9 Dunno, But . . .

We take off our hat to the staff of the college annual, The anger. It is one of the cleverest and most handsomely finished the college has ever turned out.

Carried out in an all-western eme, the art work, done by Tom Bryant is striking and clever, and nething to make a professional git up and take notice.

The book is well organized and the entire staff deserves credit for the work. Billye Jeanne Crawley and Alvin Johnson were co-. editors of the book.

We hear that the bankers around town are going to get a double dipping on the holiday deal. They'll observe Friday, May 30 as Memorial Day and on June they'll observe Confederate Memorial Day.

Yes, yes, we know the bankers say their holidays are like the postman's that goes walking on his day off—the bankers work behind the closed doors.

Anyway, this time it's a sort of skip, hop and jump deal—the bank will be closed Friday, May 30, open Saturday, May 31, closed Sunday, June 1, open Monday, June 2, and closed Tuesday, June 3. And if you've got pending bank business, you'd better carry this little calendar around for the next few days.

Do You Have Frequent Headaches?

Persons afflicted with "eye-caused headaches" are often surprised to find out how quickly properly fitted glasses relieve this distress. All headaches are not caused by eyestrain -but a great many of them are, and this is particularly true of headaches which closely follow reading, studying, bookkeeping, card playing or an evening at the movies.

WASHINGTON - Business, though still good, has stopped partment reported today.

While noting that business re mained at a high level during April, the department said vihe unthan a year was halted."

Both upward and downward trends were evident during the month but they tended to cancel each other out, the department explained.

Customer prices continued to rise except for food. That dropped 0.8 per cent between mid-March and mid-April.
