Pressure On Food Prices Gets Results

Well... I Dunno, But...

We think that everybody is agreed on one subject. Friday night's football game wasn't so much a football battle as it was a battle with the crickets. Every time we'd get real interested in what was going on, whom would go a cricket in the eye, down the back or in the front.

As the old negro who worked for us once said on being questioned about being late to work, "Well, I'll tell you Ole Miss, the grasshoppers was an aggravatin' and I had to stop and help 'em sweep 'em off the sidewalks."

So what we mean is, the crickets "was an aggravatin' Friday night, aggravatin' and a migratin'."

However, it's probably just as well that we were distracted. It likely eased the pain of defeat a little.

I mentioned a day or two ago a comment from a local citizen about business people taking up the parking space in front of their business houses with their own cars. One reader who didn't sign his name objected to the comment on the basis that it didn't hurt anybody to walk a block and a half. Unfortunately he missed the point entirely. We need to do everything we can to make shopping in Ranger convenient and that's one way to do it.

Another reader who signed his name, in fact presented the following in person, has some good ideas about the subject. Here's the way he puts it. And we quote:

Your quoted comment on the matter of business houses employees parking their cars in front of Ranger business houses thus making it so inconvenient for customers to shop, calls to mind what a rural friend and customer said a few days ago. He said "I don't live so far out of town and I have about decided that I would do less walking if I just leave my car at home and walk in because when I do come to town I have to drive nearly back home to park. Often with a hope that I might find a piece nearer, I spend thirty minutes driving around town."

I think too few of us realize just how valuable the space in front of the stores is to merchants occupying the location. It is really just as valuable as his display window, I think.

In the cities the merchants are securing adjacent property for parking lots for their customers. They have learned that such an investment pays.

No employe would think of hanging his coat, hat or other personal belongings in the display windows but to fill the space in front of the store with their cars seems an entirely different matter. But is it really?

Taken as a whole the retail trade of a town or city is its biggest business and anything that hurts it, hurts the entire town or city. If we could just remember that everything that can be done for any one of Ranger's businesses means helping ourselves, by helping in what ever way we can to make our town the most attractive to buyers of this territory.

We are too often too selfish and unthinking, perhaps afflicted most with the latter.

Yours for more care in where, and how we park our cars.

Jaycees To Meet Monday Night

A very important meeting of the Junior Chamber of Commerce will be held Monday night at 8 o'clock in the dining room of the Ghoslin Hotel.

It is urged that every member attend the meeting at which plans for raising funds for roofing the livestock barn at the rodeo and for paying the deficit on the circus will be discussed.

Mean temperature for the year in New Mexico is about 50 degrees.

Proposes Curb On Tidelands Case Action

WASHINGTON (UP) — The government today proposed limited Supreme Court disposition of the California tidelands case until Congress acts on controls for the oil-rich lands involved.

The proposal was made by Attorney General Tom C. Clark in a brief filed with the court clerk. The brief was in keeping with a Supreme Court ruling of June 23 that the federal government has paramount rights to lands between the low-water mark and the three-mile limit.

The high courts decision climaxed a long fight between the federal government and California over ownership of the submerged lands and the leasing of oil rights. However, it has not yet been determined specifically which areas belong to the United States and which to the state of California.

Under Clark's proposal, the decree could be made final at any time, even before congressional action if necessary, or amended to fit any situation which might arise.

NEW FREIGHT RATE STUDY LAUNCHED IN WEST TEXAS

ABILENE, Sept. 13 (SpL) — A new, comprehensive freight rates study, covering shipments moving on commodity rates, has been launched from West Texas. It is a joint undertaking conducted by the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, its Freight Rate Equality Federation, various trade and commodity groups, and the six trunk line railroads serving the territory, through a committee of 22 representing all the participating agencies.

Announcement of the study was made today from the regional chamber's headquarters office. It gave the committee personnel and told of action taken by the WTCC officers committee, June 7, at a meeting at Fort Worth initiating the project and inviting the railroads and other groups to join. A statement released today over signature of H. C. Custard, president of WTCC, said: "Following the Supreme Court's decision of May 12 least upholding the Interstate Commerce Commission orders of May 15, 1945 prescribing adjustments on inter-territorial class rates—those moving manufactured goods by rail—our organization has been exploring some of our commodity rates applicable to raw materials produced in volume. We feel that

Advices Buyers To Take More Interest

NEW YORK (UP) Prof. Karen Gillespie of New York University's school of retailing, is convinced that the consumer should be told all about the article he is purchasing and that the average shopper would find it profitable to become more inquisitive.

"Our ideal would be to have people know all the important facts about whatever they are buying," she told a group of teachers and summer school students who gathered for a special all-day conference on consumer education. Prof. Gillespie said she practices what she preaches in getting students to develop consumer interest. If she tells her students about furniture, she gets them to turn tables and chairs upside down to see how they were made. If the lecture is on jewelry, she removes a bracelet or ring and explains how the jeweler formed silver into flowers and oxidized them to highlight the design. "It's a surprising fact," she said, "that a student who may be planning for a career in retailing never bothered to examine the workmanship an articles he has lived with all his life."

Traffic Imperils 15 to 24 Group

CHICAGO (UP) — The National Safety Council finds traffic accidents more numerous in the 15 to 24 age group than in any other except that of persons 65 and over.

In its "Accident Facts," an annual statistical yearbook, the council said there were 34 traffic deaths among persons 15 to 24 years old per 100,000 population in 1946. In the 25 to 44 age group, there were 22 deaths per 100,000, 25 in the 45 to 64 age group, 12 in the 65 to 84 age group and 12 among children up to four years of age. Fifty deaths per 100,000 were recorded in the 65-year and older bracket. The high death rate among elderly persons was attributed to the fact that many of them die of traffic injuries a younger person might survive, and also to the large number of pedestrians in that age group.

Don't Look Now, But— WASHINGTON C. H. O. (UP) — Onlookers were amazed to see the engine of an automobile fall out and the automobile continue down the street. Police said the owner returned for the engine, which was an extra being carried inside the car. (Continued on page 2)

EASTLAND TAKES GAME FROM RANGER

Eastland broke a long time record of defeats Friday night when for the first time in several years they defeated the Ranger Bulldogs in a football game played at Eastland.

Eastland scored the only touchdown of the game to come out with a 6 to 9 victory. The touchdown came when Jim Matthews of Eastland took the ball through the center of the line for the marker.

Ranger got off to a fair start but before the second quarter was over had lost their hold. Bobby Williams and Gilbert Lanier were the yard gainers for Ranger, Williams with 54 and Lanier with 45. J. G. Wright made the only interception of a pass for Ranger. One pass was completed from Wright to Lanier.

Lin Yu-Tang Solves Chinese Typing Problem

NEW YORK (UP) — Dr. Lin Yu-tang, author and philosopher, has invented a Chinese typewriter which prints 90,000 characters and may revolutionize office work in China.

Dr. Lin thought of the machine for 30 years before he brought it to perfection. It will write all the known Chinese words and can do in an hour what a Chinese hand-copier now does in a day. Prior to Dr. Lin's invention, only two other Chinese typewriters had been developed, and they could type no more than 5,400 symbols. Words not provided for on those machines had to be filled in by hand.

"I got stuck in this problem for years," Dr. Lin said, "and now I've done it. I surprised myself." All Chinese documents and letters now are written by hand and all Chinese printed matter is set by hand. The principle of Dr. Lin's invention can be applied to typesetting and thus revolutionize the printing industry of China.

The machine is about the size of a standard American typewriter, weighs a little more than 50 pounds and operates electrically. Dr. Lin's pretty 21-year-old daughter and secretary, Tai-yi, said she learned to operate it in two minutes. Plans are underway to get the machine into mass production in the United States. No price has been set as yet.

Texas Justice Quits Court

AUSTIN — Resignation of Associate Justice C. S. Slatton of the Texas Supreme Court and appointment of James P. Hart, former Texas assistant attorney general in charge of oil matters, was announced here today by Gov. Beauford H. Jester.

Justice Slatton will become general attorney for the Southwestern Bell Telephone Company in Dallas. He was the second member of the Texas Supreme Court to resign to accept that position. Former Chief Justice Nelson Phillips was the first. Slatton's immediate predecessor was the late John H. Bickett.

Americans Charged LONDON (UP) — The Moscow radio charged today that American representatives in Athens engineered the recent Greek government crisis, simply ousting a cabinet they did not like and forming a new one.

Gold Bars Of WAC Pinned On Ranger Woman

WASHINGTON, D.C., 10 September, 1947 — The gold bars of a second lieutenant were pinned on the jacket of Helen Lloyd Marrs, a former technician fourth grade, WAC on Tuesday, September 2, 1947. Lt. Marrs was attached to the Medical Department at Walter Reed General Hospital where she served as a psychiatric social worker. Brig. General George C. Beach, Commanding General of Walter Reed and Capt. Sarah Benham, Commanding Officer of the WAC Detachment. The oath of office was administered by Maj. Millig.

Lt. Marrs entered the Army in November of 1944 at Temple, Texas. She was on duty at Camp Butler, N. C. and at the Kennedy General Hospital in Memphis, Tenn. prior to coming to Walter Reed. At each of these stations she served in the capacity of psychiatric social worker.

A graduate of the Southwest Texas State Teachers' College at San Marcos, where she received her M.A. and B.A. degrees, Lt. Marrs also has spent a year at Catholic University in Washington, D. C.

Lt. Marrs, who is the daughter of Mr. J. E. Marrs of Ranger, Texas, is on orders that will send her to duty at the Army's General Hospital at Augusta, Georgia, Oliver General Hospital.

STRATEGIC BOMBER FORCE WARMING UP

WASHINGTON (UP) — Men of the Strategic Bomber Command are blasting Pacific island targets and the arctic ice with live missiles these days in training for the time they may have to reply to foreign assault with devastating counter attacks.

They are under orders from their boss, Gen. George C. Kenney, to be ready on four hours notice to leave home fields in Texas, Nebraska, Arizona, or Maryland and fly to advanced bases in Alaska, Japan, Labrador or Germany.

Right now they're flying B-29s, the atom bomb ship. In the next few months they will have at least one squadron of B-50s, a bigger and better heavy bomber with 9,000-mile range which already is coming off the Boeing assembly line in Seattle.

Later, the strategic bomber command will have—for what use circumstances warrant—the mammoth B-36, of 10,000 miles range and—five or six years hence—six-engined jet bombers capable of flying faster than 500 miles an hour.

FIRST BALE OF COTTON BROUGHT IN

To Charles Stephenson goes the honor of having brought in the first bale of cotton to the Ranger Gin this season.

Stephenson who resides near Lone Cedar on Route 2, Eastland brought in a bale Friday and another one Saturday. Both bales have already been ginned. He will be awarded a substantial prize from the merchants of Ranger through the efforts of the Ranger Chamber of Commerce. The award will be made Wednesday of this week. Stephenson grew the cotton on the Annie Stephenson place.

Fred Mosley is operating the Ranger Gin and is prepared to handle cotton for this area. He also has transportation for hauling the cotton to the gin in cases where farmers have no way of getting it into town.

With reference to the prize for the first bale of cotton, merchants who have not contributed to the prize fund are asked to contact the Chamber of Commerce in order that all the money may be in before Wednesday.

Directors And Committee To Meet Tuesday

A meeting of the directors of the Ranger Chamber of Commerce and members of the citizens aviation committee will be held Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock.

C. C. McKeever, president of the organization has asked that every director and every member of the committee make their plans to attend.

Leftists Demand Confidence Vote

ROME — Italian Leftists hacked away today at the government of Premier Alcide De Gasperi from which they were excluded, presenting the second motion of no-confidence within four days and renewing implicit threats to use force against it.

Palmiro Togliatti, No. 1 Communist in Italy, signed the new motion demanding an assembly vote of no confidence in the Christian Democratic cabinet. It was based on police orders protecting farm strike breakers in North Italy and orders limiting demonstrations against the government.

Grand Jury To Meet Again On Monday 15th

The Eastland County grand jury, which has been in recess, will meet again Monday morning, District Attorney Everett Grisham says there are a number of matters to come before the jury at that time for investigation.

Taft Challenges Unions To Make Labor Law Issue

SANTA CRUZ, Calif. — Sen. Robert A. Taft, R., O., challenged union leaders today to make the Taft-Hartley labor reform law the issue of the 1948 political campaign.

At the same time, he made it clear that he thought the issue would be an ineffective one. On a three-week tour of the far west to sound out his chances for the Republican presidential nomination, Taft defended the law, of which he was the co-author, in a debate last night before the state bar association convention. He will defend it again in a speech Sept. 24 at Seattle, a stronghold of organized labor.

Taft had to skirt a picket line of some 200 AFL and CIO members from Santa Cruz and nearby towns to enter the municipal auditorium for the debate. As he entered, laughing, through the side door, the pickets booed and shouted "Wallace in 1948."

Quarterback Club To Meet Monday Night

Raymond Lingle, president of the Quarterback Club, today requested that all members of the club make plans to attend the regular meeting of the club Monday night at 7:30 o'clock at the Chamber of Commerce office.

He also stated that the sale of memberships in the club is progressing satisfactorily but a complete check on memberships will not be made until Monday night.

Says Government To Blame For High Food Prices

NEW YORK — Two authoritative sources today charged that the United States government's market tactics have been a major factor in the recent sharp advance in food prices.

A. W. Zelomek, president of the International Statistical Bureau, and the magazine Business Week, in its current issue, indicated that the government has been aiding and abetting the speculators by bidding up grain prices and talking up other prices through predictions of government bureaus.

Business Week, in its current issue, holds that "prices would quickly reverse themselves if the government stopped buying grain."

Hurricane Still Out In Atlantic

MIAMI — A raging hurricane which whirled over the Caribbean with winds of 140 miles an hour today angrily tossed out gales extending 150 miles and menaced isolated islands in the Dutch Antilles.

Its center, according to a 4 A. M. CST advisory from the weather bureau here, was about 240 miles north-northeast of San Juan P. R., and 950 miles from Miami. The hurricane was flailing its fury at the Atlantic waters and could expend its force in the open waters without striking the still distant U. S. mainland.

Only tropical islands lay in its current path.

Truman Cruising Thru Doldrums

Aboard Battleship Missouri — President Truman and his party today cruised through the doldrums, an area feared and avoided years ago by sailing vessels. The area is marked as this time of the year by light breezes and calms which used to leave sailing ships stranded for several days at a time.

PURCHASES SLOW DOWN AS BUYERS QUIT MARKETS

Determined housewives applied more pressure to force food prices down today and it appeared that their organized slowdowns on purchases might be meeting temporary success.

The federal government stepped in to try to help. It served 18 subpoenas on major meat packers, demanding their appearance next week before a special grand jury at Chicago which will investigate high meat prices.

As the fight against high prices developed across the country signs of alarm crept into the markets and retail circles. Corn and wheat prices took a nosedive, at least temporarily. Hogs sold as much as $2 a hundredweight below Thursday's all-time highs.

Butter and egg prices dropped the maximum amount possible in one day's market trading. Market experts said the drop was due to buyer resistance, talk of restoration of government price controls and the increased margin requirements on the Chicago Board of Trade.

WASHINGTON COLUMN

(Peter Edson is on vacation.)
BY DOUGLAS LARSEN
NEA Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, D. C.—(NEA)—Just about the only senator you see regularly around the Capitol these hot recess days is Sen. Sheridan Downey of California.

He'll show you a good reason why he is forsaking the vacationland wonders of his own state for steaming Washington—a desk piled high with work. If you can drag him away from his dictating or reading, he'll tell you in no uncertain terms just how much work there is in being a senator. But he wouldn't have it otherwise.

First, he says, about 90 per cent of all the senators are overworked. The rest, somehow, have learned to do only what they are physically able to handle, he claims.

He says that the office work alone could take up 100 per cent of a senator's time, if he would let it. He estimates that between 300 and 400 letters a day come into his office. Most of them require daily work to be done or calls to be made. About 20 per cent of this routine, he estimates, is of such a nature that he has to tend to it personally. The rest, which he never sees, is done by his staff.

When it comes to legislating, the senator says to be an expert on any of the big bills under consideration at a session takes long hours of study. The result is having to take the word of hired experts, or the words of the other senators, on much legislation.

"I hope I generally can vote right," he says. About 90 per cent of the legislation which is passed by the Senate, Downey estimates, is on the Consent Calendar, where the word of the committee members who recommend the legislation has to be taken. And he further points out that a full committee's recommendation of a bill was probably based on the recommendation of a subcommittee of three or four members. That's the only practical way the tremendous amount of legislation can be handled.

Committee work is one of the biggest drains on a senator's time, Downey says. He points to the work of the Public Lands Committee, on which he serves, as an example. In seven months it considered a total of 419 bills during the session, and reported 150 bills to the Senate, of which 145 were passed. A total of 194 meetings were held by the committee and the five sub-committees; 160 separate days were devoted to hearings and 468 witnesses appeared to testify.

CLAIMING that he is neither bragging nor complaining, Downey says that all the California legislators in Washington have an extra burden because of the great number of different activities found in the sunshine state. The average state, he says, has five or six important interests which need representing, while California has many more. If a congressman or senator doesn't look out for the welfare of the interests in his own state, nobody else will, he says.

One reason for the increased work in Washington these days is that life today is getting more complex. Downey says that there were only about four major issues which faced Andrew Jackson in his day. Downey estimates that President Truman has to face more big problems in one day than Jackson did during one term. And congressional work has kept step.

"After a battle on the floor, for instance, you've got to know how to forget it and be able to get along with your opponent of a few moments ago in the cloak room," he says. "It is surprising how we are all able to do this."

Downey says that the average gallery spectator would have been surprised to be in the cloak room during the final days of this session. Senators who were raging at each other on the floor were getting along fairly well in private.

NEW YORK—(NEA)—Those closest to Joseph Vincent McCarthy say a satisfactory offer would bring him back as a major-league manager quicker than he left Larry MacPhail last season.

And 10 or more clubs could make fine use of this most skillful hand of ballplayers—young and old.

By World Series time last fall, Joe McCarthy, whose clubs accounted for nine pennants in 17 years, was the healthiest-looking manager ever to retire because of ill health.

Marse Joe is 60, but Connie Mack at 84 has kept a surprise collection of Athletics in the first division all the way along the route. And Bert Shotton at 62 hardly has been a dud with the Dodgers.

McCarthy rejected the Brooklyn bid last spring because he didn't want to be a filler-inner for Leo Durocher.

To be acceptable, any proposition made McCarthy would have to provide for a future and a free hand.

One of the most unusual stories in baseball is its seeming inability to develop managers for jobs calling for $40,000 and more.

Blanger yet is a manager like Joe McCarthy, still in fine physical shape, hiding away in a sylvan retreat during a baseball season.

Don't look now, but Jack Kramer and Ted Schroeder will defend the Davis Cup they won from the Australians last winter—as though you didn't know.

The idea that the high command awaited further tournament results before making a decision regarding Labor Day week-end at Forest Hills is cause to laugh right out loud.

The retired non-playing captain of the U.S. team, Kramer, with a game comparable to that of

DOCTOR WOODWARD'S AMBITION By Elizabeth Seifert

THE STORY: Pop McAn, hospital chief, chafes at the inactivity forced on him by a partially paralyzing stroke. He tells Dr. Malcolm Glenn, top obstetrical surgeon, that Woodward, the new staff doctor, is due to arrive soon. Malcolm is seized with migraines, while representing and his brother, Dr. Martin Glenn, jumps into the breach. In the Glenn household, Malcolm's daughter Nikki brings her fiancé, Brian Cox, home with her after a party. Nancy is Malcolm's wife, Pete and Jerry his young sons.

She saw a smear of fruit cake tramped into the blue carpet, someone had left a cigaret smoldering upon the arm of the slip-covered couch. Pete was talking in a loud, silly fashion, the girls screaming at his outrageous pronouncements. From the swooping gestures of their hands, the cadet and Jerry were evidently talking airplanes. Mac, the Scottie, lay on the rug before the front door, his head on his paws, his black eyes rolling. He knew better than to get in the way of those dancing, heedless feet.

DOCTOR WOODWARD'S AMBITION

By Elizabeth Seifert

THE STORY: Pop Meek, hospital chief, called at the doctor's office on him by a portly man in a white coat. He tells Dr. Malcolm Glenn, top obstetrical surgeon, that Woodward, the new chief doctor, is due to arrive soon. Malcolm is seized with migraine while operating and his brother, Dr. Martin Glenn, jumps into the breach. In the Glenn household, Malcolm's daughter Nikki brings her fiancé, Brian Cox, home with her after a party. When she sees the young lovers together Nancy, Malcolm's wife, reflects bitterly on how promise her own life has become.

DR. MARTIN GLENN sat behind Malcolm's walnut desk and made out the reports of his brother's day of work. The handsome office was warm and quiet. The inner door stood ajar, for Malcolm was sleeping in there, drugged mercifully against the pushing fingers of pain. Susan sat beside Martin, helping him. Now and then the doctor glanced down at her bright, pretty head on which she pecked cap like a paper boat. Frequently, the nurse rose, went to the door of Malcolm's room, disappeared through it. When she came out, Martin would look up questioning, and she would murmur reassuringly.

"I hope it works!" said Martin fervently. "It does seem as if someone should find a relief for migraine—if not a cure." Martin was as big a man as his brother, but much darker in coloring. His hair was thick and black, his skin the color of walnut juice, his eyebrows bushy over brown eyes so dark they seemed black. He was ten years younger than Malcolm.

Susan stood beside the desk, looking back to the door of Malcolm's room. "It isn't right!" she said intensely. "That he should suffer so. He is so good, so kind—"

Martin tipped his pen on its round end, tried to balance it. "Malcolm's darned lucky. I wish somebody felt that way about Dr. Martin Glenn," he said.

"You don't need it, the way he does, Dr. Malcolm—" "All alone, poor goof. With a wife and three children, a nurse hypnotized into slavery to him, a whole hospital to jump at a word from him—not to mention his little brother—" "Who neglects his own work to do Dr. Malcolm's," Susan completed.

"Well—I wouldn't say neglects—" "Nobody would, Marty. But—you are busy, and you do take over this office when Dr. Malcolm's sick..."

MARTIN rose to his feet then, put his hands on Susan's shoulders, drew her to him and kissed her. "My Susie," he said deeply. "My—Susie."

Her fingers stole up to stroke his dark, thick hair. She returned his kiss. "If the Supe were to come in now!" "Let her!" Martin cried. "Why shouldn't I kiss my girl? Look, Susan..."

He reached into the pocket of his jacket and took out a small heart-shaped box of white velvet. In it were two rings. Martin drew forth the one set with a gleaming stone, reached for Susan's left hand. She drew back, her eyes troubled. "Oh, Martin, I—" He seized her hand, pushed the ring upon the third finger. His mouth was set in a grim line. "I want my ring on your finger, Susan. I love you—I—"

She moved closer to him, put her hand to his cheek. "I love you, too, Martin. You know that." He held her close. "I know I don't have you—as I want you, Susie. And I do want you—so much."

Martin tipped his pen on its round end, tried to balance it. She clung to him, her little cap awry now on the waves of her red hair, her crisp uniform crushed into strange wrinkles.

"Please, Susan," said the tall doctor. "Please—" She was warm and loving in his arms, but Martin felt her withdrawal, her withholding. "I can't leave Dr. Malcolm," she murmured against his cheek. "You know I can't leave him."

Curiously enough, the recently adopted state retirement pay system, intends to let employes retire, has brought back a number of former employes who had quit working.

There are employes who find that by working a short time longer they will be entitled to benefits under the retirement act.

It is developing, too, that the operation of the system is going to require a lot of bookkeeping and accounting.

For instance, a separate account will be maintained for each member. The account will record his contribution, plus interest from now until he retires, withdraws or his death occurs. The money paid into the Employees Retirement System will be invested in bonds of the United States, bonds of the State, or bonds of counties, cities or school districts in the state. Any city, county or district that has defaulted on bonds within the past 10 years is blackballed so far as investment of the retirement funds is concerned.

The amendment permits any county of more than 62,000 people to adopt a Home Rule County.

Delta County is first in the state to propose utilization of the authority to have a Home Rule County Charter, though the authority was granted by an amendment to the Texas Constitution adopted in 1935.

The amendment permits any county of more than 62,000 people to adopt a Home Rule County.

Under The Dome At Austin

AUSTIN, Tex. (T.P.)—One of the most remarkable of census compilations ever made in Texas has just been completed. It is a count of exceptional children. That is the name politely used by the state department of education and the Texas lawmakers in providing special school facilities for what ordinarily are called "handicapped" children.

The census has been taken under direction of H. E. Robinson, director of special education, and is, of course, confidential as to individuals. There is a grouping by counties and a classification by handicaps. These were necessary to enable school executives to prepare adequately for their special training.

The count showed 40,545 total. Most of the cases were reported by city or county school superintendents from their records. The list of children with orthopedic handicaps came partly from clinics conducted by the Crippled Children's Division of the State Department of Health.

The census total does not include feeble-minded or totally blind handicapped children but does include those with defective eyesight or hearing who can be taught in public schools.

Classified according to handicap, the count showed: 2,454 with deficient vision; 11,034 with orthopedic handicaps; 7,304 with speech disorders; 4,764 with deficient hearing; 2,384 with lowered vitality; and 2,009 with nervous disorders.

A remarkable thing about the survey is that there are 28 counties in the state that reported no school children with deficient vision and 34 reported none with deficient hearing. Reports from 26 counties listed no speech disorder.

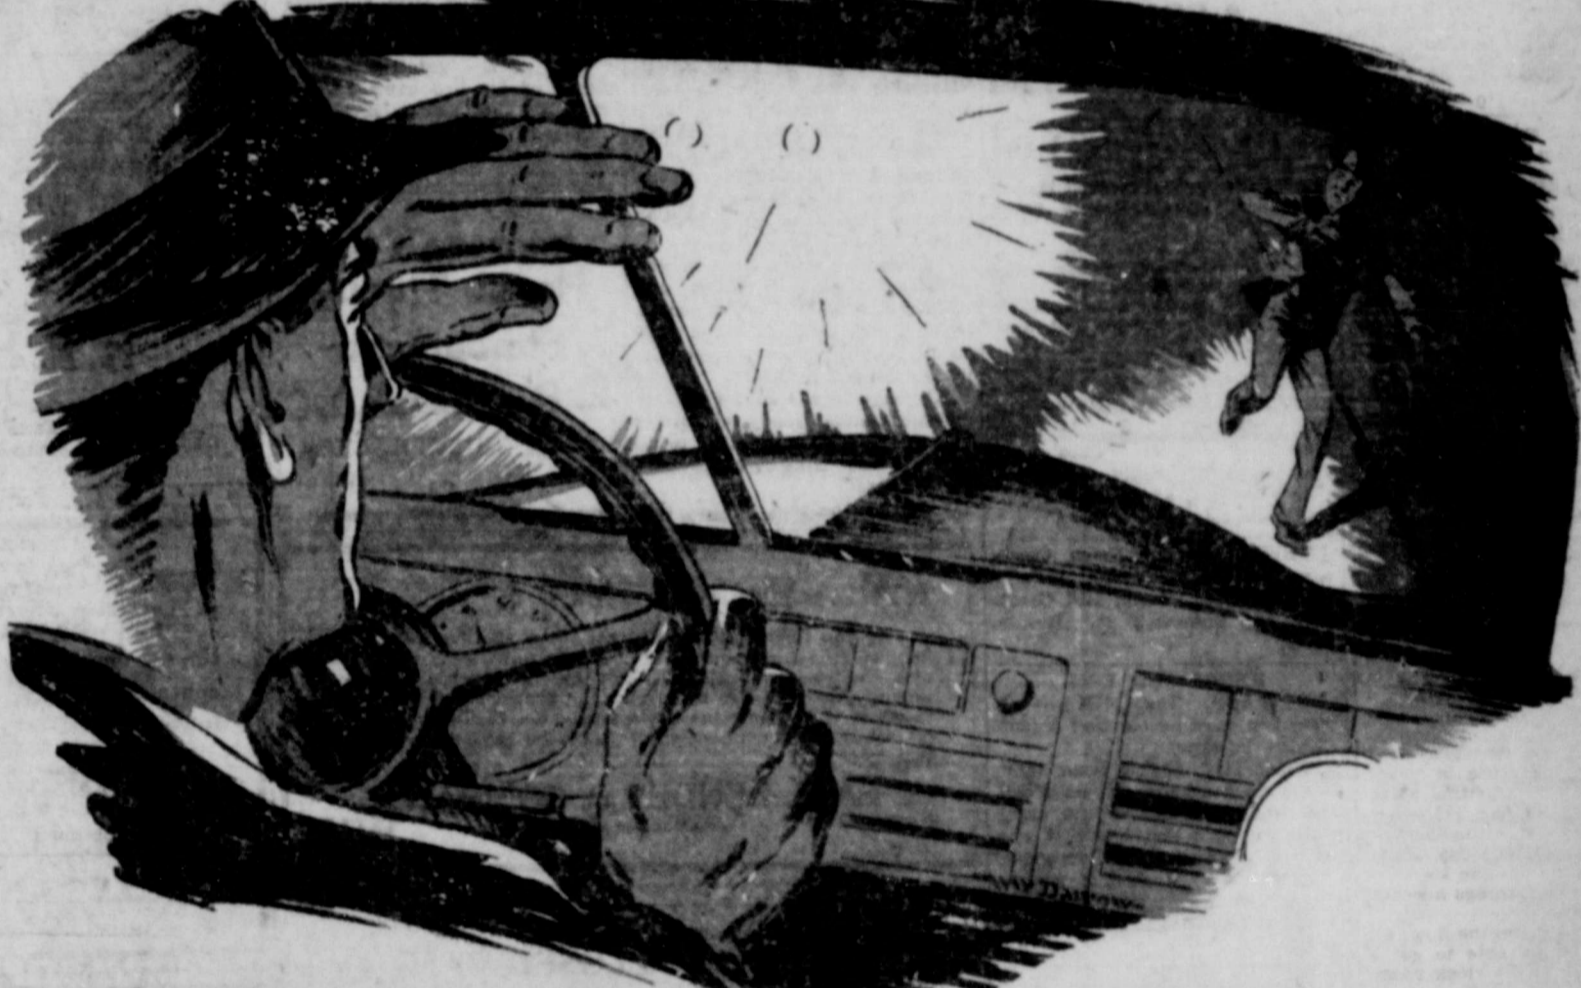

Every county in the state reported some child in need of special education assistance except McMullen and Kenedy counties; Hardeman county listed but one; Crockett, Roberts and Sterling counties reported two each while Borden, King, Martin, Schleicher and Terrell each had three.

In contrast, Dallas county listed 4,645 and El Paso 3,788. Other counties with more than 1,000 were Bexar, 1138; Harrison 1,621, and Tarrant 1,061. Nueces county had an even 1,000 and Harris county fell just below the thousand mark in spite of its large population, listing 982.

The tabulations show that the deficiencies do not parallel population. Some counties were high in one form of deficiency and low in others. Angelina county with a total of 818 pupils needing special education listed 424 of them as having deficient vision.

Of course all the more than 40,000 children with deficiencies will not get special schooling. Robinson said that applications for state grants for aid in education for handicapped children came from 87 schools in 61 counties and covered requests for training 11,664 children. Last year less than half that number were given special training.

Although the state has doubled its appropriations for the purpose the $350,000 for the new school year has been found insufficient. School applied for

BEWARE THE BLIND SPOT!

Oncoming bright headlights can momentarily blind the best of drivers. It requires seven seconds after passing glaring lights for your eyes to dilate again to the darkened road. Even in this brief space of time you may not see the dim figure in the road ahead of you until it is too late.

It's the early hours of darkness, especially in the Fall and Winter when traffic is still heavy, that produce the heaviest fatalities in driver-pedestrian accidents. The three hours after sunset are three times more dangerous than daylight hours.

A safe driver reduces his average speed at night. He looks away from glaring lights, watching the edge of the road on his side. He never "overdrives" his lights and can stop at any time within his headlight range. He is especially careful at intersections and is on the watch for unlighted vehicles, and motorists changing tires at the side of the road.

Pedestrians, for your own safety, walk to the left facing traffic, carry something white. Be extra cautious at night. Never forget, the life you save may be your own.

Negroes Must Foster Own Music, Says W. C. Handy Father of Blues

By Donald J. Brydon
 United Press Staff Correspondent
 ST. LOUIS (UP)—American Negro musicians should give more attention to their own rhythmic forms and worry less about playing classical music. That's the opinion of one of the world's greatest Negro composers, W. C. Handy, who became famous for his "St. Louis Blues."

Handy, now 74 years old, said other racial groups are using and exploiting these rhythmic forms. He feels that men of all races can find a common denominator in song. It is his conviction that his own race can make a great stride in aiding racial understanding by producing its music in forms which will be sung and loved by others.

The now nearly-blind musician who composed four of the greatest blues songs, "St. Louis Blues," "Memphis Blues," "Heath Street Blues," and "Harlem Blues," calls this a synthetic period of music. "Song hits now are popularized artificially by wide advertising, high pressure song-plugging and constant repetition by radio," he said.

"Years ago, songs were written about some place or period and endeared themselves to the people. A song was written for a community, and grew to wide popularity by natural means."
 Although he has known poverty and misfortune, Handy thinks that part of his life had little to do with the more than 60 blues songs he composed.
 "Mostly," he said, "I felt that four movements from his four best-known blues songs.

 Another of his recent projects is a book of 38 songs eulogizing George Washington Carver, Booker T. Washington, Crispus Attucks, and other outstanding members of his race.

Importers Of Tax-Free Smokes Given Warning

LANSING, Mich. (UP)—Michigan's revenue department is battling "bootlegging" of cigarettes by out-state mail order firms.
 A three-cent per pack cigarette tax went into effect July 1 and since then a number of out-state companies have been showing Michigan residents with offers to ship tax-free cigarettes through the mails.

 Clarence W. Lock, deputy state revenue commissioner, admits the "bootlegging" of cigarettes is widespread but says the state is ready to crack down on the practice.
 Lock says Michigan's law provides stiff penalties for persons who knowingly import cigarettes on which the tax is unpaid. They could be sent to jail for one year or fined $1,000.
 "We don't have jurisdiction over firms outside the state, but the law is ample to permit seizure of illicit cigarette shipments and punishment of importers," Lock points out. "We are compiling a long list of companies which are advertising tax-free cigarettes in Michigan and will soon move in to make 'bootlegging' unpopular."
 The tax is expected to yield $18,000,000 a year, according to Lock. While not specifically earmarked, the revenue will be used to retire Michigan's veterans' bonus bonds.

Air Line Keeping Tab On Big Fish

MIAMI (UP)—Pan American World Airways is keeping tabs on migratory game fish all over the Western Hemisphere.

In cooperation with the International Game Fish Association and the Sailfish and Tarpon Club of Miami, the airline is organizing a hemisphere-wide survey of the travel habits of sailfish, marlin, trapon and other big game fish. Fish will be tagged and their whereabouts reported when caught.

Plastic tags have been distributed to fishing clubs, hotels, charter boatmen and amateur fishermen all over South America. Comparison of the place the fish was tagged with the place caught will aid in charting the most suitable fishing grounds for deep sea angling.

The Wisdom of Harmonious Living

Scripture: Proverbs 3:30-31; 15:1, 18; 22:24-25; 25:18, 21-22; 26:20-21; Matthew 5:9; James 3:17

BY WILLIAM E. GILROY, D. D.

THE dictionary defines harmony as "concord or agreement in facts, opinions, manners, interests, etc." But most of the passages cited from the Book of Proverbs have to do with the best way of getting on with angry and disagreeable people, with whose facts and opinions one isn't likely to have much in common.

This is as it should be. There is no particular problem about living harmoniously with people whom one likes, and with whom there is the sort of concord that the dictionary suggests. The real problem is to avoid discord, and live peacefully and in mutual tolerance with those whom one doesn't like, and to whose facts, opinions or manners one may be definitely opposed. That is why the proverbs cited offer really helpful counsel.

In general, the basic advice is that if other people act meanly and nastily toward you, don't be nasty yourself. If a man is angry with you, that's the time to control your own temper. "A soft answer turneth away wrath; but grievous words stir up anger." "Make no friendship with an angry man; and with a furious man thou shalt not go; lest thou learn his ways, and get a snare to thy soul." Proverbs that recall Paul's counsel, "As much as lieth in you live peaceably with all men." There are limits even to the practice of forbearance, but one is wise to keep the boundary very wide. In a similar spirit, the Proverbs are and you can't fool people for long. Try being yourself. It's so much more comfortable. Just leave the tooting of the horns to the other fellow.

And have the grace to blush if he toots a horn for you. He'll like you lots better. And you'll like yourself better, too.

Spurred Offer Starts Business

HOUSTON, Tex. (UP)—When a shine boy refused an offer of $3 to shine George B. Kennedy's 12 pairs of shoes, it was the spark that started Houston's speedy shoeshine service.

Kennedy, three-fourths Cherokee Indian, was a former member of the horse-racing profession before starting his business on a shoestrapping.

The former jockey's service charges from 15 cents for women's ordinary shoes to 30 cents for men's two-tones, which includes pick-up and delivery.

Tootin' Your Horn

"If you don't help yourself, no one else will."
"If you don't blow your own horn, no one else will blow it for you."

How many times has it happened... tootin' your own horn? It's sorta awful... selling yourself. It's embarrassing to the other fellow and deep in his secret heart, he despises you for doing it. And yet, have you noticed, even with yourself, the almost uncontrollable impulse to pat yourself on the back, to more or less pat the other guy in his place? We have some awful impulses, we humans.

And yet, you and I know better. We know it's degrading to tout our own horn. Heaven knows, no matter how loud the tooting thereof, no one really listens to it. And don't you feel silly after you've done it? Sorta makes you want to run off and be by yourself until your face cools, and you're not quite so humiliated. It's a more or less slimy feeling. And no body likes to be laughed at.

It's so much better not to seek the limelight, especially if you have to tout your own horn to get it.

If there's anything to you, brother, someone else will tout your horn. Maybe not out loud. But if there's anything worthwhile in you, your friends will know it and they'll respect you a lot more if you have gumption enough to keep your mouth shut.

Whatever you are people will know about it. You don't have to tell them. Every little thing you do or do not do shows what you

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SERVICE

"Substance" is the subject of the Lesson - Sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, September 14.

The Golden Text is: "The invisible things of him from the creation of the world are clearly seen, being understood by the things that are made, even his eternal power and Godhead" (Romans 1:20).

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson - Sermon is the following from the Bible: "Every good gift and every perfect gift is from above, and cometh down from the Father of lights, with whom is no variableness, neither shadow of turning" (James 1:17).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "As God is substance and man is the divine image and likeness, man should wish for, and in reality has, only the substance of good, the substance of Spirit, not matter" (page 301).

Vacationer Neglects To Heed Own Hint

LANSING, Mich. (UP)—John Gray is getting the "I told you so" treatment in reverse these days.

Gray, who handles publicity for the Michigan state health department, last spring dutifully wrote his annual news release warning vacationists against sunburn, poison ivy, drowning, over-exercising, and all manner of health hazards.

Then Gray took his vacation. On his first day out the sun broiled his skin. He spent his vacation painfully in bed and was two days late in getting back to work.

$13 in Dimes Unlucky
LOWELL, Mass. (UP)—While he was out of his home, Cornelius A. Coughlin complained to police, a thief entered with a skeleton key and stole a bank containing $13 in dimes.

Airport Activities

Speedy says--

Mr. W. S. Fowler, owner of the Ercoupe, was issued a private license yesterday afternoon by A. Kirk. If you want to hear a salesman talk who loves his product you should hear Fowler brag on that Ercoupe. We agree with him it's a good airplane.

Yesterday we almost had a $500.00 bet made at the airport. Horace Miller wanted to bet that amount that he could travel in his Studebaker and beat an Ercoupe from Ranger to the lobby of the Texas Hotel. I don't know who would but it would be a good bet. The automobile would take all the chances. If anyone wants to cover the $500.00 the bet is still open.

Charlie Strong bought himself a new Cessna 140. The P. T. 19 he had wouldn't do everything he wanted it to.

We will furnish a bit of aerial advertising for the Crawley Motor Co. Today.

Kindness Pays

Seven fliers who didn't forget the kindness of a Belgian girl during the war have made it possible for Paule Bouse, 22, to come to America and live. The airmen adopted the former underground worker to facilitate her entry to U. S. and got her an airline job in Miami.

UNCONCERNED

Mrs. Dorothy Brown weeps while her son, Paul Cagle, left, four-years-old, looks on unconcerned that he was the center of a bitter custody battle in a Los Angeles courtroom. The court gave Mrs. Brown custody of her son instead of the boy's mother's parents with whom he has been living since Mrs. Brown's remarriage a year ago. (NEA Telephoto).

Mrs. Lucille Lockhart, registered nurse in charge of the Wauregan clinic, emphasizes that the "orthorator" determines only how eyes perform and is not designed for diagnosing eye ailments.

But when a "bad" eye condition shows up, and after the industrial vision service at Jurde University sends her a special report; the Wauregan management offers the employe a free eye examination by a competent doctor. And likewise foots the bill for a pair of specially fitted eye glasses.

Nurse Lockhart pointed out that whereas faulty vision often contributes to lack of pep, accidents, loss of time and decreased earning power, the employe with good vision enjoys a sense of general well-being, personal safety and increased earning power.

Thus far, more than 890 Wauregan employes have been orthorated. Nurse Lockhart forwards reports of each test to Purdue for classification of the individual employe as to visual skills and types of jobs to which his vision best fits him.

Old Missouri Mule Yielding Throne

ST. LOUIS (UP) — The Missouri mule has joined the old gray mare on a growing list of things that ain't what they used to be.

The subject came to light when the U. S. Department of Commerce published a book listing the ranking agricultural counties of the country. For the first time in history, not a single Missouri county was listed among the 50 leading counties in terms of number of mules and mule colts.

Missouri, known throughout the world for its sturdy mules, has been slipping for many years in this category. In 1910, the Show Me state ranked second only to Texas in the number of mules on farms. By 1940, however, Missouri had dropped to ninth place, and today is out of the running.

While Missouri mules have been disappearing, the North Carolina mule has been increasing in number, the report shows.

The principal reason for the decline of the Missouri mule, a veteran of both World Wars, seems to be the rapid increase in mechanization of farms.

Hungary Red Cross Gets U. S. Trucks

BUDAPEST (UP) — First official act of new American Minister Seldin Chapin upon his arrival was the presentation of twelve white-painted trucks, two of them refrigerator trucks, to the Hungarian Red Cross, in ceremonies marking formal launching of the American Red Cross aid program expected to exceed $1,700,000 this year.

President Zoltan Tildy and Premier Lajos Deninyes accepted the gift on behalf of the Hungarian Red Cross. Joint statements issued by W. de St. Aubin, supervisor for American Red Cross in Hungary since April, and G. Vally, Director General of Hungarian Red Cross, list items already received and in distribution as five million bandages, 112,000 kilos of soap, 38,000 Junior Red Cross educational gift boxes for school children and 25 typewriters.

A large consignment of medical supplies and instruments just received will be distributed also. St. Aubin emphasized that "distributions are handled through the Hungarian Red Cross and its local chapters, and are based on need, distributed free, without discrimination a too religious or political belief."

ORTHORATOR GIVES LIFT TO INDUSTRY BY CHECKING EYES

WAUREGAN, Conn. (UP) — This New England village is contributing its small part to the "know-how" which has made America industrially supreme.

You've heard about the wonders of radar, the power of guided missiles and atomic bombs. But this community, unheralded, helped topple the axis with the "orthorator."

What is the orthorator? It's an almost human optical-electrical device which measures the eye power of industrial workers. It determines how eyes perform, locates faulty vision, prevents accidents and increases earning power among mill workers. It contributed to the proficiency of New England's cotton textile mills in keeping our soldiers and sailors comfortably clothed against the rigors of battle in Europe and the Orient.

It stepped up the workers' efficiency and speeded the production of textiles needed in the war.

The Wauregan Mills, cotton textile manufacturers, installed the machine during the war. Employees were invited to take the orthorator tests, voluntarily. Management led the way and all top-ranking mill officials were tested.

It was accorded less public acclaim than double wage scales, health promotion activities and mill modernization programs, but now its wonders may be told.

High School Graduates! YOU CAN continue your education!

If you finished high school last June and have found it difficult to enter college because of present overcrowded conditions, don't give up your ambition for a higher education. The "biggest university of all"—the U. S. Regular Army and Air Force—has room for you. Any intelligent, physically fit young man can enlist at once and go right on studying!

Do you know any other educational institution that provides practically all your living expenses and excellent pay while you learn?

All over the world, more than 265,000 members of Uncle Sam's trillion-man Army and Air Force are taking nearly 200 different courses offered by the U. S. Armed Forces Institute. There are standard classroom courses, self-teaching texts, correspondence courses in almost every subject under the sun. Most schools and colleges give academic credit for successful completion of these courses.

Besides this education, there are leadership schools and some of the most modern technical training schools on earth. Men who enlist for three years, and can qualify, may attend these schools and learn subjects such as jet airplanes and engines, radar, recoilless weapons and many others not yet available to civilians.

Other enlisted men who can meet the requirements are given the opportunity to enter Officer Candidate Schools or take the highly prized Aviation Cadet Pilot Training.

Army and Air Force policy of today is to give every young man opportunity for self-improvement... to encourage him to move to higher grades and greater achievement... to help him fit himself for a career.

Will joining the Army or Air Force interrupt your education? Not a bit of it! If you're eager to learn, an enlistment is your great opportunity to continue your education in a job you'll be proud of. Get all the facts at your U. S. Army and Air Force Recruiting Station.

* The Cadets are Flying Again. Aviation Cadet Pilot Training is open to qualified unmarried civilians between 20 and 26, who have completed two years of college or the equivalent.
