Lewis Accuses Government Of Using Force

Well . . .
I Dunno,
But . . .

Snow scenes of Ranger were going like hotcakes this morning. Travelers stopped here were haunting the picture-card stands and buying cards showing Ranger blanketed by the snow in December and January. Guess that ought to be proof enough to the folks back home.

Ripley's cartoon on Ranger and its freak weather which appeared recently is getting around over the country. Brice Walker received a clipping of the column from a New York paper and Mayor J. J. Kelly said this morning that he had received one from a man in Iowa who rather questioned the possibility of a 59 drop in temperature within 11 hours. Anyway, he wanted to know if it really happened.

Temperature Thursday never did get above the 30 mark and the low during the night was 28. The snow and ice should be some help to the farmers and ranchmen who have been complaining about the lack of moisture.

Bill Doss who recently took unto himself a bride from Eastland and a job at the Eastland National Bank, has already received a promotion at the bank and is liking his work immensely. The son of Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Doss, he and his bride, the former Sude Rawlings of Eastland, are both ex-students of Ranger Col. College.

Oh yes. While speaking of quick drops in Ranger's temperatures the last few days have seen some pretty rugged ones. On Wednesday the maximum temperature was 64 and on Thursday it was 30. Minimum temperatures were for Wednesday and early Thursday morning 29 and for Thursday and early Friday morning 28. Thirty-four degrees drop in less than 24 hours is something of a drop itself.

Mrs. R. Lambert of Route 3, Ranger was thoughtful enough to call our attention to the fact that an extra copy of the Times was being sent to her address and closed her letter with the statement that she enjoyed the paper and thought it one of the best. Thank you, Mam.

We're just like all the rest of the folks. We sure appreciate a little pat on the back. And like Mayor Kelly told you the other day, we do mean the kind of a pat that's 18 inches above the other type.

Pleasantness costs nothing and means so much that we wonder why people bother to be unpleasant. Most of us are susceptible to moods of others and sometimes it's a pleasant word or a friendly greeting that will wipe away a depressed or harried feeling, and thus make a bright day of what might otherwise be a gloomy one.

Heard a man say once that he had a particular fondness for a young person about town, because that person always spoke pleasantly and greeted him wherever they met as if they were glad to see him.

You know, there's something to that. Yes sir, people like to be pleasantly greeted.

Aviation Group Has Meeting Thursday Night

A meeting of the aviation committee of the Chamber of Commerce was held Thursday night at 7:30 o'clock at the manager's office with C. C. McKeever, chairman of the committee, presiding.

Church, CAA district engineer. The group will ask Church's advice relative to developments at the airport.

Other plans for work of the committee were discussed. The committee is composed of McKeever, A. N. Ridings, Marjorie Maddocks, Howard Oliver, F. P. Brashier, Sr., and E. L. Martin.

LAKE SUCCESS — Unexpected British and Australian objections threatened today to delay prompt United Nations approval of the United States' claim to the 623 Pacific islands formerly mandated to Japan.

TREASURY ALLOTMENT SLASHED

WASHINGTON — The House appropriations committee began application of the Republican promised economy in government today by slashing one third from the treasury's requested operating funds for fiscal 1948.

However, the committee chopped barely one per cent from the post office department's request for funds which were covered in the same bill—the first of a series of appropriation bills.

The treasury reduction was made despite a warning from Treasury Secretary John W. Snyder that the amount asked was rock bottom and any further cut would "result in a greater loss to the government and to the country than the amount saved."

WASHINGTON — President Truman today nominated Edward Mount Webster of Washington, D.C. as a member of the Federal Communications Commission.

LAWRENCE GIVEN NEW PIONEER POST

DALLAS, Texas, March 7.—Appointment of Harding L. Lawrence of Houston as general traffic manager and Miss Jeanette Hudson of Dallas as chief hostess was announced by Robert J. Smith, president of Pioneer Air Lines.

Harding L. Lawrence

Lawrence was promoted from assistant to the general operations manager, and succeeds H. Grady Chandler, Jr. Miss Hudson replaces Miss Donna Lee Hamm, who resigned recently to get married.

During the war Lawrence served in the Air Force as an instructor in the Dallas Aviation School, and later was assistant director of the British Flying School at Terrell.

Miss Hudson formerly was a hostess with Braniff Airways.

Previously she had modeled. She was born in Arkansas. She is a graduate of Texas State College for Women.

Sheriff Williams In California To Get Prisoners

Sheriff J. B. Williams left Eastland Sunday by plane from Abilene for Bakersfield, California, where he went to get Mark Martin and wife of Rising Star for whom he held a warrant charging them with a felony in connection with a $10,000 swindling case at Rising Star. Martin and his wife are understood to have waved extradition.

Leaving Abilene with Sheriff Williams was a representative of a Dallas Detective Agency, who, it is understood, represented a bankers' association, some member of which had possibly handled some of the paper alleged to have been involved in the case, who was en route to Reno, Nevada, to get Carl Childers, also wanted in connection with the Rising Star case.

The Eastland Sheriff's office stated Thursday morning that no word had been received from Sheriff Williams since his departure for California, but that he was expected back in Eastland at any time.

BROWNWOOD, March 5 (Sp). Mark Mastie of Rising Star was being held in Bakersfield, Cal., Wednesday on charges of swindling filed against him here Tuesday. Sheriff J. B. Williams of Eastland County is en route to California to return him to Texas.

Williams also will return Carl Childers, held in Reno, Nev., on charges of swindling. Both cases involve surplus property transactions. Alleged victim in the Martin charges was Vernon Barclay of Brownwood, who was burned to death near New Boston last week, and in the Childers case—L. E. White of Rising Star.

An associate of Barclay's, Joe B. Sharrock of Cross Plains, was found shot to death near Cross Plains Monday night, and a verdict of suicide was returned Tuesday.

Action Delayed WASHINGTON (UP)—The Senate atomic energy committee today postponed until 10 a.m. Monday a vote on the nomination of David E. Lillenthal as chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission.

WASHINGTON—John L. Lewis told Congress today his United Mine Workers, AFL, could settle their fight with the coal industry if the government would quit using a "blackjack to beat the miners into submission."

Lewis made the statement before the Senate labor committee less than 24 hours after the Supreme Court upheld the government in its court fight with Lewis growing out of the coal strike last November.

He gave the committee a 20-minute dissertation on the economy of the coal industry and then asked—"What's the matter with the coal industry?"

He answered the question himself. "There's nothing the matter with the coal industry except the ill treatment of its employees. And that's a private matter between the coal operators and the United Mine Workers of America."

"The United Mine Workers could settle their differences with the coal industry if the government would cease using a blackjack to beat the miners into submission while the operators take the profit."

Lewis went before the committee in a crowded Senate caucus room. Klieg lights shined beside grinding movie cameras. Stands lined the walls and the aisles. The crowd of upwards of 500 was the largest since the high spots of the Pearl Harbor investigation a year ago.

Lewis said the effects of "recent intrusions" by the government, in its judicial, legislative and executive branches, has been to "arrest collective bargaining in the coal industry."

"It has been an effective stopper," he said.

Already faced with a strike-limiting mandate from the Supreme Court, Lewis said in his prepared statement that any limit on labor's right to strike would establish an "absolute form of government" in the United States.

Preceding Lewis was William L. McGrath, president of the Williamson Heating Co.

"The Wagner Act has bred a Frankenstein," McGrath testified. "The people of America want Congress to make fundamental reforms in the labor laws—not superficial changes."

In telling the committee that Congress should not place any limit on labor's right to strike, Lewis was not referring directly to the Supreme Court decision against him yesterday.

West Texas Storm Moves To East Texas

A wet spring snowstorm swooped out of West Texas—where it left from one to five inches of snow on the ground—and rolled slowly over east Texas today, turning to rain as it traveled.

Large snowflakes were falling in the Dallas-Fort Worth area and as far south as Austin. Bonham reported heavy snow, but it was raining at noon in Tyler, Sulphur Springs and Texarkana.

The storm had spent itself over West Texas and the Panhandle. Highways generally were open and air travel to the west was reported near normal.

WASHINGTON COLUMN

BY PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, D. C.—(NEA)—Antics of the Republican elephant in the halls of Congress so far this year reveal it is still a cumbersome animal, full of the same old tricks.

In some respects this ponderous pachyderm is akin to that strange prehistoric bird which used to fly backward to see where it had been.

The Republican House passed a bill limiting the President to two terms before it took up the proposal to make the Speaker of the House second in line to succeed to the Presidency, after the elected vice president.

In putting on the two-term limit the Republicans were of course getting even with Roosevelt, who was elected to four terms. It will be 10 years before the third-term issue can again come to the fore. It may never again be an issue.

But the Republicans' inability to forget the past, makes this old grudge fight its first order of business. The immediate and far more pressing problem of presidential succession is by-passed.

Instead of sticking to the Congressional Reorganization Act passed by the last Congress, the Senate Republican majority upsets it. Instead of sticking to the simplified committee structure created by this far-sighted streamlining bill, the Republicans create two special committees to investigate the war effort and study the problems of small business.

Both jobs could have been handled by standing committees of the new Congress. But the Republicans were unwilling to break with the past.

If there must be special committee effort, why could it not be spent on problems of the future? Why should not this effort be put on the problem of reorganizing the armed services to deal with future emergencies? The last war is over.

Yet when the new Committee to Investigate the War Effort is organized, its new chairman, Republican Sen. Owen Brewster of Maine, announces his program will be to investigate past scandals. It is a line of policy that seems more interested in showing what a bad record the Democrats made than in showing what a good record the Republicans can make.

In their approach to the labor problem, the Republicans seem similarly motivated. Most of the labor reform bills thus far introduced look backward. They would restore conditions that existed after World War I. The world never has moved backward, and it's a fair bet it won't shift into reverse now.

To bring down the high cost of living, the present congressional contribution thus far is an inclination to allow rents to go up. As a further contribution to higher prices, the Republican approach to the tariff problem has been strictly out of the era of Fordney and McCumber. The fact that high tariff walls helped bring on the last world-wide depression seems entirely forgotten.

Republicans oppose the forthcoming International Trade Organization meetings. They do not realize there must be expanding world trade if there is to be continuing U. S. prosperity. The fact that there must be bipartisan international economic policy as well as nonpartisan foreign policy has not registered.

If all the foregoing sounds like partisan diatribe, it is not. Hand in hand with the Republicans on many of these backward-looking programs are a number of still more backward-looking riders of the obstinate, Democratic donkey. Everything goes double for them.

Contrariwise, for the handful of Republicans who have bucked the party-viewing party leadership, there should be double commendation. The healthiest thing that could happen in Washington today would be a sound, progressive Republican uprising—freed of all New Deal trackpot visions—but with its eyes fixed squarely on the future and not on the past.

NEW YORK—(NEA)—Whirlaway is popularly supposed to be the top money winning horse of all time. He is, among running horses, for the long-ailed Calumet Farm champion won $561,000. But the real champion is a pacer, the mighty Dan Patch who ruled the turf 40 years ago. He, according to conservative estimates, grossed more than $750,000, and some of the more enthusiastic Dan Patch fans insist he earned $1,000,000.

Whirlaway did all his money-winning on tracks. Dan Patch tapped all sources, and then profited in gold. Nowhere in history can proponents of the thoroughbred say that men smoked "Whirlaway Cigars" or that kids whooped over hills on "Man o' War Sleds." But they smoked "Dan Patch Stogies" and they rode "Dan Patch Sleds."

Cattle munched "Dan Patch Feed." A nation toasted the fame of a crooked-legged pacer, which came to an owner for $375. Dan Messner bid $225 for Dan Patch's dam, spent $150 to have the mare bred to Joe Patchen, which briefly held the world pacer record at 2:01 1/4. Dan Patch beat his sire's time by six seconds.

DAN PATCH won his first race as a four-year-old, defeating two unsung rivals handily. Proponents of the thoroughbred say the young man tipped the scales at 7 1-2 pounds.
