Strike Settlement Efforts Balked Again

Well... I Dunno, But...

Mr. and Mrs. E. C. White have received a long letter from their son J. W. White of Texas City, who was there at the time of the disaster which struck there. White and his family escaped injury.

In his letter he stated that he had been on the docks just a few minutes before the explosion. Being a member of the water department and observing a fire at the docks, he went down to see what kind of fire would create an orange colored smoke. He said that when he discovered what it was he made his way back to the water plant, where he is employed, to keep the water pouring out for the trucks. Before he got back to the plant, however, the second blast occurred.

He says that words can't describe the destruction, death and horror of the experience and that a 30 foot long drive shaft from the ship was found three miles from the blast. He stated that fires in the big oil storage tanks were set by pieces of steel that penetrated them after the blast. Many of those killed in the disaster were his personal friends, whom he had known for years.

Jack Burton of Hollywood, California, topnotch magazine circulation, who was the speaker at the recent banquet for ex-students of Byers High School and at which Dr. G. C. Boswell was the honored guest, paid a beautiful tribute to Dr. Boswell. In fact, he laid what success he has attained to training that Dr. Boswell insisted he have while a student at the school of which Dr. Boswell was then superintendent. Burton particularly stressed the importance of the public speaking training that he had had there.

He stated that too much stress cannot be put on courses in public speaking and that if he were a school superintendent it would be one of the "must" courses in all schools.

On this point we'll sure agree with him. Lots of good news are lost to us because the fellow who had the idea hasn't the ability to make the audience see its worth.

As we saw by the morning papers, Ranger Lions came back from the Brownwood convention without landing the 1948 meeting.

Local Lions are taking their defeat philosophically, and say that it was strategy that sent the next meeting to Wichita Falls instead of Ranger.

We'll sure hand it to members of the local club for having planned and conducted a thorough campaign to swing the next convention for Ranger.

Sometime ago we mentioned the whistle of the Texas and Pacific's new Diesel engines as sounding like the call of an oversized bullfrog.

Some seemed to think we insulted the dignity of the new speed demon's whistle and suggested that we should have likened it to a steamboat whistle. Well, it does sound a little that way but being a lot more familiar with bullfrogs than with steamboats, we just naturally made that comparison.

Anyway, bullfrog or steamboat, everybody knows when the Diesel is coming into town.

Yes, we know that we're missing a lot of news items and some of them are running a little late. But if there's anyone business to which a telephone is more essential than to a newspaper, we'll have to be shown it to believe it.

While there's some relief in not having the phone ringing every few seconds, we believe we'd rather have that than all of the legging we have to do to see who more that, who met where and what was said when they got there. Yes sir, we could use a little telephone service, quick.

WORLD PEACE HOPES BOOSTED BY U.S. POLICY

WASHINGTON (UP)—Secretary of Navy James V. Forrestal said today that prospects for world peace had been "somewhat improved" since the United States began pursuing a more realistic course in world affairs.

Addressing the 35th annual convention of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, Forrestal said the "outlook for peace is somewhat improved today, if for no other reason than that in the United States we are facing the facts of international life more realistically than we did years ago."

"We now realize that bringing this world of men back to anything like normal is a task of very great proportions," he said.

Forrestal defended the so-called Truman doctrine of aiding countries faced with external pressures.

Perpetual Calendar Idea Floods Legislators With Fan Mail

By Grant Dillman
WASHINGTON (UP)—The house foreign affairs committee staff isn't having any more, thank you, letters about a perpetual calendar, that is.

It started when Hawaiian delegate Joseph E. Farrington introduced a bill to have the United States and its territories adopt the Edwards perpetual calendar.

Under the proposed calendar, the year would be divided into eight months of 30 days each and four 31 day months. February, short-changed by the present calendar, would have 30 days.

Since that would add up to only 364 days, the first day of each year would be set aside as Year Day. In Leap Year, there would be two Year Days.

The year always would begin on Monday, the Fourth of July would fall on Thursday and Christmas would come on Monday.

It wasn't the bill that bothered the committee employes. It was the mail response.

After that, he hopes to return to college to study electrical engineering and then to go in business in this country.

VANDENBERG FOR MARSHALL ON MOSCOW FAILURE STAND

WASHINGTON (UP)—Senate President Arthur H. Vandenberg, chief Republican foreign policy spokesman, lined up solidly behind Secretary of State George C. Marshall today in blaming Russia for failure of the Moscow foreign ministers conference.

He supported Marshall's position that peace treaties for Germany and Austria cannot await the "compromise through exhaustion" suggested by Soviet Premier Josef Stalin.

Peace lags because the Soviets insist "upon demands which America and her other allies cannot accept," Vandenberg said in a statement.

His views echoed those of Marshall in his radio report to the nation on the unsuccessful Moscow meeting.

Vandenberg praised Marshall for declining to surrender basic American principles at Moscow and for insisting that "the world cannot indefinitely permit disintegrating forces to threaten sound results."

If a peace settlement is beyond reasonable reach "we cannot wait too long for a peace program which at least unite those who can agree," Vandenberg said.

Seward still was asleep in the machine when police caught up with him.

The officers admitted Seward wasn't really driving his car, "but he shouldn't have been asleep and that's rather careless."

The converted bomb carriers are of heavy gauge steel; five feet long, wide and deep enough to hold just the right amount of feed. They are also watertight.

UNION HEAD WALKS OUT AS WAGE OFFER IS REFUSED

WASHINGTON (UP)—New government efforts to end the 23-day telephone strike ran into a stone wall today when the American Telephone & Telegraph Co., refused to go along with a union demand for some kind of a wage offer.

Robert Creasey, vice president of the long lines affiliate of the striking National Federation of Telephone Workers, left a bargaining session with A. T. & T. charging that "the company refused to bargain."

George S. Dring, assistant vice president of the A. T. & T. long lines division, denied the charge.

"Creasey demanded that we make a cash offer on a wage boost," Dring told reporters. "We countered by telling him that we are ready and willing to arbitrate wages. We don't consider a refusal to make a cash offer as a refusal to bargain."

Dring said that Creasey had "talked in terms of a $6 a week or 15 cents an hour pay boost."

Federal Conciliator William N. Margolis said he recessed the joint session after only a half-hour meeting because of the firm position taken by each side on the wage question.

He said that he would resume separate sessions in an effort to get them back together again.

He said that negotiations had not collapsed or been broken off. The unexpected turn of events forestalled government submission of a new plan for ending the walk-out. Other conciliation conferences involving Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. and Western Electric Co. were delayed until later today.

THE POLICE FORCE AND THE VETO

After a year's discussion the UN Military Staff Committee has told the world this much, and only this, about the UN international police force: it will be used only in disputes involving small and medium powers.

This is not comforting knowledge, and at first thought it might seem to forecast the decline of the United Nations. Yet the Military Staff Committee could scarcely have reached any other conclusion without abandoning realistic considerations.

The Military Staff Committee's decision stems from the same line of thought which justified inclusion of the veto in the UN Charter at San Francisco.

The major powers' right of veto, however, is not limited to matters involving themselves. For that reason there is some question whether the international police force, when it is set up, could be ordered to take action even against the majority of disputes involving minor powers.

Suppose this force was in existence today and border fighting between Greece and her northern neighbors was increasing in extent and intensity.

The Council might, as a last resort, propose that the international police force be dispatched to disarm the aggressor and restore peace.

Behind almost every dispute or threat of dispute among the nations today lies the question of whether democracy or communism might step in and emerge victorious.

Under those circumstances, an international police force might be of small practical significance.

It could be a significant factor under different conditions of course. But those conditions would depend upon two possibilities which at present are discouragingly remote. One would be an acceptable and binding agreement between the U. S. and Russia on the geographical limits of the communistic Soviet empire.

NEW YORK—(NEA)—The return of another World War II casualty, the famous Missouri Valley AAV Decathlon, to the Kansas Relay is reminiscent of the fact that the event is vastly more than a test of mediocrity.

Instead of it is at once the most grueling contest and most coveted championship on the Olympic Games program.

American flags being run up for the first three places in Berlin in 1936 was the saddest blow to Adolf Hitler. Here it was that the Nazis, in their own magnificent new stadium were to show the cockeyed world they were outstanding as all-around athletes.

But when it was all over but the shouting it was Glenn Morris of Denver on top and Robert Clark and Jack Parker, also 100 per cent Americans, just behind him.

Of all the Kansas Relay events the Decathlon has produced the most Olympic champions and team members.

Kansas' Jim Bausch rolled on 822.40 points at Lawrence in 1932, went on to win the world crown in Los Angeles with a record total. Finishing behind Jarrin Jim in order in the Missouri Valley edition were teammate Clyde Coffman and Buster Charles of Haskell. They earned the United States' other two Olympic team Decathlon spots.

MORRIS' 7576 under the revised Finnish point system, established before he went to Germany, still is the Relays high. Among other all-around aces no one but this time he decided to wait a big cow that strolled in front of the vehicle and just stood there.

The moose stood in front of the snowmobile for five hours before she sauntered into the woods. Ryan said he was considering asking park Supt. J. W. Emmert for permission to try tear gas as a "moose disperser."

WASHINGTON COLUMN

BY FELEER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, D. C.—(NEA)—Best index on today's prosperity and production trends is obtained by watching figures on consumption of electric energy.

Ever since July 4, 1946, power consumption has been going steadily upward, surpassing even wartime peaks. There was a drop during reconstruction and big strike period for about 11 months after V-J Day.

This seasonal all-time record figure may drop a little during the spring and early summer months. But a strange thing has been happening to U. S. power consumption Summer used to be the low season. With the increasing use of air conditioning, however, many power companies now find their afternoons in August. It would not be at all surprising if U. S. power consumption topped the five billion kw per week figure this summer. Now this is getting within 10 per cent of installed generating capacity. And it is causing a few far-sighted individuals to wonder if the U. S. may be heading into an era of electric power shortage.

ARTHUR GOLDSCHMIDT, a young Texan who is director of Department of Interior's Division of Power, has been talking this way for some time. But he has been having difficulty getting anyone to take him seriously. "Tex" Goldschmidt won't go so far as to say there will be a shortage. He calls it a deficiency.

Nearly every electric power company has more generating equipment on order. Manufacturers are turning it out as fast as they can. But it's a race to see if the generators can be installed ahead of demand.

From California, Washington, and Oregon in particular anguished cries are beginning to be heard in the capital about impending power shortages. Sprinkled by their war-born aluminum and manufacturing industries, they are growing, and they need more electric power to keep up with themselves.

If power deficiencies do develop, they will make burnt out of a lot of spokesmen for the private power industry. Before the war they sang the blues that the government was wasting the people's money, building all those big dams and hydroelectric plants in the west and Tennessee Valley. They said there was no industry in those areas, and they predicted such "backward" areas would never be able to use a fraction of the electric power generating capacity.

WHAT they apparently feared was that if there was surplus power, rate cutting wars might develop and the private power companies might lose money. That private power companies have not been losing money is best shown by 1946 financial statements. Gross income was $3 billion, on a net worth of $13 billion. This year it will be higher in spite of increased costs.

Under present trends, anyone who predicts that the U. S. can over-produce anything is being pretty naive. Two million new houses and a quarter of a million new business enterprises in the next couple of years can burn up a lot of juice.

Furthermore, the lower the price the greater the consumption. Rural Electrification Administration has proved that time and again. Sales of appliances boom as cheap power becomes available.

In Congress today are a number of proposals to limit the development of public power, to raise rates, like it out of competition with private utilities. They are among the most short-sighted measures now being advanced in a Congress that is becoming notorious for its open catering to special interest leaders and pressure groups. Private power companies are going to have the lion's share of the business anyway. They now own 81 per cent of generating capacity, against 19 per cent publicly owned.

Miss Kirk To Sing Soprano Role In Opera

ABILENE, April 29 (Spl.)—Miss Lillian Kirk, daughter of Mr. K. F. Kirk, Route two, Ranger, Texas will sing a soprano role in the opera "Martha" when it is presented by the Hardin - Simmons University School of Music next Thursday and Friday, May 1 and 2.

Miss Kirk has had a great deal of music experience before coming to Hardin-Simmons. She has sung in the Ranger High School Chorus, Church Choir, and the Colony Grade School Chorus. In Ranger High School she studied the piano under Miss Hightower and at present is studying the piano under Miss Lucas at Hardin-Simmons.

"Martha", one of the most popular of operas since its first presentation in 1847, is the story of the peasant and nobility life during the reign of Queen Anne of England.

It will be the first University Opera staged in Texas which will have an outside director. Giuseppe Bamboscheck, director of the New York Metropolitan opera company, will be the imported director. The only other outsider will be the star tenor, Carl Nicholas, who has sung in many Broadway productions and in Irvin Berlin's famous "All-soldier show, "This is the Army".

The rest of the opera company will be composed entirely of Hardin-Simmons talent. More than 50 students will comprise the orchestra while 62 students will make up the chorus, in which Miss Kirk is to sing. The Chorus is under the direction of Kenneth Ballenger, while the orchestra, normally conducted by Prof. Herbert M. Preston, will be under the guest leadership of Bamboscheck.

Detouring Around Financial Tangles

... has long been a mark and characteristic of the successful man. Young, inexperienced men seldom do and sad to say, few of his older brothers. To avoid many of the pitfalls blocking successful careers, watch investments closely, save something regularly—spend less than you make—and if one deals in real estate, guard against faulty titles. While there may be no set rule that would apply under all circumstances and to all individuals alike, these few fundamentals, if followed, will detour you around many financial tangles.

Vets Reinstating National Service Life Insurance

In the two-week period from April 2-16, 641 veterans served by the Veterans Administration Dallas Regional office reinstated National Service Life Insurance policies. The policies, made effective through payment of two monthly premiums, amounted to $4,446,265.

Dallas set the pace for the eight regional VA offices in Texas, Louisiana and Mississippi. Reinstatements for the Branch 10 area, comprising these three states, totaled 3,540 for the two week period and amounted to $24,964,000.

Since Congress extended the time until Aug. 1 when a veteran could reinstate his policy without necessarily taking a physical examination, nearly 30,000 former servicemen and women in Texas, Louisiana and Mississippi who have allowed NSLI policies to lapse have availed themselves of this protection.

VA has announced that the majority of 15 million servicemen and women who took out the NSLI insurance during World War II will eventually receive policy dividends. VA is not now undertaking the enormous task of calculating these dividends, but payments to individuals will vary greatly. They will be based on the amount of insurance the veteran carried, the length of time he held the insurance, and his age at the time he took out the policy.

Air-Flown Bubble Gum Hikes Price In Philippines

OAKLAND, Cal. (UP)—Children in the Philippine Islands have their bubble gum delivered by air even if it does cost more that way.

Almost 7,000 pounds of bubble gum was flown from Oakland municipal airport to the Philippines aboard a plane of the Philippines air line.

Cost of sending the gum by air will raise the price in the Philippines from one cent a stick to six or seven cents a stick.

Old Master Uncovered
MILAN (UP)—Experts repairing the ancient church of Santa Maria della Grazia, which boasts the possession of the Leonardo da Vinci masterpiece, "The Last Supper," have made an important discovery of another work of art.

A masterly painting of the Almighty surrounded by angels was uncovered when the walls were being repaired. Experts believed the fresco dates back to 1400 and might be the work of the famous painter Bernardino Butinone or one of his pupils.
