. Of the 150 only about 50 have been seized. Because of liberal Argentine anti-alien laws which prohibit deportations and because of bad police work, most of the others were allowed to escape and their whereabouts are unknown. This is not considered satisfactory.

Third demand was that property owned by citizens of the Axis countries be taken over and that Axis business penetration be stopped. The recent announcement that some 60 firms were to be taken over was the first compliance on this demand.

Whether this new development indicates that the Argentine government has turned a corner and will co-operate with other American republics from here on in remains to be seen. The official attitude in the United States seems to be one of keeping the fingers crossed and hoping for the best. Detailed reports on just what firms have been taken over and what the Peron government does about the uncaught enemy aliens are awaited in Washington. Any change in policy must be based on what these reports reveal.

If, however, the United States government is itself about to turn a corner and begin greater co-operation with the Peron government, that will be something to watch.

COMMUNIST agitation and penetration in the southern republics has been constantly on the increase in the past year. An effort is now being made to demonstrate that the Argentine government of Juan Peron has alone been able to resist this influence.

The Argentine government has recognized the U. S. S. R. There is no reason why it shouldn't. There have been some slight trade relations. But the all-out anti-Communist, just what the supporters of Franco Spain, are now apparently ready to embrace the Argentine as the great bulwark against communism in South America.

To Communist and Russian sympathizers in the United States, this makes the Peron government blacker than it ever was before. To a much larger segment of American opinion, however, this makes the Peron government something to tie to and hang on to.

If there is a change in U. S. sentiment towards the Argentine, it may be due to this desire for an ally in the fight against communism as much as it is due to any conviction Peron will now be good and play ball with the other American republics.

SPORTS

BY HARRY GRAYSON
NEA Sports Editor

NEW YORK—(NEA)—Did Enos Slaughter carry the ball with or without the guidance of Mike Gonzalez on the Cardinals' memorable run that settled the 1946 World Series?

Country Slaughter said he was on his own from the time he passed second base in that dramatic eighth inning at Sportsman's Park last Oct. 15, deciding to shoot for the works and failing to receive even the blink of a bulb from Coach Gonzalez.

Yet many sports writers and others tabbed Senor Gonzalez the finale's hero for waving the outfielder homeward bound—all the way from first base on Harry Walker's line drive to left-center.

There has been so much controversy and discussion about Slaughter's daring sprint that veteran sports editor Sid Keener of the St. Louis Star-Times asked director Lew Fonseca of the major leagues' motion picture division to clear it up.

Slaughter was strictly on his own, is the answer.

And, as a former player, Fonseca ventures the opinion that if catcher Hal Wagner had blocked the plate instead of moving forward into the diamond four or five feet to take shortstop Johnny Pesky's late, lazy relay, it would have been close and quite a mix-up.

Slaughter was on first base with two out and the Red Birds and Red Sox tied, 3-3.

"Slaughter was off with the pitch," reports Fonseca. "He said he was making an attempt to steal."

There was a loud pop of a bursted bag during a western picture just when a gun was fired on the screen. Next came another loud pop when the hero kissed the heroine.

Parish solved the problem. He took his remaining stock of paper bags to a newspaper plant, where he had three little holes punched in the bottom of each bag. Now the kiddies can blow air into the bags, but the bags won't hold anything but popcorn.

3 Little Holes Solve Popcorn Bag Problem

KEYSER, W. Va. (UP)—A popcorn stand in front of the Liberty Theatre in Keyser has always done a big business, but Manager Kermit Parish struck a snag when he ran out of popcorn boxes and substituted paper bags.

Women Tie Up Party Line While Fire Rages

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, O. (UP)—Frank Robinson lost his home because two unconvinced women refused to surrender a party telephone line when he wanted to call the fire department.

"We are paying for our telephones and we intend to use them as long as we want," they said. By the time firemen arrived, only one piece of furniture was saved from the blaze.

University Offers Atomic Course

LOS ANGELES (UP)—A scientist connected with the Manhattan project which developed the atom bomb is teaching two classes in peace-time use of atomic power here, offered through the University of California Extension Service.

The instructor, Leo H. Ohlinger now a consultant in nuclear design for a southern California aircraft company, said the classes were started because "a national program of atomic development and research requires a huge army of technically trained men. However, there is a sad dearth of men who are familiar with the elementary physics and the design of atomic piles."
