Senate Committee Approves Tax Cut Bill

Well...
I Dunno,
But...

B. H. Peacock of Bedford, Mass. formerly of Ranger, writing to renew his subscription to the Times, tells us how much he and his family enjoy the paper.

We quote: "Please convey to Mrs. Ducker that we do so enjoy her editorials which are always packed full of good old common sense and best of all, that good old Ranger spirit of optimism and neighborliness. This is a splendid country, but I must confess they don't know what a good live Chamber of Commerce (Dr. or Sr.) is, as well as other attributes of a live wire community as those of us from Ranger have come to know it!"

Thank you, sir.

Charles Sutton who lives in the 900 block on Pershing street tells us that in keeping with a neighborhood agreement, the alley in his block is as spotless as it's possible to make it. And Mrs. L. E. Wolfe who lives in the 700 block of Cherry street sends us an invitation to come up and see their alley which is not only clean but "pretty".

Yes, you guessed it. That was Marjorie Maddocks that we were telling you about the other day. Though her surname was omitted by error in the first of the story, you might have gotten the vague impression it was through the fact that the C. E. Maddocks Company name was mentioned. Since Marjorie runs the business, she might maybe you'd get the idea.

They tell us that the Jaycees that turned out for work at the arena Tuesday night, found the deal rather profitable. Not only did they get ice cream from Ernest Shelton's Ice Cream Palace but they got ice-cold watermelon from Morris Newham's Frozen Food Locker Plant.

Shake a little food under those boys' noses and they'll follow you even if it does involve a little work.

In fact they like to eat so well that they're planning a big barbecue for rodeo stockholders and their wives or husbands, as the case may be. They're gonna have a right in the middle of the arena week from Thursday night.

Mrs. Frank Bourland has as her next her brother, Cpl. Fredum of the Marine Corps. For a year Cpl. Crum was orderly to Admiral G. F. Hogan, commander of the Air Force of the Atlantic Fleet.

He is the son of the late T. L. Crum and Mrs. Crum who for 40 years ranched in the Pecos area. Currently Mrs. Crum is writing a book on ranch life in those days.

Soviet Satellite Nations Refuse Pact in Plan

PARIS—Soviet satellite nations followed Russia's lead today in refusing to take part in discussions of the Marshall Plan for European economic recovery. Both Bulgaria and Romania rejected Anglo-French invitations to attend the July 12 conference in Paris. Czechoslovakia was the only Russian-oriented country which has accepted.

Marriage Legality Is Challenged

RICHO DE JANEIRO — District Judge Cheimont De Miranda today ruled that the death bed marriage of ex-king Carol of Romania and his red-haired mistress, Mazda Lupescu, cannot be legalized until their respective divorces are recognized by the Brazilian federal supreme court.

13-for-one Adoption MEADE, Kan. (UP) — Henry L. Meade got more than he bargained for when he provided for a stray shepherd dog that wandered in. A few days later she bore the mother of 13 pups.

Bandit Shot In Downtown New York

A mid-afternoon crowd gathers at Sixth Ave. and 42nd St. in New York City to watch the activity after a bandit was shot to death and a policeman was seriously wounded in a running gunfight in the bus at right foreground. The bandit, identified as Joe Fernandez, 25, New York, robbed a jewelry store and tried to escape by boarding a bus loaded with passengers. Patrolman Daniel Murphy was shot twice and was taken to the hospital in serious condition. (NEA Telephoto)

J. C. Howell Is Dead; Rites 5:00 P. M Today

Funeral services will be conducted at Hamner Funeral Home in Eastland at 5:00 p.m. today for J. C. Howell, who died in the Ranger General Hospital Tuesday at 4:50 p.m. after an illness of nine months. Rev. Weems S. Dykes will conduct the service.

Survivors are two sisters, Miss Pearl Howell and Miss Nocona Howell of San Antonio, and three brothers, A. H. Howell of New Mexico, Jack Howell of McAllen and Van Howell of Arkansas.

He also has a son whom relatives had not contacted at press time today.

Interment will be in Eastland cemetery with Hammers in charge. The deceased had lived in Eastland since about 1927, and was known as "Judge Howell". For a number of years he followed the carpenter's trade.

Carnival Being Sponsored By Ranger VFW Post

Under the sponsorship of the Ralph McKinley Post of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, the Starlight Amusement Company is staging a carnival here this week.

Site of the carnival is the lot at the corner of Highway 80 east and Tiffin Road.

All proceeds earned by the post from the carnival will be used in the work of the post and the public is invited to attend the carnival. One free act is presented at each night's show.

TEXAS UNIFORM TRAFFIC CODE

(One Of a Series)
Pedestrians, who frequently constitute the "X Marks The Spot" phase of traffic fatalities and injuries, will be brought under control, outside as well as inside, the corporate limits of cities by the new uniform state traffic code effective September 5.

Outside the cities they have frequently walked to their deaths at will or at least without the benefit of regulations that might have saved their lives.

Hitch-hikers, too, will come under a new regulation designed to lessen accidents. "No person shall stand in a road way for the purpose of soliciting a ride from the driver of any vehicle," the code states.

Roadway, within the meaning of the act, means from curb to curb, or that portion used for vehicular traffic. So hitch-hiking, as such, is not outlawed, but the person seeking a ride must remain clear of traffic.

Other rules covering pedestrians on roadways specify that where sidewalks are provided it shall be unlawful to walk along and upon an adjacent roadway and that pedestrians walking on highways shall, when possible, walk only on the left side of it's shoulder facing traffic.

Pedestrians, crossing at other

BOY SCOUTS BACK FROM CAMP TRIP

Members of Boy Scout Troop No. 19 with their scoutmaster, Rev. J. B. Duesman, have returned from a two weeks stay at Camp Billy Gibbons near San Saba.

Father Duesman reported today that during the time that his troop was in camp there were over 100 boys attending from various parts of the country and that it was one of the most successful sessions that he ever attended.

Ranger boys winning awards and badges at the camp were, Rolfe Brooks, Champ Pearson, Jackie Hummel, Gene Ready, Max Godwin, and Bill Yung, swimming merit badges; Jackie Hummel and Jim E. Smith, marksmanship awards and Junior Red Cross life saving awards, including the merit badge to Jackie Hummel and Rolfe Brooks.

During one of the troops outings, they discovered a human skeleton in a cave that had not previously been explored and so named the cave "Skeleton Cave". It was estimated that the skeleton had been there anywhere from 100 to 500 years.

Other members of the troop attending the camp were Jackie Souther, J. D. Harper, and Eugene Sutton.

"Hippie marks" on high quartzite bluffs above Devil's Lake near Earaboo, Wis., indicate a large body of water covered the area some 700,000 to 1,000,000 years ago.

Americans Went To Town On Ice Cream In 1946

CHICAGO (UP) — Unless you ate 16 quarts of ice cream in 1946 you didn't get your share.

The average American consumed nearly two pounds of ice cream during the year, to set some sort of all-time record, according to the Encyclopedia Britannica book of the year.

More ice cream was produced in the United States in 1946 than in any year on record. The total was about 750,000,000 gallons, compared with 471,000,000 in 1945 and a pre-war average of 315,000,000.

Pennsylvania made more ice cream than any other state in 1946, followed by New York, Ohio, Illinois and California.

16,667 Word Message Sent On Army Teletype

WASHINGTON (UP) — The Army claims a record in teletype transmission — a single, 16,667-word message from Tokyo to Washington.

Two army teletype operators, working in shifts, took eight hours to send the message which was described as official but not otherwise identified.

At current cable rates of $2.48 cents a word, the message would have cost $41,000.08, or enough to pay a buck private for 4 1/2 years of service. The only cost to the Army was the paper on which it was printed.

Medal Found On Farm Proves 15th Century

PITTSBURGH (UP) — An old brass medal, passed from hand to hand since it was dug out of the mud on a Mansfield, O., farm 40 years ago, has been revealed as a valuable museum piece.

The credit for identifying the work of a 15th century Italian sculptor goes to the Rev. Clarence E. Macarthy, pastor of a Presbyterian church here.

The medal, which bears the bust of its original owner, was carved by Pietro di Antonio Torregiani for Federico di Montefeltro, Duke of Urbino, Italy, in 1474. It commemorated the election of Montefeltro to the British Order of the Garter.

Worm Worked Overtime

PAWTUCKET, R.I. (UP) — A fisherman pleaded guilty to fishing without a license and was fined $5 and costs. Clovis Bureau, 20, of Pawtucket said he caught 40 pounds of fish on a single worm at the East Providence water department's reservoir. It must have been a tape worm, said the judge, skeptically.

SAYS ATOMIC DATA STOLEN FROM FILES

WASHINGTON — A member of the joint congressional committee on atomic energy said today highly secret data on the atomic bomb has been stolen from government files, but that part of the data has been recovered.

This member, who asked that his name be withheld, said he had been "pledged to secrecy" on the matter and declined to go into details.

The member however said the secret material had not been taken from files at Oak Ridge, Tenn. as reported by the New York Sun. He said the information had been taken "from another plant" but refused to specify which plant.

Another committee member also said the report that some secret data is missing was true. But some other committee members said they had heard nothing of it.

At the White House, Press Secretary Charles G. Ross said that no theft of atomic bomb secrets had been reported to the White House.

Ross said he thought it would be "very strange" if such a theft had occurred that it would not have been reported to President Truman.

First calls to the FBI and the atomic energy commission evoked the response, "we are checking."

Greeks Break-Up Communist Plot For Uprising

ATHENS — Government police cracked down on an alleged communist plot for an uprising in Athens and Piraeus today and by early afternoon had more than 2,500 persons under arrest.

No resistance was reported by any of those seized. The government's bag of prisoners was said to include 600 persons arrested at Piraeus, the port of Athens, as well as doctors, lawyers, and staff members of the Communist newspaper Risoastis and the EAM organ, Eleftheri Ellada.

Maps Of U. S. Enlightening European Youth

WASHINGTON (UP) — School children of five western European countries by studying gift maps are learning more about the country whose soldiers crossed the Atlantic to help free them from Hitler's forces.

The Junior Red Cross bought 100,000 United States maps, 40,000 large colored ones and 60,000 copies—and sent them as presents to school children in France, Belgium, the Netherlands, Luxembourg and Denmark. All the charts were drawn up by the National Geographic Society.

The Red Cross said it already has received notes expressing appreciation for the maps from young students at a school in Lille, France.

COWGIRL CONTEST IS ANNOUNCED

Members of the Ranger Junior Chamber of Commerce announced today that a cowgirl sponsoring contest has been added as a feature of their coming rodeo and invitations have already been mailed to surrounding towns and ranches.

Nearly $500 in prizes will be awarded to the winners in the contest with a $175 saddle donated by Ranger merchants as the first prize. Second prize will be a 72 piece set of Rogers silverware, donated by D. E. Pulley, jeweler and watchmaker. Greer's Boot shop has given a pair of $45 shop made boots for third prize and three prizes will be given each night to winners in the contests.

The contestants will compete each night in a barrel race and the other type race on the next night. The girls will be judged on three counts, 35 per cent on personal appearance, 25 per cent on riding ability and 30 per cent on her horse and its rigging.

This feature of the rodeo is expected to be one of the most spectacular and colorful events in the rodeo. It was also pointed out that the contest is "open to the world" and any young lady who wishes may enter the contest.

Say Mechanized Farming Will Oust 2,000,000

WASHINGTON — A special study group said today that the south probably will have to find jobs for an estimated 2,000,000 farm workers who are expected to be displaced by mechanized farming within the next 20 years.

The statement was included in a report filed with a House agricultural subcommittee by Dr. Frank J. Welch, dean of the school of agriculture of Mississippi State College. The report is one of nine prepared by the group on the future of cotton.

PATMAN SAYS FASCISM IN MASQUERADE

WASHINGTON — Rep. Wright Patman, D. Tex. charges in the controversial report entitled "Fascism in Action" that there are "strong symptoms of Fascism" in the country but that they masquerade under other names.

The House late yesterday okayed publication of the lengthy report as a public document after an angry debate in which it was called both an aid to Communism and a valuable weapon against Fascism. An effort to send it back to committee lost by 11 votes.

The report now will be published by the government printing office and sold to the public at cost.

Patman charges were included in his six-page foreword to the heretofore secret document. The remainder of the document was prepared by the legislative reference service and is based almost entirely on previous writings on Fascism.

Command Changes Are Announced

WASHINGTON — The War Department today announced a command shakeup in which Lt. Gen. J. Lawton-Lightning Joe-Collins will become deputy chief of staff on Sept. 1.

Collins, an outstanding corps commander in World War II, will replace Gen. Thomas T. Handy, who has been deputy staff chief since October, 1944.

Handy will succeed Gen. Jonathan M. Wainwright, hero of Iatan and Corregidor, as commanding general of the Fourth Army at San Antonio, Texas. Wainwright will retire Aug. 31 on reaching statutory retirement age of 64.

Conclusion Reached
WASHINGTON (UP) — A Senate judiciary subcommittee has reached a "conclusion" on a proposed investigation into alleged Missouri vote frauds, but the conclusion was the secret to day of Senator Homer Ferguson, R., Mich.

DEMOCRATS CAST THREE DISSENTING VOTES ON LAW

WASHINGTON — The Senate finance committee voted 10 to 3 today to approve the House-passed Republican tax reduction bill now in its second trip through Congress.

The committee quickly approved the measure in a session lasting less than an hour.

The three dissenting votes to the bill passed by the House yesterday, were cast by Senate Democrat Leader Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky, Democratic Whip, Scott W. Lucas, of Illinois and Sen. Tom Connally, D., Tex.

Before the final vote, Lucas offered a substitute bill which proposed greater relief for the lower income tax brackets than the Republican bill. It was rejected by the same 10 to 3 lineup.

The Republican bill, which the House approved by a vote of 302 to 112, calls for personal income tax cuts ranging from 30 per cent for individuals earning taxable income up to $1,000 down to 1 1/2 per cent for those earning more than $302,400.

Local Men At Pecan Growers Meet Tuesday

County Agent J. M. Cooper and Ben Freeman of Ranger were among those from Eastland county attending the 26th Annual State Pecan Growers Association meeting in Brownwood Tuesday.

J. C. Patterson, former county agent in Eastland county and at present county agent of McClellan county and located at Waes, is president of the State Association. Cooper and the county agents from Comanche, Brown, Erath and Mills county held a 30 minute round-table discussion on problems, methods, etc., of the pecan growers in this state.

County agent Cooper stated that the Comanche meeting was well attended for a meeting of that kind and that there was a growing interest in pecan culture.

South About To Win Freight Rate Battle

WASHINGTON — The south is about to enjoy the fruits of victory in its battle for lower railroad freight rates.

The Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday made effective its rate equalization order reducing "class" rates by 10 per cent in the south and west—except in mountain pacific territory—and boosting them 10 per cent in the northeast.

WASHINGTON COLUMN

BY PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, D. C.—(NEA)—Early book on the 1948 elections indicates how easy it will be for the Republicans to lose control of the Senate, even if a Republican president were elected.

Greatest source of loss in shipping individual relief packages of food and clothing to friends and relatives in European countries has been lack of insurance on parcel post.

CHANCES of ratifying the proposed 22nd Amendment to the U.S. Constitution before 1949 are slim. This is the recently passed Republican proposal to limit any U.S. president to either two full four-year elected terms or a total of not more than 10 years in the White House.

Opponents of Army-Navy merger bill have also launched a flank attack against the War Department's universal military training plan. Argument being used against such training is that it is all part of a grab by American militarists to get the dominant position in government.

SOME form of organized training for Greek and Turkish administrators is expected to be included in the $400 million relief and reconstruction programs for those two countries, if and when approved by Congress.

Many of these Turkish students formerly attended the American-supported Robert College and the American College for Women in Istanbul. The American College in Athens has now reopened and is being reorganized after having been closed by the Nazis during their occupation of Greece.

SPORTS

BY HARRY MARTINEZ
(Sports Editor of the New Orleans States, pinch-hitting for Harry Grayson, who is on vacation.)

NEW ORLEANS—(NEA)—Here in this crescent-shaped section of Louisiana, where sunshine, shrimp, and Saturday nights prevail, a new sports chant, set to the rhythm of beating drums, is sweeping throughout the Bayous for a guy named Bernie Moore.

It asks that Moore, the veteran track and football coach at Louisiana State University, be recognized and selected as the head mentor of the 1948 U. S. Olympic Track and Field Team and monotonously repeats its reasons why the Olympic Committee should take cognizance of his ability.

(1) Eastern coaches have had a virtual monopoly in the selections.
(2) No one in line for the Olympic coaching post has done so much with less, and when you look at his 15-year record you have proof sufficient that Moore is ably qualified.

(3) His genius in developing great stars is versatile: sprinters, hurdlers, weightmen, vaulters, discus performers, distance men.
(4) In 15 years Moore mentored track teams have won 12 of the 15 Southeastern Conference championships, and his 1933 squad, with only five men doing the scoring, topped the NCAA championship at Chicago.

Always regarded as the outstanding track coach in the south, the chant hit a new high last spring when the L. S. U. hurriers, boasting less balance than in past years and including seven crippled stars on the squad, virtually upset the apollon at Birmingham, Ala.
Moore's manipulations, conversations and all-round strategy, combined with the final event—the

DEATH of a DOLL

By Hilda Lawrence

THE STORY: Ruth Miller, a single at Blackman's department store, has been looking forward to moving into an attractive residence club for girls. But the evening she arrives, after being greeted by Angelina Small, assistant to the head, something in the lobby appears to terrify her. She makes an attempt to go out again immediately. Miss Small shrugs, sends Ruth's suitcase up to her room.

AT 10 o'clock the lobby was deserted except for Miss Ethel Plummer, an elderly spinster who took over the desk at night. In Miss Small's suite, Miss Brady was stretched full length on the low couch, her untidy black head resting on pillows. Miss Small sat at her feet. Within easy reach was a small table holding a spirit lamp and chairs. It was the hour for hot chocolate and confidences.

Miss Brady reached for her chocolate and took a deep swallow. Her long, ugly face relaxed, her eyes smiled. "This is the best part of the day. . . Marshall-Gill made me late. Talk, talk, talk, usual, and sees no reason why we shouldn't do the masks then, Sunday or not. What do you say?"

"Whatever you say, Monny." Miss Brady's eyes clouded. "What's wrong, Angel? You're miles away, you've got something on your mind." Miss Small hesitated. Then, "I'm worried," she said simply.

"Has some little tramp—" "No, no, Monny. Everything's all right. I mean, don't look like that. Nothing's happened at all. Only one sick tray, Minnie May's hangover, and only two week-end passes and I know they're legitimate."

recommended, but if she hurts you in any way, cut she goes." Miss Small raised puzzled eyes. "What do you mean when you say she was well recommended? She came here after that rule about references was thrown out."

MISS BRADY grinned when Miss Small recalled the rule. They had drafted it themselves and fought for its adoption. They argued that a girl's past was her own private business and insisted on her right to live it down if she wanted to. The Board had fought back, protested scandal, and lost. From that time on, no one was asked for a reference. The rule was three years old and so successful that Miss Brady sometimes forgot its origin.

"I mean I knew about Harris," Miss Brady explained. "She used to have a friend here, used to visit the friend before she moved in herself." She ran a hand through her hair. "Suddenly I am very, very sick and tired of this job," she said. "There's nothing to it any more. I don't know why I was presumably born with, I'd chuck the whole works and take you with me."

"Monny! You're thinking about Europe again!" "I am, and why not? Don't look at me like that; you know it's been on my mind for weeks. Listen. I get my grandmother's money next month, so why don't we resign? Reasons of health, and that's no lie, you look a wreck; and we'll grab the first boat and stay for a year. . . Angel, you look about ten when you smile like that. Feel better now?"

"That panic about Miller was probably your nerves. You're exhausted and I don't wonder. All these ugly brats; you know they're your beastly little troubles. Did you tell Miller about April Hooper?"

"Monny, I'm afraid when I'll go up there now, I'll go at once—" "Forget it," said Miss Brady. "I'll tell the girl myself tomorrow." But as things turned out, no one told Ruth Miller anything. (To Be Continued)

OKINAWA UNREBUILT TWO YEARS AFTER CAPTURE

By Miles W. Vaughn
United Press Vice President for Asia

NAHA, Okinawa (UP) — Two years after the conquest of this island by the United States in one of the bloodiest campaigns of the Pacific war, much of southern Okinawa still has the appearance of a battlefield.

The city of Naha, once a thriving port of 65,000 persons with a prosperous foreign trade, is simply a mass of ruins on either side of a military highway which connects U. S. Army installations on the island.

A few Japanese soldiers are believed to be still at large in the mountainous north and Japanese land mines and booby traps still abound and occasionally kill both Americans and Okinawans who venture into old towns, the debris of buildings and other dangerous areas.

Okinawa, indeed, is a symbol of the indecision of the United States in working out the details of its Far Eastern policy.

Organized Japanese resistance

On the island ended on June 21, 1945, after 82 days of the fiercest kind of fighting in which 15,000 Americans, including such figures as Lieut. Gen. Simon Buckner, commander of the U. S. 10th Army, and Ernie Pyle, war correspondent, lost their lives and some 20,000 more were wounded.

Twenty-four months later not a single major building on the island has been rebuilt. American troops are living in temporary shelters. Hundreds of thousands of natives are living in shacks not fit for human habitation. They are being fed in part by American food which has to be imported because of a lack of fertilizer and fishing equipment. Ships are being unloaded in rudimentary fashion because of delay in rebuilding the port.

"Okinawa is one of the forgotten islands of the postwar period," a leading American here told this correspondent. "When an occasional brass band flies through here from Washington en route to Tokyo or Shanghai he is likely to agree that Okinawa is of vital strategic importance to the United States, but so far as we can find out, he does nothing about it."

U. S. military leaders are not inclined to talk for publication, but it is obvious that they hope desperately for early clarification of the status of the island and announcement of a long-range American program. The local commanders are doing what they can, but that is little because of a lack of funds and authorization.

The best kept spots on the island, so far as this correspondent

When Vacation Comes, Boy Ends Up In Hospital

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M. (UP) — Spending vacations in hospitals seems to be a custom for Alfred Baca, 12, son of City Jailor John Baca.

The boy was in the hospital two years ago during vacation because of rheumatic fever. He had gone last summer and was in the hospital again.

It's vacation time again and Alfred is in the hospital, recovering from an appendectomy.

THE STORY: Ruth Miller, a stenographer at Blackman's department store, has been looking forward to moving into an attractive residence club for girls. But the evening she arrives, after being greeted by Angelina Small, assistant to the head, something in the lobby appears to terrify her. She makes an excuse to go out again tomorrow night. Miss Small tells Miss Brady, the head, about the incident. She fears the girl is going to bring them trouble.

RUTH MILLER returned to Hope House at 11:30 with the once-coveted blue in a paper box. She had forced herself to buy it. It was all she had left of the new life she had planned.

A few hours before, when she had confidently walked into the future, she had come face to face with the past. Run, she had said to herself, run; you still have a chance. But she had been running for years, from city to city, from job to job, putting time and distance between herself and a screaming promise, and her route had been a circle. Above the chatter in the lobby she had heard one voice. In a sea of strange faces one face was not strange. It's a scheme, she'd said, it's a destiny, I'm lost.

But she had run again, out into the night, pleading with herself to be calm. She'd thought of Mrs. Sutton, maybe Mrs. Sutton would take her in and ask no questions. Maybe she'd listen and advise. But then she'd remembered that Mrs. Sutton was leaving town.

She'd begun to cry, standing on a corner and turning slowly and steadily as if she were surrounded. The fog was thick and the passers-by were dim and shapeless. She could follow me and I wouldn't know it, she wept; I wouldn't see her. My eyes—

That was when she'd remembered the eye doctor. The only man she knew except Mr. Benz. And his office wasn't far away, an office and apartment combined. She'd talk to him and he'd tell her what to do. He'd been well-friendly. He'd been well-interested.

She'd climbed the stairs to his office, but no one had answered her ring. She'd slipped a note under the door, asking him to call her at Hope House. "Leave a message if I'm not there," she'd written, "and tell me where I can reach you. I need some advice. It's important to me." She couldn't tell him how important. She couldn't write a word like death. It would look hysterical.

SHED left the doctor's building and walked to Fourteenth Street, telling herself to buy the blue because he would see her in it. But the scheme took care of that.

Ten minutes after she left the building a cleaning woman swept the note into the hall, down the single flight of stairs, and out into the gutter. Later on the rain washed the words away.

Outside the showwindow she had looked at the blue and talked to herself again. Talked and argued. Maybe I made a mistake, she'd said. Lots of people look alike, you're always hearing of cases. There was even a man who looked like the President. And she didn't act queer when she saw me, she acted like she'd never seen me before. So I could be wrong. . . . But she saw her own shaking hands and knew in her heart that there was no mistake.

But I'll go back there tonight, she'd said. I've got to. There's my suitcase and the telephone call. Nothing can happen if I go straight to my room tonight and lock the door. A big houseful of people, I'll be safe for one night. That's all I'll need, one night. He'll call tonight or tomorrow and he'll tell me what to do. Maybe I'll laugh about this in a day or so. I bet I laugh, I bet I do. . . . She'd tried to laugh then but it had sounded wrong.

MISS PLUMMER looked up from her embroidery when Ruth came in. "I've been waiting for you," she said kindly. "Kitty said you had gone out."

"Have I had a telephone call?" "No, dear. You had me worried, staying out so late all by yourself. We look up at midnight, except in the case of a special pass, and I wondered if you understood. Been buying something pretty?"

"I bought a suit." "That's nice. My name's Plummer, Ethel Plummer. My sister's the housekeeper here and if you're hungry I think I can get you a little something."

"No thank you, Miss Plummer. I'd rather go to bed." "You're a sensible girl, I can see that. Your suitcase is in your room, dear, and you can run yourself up in the elevator, that is if you're not timid about machinery."

"I guess I am a little. I don't think I've ever tried to run an elevator."

"Well, never you mind. I used to be afraid myself, but you'll get over it the same as I did. I'll take you up this time and you'll see how easy it is."

On the seventh floor Miss Plummer pointed down a bare, dim hall lined on one side with closed doors. "You see that big door straight ahead? That's the fire door. You go right on through to the other side. There's a short hall back there, with the bath, the telephone, and your own room. It's the only room at that end and it's nice and quiet, almost like a little house set off to itself."

"Miss Plummer?" Her voice broke and she tried again. "Miss Plummer, do outside calls come in on that phone?"

"Oh yes. When that happens we ring a bell in your room." Miss Plummer smiled a good night, and the elevator closed.

Her room was dark. She could hear nothing but she knew someone was there. The unknown roommate, already in bed and asleep. It had to be the roommate, it couldn't be anyone else.

Somewhat Like a Precious Heirloom—
 ... an abstract may, or may not, be used and appreciated as much as some other possessions we have. But it never becomes obsolete, and its value increases as time goes on. Unlike the heirloom, the abstract is not a rarity as most owners of real estate have abstracts. It is now almost impossible to sell a piece of real estate without an abstract. MEN SEEKING JOBS GET CHANCE TO SELL THEMSELVES ON RADIO

By Herman W. Nichols
United Press Staff Correspondent
CHICAGO (UP)—A new radio program is on the air in Chicago designed to give the big shots a break.

Briefly, it is aimed at finding jobs for white collar workers who are worth—or think they are worth—from $3,600 to $15,000 and up.

Quite properly, the program, aired two nights a week over a local station, is called "The Voice of Opportunity."

The "show" is the brainchild of Bob Whitehead of the Molene Personnel Service. He figured that a business executive who wanted to hire a high-priced "comer" would be able to warm up to his task better if he were at home with his shoes off and a highball on the cocktail table in front of him.

The big shot, for one thing, wouldn't have to face the applicant. He could just sit and listen to the man tell how good he is—how badly he needs a job, or how much he hates the one he has, and why.

On the first program were a salesman a public relations man with big ideas, an advertising man and a chemical engineer. The idea worked, too. For the next day, all had landed good jobs.

In the background, soft symphonic music is played and you get a swell mental picture of a man who wants to hire a junior executive sitting at home on his big fat wallet.

The first man up to go bad on the maiden program was a nervous advertising man.

First he gave his educational background—high school, college of law, etc.

Then the announcer, who was leading the attack, asked about the jobs he had held. Stock exchange broker, insurance broker. Six years with a wax importing outfit. Present job, working for a soap manufacturer.

"Would you accept $10,000 a year?"

A gasp. Then, in an awed whisper:

"Why, yes, I guess I could consider that salary."

The applicants each get five minutes for the spiel. Their identity is not known until the telephone calls start coming in—and so far they have been coming in rather fast.

Dean's Wife Gets Degree After 4 Tough Years

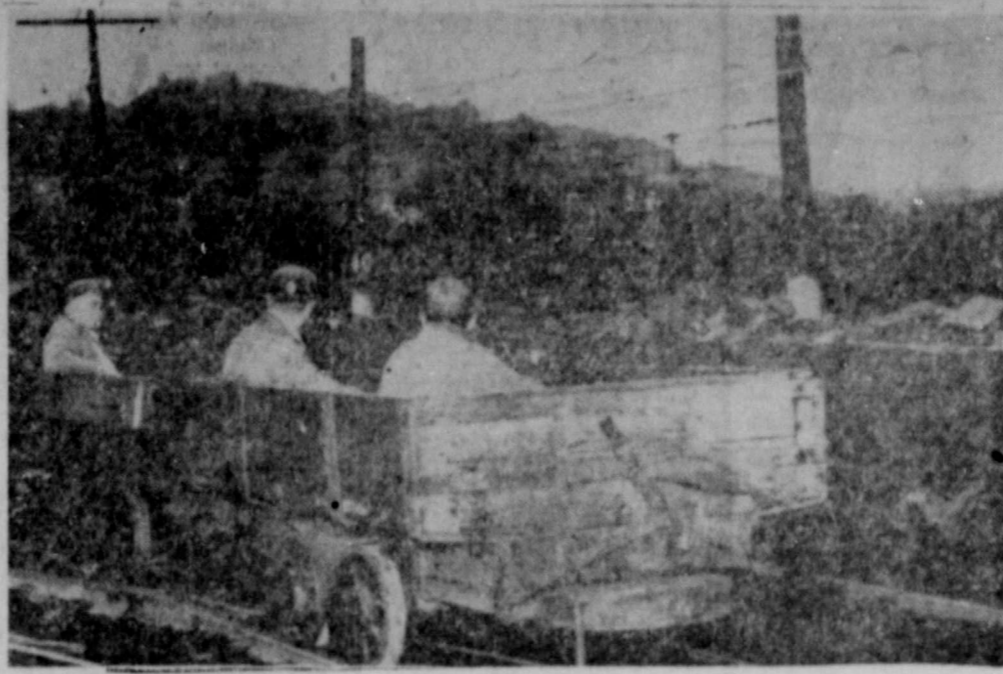

MARIETTA, O. (UP)—Dr. W. Ray Irvine, dean of Marietta College, called the name of his wife to come forward and receive her diploma at the school's commencement exercises this year.

She was one of 17 women among the 79 seniors who received degrees at Marietta. She majored in foreign languages and minored in English and music to get a bachelor of arts degree. In her four years of college work since she enrolled in 1943, Mrs. Irvine attained an average in her grades of better than B.

When she enrolled at Marietta, she said, she found her husband "tougher on me than any of the professors. He insisted that I get my written work in on time and that I live up to every requirement."

"The dean's ambition was to have me sent to his office, but I never gave him that satisfaction."

Miners Return To Work

Foremen enter Monyour No. 10 mine at Library, Pennsylvania. With the signing of the new wage contracts with Northern Mine Operators the threat of a nation-wide coal strike was averted although brief suspension of work by 250,000 miners in areas not yet covered by the agreement is certain to occur. Japs Drink Tea But Prefer To Have Coffee

TOKYO (UP)—The Japanese people along with the British, are known as the tea drinkers of the world, but it seems the Japanese prefer coffee.

Although the Japanese do drink tea, especially at home with their meals there are few tea shops in town compared to the hundreds of coffee shops which have mushroomed up on the various streets of most cities in this country.

The coffee shops cater to all classes of Japanese from the errand boy to the director of a company. The shops do a flourishing business all through the day.

'Come and Get It'

Tame as Junior's pet pup is this grinning porpoise, shown coming up for his dinner at the "Theatre of the Sea" near Miami, Fla.

Playing With Fire

Pauline Garcia, left, and Jessie Urias, workers in a Los Angeles laboratory, "attack" each other with flaming blowtorches, but neither gets burned. They demonstrate heat-resistant qualities of new plastic, which forms shields they hold. Resinous plastic, combined with spun glass, can be woven into flame-proof fabrics, used in airplane parts or molded into decorative furniture.

RANGER JUNIOR COLLEGE

SOLICITS PROSPECTIVE COLLEGE STUDENTS

The College offers courses in many fields. If the college student is interested in medicine, law, engineering, teacher certificate, secretarial work, public speaking, accounting, vocational, or terminal education it will do well to investigate the courses offered by Ranger Junior College. The Public Junior College faces in a favorable way the opportunities and responsibilities for bridging the gap between high school and life career. The Public Junior College is a recognized educational college, and is endorsed by universities and educators as being an idea college for freshman and sophomore students. Ranger Junior College teaches every thing that is taught with a view to its usefulness. Ranger Junior College is fully accredited and has a very liberal course of study planned for the purpose of giving two years of college work at a reasonable cost, thereby saving the student much money, and allowing it a great deal more money for the completion of the bachelor degree. The College is interested in the development of Ranger and Eastland County. It is a Home College. The College has Veterans' Housing Units

Grandmother In College Under GI Bill Of Rights

LATROBE, Pa. (UP)—When Grandma goes to college it's unusual, but when she is attending under the GI bill of rights it's really different.

In a diaper changing derby held at Woodbury College in Los Angeles, Mrs. Marie Barksdale, formerly of Derry, Pa., was introduced as the only grandmother enrolled as a student.

The grandmother-coded's history of schooling includes her completion of high school work during World War I. Her husband, Earl Boring, was killed in service overseas.

During the last war, Mrs. Barksdale served with the AAF as a Wac.

Speedy says---

The weather is a subject that grows old but always changes. Today we consider a few odd facts about weather.

If a piece of ice and a bucket of water were taken into a room with a temperature of exactly 32 degrees F., the ice would melt and the water would freeze. Try that one for size.

In Fairbanks, Alaska, the wind blows from exactly opposite directions in the short time of two or three seconds. Fairbanks is located between two high mountain ranges, and the air slides down the side of one mountain and up the opposite slope. It doesn't quite make it over the top and slides back into the valley. This can go on for several minutes. People walk at a 45 degree angle alternating in direction every three seconds.

Half of the atmosphere by weight is below 18,000 feet, yet scientists know that the atmosphere extends to a distance of 200 miles vertically. It certainly does get thin above 30,000 feet.

If the air were absolutely free of all impurities, rain would not fall. There must be some condensation nuclei on which the rain drops will form.

Vets Have 'til August 1 To Renew Policies

Four hundred veterans in the Veterans Administration Dallas Regional Office territory reinstated lapsed National Service Life Insurance policies between June 12-25, VA reported today. Face value of the policies was $2,822,152.

Veterans have until August 1 to renew lapsed policies by signing a comparative health statement and paying two monthly premiums. After that date, applicants may still reinstate National Service Life Insurance, but must pass a physical examination.

Goal of the Dallas Region is $53,429,118 in insurance reinstatements. This figure can be reached, said William H. Brigger, Jr., Regional Insurance Officer, if $182 former service men activate their policies.

James M. Brown, local Contact Representative, suggests that all veterans desiring to reinstate their National Service Life Insurance contact him at the Veterans Administration Contact Office, Sinclair-Prairie Building, Eastland, Texas.

Army's First Six-Jet Bomber

The Air Force's first six-jet bomber, the XB-48, taking off at the Glenn L. Martin airport, Baltimore, Md., on its initial flight gives a frontal view of the six jet intakes, and two sets of retractable wheels mounted in tandem, with outrigger wheels that fold into the wings. The plane's speed is listed at over 480 miles an hour, bomb load over 10 tons. Tactical flight radius is over 800 miles, or about half that of a Superfortress.
