Saule Perlstein On Committee To Aid Displaced

Saule Perlstein has been appointed a member of the Texas Citizens' Committee on Displaced Persons and has asked that people of Ranger study the nature of the work of the committee and lend their support to the cause.

The committee is specifically devoting its efforts toward relieving the distress of people still held in detention camps in Europe. At the present time there is a bill before Congress, HR 2910, providing entrance into the United States of 100,000 non-quota immigrants. Perlstein urges interested persons to write congressmen about the bill.

There are still over 850,000 people in these camps in Europe and it is estimated that 400,000 would be a fair share for the United States to admit into this country.

The committee has pointed out that unless something is done to relieve these people, they will become a serious threat to the peace of Europe.

The national committee is composed of some of the country's most prominent people.

CHARGES WHITE HOUSE USED PRESSURE ON HOLLYWOOD

WASHINGTON — A House Un-American activities subcommittee charged today that "some of the most flagrant Communist propaganda films" produced in Hollywood were a "result of White House pressure."

The subcommittee issued a statement which said its charges were based upon testimony and evidence submitted to it during the recent investigation of Communist activities in Hollywood. No details of the alleged White House influence on movie production were given in the subcommittee report to the full committee.

The subcommittee recommended however, that an investigation be started to determine "responsibility and extent of the influence and interference on the part of government agencies or officials in the production of flagrant communist propaganda films."

The subcommittee also charged that the National Labor Relations Board has "given great aid to the Communists in their efforts to infiltrate and control the motion picture industry."

"There is no question as to the serious inroads that Communists have made in the motion picture industry, and it presents a problem which can only be corrected on complete exposure by the part of the committee and studio heads," the subcommittee said.

FORD BOOSTS EMPLOYEES' HOURLY WAGE

DETROIT — The Ford Motor Company today offered its production employees a 15-cent hourly wage increase and announced a 10 per cent pay boost for all salaried workers earning less than $1,000 a month.

The provision for salaried employees, however, excluded 3,800 striking foremen since the Foremen's Association of America has terminated its contract with the company.

John S. Bugas, Ford vice president and head of the firm's negotiating committee, said the company had offered to renew its present contract, amending it only to provide for the 15-cent hourly increase. The pact would become effective May 31.

As an alternative, he said, the company offered to make a new contract effective June 15 and insert in the contract pact any amendments agreed on through collective bargaining by that time.

The present contract expires May 30 and covers some 130,000 across the country represented by the CIO Auto Workers union.

Bugas said three and a half cents of the proffered increase would be in the form of six paid holidays a year. It followed the pattern set for the industry by General Motors and Chrysler Corporations.

Says Truman To Go Back To Washington Soon

GRANDVIEW, Mo. — President Truman's mother has made such a remarkable rally that the chief executive is planning to return to Washington, the White House staff announced today.

Press Secretary Charles G. Ross said the President's 94-year-old mother bounced back so strongly that the President was preparing to end his long visit here and return to the White House.

Ross would not disclose the time set for the President's return but it was understood to be planned for the very near future.

"Since Saturday night she has rallied remarkably," Ross told reporters. "Her improvement has reached the point where, if there is no setback, the President may now safely consider returning to Washington," he said.

WASHINGTON ORDERS FBI TO MOVE IN ON THE CASE

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Ballot boxes containing records of 34 Kansas City precincts, studied by a county grand jury which returned almost 70 election fraud indictments, were rifled during the night by professional safecrackers who invaded the towering Jackson County court house.

"It appears they took only the ballots," Ludwig Graves, board chairman, said. "We, of course, can't tell for certain until we make an investigation."

Shortly after 10 a. m., Graves announced he had received word from the FBI office here that it was "coming in on the case on instructions from the attorney general in Washington." He immediately went into conference with FBI agents.

With the vote fraud finger once more pointing squarely to Kansas City, after a 10-year gap, the night raid on the ballot boxes, held in a vault behind twin locked doors, produced from Graves the flat statement— "Whoever it was clearly indicated what they were doing. Whoever broke in there was trying to steal records in the vote fraud proceedings."

Graves said that the job had professional earmarks. The vault room opens off a storage room, which can be entered by two doors. One was blocked from within by a board lodged beneath the knob. The other was muffled with cloth padding. The doors to the vault itself bore evidence of having been "punched" and then blown.

Meanwhile, in Washington, Atty. Gen. Tom Clark and FBI Chief J. Edgar Hoover were called before a senate subcommittee to answer questions as to the government's hands-off policy in the August congressional primary in the 5th Missouri District, in which Roger C. Slaughter was "purged" by the Democratic party at the request of President Truman.

Well... I Dunno, But...

A. B. Martin speaking to the Ranger Junior College graduates, Monday evening made some very practical suggestions that had some of the older generation lodging a little bit, and suggestions that the class would do well to impress upon their lives.

While you'll find that almost any boy or girl that goes through at least two years of college, has some objective in life, they may lack some of the other qualities that he mentioned. Initiative and original and straight thinking are good things to have but the things he mentioned that impressed us as being those most lacking in human beings are the qualities of accepting responsibilities and of respecting the rights of others.

One of the most common complaints we hear around Ranger is to the effect that "I can't seem to get anybody to do anything." That's just about right. Lots of people want to see things done, but when it comes to helping get them done, they're "too busy," gonna "be out of town" or uncle or aunt so-and-so is coming, company in other words. There're lots of other stock and trade excuses, but when it comes to analyzing the thing, we just don't want to be bothered, to the end that accomplishments aren't made or only half done.

This type person, we might add, is the champion fault finder. He can usually tell you why you should have done it or how you have or will fail, but try to get him to do anything to help the cause, and you hit a stone wall. Learn to accept our responsibilities in life is one of the most important steps in education, we think. And sometimes the education is costly.

Then, there's that other thing, respect for the rights of others. Out of disregard for the rights of others, grow such things as war, and on a much smaller scale in communities, the differences that create dissension—dissension that hurts efforts and causes.

We don't mean the little petty "chip on the shoulder" type of dissension, but the kind that blocks big progress.

Learning to respect the rights of others is something that should begin early in childhood, and from the little things of life, grow big enough to handle the bigger things and when they strike in our lives. Once heard a man who fancied himself as living in a restricted residential district, making the remark that he'd see that his neighbors didn't do this and that, yes sir, he would. And he sincerely believe that he, disregarding the rights of others, would carry out his threat, yes sir.

And like we say, out of such disregard for the rights of others, are born such things as war.

Driving along through the country late Tuesday evening, we were impressed with the fact that in every well kept field farmers were still at work. Though the sun was hanging low in the west, apparently oblivious to the fact, farmers toiled on.

They weren't "punching the clock." They weren't striking for higher wages, they were working at the biggest gamble of all—taking a chance against the forces of nature. As we looked at the miles and miles of grain, the freshly upturned earth in other fields, green gardens with a rich brown background of tilled soil, it occurred to us that the faith of a farmer is something that might be good for us all. Faith that during the night, a battering hail, a flooding rain, or a twisting tornado would not strike to blight nor destroy the results of his toil— toil from which comes his bread— toil from which comes food to sustain the world. Those farmers were LABORING, but not under the direction of a union.

The graduation of her daughter, Betty White, at TSCW June 2, will have an added significance for Mrs. Ven White—Ella to her friends. During the time that she is in Denton for her daughter's graduation, Ella will have a reunion with former college mates, all ex-students of old St. Mary's in Dallas.

Among those who will attend the reunion besides Ella, who was Ella Dreinhofner, will be her twin sister, Mrs. W. C. Gorman of Tyler, formerly Emily Dreinhofner, Mrs. Alton Cherry of Dallas, formerly Helen Gholson of Ranger

WASHINGTON COLUMN

BY PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, D. C.—(NEA)—Beardsley Ruml, the man who thought up the "pay as you go" tax plan, has a new idea—several new ideas—on how to dodge a business slump. He thinks the government can and should do more to co-operate with business in preventing a recession of serious severity or duration.

Edson

Writing in the financial section of a New York newspaper, Ruml criticized present policies of the Departments of Agriculture, Labor, and the Treasury for not doing enough or for doing the wrong things. When this statement was called to the attention of the heads of these departments, they begged to differ. Without saying it in so many words, they imply that Mr. Ruml may be not only unfamiliar with what their departments are doing, but also that he may not have all his basic facts straight on present economic conditions.

Ruml's new plan makes three main contentions: 1. The Department of Agriculture is more interested in farmers than in food. The department should, therefore, take the lead in a nation-wide drive for food conservation with "more meatless days and wheatless days... more potato pancakes and fewer eggs." 2. The Department of Labor is more interested in unions than in work. It should take more interest in vocational guidance, opening up apprenticeship opportunities, getting young men and women their first job, finding productive opportunities for the handicapped. 3. The Treasury is more interested in the federal budget surplus than it is in prosperity. It should, therefore, work towards reduction of taxes, then launch a campaign to sell "peace bonds" to soak up the extra spending power and stave off inflation.

SECRETARY OF AGRICULTURE ANDERSON in commenting on the Ruml farm plan points out that the real danger of an agricultural depression comes not from scarcity, but from surpluses. And getting less won't cure the surpluses. "We are now producing a third more than we can consume," says Anderson, "and consuming a sixth more. The present-day market basket contains more of the things people want when they have money to buy. Four bottles of milk for every three before the war. Six pounds of meat in place of five. Four eggs instead of three." Most of the things which Ruml wants the Labor Department to do are the very things for which Congress has refused to appropriate more money.

"The Labor Department's work on industrial relations gets the most headlines," Secretary Lewis Schwellenbach admits. "The largest part of our work and money goes into other less spectacular but productive activities. The U. S. Employment Service has a broad program of assisting in putting people into jobs that fit them, increasing opportunities for physically handicapped, and providing special services for veterans."

WHILE Secretary Snyder's office explains that the Treasury does not want to make direct comment on Ruml's new fiscal plan, it is pointed out that in recent statements Snyder has touched directly on the points which Ruml raises. Ruml's plan gives no consideration to the fact that the U. S. now has a national debt of $258 billion. Testifying before the Senate Finance Committee recently, Secretary Snyder said: "The size of the debt is a strong argument against tax reduction at this time. Under present conditions, I believe it will be sound financial policy to buy, as large a budget surplus as is possible and apply that surplus against the public debt."

Concerning the proposal to sell more "peace bonds," the Treasury points out that last month it launched its new "Bond a Month" drive. At the same time Secretary Snyder reported that for the first 10 weeks of the year, sales had exceeded redemptions by about $1 billion—twice the record of last year.

SPORTS

BY HARRY GRAYSON

NEW YORK—(NEA)—An invitation from Kentucky to see a squad game, played at night so all could see the new claws in the Wildcats, is reminding that college football is in for its most highly-gearred and savagely-fought postwar season next fall. Spring practice ends with practically every major school loaded with grand material.

There will be no more GI trouble. The men who returned from the ground forces have leveled off. There no longer will be discussion when younger players get the call. With Johnny Lujack once more turning the works and George Connor, and many more bigger and tougher than ever, Notre Dame is so formidable Frank Leahy is experiencing difficulty arranging schedules.

Army had considerable talent set aside in 1946, and Rip Rowan and Jackrabbit Stuart, as the result of a hernia operation last year, will do a better job of replacing Blomhard and Davis than a lot of people imagine. Without superfluous backs, the Cadets coached by Red Blaik would still knock people down.

With Blanchard and Davis, Army was literally saved by the bell in the Navy game early last December. Capt. Tom Hamilton now has the swing of things and field general Baysinger and a lot of other able-bodied lads on his side.

The earth will shake with Big Nine meetings. Illinois is fully prepared to defend the championship. Michigan has 25 lettermen. Bo McMillin's Indiana boys are neither "pure" nor little.

If you don't think Bernie Bierman and Minnesota will strike back, you're nuts. Ohio State is never shorthanded, and the Buckeyes are to be lashed by a new and highly competent coach, Wesley Pasler.

With material better dispersed, there will be horse-rushing jobs in the Southeastern Conference. Tennessee, Georgia, Georgia Tech, Alabama, Kentucky, Louisiana State and Tulane rate Hollywood substitutes. Vanderbilt, Florida, Auburn and Mississippi are improved. Mississippi State isn't bad. This league is better balanced than it has been in years. No team is expected to go through unbeaten. In the Southern Conference, Choo Choo Justice and North Carolina Duke is the country's top team. Duke is good. South Carolina and William and Mary are capable of causing headaches. Clemson is improved. Wake Forest does not appear as efficient as it was last year, but the Fighting Deacons have a way of stirring up trouble.

The 7-member executive panel of Kelley's committee, with officials of the railroad and regional chamber, conferred with Dr. Miller at Abilene, Tues. May 20. At the close of the half-day parley he accepted the offer of employment at a fee of $10,000 and said he would be ready to start work when needed statistical information is in hand. Miller asked that no announcement be made until he had obtained clearance from Pittsburg University for periodical leaves of absence from his classes. The clearance now has been granted.

West Texas Future Sidney L. Miller made this statement: "My visit to West Texas, through I have seen only a small part of it so far, has been a real eye opener. That point was stressed by L. C. Porter, Assistant to President W. G. Vollmer of the T & P. Porter added:

"It is our confident belief that Dr. Sidney L. Miller is in all respects qualified to aid us in setting a course for the reasonable, attainable and full development of West Texas. Upon his findings we hope to devote our efforts to the expansion and further development of those things for which our area is best suited, and not to spend time and money trying to follow courses that are economically unsound."

Asks Approval Of Project For Defense, Economy

WASHINGTON — Former President Herbert Hoover and Secretary of State George C. Marshall today asked early congressional approval of the St. Lawrence seaway project to strengthen the nation's defense and its peacetime economy.

Mr. Hoover and Marshall told a Senate foreign relations subcommittee that the long-debated project should be pushed to completion to provide a submarine-free waterway from the midwest to the Atlantic, and to serve as an important source of electrical power in both war and peace.

Oklahoma Spurs Tax On Illegal Stuff

MUSKOGEE, Okla. (UP)—Liquor is illegal in Oklahoma and no state tax is levied on it, but the sale of whisky provides a regular source of revenue here, nevertheless.

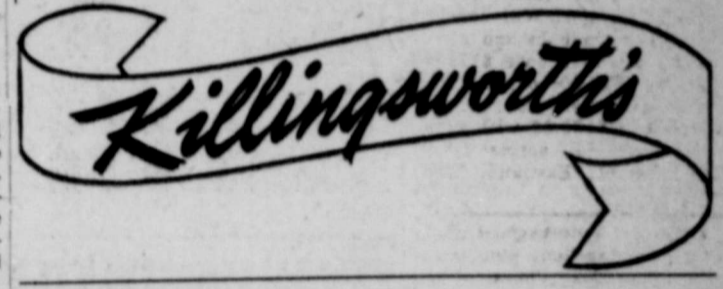

Since the first of the year, bootleggers and others fined for illegal possession of alcoholic beverages have paid penalties totalling nearly $8,000 to the city and county governments.

County and city officials say the intake in fines, fees and forfeitures is only a drizzle compared with what the revenue would be if a 10 per cent tax were levied on all liquor consumed in this area. Efforts to pass a law levying a 10 per cent tax on "illegal merchandise" failed during the recent Oklahoma legislative session.

SOVIET SCIENTISTS STUDY METEORITE THAT HIT EARTH

MOSCOW (UP)—One of the largest meteorites to collide with the earth in modern times, the massive one which crashed some 250 miles north of Vladivostok on the night of Feb. 12, was of a comparatively rare variety known as "hexadrite." Soviet scientists studying splinters from the meteorite have determined it contained iron, nickel, cobalt and a small amount of phosphorus and sulphur.
 Other scientists still are working in the area where the meteorite fell, with one crew excavating to reach what apparently was the main body of the meteorite. It is buried more than 35 feet into the soft ground of the sparsely-inhabited area. The crater it formed is 210 feet in diameter.
 Thirty-two other splinter craters have been mapped, most of them 45 to 75-foot diameters.
 Reports from the maritime provinces showed that the earth collided with "a small planet or asteroid" weighing 1,000 tons and only the fact that both the earth and flying in a direction opposite to that of the earth."

 The Tunguska meteorite, greatest known to fall in historic times, landed in Siberia with a great explosion and speckled many square miles with craters. It flattened trees away from the explosion for scores of miles around.

 Radio Moscow said: "The Sikhote Alin meteorite has an interesting chemical composition. Its crystalline structure is another proof of its cosmic origin. The expedition is continuing its studies."

The Bureau of Labor Statistics has estimated that 2,063,000 persons were disabled by work injuries in 1946, an increase of two per cent over 1945.

Sociologist Makes Case For Good Parents

CLEVELAND (UP)—A plea for the all-but-forgotten "good parents" in a writer of charges hurled at "delinquent parents" was made before the Family Service Association by Leonard W. Mayo.

Mayo is dean of the School of Applied Social Sciences of Western Reserve University. "It's time we heard more about parents who do their job year in and year out," Mayo said. He added, "the family has been a very hardy perennial of tough fiber and has withstood many economic and social crises."

He said, however, that this is not inevitable. Parents must continue to do their job, and in it be aided by the church, school and social agencies.

HUMAN VOLUNTEERS TO BE USED IN ATTACK ON CANCER

SAN FRANCISCO (UP)—Radical new medical and electronic treatments for cancer will be tested on humans for the first time at a $250,000 cancer laboratory to be in operation here by midsummer.

One of nearly a dozen experimental units throughout the nation, the superbly-equipped laboratory will test and evaluate many new anti-cancer agents in research designed primarily to learn the cause—as well as the cure—for the deadly disease.

Dr. Michael Shimkin, director of the laboratory, said many new drugs now are ready for testing after successful experimentation on animals.

"We don't expect any of them to be a 'cancer cure,'" he said. "But by testing them on human volunteers, we may be able to develop more effective agents."

Among these agents are complex sugars, synthetic sex hormones, many other organic compounds, and derivatives of the deadly nitrogen-mustard poison gas once used in warfare.

Volunteer patients in groups of 25 at one time will be treated by a technical staff that will include more than 30 doctors, scientists and nurses. The laboratory will be operated jointly by the University of California and the U. S. Public Health Service. The health agency is co-operating with other universities and research institutions in similar investigation, but this will be one of the few in which major emphasis is placed on a study of human cancer patients.

Dr. Shimkin said scientists also would study the relationship between cancer and immunity, hoping to find the factor that protects many people from the disease.

Sources of new mechanical and electronic devices will be used in a third phase of investigations of malignant tumors as they occur in patients and test tubes. One test will involve a sealed chamber in which automatic recordings are made of a patient's blood pressure, heart rate, blood chemistry, respiration and basal metabolism rate.

Another experiment will utilize supersonic wave bombardment of cancer cells, and another will delve into the electrical nature of cancer cells and the possible use of electronics in diagnosis and treatment. "We want to learn anything we possibly can about the nature of 'cancer cells, and why they are different from other cells," Dr. Shimkin said. "We also want to learn why cancer patients are different from normal patients—and how they got that way."

The fundamental goal of the laboratory, he emphasized, will be a search for the causes of cancer. "Once you find causes," he said, "it's a lot easier to find cures."
