Reds Attack U.S. Intervention In Java

Well...
I Dunno,
But...

Joe Dennis pointed out to us this morning that several years ago, during the early part of the war, loyal citizens contributed good American dollars to send Ranger men, and once, men from Eastland and Cisco, to Washington to try to get some kind of war plant for Ranger or even Eastland county. Now, we've got Washington offering us something and there's some doubt that we'll take it.

So far in our contacts with Ranger citizens with reference to the airport improvements program, we haven't found a single one that is opposed to the program. Two have said that there were other things they thought were important and one said that he didn't think we had the money, but even admitted that we ought to have it and he wanted to see it done.

Some more of the people "have spoke" as the Little Round Man would say and we quote:

"M' Ranger has a future, it must have an airport." Bobby Powell, Curtis Candy Company.

"It's an air age and we sure have to have an airport." Perry Horton, rancher.

"I'm in favor of it. It's a great thing and I'm strong for it." Bob Earned, Texaco wholesaler.

"I'm for it. It would be real nice." Pete Brashier, Ranger Furniture Exchange.

"I certainly think improvements could be made. I fly there and I know the runways could stand improvements. There are around thirty ex-GI's in the flying school." He further said that this brings more money into Ranger as the GI Bill pays for the training. "The port is increasing in air traffic all the time." Bill Brown, Texas Electric Service Company.

"I think it would be a great asset to the city for the present as well as the future as an air line stop. I see it as an asset to any city." Buford Wagoner, Texas Drug Company.

"We think it's a good thing. A good airport would certainly help Ranger and we feel that it is a progressive move." Delbert Capps and Hubert Capps, owner and operators of the Capps' Studio.

"You know how I feel about it. We ought to have it. If we're going to progress with the times, we've got to have a good airport." H. R. Hicks, owner and operator of the Hicks Motor Company.

"I don't like the way it's going. I want 'em to hurry up. Somebody is looking around the corner to the future. It'll be a good thing for Ranger. We've either got to go forward or backward and the airport improvement program is a step forward. I've seen the same kind of situation happen before. I remember the time when about 25 or 30 of us got in our cars and took two days of travel around in the Woodson and Throckmorton area in the interest of good roads and good will. We couldn't see the results right then, but we've seen 'em since. And the same will be true of the airport program. We may not see it right now but we will in the future." C. E. May Sr., head of the C. E. May Insurance Company.

Dear Jack:
You quit worrying about your water troughs. George Campbell has 'em. He took 'em to his shop to paint 'em and keep the thieves from getting 'em.

Whoopee, it doped it. Rained we mean. In thirty minutes of rain .50 of an inch fell and the clouds are still hanging around. Maybe, it'll do again.

We came across this in the Breckenridge American this morning. It was taken from the files of the paper dating back 20 years ago.

"Most anyone can be an editor. All an editor has to do is sit at a typewriter and type what he is told."

Good Breeding and Good Feeding Make Good Eating

"Rascal", the calf with which the FFA boys have been experimenting on a feeding program will go on "the block" Thursday at the Ranger Livestock Commission's weekly sale.

The three pictures shown above emphasize the value of good breeding and feeding in the beef industry. These pictures show three different stages in the growth and development of the same calf. On the left, Russel Edwards holds the calf at the age of 3 months, in the center is the same calf as he will appear at the auction next Thursday.

The calf was given to the FFA chapter by Dr. P. M. Kuykendal and is now being cared for by J. N. Carpenter. After 302 days on feed, the calf "Rascal" has gained an average of 2.48 pounds daily and now weighs 1950 pounds. This is an excellent gain for such a long feeding period, and the FFA boys want the local people to see what they have accomplished. For this reason the calf will be offered for sale at the regular auction next Thursday. If the people want to buy the calf he will be sold, if not the Future Farmer Chapter plans to keep him until October and show and sell him during the Dallas Fair.

H. G. Adams Grocery, H&C Supermarket, and the Ranger Frozen Food Lockers have all expressed a desire to bid on the calf when he goes through the auction ring; and if one of these places gets the calf, the people of Ranger will have an opportunity to buy some prime beef.

DISPERSION OF INDUSTRY IS PROTESTED BY AIRCRAFT MEN

WASHINGTON — President Truman's Air Coordinating Committee drew protests from aircraft manufacturers today with a proposal that the industry be dispersed as insurance against possible future air attacks.

The plane makers also had some doubts on the practicality of erecting experimental aircraft factories underground, a second proposal made by the Air Committee in a general survey of aviation policies issued late yesterday at the White House.

The committee reiterated its opposition to a "chosen instrument" or single United States company for all international air operations.

The "chosen instrument" proposal was the subject of bitter debate between Sen. Owen Brewster, R. Me., and plane maker Howard Hughes during the recent hearings before a senate war investigating subcommittee. Brewster and some other members of Congress favor the proposal. Hughes opposes it.

Ranger Man Wins In Ada Rodeo

Frank Mariam, leading Ranger citizen, was one of the Texans sharing in the $11,000 jackpot at the 12th Annual Ada Rodeo held at Ada, Oklahoma.

Frank took first place in bull riding and second in saddle bronc riding. All winners received saddles as additional prizes.

Other Texans winning were: Ernie Barrett of Pampa who was first in saddle bronc riding; Hub Whiteman of Clarksville, second in steer wrestling; and Sunny Edwards of Big Spring who was second in calf roping.

Royce Sewall of Big Spring took the special $100 prize for steer roping with a time of 19.1 seconds.

Anglers Hit Jack-Pot Over Past Week-End

POSSUM KINGDOM L A K E Aug. 18—Anglers hit the jackpot at this big lake over the week-end as all members of the finny tribe took a sudden interest to baits of all kind.

Four tagged fish, valued at approximately $600.00 were brought to shore and three were caught by man and his wife. But probably the biggest news was that catches all over the lake were by far the best of the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Buford Lineley of Mineral Wells carried off top honors of the day. Fishing with a party of four, this couple landed three prize fish—two crappie and a bass, bearing tags Nos. 101,143, and 135. Mrs. Buford snagged No. 135 and each of the three fish were worth about $150 in prizes. The party caught 50 crappie and 20 bass fishing from Cedar Crest Camp near Costello Island.

The other tagged fish, No. 390, was pulled in by R. S. Johnson of 1003 Arch Adams Street, Fort Worth. He made the catch fishing from Rock Creek Camp where many beautiful strings were brought in over the week-end.

Poor Rudolph Stops Airplane Propeller

FRANKFORT, Ky. (UP)—Accidents will happen, and Rudolph, whoever he is, has "fishing serious," only a dislocated knee cap as a result of an aircraft accident at one of Kentucky's landing fields.

Technical adviser Gerald O'Brien of the Kentucky Aeronautics Commission received the following report of an accident:

"Dear Sir: Rudolph was propelling plane with student in plane after calling for switchoff Rudolph pulled propeller through and motor started as switch was on off and propeller hit Rudolph on knee and knocked kneecap out of socket but no bones were broken but broke end off propeller. Nothing serious. Rudolph will be off as instructor for a few days."

O'Brien would not reveal the name of field and did not have Rudolph's last name.

Baseball Team Bails Housing With Passes

OKLAHOMA CITY (UP)—Ballplayers on the roster of Oklahoma City's Texas League Indians are among the many city residents hit by the housing shortage.

SENATORS TO EUROPE FOR STUDY OF RELIEF PLAN

WASHINGTON — Nine Republican and six Democratic senators were lined up today to go to Europe Oct. 1 for a broad on-the-scene study of the Marshall Plan and just about everything else involving U. S. spending in European and near-eastern areas.

They are members of a senate appropriations subcommittee which has been given an eight-point program. This includes first-hand investigation of European economic problems, morale of troops in occupied areas, "Voice of America" broadcasts, displaced persons, Greek-Turkish aid and the middle eastern oil situation.

Chairman Styles Bridges of the full committee said the "detailed inspection tour" would have a dual purpose—to "vie with the results of expenditures made to date, and to determine the need of the continued large outlay of U. S. taxpayers funds for the stabilization of Europe."

Six Dorms Being Remodeled at A & M

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (UP)—Six older dormitories at Texas A and M College are being remodeled now for the fall, giving resident of old halls approximately the same facilities as students living in newer buildings, Arch Baker, college architect, has announced.

Baker said about $50,000 is being spent on each of the older buildings.

Shacks Used At UT For Classrooms

AUSTIN, Tex. (UP)—Letter designations for the 14 frame "shacks" used for temporary buildings on the University of Texas campus will follow a pattern intended to indicate the use of the building.

"Z" hall will be used for zoology; "ED" hall for engineering drawing; "CP" hall for chemistry and pharmacy; and "V" hall for the veterans administration offices.

The "shacks" are for use until the university can start a new permanent building program that waits on approval in a state constitutional amendment to be submitted to the people's vote on Aug. 23.

LABOR BOSSES MUST STATE THEY ARE NOT COMMUNISTS

WASHINGTON — The Government ruled today that all labor union officers must file affidavits stating they are not Communists before their unions or affiliate unions can use the services of the National Labor Relations Board.

The broad, precedent-shattering ruling was handed down by NLRB General Counsel Robert H. Denham, who told reporters that settlement of the Communist issue would be the "most difficult mechanical task" created by the new Taft-Hartley law.

Denham's ruling requires all union officers to file the affidavit, including officers of the parent AFL and CIO from Presidents William Green and Philip Murray on down.

This means that if any one of the CIO's 11 top officers should refuse to file the required affidavit, all CIO affiliates would be automatically barred from NLRB protection on a collective bargaining election, an unfair labor practice complaint or a union shop vote.

The same applies to the AFL's 14 top officers and all AFL affiliates.

Dividend Given By Loan Board

The Board of Directors of the Breckenridge National Farm Loan Association at their monthly meeting held August 16, 1947 declared a dividend of 5 per cent payable to all stockholders of record June 30, 1947.

This dividend will be distributed to member borrowers who are stockholders in this cooperative lending organization in operation in Stephens, Eastland, Shackelford and Throckmorton counties.

Only farmers and ranches who borrow money from this association are eligible to purchase stock with the result that part of the interest paid on the funds borrowed is returned to them in the form of dividends. The result of operations of this kind has been to reduce the interest cost of borrowed funds. The net cost of money borrowed during the year 1946 through this association was 3.57 per cent.

Mrs. Jensen Expected Here On Wednesday

It was stated today that Mrs. Pete Jensen is expected to spend the night in Ranger tonight and will arrive in Ranger sometime Wednesday.

The body of Mr. Jensen which is being returned to Ranger by train will arrive on the Sunshine Special Wednesday afternoon.

Funeral plans are pending Mrs. Jensen's arrival here. Mr. Jensen died ver suddenly in Colorado Sunday while he and Mrs. Jensen were on a vacation with their friends.

B-17 Crashes Into Sea Near Hawaii

Navy and Coastguardsmen pick up Col. Harvey Huglin and Capt. P. L. Ryder, survivors of an Army plane which crashed at sea 65 miles southwest of Honolulu. Ambassador George C. Atcheson Jr., chief U. S. political adviser in the Japanese occupation, was one of the four missing passengers aboard the plane. Late un-confirmed reports indicate that "there is the barest possibility that Atcheson survived." (NEA Radio-Telephoto).

FINAL PLANS FOR CIRCUS ARE MADE

Final plans for the Gainesville Circus to be held here September 11, were made last night at a joint committee meeting with Howard H. Oliver, general chairman, presiding. All committee members were present.

Approximately six hundred pieces of advertising, both placard and poster types, have been received and will be posted this week. Members of the advertising committee will distribute them throughout surrounding towns.

The Grounds Committee found it necessary to change the position of the reserved seat section. Unlike a rodeo the best part of a circus takes place in the center of the arena and not by the chutes. Therefore the center section of the arena will be reserved, while the end sections will be general admission.

Tickets for the show will be on sale at the Chamber of Commerce, Swaney's Drug Company, and Crawford Drug Company.

General Chairman is Howard H. Oliver. Assistant chairman from the Lions Club is Rip Gallo-way. Assistant Chairman from the Jaycees is Morris Newnam.

Crowds committee: Bob Earnest, chairman; Perry Horton, Jack Reichert, James Ratliff, Pete Brashier, Deane Crawley, James King.

Finance committee: Bruce Harris, chairman; Wilson Guest.

Concession committee: Nicol Crawford, chairman; Earl Pittman, R. B. Thomas, Jr.

Advertising committee: Joe Dennis, chairman; T. W. Hale, J. A. Knox, Bobby Foster, J. E. Garner.

Publicity: C. E. May, Jr.

Out-of-town contacts: Jess Meroney, John Bates, A. E. Morris, Dr. Ross Hodges, Jim Morris.

Ticket committee: Joe Graham, Al Larson, L. L. Bruce, Joe Nussel, George Campbell, and Delbert Capps.

Reserved seats for the show are now on sale at the Chamber of Commerce. Admission for the afternoon shows will be 60 cents for children and $1.20 for adults. The afternoon show will start at 3:30 o'clock. Tickets to the evening performance will be, general admission 90 cents for children and $1.20 for adults and reserved seats will be $1.80. All box seats will be in the reserved section. The evening performance starts at 8 o'clock.

It was reported at the meeting Monday night that L. L. Bruce has already sold $87 worth of reserved tickets.

Directors Meet Tonite At 8

The regular meeting of the directors of the Ranger Chamber of Commerce will be held tonight at 8 o'clock and all directors are urged to attend.

Important matters will come before the group and it is imperative that all directors be present.

CALLS FOR UN ON THE SPOT TEAM TO BE SENT TO JAVA

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y. — Russia accused the United States today of trying to force its "good offices" on the Indonesian Republic in an effort to by-pass the United Nations Security Council and protect American interests in the East Indies.

Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko called on the Security Council to disregard the American offer to intervene in the Dutch-Indonesian dispute and "take the task of arbitration and mediation of this question into its own hands."

Gromyko said the council must act "without delay" to send an on-the-spot observation team to Indonesia to enforce the Security Council's cease-fire order.

As a second step, he said, it must establish a Security Council commission to mediate and arbitrate the differences between the Netherlands and the Indonesian Republic.

Parts Of Mexico Are Flooded By Hurricane

TAMPICO, Mexico — Relief agencies prepared today to parachute food and medicine to residents of the village of Higo, Veracruz State, who are reported isolated from the rest of the country by flood waters which followed last week's devastating hurricane.

Meanwhile military zone commanders and municipal officials throughout central Mexico reported floods and landslides had inundated towns and interrupted train and auto transportation.

Localities reported hardest hit were those which even in normal weather have no telegraph or telephone communications with the outside world, and the full extent of damage and casualties has yet to be officially determined.

Bilbo Grows Weak After Operation

NEW ORLEANS — Sen. Theodore G. Bilbo, D., Miss., is growing weaker, a bulletin from Foundation Hospital said today.

Bilbo, who has undergone several operations recently to remove a cancer of the jaw, developed complications last week and his condition took a turn for the worse.

He rallied, however, during the week-end and doctors reported that he was improving. His condition was described as "good" after a minor operation yesterday to prevent recurrence of a blood clot in his lung.

Caddy Tournament Begins At CC

Qualifying play for the Caddy Golf Tournament being held at the Country Club began yesterday.

In the first match Speedy Woods defeated Dean Sutton. In the second match Jerry Dobbs took Max Godwin.

In the third Roll Brooks defeated Bill Young. Champ Pearson won the fourth watch from Jackie Southern.

Phillip Godwin won from Benny Robinson in the fifth. In the sixth match Socko Sutton defeated Gene Reed.

The second go round will begin tomorrow.

WASHINGTON COLUMN

BY PETER EDSON

NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, D. C.—(NEA)—President Juan D. Peron and the Argentine government are considering the hiring of an American public relations counsel to handle a propaganda campaign in the U. S.

This has been confirmed by Edward S. Fenton of New York, who says he has the inside track for the job. The contract has not been signed, but it has been drawn up and has been approved by the Argentine cabinet.

"We aren't married yet, but the marriage arrangements are pretty well advanced," says Fenton. He says the original basis of discussion was $5 million a year for three years. This was to cover everything, but he wouldn't specify at this time what was included in everything.

When the negotiations were suspended, they were talking about a two-year contract, at $5 million for the two years, or $2 1/2 million a year, says Fenton.

Other sources in close touch with Argentine affairs indicate that this may be pretty much stage money and that what the Peron government might be willing to risk on a North American propaganda drive would be more in the nature of $100,000. The play would be to see what they got for that amount and how long it lasted before going into any bigger or longer venture.

FENTON was in Washington recently, the guest of Argentine Ambassador Sr. Don Dr. Oscar Ivanissevich at a dinner. He did considerable talking about his venture at that time, and the word got out. He was in Buenos Aires in May and June and was a guest of Casa Rosada, Peron's residence. Fenton says he is returning to the Argentine capital Aug. 12 and will be there 10 days. He expects the contract to be signed at that time.

What he will do to earn his fee has not been worked out. Travelogue movies to show the U. S. what the Argentine is really like is one idea. Getting high school students of the two countries to exchange letters has also been considered.

"Selling" President Peron to the U. S. as a great guy might also be in the picture. Fenton won't go along all the way with Peronistas who say that the Argentine is a second Franklin D. Roosevelt and that the Argentine Five-Year Plan is a good bit like the U. S. New Deal. But he does say that Peron's first term is a good bit like Roosevelt's first term—trying to do something to improve the living standard of the low-income third of the population.

Fenton's line is that he believes Peron is "off on the right foot." He says he believes that Peron is "100 per cent pro-American and anti-Communist and he won't allow communism to grow in the Argentine, under the guise of his new labor legislation program."

In short, says Fenton, "What mistakes we made, he won't make." THE possibility that Peron and his buxom blonde wife Eva might be getting ready for a trip to the U. S. has been gossiped about a good bit. There is pretty general cocktail party agreement in Washington that if Eva came to the U. S. she would be the biggest story since Wally Simpson married the Duke of Windsor.

Fenton says there is nothing in his proposed agreement with the Argentine government calling for a build-up of the Perons for a visit to the U. S. He does believe, however, that if President Truman should go to Rio de Janeiro for the close of the coming Pan-American Conference, it would be considered a courtesy call on all the American republics. Their presidents might, therefore, be expected to make a return courtesy call to Washington.

State Department spokesmen for Latin-American affairs say they have no official information on Fenton's deal. Fenton himself says he is keeping the department advised of his plans. When and if the contract is signed, however, he will be required to register with the Department of Justice as an agent of a foreign government operating in the U. S.

SPORTS

BY ELLIOTT METCALF

(The writer, sports editor of the Tacoma, Wash., Times, is pinch-hitting today for Harry Grayson, who is on vacation.)

TACOMA, Wash.—(NEA)—The east boasts of Bernie Reynolds, ex-GI as the most promising young heavyweight fighter. Reynolds, the east points out, has scored 20 kayos in 23 starts. The youngster is rated a knockerout hitter, a tall, powerful fellow. He is said to have speed and every other qualification that goes to make a champ. Experience is his only burden.

There's little doubt of Reynolds' talent to date. He has impressed smart and able ring men, is managed by Joe Vella, a New Jersey man-about-town who discovered him in military camp. Gue Lesnevich, light-heavyweight champ, also has a healthy part of the kid. Reynolds, it is said, is what was to have been expected from the ranks of the GI's. Some kid like him just had to come along out of the millions of young yellow-jackets.

included in Reynolds' kayo list is the veteran Walter Hafner, Joe Louis' sparring partner, weight 220 or so. Walter went out like a minus tide, only you could see where he went.

Vella and Lesnevich total up good hands for the fighting GI to be in. They know the full spotlight. But right here is where the far west begins to do a bit of claiming as the home of a youthful fistic heavyweight who served with the Air Force in the Burma campaign. The Pacific Coast can't let Reynolds take the full spotlight.

Roy Hawkins, 14, 6 feet 1 inch, weighing 195 pounds, is the Pacific northwest prize. Twenty fights are under his belt. Seventeen kayos are his, the latest being kayo Harold Blackshear, Navy veteran of San Francisco.

Hawkins, outboxed for four or five rounds, took his fight speed, cued Blackshear, jabbing accurately with a left. This attack was mixed with left hooks to the body, right crosses to the chin and heart.

In the eighth Blackshear was so brutally beaten he turned to the referee and pleaded for things to be ended.

Hawkins, English-Irish, is a black-eyed youngster with broad shoulders, wonderful underpinning. HE is managed by Tex Salkeld, Portland veteran ring man, and Charles McPhail, wealthy Tacoma electrical construction contractor.

Hawkins is now a permanent resident of Tacoma and between fights buys timber acreage which he cruises, cuts and markets. Makes good money there, too. He seems no lazy way out. Ambition is a part of his make-up. Salkeld and McPhail have retained Jack Chase, ex-light-heavyweight title contender, as Hawkins' special trainer.

Hawkins played an all-Oregon prep end on the gridiron and starred on the wing for Portland University of Portland. He is much what they say of Reynolds. Maybe in the two kids we have a repeater of Bob Martin and Gene Tunney, who came out of the GI ranks of the first world war.

U. S. Children Learn German Fast In Berlin

BERLIN (UP)—American kids in Germany go to school just as they would at home. The only big difference is that they learn more German.

Edwin M. Boyne, formerly associated with teacher training work at Michigan State College, summed up his own year as superintendent of the Berlin Dependents' School as "interesting, successful but with room for improvement."

Fifteen teachers handled 450 students during the year in classes ranging from nursery school through high school.

"German is taught in every class," Boyne said.

French and Latin are the other foreign languages taught.

The kids have a "howling" good time every day going to and from school. The army has supplied 17 large school buses which transport children from every part of the U. S. Sector of Berlin to the school and then back home again.

Boyne said he is certain the Berlin school will be accredited by American schools, although formal announcement of this has not been received here yet.

One thing the kids lack is an athletic field. They have no opportunity for sports in the school, but have access to many of the military sport fields.

Keeping teachers is one of the greatest problems for schools in Germany. Most teachers stay only a year. They are paid from non-appropriated funds with no assurance of a permanent position.

Many come for travel and adventure—say to get married. Boyne said Berlin is more fortunate than most places in Germany. About one third of the teachers plan to return to Berlin.

Boyne said the Berlin Dependents' School compares very favorably with the average small high school in the United States. It is located in a large, modern building which before the war was a high school for 800 German girls.

"The teachers like it here," he said.

said. "They like Berlin and the teaching conditions. We have far more applicants than we can handle. But in the American zone, the teachers seem to be dissatisfied."

Eight student comprised the high school graduating class of 1947. Seven were from the Midwest and one from New England. Three plan to continue their studies in European universities next year. The others expect to return home to enter college.

Teachers directly over the children said that the younger ones seem to learn German as fast as English. Most of them have German playmates. At a party recently, it was observed that the children, Americans, spoke German while sitting at a table eating ice cream and cake.

Though there have been difficulties in getting through this first year, Boyne was optimistic about future development. He said that to put the schools on a sound basis in Germany it would be necessary to put teachers on civil service, or some other sound basis, rather than to operate on a day-to-day set-up as now.

AGNES was expecting them. Mark knew that before they reached her door. He had stopped at the hall telephone to call Foy's man on the seventh floor. He told him that no one was to enter Miss Harris's room and added that "no one" meant anything in human form regardless of how it dressed and talked.

"Come in, sir. You too, doctor. . . . So she lost her nerve. . . . Was that it?" Mark asked.

"Yes, sir. It's no good in me trying to explain, it has to do with too many things. And aside from that, nobody likes to be the one to point the finger. But I've always been a bold piece! I want to talk. And since you were the one to bring this thing to light, I want to talk to you. Foy had his chance, and what did he do? . . . Am you in as big a hurry as I am?"

"Yes. I want to see Lillian Harris as soon as possible. . . . Something like affection showed in her eyes. 'You're a cute one. Now you come over here, both of you.' She led them to her bureau. 'This is what Miss Plummer wanted to tell you. One of the things.' She gave him the costume, neatly folded. 'Shake it out, show it to the doctor. He knows what it is, he's seen one like it before.'"

He felt as if he had seen one, too, even seen the one he held in his hand. He knew the fringed lashes, the yellow curls, the twisted, pouting lips; the long, full sleeves, the clumsy skirt that would almost touch the floor. He folded the mask and put it in his pocket with a casual air, because he also knew the small, brown mole.

"I've been wondering what happened to the costumes," he said.

"The teachers like it here," he said.

"LOCKED up in the linen closet. The very next day. Every girl who wore one turned it in and was checked off. All except the one that was burned. You know which one. . . . I'd like to call your attention to that hem."

"You don't have to. I saw it." She sat down abruptly. "I'm so relieved I could scream," she said. She was almost crying. "Mr. East, we've had a terrible time here and a terrible night that's just passed. We can't have another. If we do, I don't know what may happen to one of us."

"To any one of you in particular, Agnes?"

"Maybe Miss Harris, I don't know. Maybe—that's what's killing us by inches! We don't know, we can't be sure. There isn't a single one I'd trust, not one."

He gave the costume to Dr. Kloppel. "Can you get this out of the house for me?"

Dr. Kloppel hesitated. "Foy?"

"Foy had his chance," Agnes said.

Dr. Kloppel opened his large, old-fashioned bag and turned his back. Then, "Nobody saw me do that," he said. "Where did you find it in the first place, Agnes?"

She told them, with curiously few digressions and none of the odd hazards that usually beset her class. Her heart kept out of her throat, her hair stayed flat on her head, and she was not laid low by a feather. "And what's more, I know who it belonged to, I figured it out. I know why it wasn't missed."

It had been handed out to Miss Edith Campbell, she said, a third-floor single. Put on her bed the same as the rest, the morning of the party. But Miss Campbell's father had been taken sick and she'd been sent for, so she'd gone across the river to Bogota that afternoon. Not many knew she'd gone, she was a quiet girl that kept to herself. But somebody knew, and knew she wouldn't be back until the next day, if then. And her room was unlocked. Easy enough to steal Miss Campbell's costume, easy enough to change from one to another in case of blood. Easy enough to lock yourself in a bathroom. "Maybe the second-floor bathroom," Agnes elaborated, "then hide the extra one in the packroom, where it wouldn't be found till spring, and walk down one flight as calm as you please."

SHE paused, but it was clearly for breath, not other people's conversation. "And there's something else, too. I talked it over with Miss Plummer last night, and we fixed the time. The time is right. It fits."

She had been watching the rag dollies having their fun, she said, over by the desk, and she'd laughed to see them. That is, she'd laughed until she saw how mean they acted when Miss Plummer begged for someone to run her errand. Nasty guys, every one, ungrateful as they come, shaking their heads and cackling like geese. She'd tried to guess which ones they were, because she meant to give them what-for in the morning. And that was when she'd seen the peculiar one.

"Peculiar?" Mark repeated.

"Not in looks," Agnes said, "less you count bounciness. Peculiar in actions. 'And there's kind of following one rag dolly around, I saw her. She was like somebody rounding up a stray sheep—herding, like. I couldn't take my eyes off her. She got the other dolly up to the desk, right under Miss Plummer's nose, as slick as you please. Almost threw her, she did. Just like she'd been planning all along. Then she went away herself, mingled, and there was no telling her from the others. A little while later I noticed a dolly on the stair landing, going up. It looked like her, the bouncy one."

He kept the excitement out of his voice. "The other doll, the one she pushed, that one was Ruth Miller, wasn't it?"

"I said you were a cute one," Agnes agreed soberly.

Director Of Traffic

At an intersection near headquarters of the Mediterranean Theater of Operations, U.S.A., in Leghorn, Italy, MP Thomas Maso n, Norfolk, Virginia, directs traffic—a jeep and a bicycle. This is part of the command of General John C. H. Lee, now under investigation as the result of a series of dispatches by Robert C. Ruark, Scripps-Howard columnist, who charged an entire company of Negro MPs like this one had been put on traffic detail in Leghorn "to indulge the passion for saluting." This photo was made August 10 by Leo Stoeker, ACME-NEA Staff correspondent. (NEA Telephoto).

Well I Dunno...

(Continued from page 1) desk six days out of the week, four weeks of the month and twelve months of the year, and 'edit' such stuff as this: Mrs. Jones of Cactus Creek let a can opener slip last week and cut herself in the pantry. A mischievous lad of Pietown threw a stone and struck Mr. Pike in the alley last Tuesday. Joe Doe climbed on the roof of his house last week looking for a leak and fell striking himself on the back porch. Mr. Pond, while harnessing a bronco last Saturday, was kicked just south of the corn crib. Isaiah Trimmer of Running Creek was playing with a cat Friday when it scratched him on the veranda. While Harold Green was escorting Miss Violet Wise from the church social last Saturday night a savage dog attacked them and bit Mr. Green several times on the public square.

Land Prices Have Soared Since 1858

HOUSTON, Tex. (UP)—Future residents of a new South End real estate development may wish some time that their ancestors had gotten 'in on the ground floor.

Land in the 12-acre tract originally cost $10 an acre, but the builder recently paid $8,000 an acre for it. It had been in the hands of the original owners family for 89 years.

Scorpion Turns German Youth Against Texas

FORT WORTH, Tex. (UP)—Youthful Fred Volbach whose early schooling was in Germany and Italy is a pro-med student at Texas Christian University but he doesn't expect to practice in Texas. He found a scorpion in his room recently and it turned him against the state permanently. Sixteen-year-old Volbach remembers that they had "beasts" in Italy, too. He said they were overgrown mosquitoes. The last school Volbach was enrolled in before coming to America was the Marcantonio Colonna school in Rome. Previously, he had attended school in Darmstadt, Germany, his original home. His uncle, Dr. Walter R. Volbach, is a speech professor at TCU.

WEATHER PLUS ART STIRS UP SOVIET STORM

By Walter Cronkite
 United Press Staff Correspondent

MOSCOW (UP)—A storm which they failed to forecast is raging today around the heads of the Central Scientific-Research Hydrometeorological Archives because they tried to use classical and modern paintings to illustrate weather problems.

The weathermen, who in all countries have their difficulties with critics, are having a particularly rough time here for having taken up what the local press called "the thorny unexplored path of associating meteorology with painting."

Climbing Up the Ladder of Fame

Heading for the stars is pretty Joan Murray, of Harrison, N. Y., who was chosen "Miss Stardust of 1947" in a national beauty contest that drew more than 25,000 entries. Besides the title, she won a $300 prize, a vacation in New York City, and a modeling contract.

Storm blew up when Comrade Pabo, head of the archives, and one T. N. Alisova presented a "Moscow Weather in Art" exhibition. A Krainev painting of a forest illustrated "the periphery of an anti-cyclone" and Navezhin's "Summer" carried the explanation, "a summer anti-cyclone in continental, inert air." There were many others.

"Only yesterday these paintings were works of human passions and talents, only yesterday they were fraught with the ideas and feelings of artists, of the poetry of nature . . . and lo, with a single wave of their hands, Pabo and Alisova destroyed the incarnation of the living flame of poetry in these canvases and turned creations of art into illustrations," said the newspaper Trud.

The exhibition, Trud said, is "neither more nor less than a lack of culture and most ordinary vulgarity . . . and a lack of tact towards those masters who have put something very dear into their creations, from their very soul and hearts."

After the first criticism of their exhibition appeared, Pabo and Alisova, both women, issued a 33-page explanation.

"It should be borne in mind that the mass of observations are made by specialists of average and, at times, lower qualifications," they said. "Thus, pictures serve well as an exceedingly valuable addition to our study of natural phenomena."

"Painting to patch up the shortcoming of meteorological service—whence this delirium?" Trud shot back.

"You read these arrangements and are overcome with laughter and amazement in turn."

Galveston Is No. 2 Cotton Port of 47

GALVESTON, Tex. (UP)—With less than 100,000 bales in port on the last day of the 1946-47 season, Galveston was the No. 2 cotton port in the U. S. for the season just ended, figures of the Galveston Cotton Exchange and board of trade have revealed.

New Orleans was first among ports, receiving 1,105,110 bales, and Galveston received 1,060,222 bales. Houston was third and Savannah was fourth.

Galveston's 93,840 bales on hand at the close of the season was the lowest stock since 1929, July 12 was the first day since 1929 that Galveston had less than 100,000 bales in port.

Cotton men attribute the small stocks to the unusually small crop for the sea just ended, combine with heavy foreign and domestic demand.

Hotel Guests Walk Off With The Fans

DALLAS, Tex. (UP)—Efforts of two recent guests of the Scott Hotel to keep cool will gain them full co-operation of the police if they show up again. The police will put them in the cooler.

Hotel officials reported that the two guests—staying in separate rooms the other night—departed next morning with the ceiling fans.

"It should be borne in mind that the mass of observations are made by specialists of average and, at times, lower qualifications," they said. "Thus, pictures serve well as an exceedingly valuable addition to our study of natural phenomena."

"Painting to patch up the shortcoming of meteorological service—whence this delirium?" Trud shot back.

"You read these arrangements and are overcome with laughter and amazement in turn."

Eyes Have IT

Not What You Get—

... but what you have is the important thing in buying real estate. If one buys without an abstract he may get something, but it's value will depend on the sufficiency of the title. Lands and the improvements thereon are worth little if their title proves to be faulty. Only expense, embarrassment and disappointment follow rapid, rushing real estate sales. Don't get in a hurry. # DEATH of a DOLL

By Hilda Lawrence

© by Hilda Lawrence, Distributed by NEA SERVICE, INC.

XXX

"ARE the doctor, Lillian, scare him like you did me last night," April said.

Lillian opened her eyes and gave a fugitive smile. Dr. Kloppel's quick intake of breath made April laugh.

The doctor's capable old hands moved at once to the girl's temples and wrist as if he trusted only what he could touch and count. Mark watched. There was a bruise under the bandage, ugly, swelling.

"If you can talk," he said softly, "I'd like to hear what you have to say. . . . How long have you been conscious?"

"Since last night. Late last night."

"Anybody know?"

"Her smile was wry and painful. 'Am I crazy? No. Not even Fister. . . . I've been wondering when you'd get around to me. I wanted to talk to you.' Her eyes clouded. 'I thought I heard music last night. I was still groggy but I thought I heard a music box. And if I did—'

"You heard it. I was out in the hall, outside this door. I found the box, and I know what it was used for. Does that fit in with what you know?"

"It fits something," she said.

"You know she was murdered, don't you?"

"Do you know?"

"Maybe we'd better get together. Blow by blow description. . . . I was working on a night job when they had the party and I took time off. But the party was too young for me, so I went up to my room for a cigarette. You can check with Jewel, she took me up and I think she knew who I was. I lived on sixth then, in the room under this one. When I got there I wrote some letters and had a smoke. But I turned out my light for that and sat on the window ledge with the window open. That was when I heard the music the first time. I knew it was a box of some kind, but I didn't know whose. And moved faster, almost ran. I thought she was a thief and I was afraid she'd get away. She'd passed the room where I was so I stopped out and started after her. But the minute I did that, I knew it was a boxer.

"She heard me and turned her head. She stopped where she was, turned her head and looked straight through me, straight through the costume, down to me, inside. She didn't say a word, she held her head on one side as if she were taking me apart, memorizing me, making sure she'd know me again.

"I ducked back and closed the door and waited to die. There was something terrible about that look, it came through her mask and mine, and I knew her eyes were telling me she'd kill me then and there if she only dared. So I stayed where I was, with the door locked, until she had time to get away. Then I went down to my own room and locked myself in there, too."

"DID you go back to the party?"

"Not for a long time. I was afraid. I was afraid to show up in that costume. So I stayed in my room until I knew they'd unmasked and then I went down wearing my regular clothes. No sneakers on anybody, of course. I looked. Everybody happy and having fun. No cracks about the way I was dressed. Not a single person asked me where I'd been or gave me a funny look. Nobody tried to keep out of my way. That's all. . . . Except that she knew who I was, all right." She touched her head with cautious fingers and winced. "She waited a long time, but she finally landed."

"Are you too tired to tell me about that?"

"There's nothing to tell. I don't know what happened. I was having a shower late, and somebody turned the light off. I thought it was April, acting up, so I said, 'Cut it out, kid.' . . . I didn't hear her that time either. I guess she wore the sneakers again, but I know that's who it was. Something hit me on the side of the head and the next thing I knew I was in this bed."

Going, Going--Up

Daily routine at the Memphis, Tenn., Cotton Exchange was interrupted when Arthur Bower, exchange secretary, brought the first bale of the 1947 crop into the "pit" and turned auctioneer to sell it. He coaxed the price up to 65 cents a pound for the 495-pound bale, although the market price is only 36 cents.

FACE

If ever it is possible to stand aloft from all others and observe and feel . . . it is at those times when one sees faces. We seldom really see things, you and I, usually because we do not think, or if we do notice a face and it troubles us, we hastily try to forget it.

Faces. The maps of life, from the cradle to the grave, on which the feet of experience have trod and and left their best prints.

Have you seen a movie lately . . . of faces . . . of displaced people . . . trudging along with their bundles . . . of lost children, of hungry men and women? How did you feel when you saw their faces? It made you sick, didn't it?

Faces don't have to go to the movies to see the reflected prints on faces that shake your soul to its roots.

They're all around you. In fact, someone is likely ob-servicing your face now. Faces are God's portraits. There is no mask that can really hide a face. Whatever you are, the sum total of your life experience, your secret thoughts, your beliefs . . . are printed for the world to see. Of course you're behind it . . . your face.

Quiet

Not a hospital, but headquarters of the Mediterranean Theater of Operations, U.S.A., bears this "Quiet Zone" sign in Leghorn, Italy. These are the administration buildings of Lieut. General John C. H. Lee, whose command is now under investigation as the result of a series of dispatches by Robert C. Ruark, Scripps-Howard columnist, who reported that all but staff cars must make a mile detour around "Bent Arm Boulevard" because "Gen. Lee and his colonels cannot abide noisic." General Lee was believed to be in Salzburg with his private train for the music festival when these pictures were made August 10 by ACME-NEA Staff Correspondent Leo Stoecker, but this could not be confirmed from Army sources. Pictures of the private train was prohibited in Rome when General Lee arrived there August 15. (NEA Telephoto).

Arterburn's son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Arterburn.

Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Hall have had as their guests Mr. and Mrs. Walter Tubb of Dallas and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Hall also of Dallas.

Mr. and Mrs. Artie Campbell and sons, Joe and Charles, have returned from a vacation trip to Detroit, Chicago and Manchester.

Hicks Takes Over Motor Company

H. R. Hicks announced today that the Ranger Motor Car Sales Company has been dissolved and that the business from here on will be operated as the Hicks Motor Company.

Mr. Hicks stated that the firm will be agent for the Kaiser-Frazer cars and he expects to have some in the next few days. When the cars arrive he will have an open house so that the public may see and inspect the new cars. He will also have a Frazer Manhattan on display.

The business is located on Highway 80 east in what was originally the C. J. Moore Auto Mart.

Midget Carrier Enroute To Alaska

SEATTLE (UP)—Bearl Spratt, a Pasadena, Cal. business man, describes his yacht, The Breezin' Through, as the "world's smallest aircraft carrier."

Besides being equipped with all the latest navigational instruments, The Breezin' Through carries a four-place amphibian aircraft on the afterdeck. Spratt uses the plane for hunting and fishing forays into remote areas and returns to the yacht at night.

He recently left here for Alaska to try the method in remote terri-

Senators Miss Pay Day But Fix It With Law

WASHINGTON (UP)—U. S. Senators went payless on their regular July 15 pay day, but it was their own fault.

A few days before the pay day, Senate Financial Clerk O. C. Thompson warned the senators, "The legislative branch appropriations bill, not having been enacted, there are no funds available for senate salaries."

Congress took care of the matter before adjourning.

LUCKY STRIKE presents THE MAN WHO KNOWS—

THE TOBACCO AUCTIONEER!

"I'VE SOLD more than 240 million pounds of tobacco, and at every auction I've attended, I've seen the makers of Lucky Strike buy fine quality tobacco... that fine, ripe-smokin' leaf that makes a smooth, mild smoke."

L. H. Purdom

of Springfield, Kentucky
(22 YEARS A LUCKY STRIKE SMOKER)

FINE TOBACCO is what counts in a cigarette.

LUCIAN PURDOM IS RIGHT!... And like him, scores of other experts... who really know tobacco... have seen the makers of Lucky Strike buy "fine quality tobacco."

After all, that's what you want in a cigarette... the honest, deep-down enjoyment of fine tobacco.

So remember...
