Suspects In Rape-Murder Case

Bacon 30 Cents A Pound But That Was In 1922

MOUNT VERNON, Wash. (UP)—In perusing an October, 1922, issue of the Mount Vernon Daily Herald, which celebrated its 25th anniversary Oct. 10, a researcher found these memories of the good old days.

"Best quality ham, 25 cents a pound . . . bacon, 30 cents a pound . . . bulk coffee, four pounds for 90 cents."

Other items dreamed about were milk and bread selling for ten cents a quart and ten cents a loaf, $498 for a Ford roadster, men's overcoats, $13.50, ladies' sweaters for $1.95, and three flat cans of salmon for a quarter.

That was four years after the end of World War I.

The Ruf-Neks, men's pep organization at University of Oklahoma, was formed under the name of the "Royal Order of Unshaven Necks."

GUAM PROBLEM AS U.S. BASTION OF DEFENSE

By Miles W. Vaughn
United Press Vice President
For Asia

GUAM (UP)—The United States has laid the foundation for a key structure in its projected military domination of the western Pacific Ocean. Actual construction of a great military base here still lies in the future, however, this correspondent found in a tour of the island.

Security prevents a complete inspection of Guam but visiting correspondents are able to see enough to reach these conclusions:

1. An early and final decision is needed on whether Guam will be permanently under the administration of the Navy Department or whether it shall be under some civilian organization such as the Department of Interior. Everything here indicates that the present naval administration will be continued as a permanent policy. The island primarily is useful as a naval base and stationary aircraft carrier—a strategic area for the domination of the western Pacific Ocean and Eastern Asia.

2. Military development, which has been retarded by lack of funds should be speeded up not only for reasons of national defense but also long-range economy. Funds are needed immediately, for example, to build a new gasoline distribution system for the army air forces stationed on the islands. The present "temporary" system, hurriedly laid down during the war, is literally falling apart. Wastage from leaking during the past six months is estimated to have been equal to the cost of building a new permanent system.
3. Improved permanent housing for both military and civilian personnel on the island is badly needed. The present temporary huts in some areas are not only uncomfortable but in some cases dangerous in this region of terrific typhoons.

4. Allegations by some American commentators that the Guam administration has been negligent in returning farm lands to the Guamanian people are false. The great bulk of land of all kinds on island is in the hands of the Guamanians. However, the people generally are not interested in farming because of high wages which can be obtained by working for the government.

Americans here generally feel that "New Dealism" has been extended to Guam without much consideration for the realities and that the economy of the island has been thrown entirely out of gear by Washington's generosity. Thus farmers raise no crops because they can make more from "Uncle Sugar"; fishermen have cast aside their nets for the same reason. Household servants are difficult to get and demand wages which are entirely out of the reach of most American housewives.

One gets the impression here that both military and civilian personnel on the island feel they are being harassed by detailed instructions of all kinds from Washington. The instructions have little to do with what presumably is the great and immediate American objective on this island—the early development of a powerful sea and air base which can play a deciding factor in event of war in this part of the world.

Lady Flier Abashed By Broken Garter

LEXINGTON, Neb. (UP)—A North Platte woman flier landed her light plane at Lexington and was startled by her greeting.

As she stepped to the ground, a bystander said: "You have a broken garter."

The woman took a quick look to see if she could remedy the calamity. By it required a mechanic. The "garter" is a band that surrounds a landing strut on the aircraft.

SHOWDOWN ON GERMANY DUE AT MEETING

WASHINGTON—Secretary of State George C. Marshall's brutally frank Chicago speech was recognized today as warning to the Kremlin that the United States is ready for a showdown on allied policy toward Germany.

It will come at the London foreign ministers conference which meets Nov. 25. Marshall leaves for London tomorrow.

If Marshall sticks to his hard-fisted position the conference scarcely can be an utter failure although Russia may continue to prevent the making of a peace treaty with Germany. The conference looks like the last allied grasp at postwar unity—and there isn't much chance of getting that.

The prime conference objective is a German peace treaty which will hasten the political and industrial unification and revival of that stricken country. Europe's recovery and, ultimately, the future well-being of the United States hang on the results of their efforts.

Marshall bluntly said the United States would not be bluffed or dissuaded by Russian propaganda from the policies of European and world recovery.

Funeral For Pfc. Norwood To Be At Clyde Friday

Funeral services for Pfc. Wayland E. Norwood, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Norwood of Ranger, will be conducted Friday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the Baptist church in Clyde with Rev. C. Sidney Cox of Oklaunion officiating. Pallbearers will be former classmates at Clyde.

The body of Pfc. Norwood, who was killed in action in Germany on December 12, 1944, will arrive in Clyde Thursday evening and will be met by there by the parents and his brother Bobby Carl.

At the time of his death, Pfc. Norwood was serving with the 104th division of the First Army. He entered the service of the Army on November 9, 1943 and went into foreign service on August 24, 1944.

He was born August 24, 1925 at Comanche and had resided at Trent where he attended school and later at Clyde where he graduated from high school. His family moved to Ranger just one month to the day from the time they were notified of their son's death.

The original name of of carnation was coronation, because it was commonly used to make crowns, garlands and wreaths.

GENERAL EXPLAINS WHY ACCUSING LETTER FILED

WASHINGTON—Maj. Gen. Junius W. Jones said today that the Air Force pigeon-holed an anonymous letter accusing Maj. Gen. Bennett E. Meyers of profiting from wartime stock deals because officials considered it the "self-discrediting" work of a crackpot reformer.

Jones, who is air force inspector, was called before a Senate war investigating subcommittee for further questioning as to why the letter, addressed originally to the FBI, was put away in air force files and withheld from Senate investigators.

Meanwhile B. H. Lamarre, a youthful bookkeeper who says he was Meyers' "front man" in Aviation Electric Corp. Vandalia, O., wanted to resume his testimony about Meyers' "take" from his business sideline during the war while he was a key air force procurement officer.

Senate investigators contend

He was an engineer and for 35 years served continuously as custodian of the Eastland county courthouse, resigning only when his health and eyesight began failing him. The offices in the county courthouse closed this morning for funeral rites. He was a long time member of the Baptist church and of the Woodmen of the World.

Honesty, trustworthy and industrious "Uncle" John, as he was familiarly called by his associates and close friends, was loved and respected by those who knew him.

Case Of Johnson Vs. Trammel Due Thursday Morning

The only case scheduled for trial in the 91st district court for Thursday is that of J. U. Johnson vs. Leonard Trammel. It is a jury case.

Judge Geo. L. Davenport will convene court at 9:30 Thursday morning.

Arabs Reveal Plans

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y.—The Arab states unveiled their minority blueprint for an independent Arab-controlled Palestine today, with a warning that the United Nations would have to impose "rule by force" on the Arab world if it partitions the Holy Land.

Recent hunting licenses cannot be sold to soldiers stationed in South Dakota unless they actually are residents of the state.

LEON BLUM MAY HEAD NEW FRENCH DEAL

PARIS—Leon Blum, veteran socialist leader, was reported today to have accepted a bid to head a new government to replace that of Paul Ramadier, which tottered on the brink of collapse under a Communist threat of a general strike throughout France.

"Blum already has been asked to head a new government and has accepted," Guy Mollet, secretary general of the Socialist party, said.

Mollet predicted that Blum would be named "probably within 48 hours" to lead a new middle-of-the-road government.

The report of the government turnover came as the Communist leadership of French labor started agitation for a general strike. Already a wave of crippling strikes had boosted the number of idle above 350,000.

Thanksgiving To Be Observed Here Nov. 27

Ranger will observe Thanksgiving on Thursday, November 27, and the town will be closed to business on that date. This statement was made today by the Retail Merchants Association after it was learned that the confusion of the past few years over the change in Thanksgiving, had not entirely been cleared up.

Mrs. M. A. Oyler, secretary of the association, also stated this morning that contributions for the expense of Christmas lights and other Christmas features in Ranger were coming in but if there are those who have not given to the cause, they may leave their donations at her office.

Directors of the organization will meet tonight at 6:30 o'clock at the association office to make the final plans for the Christmas program in Ranger.

RATIONING, CONTROLS SEEM HEADED FOR DEFEAT

WASHINGTON—The joint congressional economic committee today sidetracked President Truman's requests for price control and rationing power. It decided to give first consideration to other proposals in his anti-inflation program.

The committee's action was a new indication that Mr. Truman's request for emergency power to impose selective price control and rationing faced almost certain defeat in the hostile Republican-controlled Congress.

"I think that, if we're going to get anything out of the special session, we will have to let points nine and ten—the rationing and price control phases of the administration program—go over to the regular session, said Committee Chairman Robert A. Taft, of Ohio.

Says Balance Between Factions Up To Lawmakers

AUSTIN, Tex.—It is the lawmakers duty to maintain a balance between management and labor, and to prevent abuses, State Rep. Joe Kilgore of McAllen, candidate for speaker of the next Texas legislature, said here today.

"Management must profitably exist to give labor a place to work," Kilgore said in a speech prepared for delivery at a meeting of the Texas Motor Bus Association.

"Labor," he said, "must have wages, hours and working conditions that are healthy and that will inspire public ability to buy consumer goods. Our economy and our way of life depend upon establishing and maintaining that balance."

Kilgore added that the laws cannot solve all the problems of labor and management. The solution must come, he said, "by application of good judgment on the part of each."

United Nations Problem Faces Army In Japan

YOKOHAMA, Japan (UP)—Almost every nationality in the world is represented among approximately 1,200 foreign nationals who are being processed, mostly for reemployment, by the U. S. Eighth Army headquarters. There are 100 American Nisei, 59 Canadian Nisei and 115 who are listed as "stateless." In addition, there are Poles, Hawaiians, Hungarians, Ukrainians, Italians, Filipinos, Germans, Peruvians, Portuguese, Indonesians, Chinese, British, Indo-Chinese, Spanish, Syrians, French, Egyptians, Danes, Annamites, Swedes, Dutch, Belgians and Swiss.

Most of the stateless, who were in Japan during or before the war, were employed as typists, stenographers, laborers, foremen or telephone operators, while some were highly skilled medical or engineering specialists.

40 Bodies Taken From Fire Ruins

WELLINGTON, N. Z.—Forty bodies had been recovered today from the ruins of the Ballantyne Department Store in Christchurch, N. Z., which was swept by fire yesterday.

Police said all the bodies were burned beyond identification. Six persons still were missing. Damage was estimated at more than $2,000,000. A mass funeral for the fire victims was planned for Sunday.

At a combined meeting of the House and Senate as the Special session of Congress got under way, President Truman called upon Congress to attack inflation by giving him the authority to impose ceilings on wages and prices, and to revive consumer rationing if necessary. (NEA Telephoto).

WASHINGTON COLUMN

BY PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, D. C.—(NEA)—Wide differences in opinion on 20 leading foreign and domestic issues are shown in the answers to a questionnaire sent by this column to its 700 daily newspaper client editors and 800 members of Congress, top government officials and Washington representatives of labor and business groups.

On the basis of a 40 per cent return, it is found that there is general agreement on only two questions.

- 1. Only 9 to 13 per cent believe that the U. S. should stop further aid to Europe.
2. On the question of Europe's ability to repay Marshall Plan advances, only 41 to 45 per cent believe that outright grants-in-aid should be given, with no repayment called for.

On all other questions, the opinions of the different groups varied from zero to 100 per cent. Every one of the government officials replying thinks rent controls should be extended beyond the present expiration date of Feb. 29, 1948. Not one of the senators replying would admit opposition to the President's plan that something be done about high prices at the coming special session.

Not one group showed a majority in favor of a return to price controls. Forty-eight per cent of the government officials answered that some limited form of price control would be necessary to control inflation, which was the most favorable showing.

A majority of government officials think prices can be brought down without reducing wages. They voted 74 per cent in support of this belief. Sixty per cent of the senators apparently hold the same view, but only 39 per cent of the congressmen.

On the likelihood of a business recession in 1948, the business leaders seem more fearful than any other group, 60 per cent answering that they saw danger ahead. Forty-seven per cent of the editors, 40 per cent of the government officials and 50 per cent of the senators are similarly concerned, but only 24 per cent of the congressmen show alarm over the possibility of a depression.

Editors lead the parade in believing the Taft-Hartley bill is not too tough. They answered 85 per cent this way, as compared to 84 per cent of the congressmen, 82 per cent of the business representatives, 80 per cent of the senators and—surprisingly enough—52 per cent of the top officials of the Truman administration.

EDITORS are likewise the most enthusiastic over prospects of tax reduction, 72 per cent saying they want it next session. At the other extreme, only 43 per cent of the government officials favor it. Congressmen—who will decide the question—favor reduction. Members of Congress and government officials seem more reluctant to write off the UN than other groups. Only 10 per cent of the senators, 26 per cent of the congressmen and 30 per cent of the government officials favor trying to set up a new world organization now. On the other hand, 41 per cent of the editors and 45 per cent of the business leaders approve this step.

The Congress is, apparently, far more opposed to universal military training than any other group. Only 39 per cent of the lawmakers favor UMT. Government officials are 70 per cent for it, editors 78 per cent and business groups 81 per cent.

Twenty-eight per cent of the editors and 27 per cent of the business groups think the world is headed for another war. But only 19 per cent of the government officials and 22 per cent of the congressmen share that view. And not one senator answered that he thought a third world war was inevitable.

SPORTS

BY HARRY GRAYSON

CHICAGO—(NEA)—As Father John J. Cavanaugh, president of Notre Dame, once remarked, Frank Leahy is a master of understatement. Gilmour Dobie for years beat them all at singing the blues. R. J. Blaik of Army is better than a green hand at playing things down. Georgia has Wally Butts, and so on down the line.

But Bernie Bierman of Minnesota wins the gold-embroidered crying towel. Asked to contribute to NEA's current "Winning Plays of 1947" series, the veteran guide of the Gophers replies: "To tell the truth, we don't have such a thing.

"Until the closing minutes of our sixth game—with Pittsburgh—Minnesota hadn't scored a single touchdown from outside the 10-yard line this fall, except on a pass interception and a fumble recovered in mid-air. And the Pittsburgh linemen were tired when Ralph McAllister ran 14 yards for a touchdown and Frank Brown went 15 for another.

"SO we haven't broken away for a long run against anyone. "Thus we don't have a play that we could call particularly successful.

"What little ground we have gained has been a matter of pouncing away for short gains.

"And to be perfectly frank, I don't believe anyone would be interested in how we banged out two and three yards.

"The principal trouble is that we have absolutely no speed and very little power in our backfield. On the tough to break any man down, I can't help you on

New Method Tried in Child Psychology

FORT WORTH, Tex. (UP)—A new way to give psychological examinations to children has been developed by the Mental Hygiene Clinic in Fort Worth.

Psychiatrists and other professional men and women from private and U. S. Public Health Service hospitals are examining the children at play instead of close observation under the strain of a test.

The volunteer workers who operate the clinic find a shortage of funds and equipment. They appeal to the public for help. To examine the children properly, the staff needs equipment such as doll houses, blocks, dolls, small books and toys.

Brick Apt. House
To Make Journey

NEW YORK (UP)—Thirty-five families will get a ride across a highway in their own house soon.

The city announced plans to move a four-story brick apartment building to make way for new road work.

The trip across the highway probably will take several days, with the building moving four feet in about two minutes and then standing still for an hour or two while workmen reset the more than 1,000 steel rollers on which it will move forward.

The tenants will continue to have electric lights, plumbing, water and heat, through flexible fixtures.

This Is Happy

By PEGGY DERN
© by Peggy Dern, Distributed by NEA SERVICE, INC.

THE STORY: "Sundown," the Harrell estate, appears to Happy the something right out of the movies. Madeline shows her to an exquisite guest room, complete with maid. After dressing for dinner, Happy goes downstairs to find Drusilla waiting in a beautiful, intimate parlor. Even makes a point of being rude to Happy.

XIII
JOYCE came bounding in, in her cheerful, eager manner, but stopped short at sight of Drusilla. And then she said mildly, with a little winkle of the fingers of her upraised hand, "Hi, dream girl—how's everything?"

"Gotten," said Drusilla.
Joyce exchanged a swift glance with George, who scowled. At that moment Madeline came into the room. She greeted Drusilla as though she were the most welcome of expected guests and when, a little later, dinner was announced, she said graciously, "You're staying to dinner, Drusilla, of course."

Drusilla glanced at George, but George was looking down at Happy, and Drusilla's lovely little face darkened.

"No, I'm not staying to dinner. I won't invite," she said suddenly. "I'm inviting you now, child—"

"Thanks," Drusilla cut in rudely. "But I must run along. I only stopped by because I saw the flag was up at the gate. I didn't know you had guests."

She swept out of the room in a whirl of chiffon-skirts and clicking heels, and a moment later they heard the sound of a car started too violently.

George made a little gesture of distaste.
"Let's forget about Drusilla," he said, and offered Happy his arm. "Dinner is waiting."

HAPPY found dinner a continuation of the enchantment that was like some miraculously perfect dream.

When it was over, Madeline and Joyce settled down to a game of cribbage, and George, looking at the clock, said eagerly to Happy, "And now we'll see the garden."

He swung open one of the French doors and they stepped out on a flagstone terrace. It was dark, save for the oblongs of soft yellow light that spilled through the other doors along the terrace. George took her hand and, moving with the ease of familiarity, led her along the terrace and around a corner until they were at the back of the big house.

As the moon climbed above the tops of the tall trees and lay bright and clear before them, Happy stood enchanted and incredulous.
Covering the ground before them, and spreading to the edge of the woods on either side, were drifts of snowy white which, in the tremulous silver-gilt moonlight, were like thousands and thousands of white butterflies come to rest.

"Oh!" she breathed at last, in a voice so faint with wonder that George had to lean his head a little above her to catch the sound. "Oh—what is it?"

"White azaleas," said George softly.

A TINY wind moved stealthily, as though on tiptoe, across the white wonder before them.

"I'll never forget them—never," whispered Happy.

"Of course you won't," George assured her. "I won't let you."

Happy lifted her head and drew a long breath of utter delight. It was like being in the midst of some enchanting dream, too perfect for reality. And yet as she stood there spellbound by the loveliness around her, she was conscious of a perfectly insane feeling of—it couldn't possibly be homesickness! Yet the vision of the apartment stood clear before her, and lounging in the big comfortable chair he had preempted.

Steve's narrow, dark eyes, his quizzical eyes that could be so tormented by hideous memories, seemed to look straight into her own.

She shivered involuntarily, and George said, swiftly contrite, "You're cold. What an idiot I was to bring you out here without a wrap. Come along inside."

She let him lead her back to the long, handsome room with its great log fire leaping beneath the impressive mantel, and Madeline and Joyce bent above their game.

MADELAINE gave them a swift glance and rose from the table.

"And now," she said briskly. "I'm going to call an early bedtime. I'm sure Happy is tired, and you'll want to get an early start in the morning, George."

George nodded. "I'm anxious to see how things have been going," he admitted. "If I have had breakfast and been long before you are awake, Happy, but I'll see you at dinner tomorrow evening."

"I'll take good care of her," Joyce promised. "Do you ride, Happy?"

Happy dimpled demurely. "Only the subway—and in moments of extravagance, a Fifth Avenue bus," she answered lightly.

Joyce chuckled. "Well, I've got riding clothes that will fit you and you'll learn to ride something a little less sedate before I'm through teaching you things, my girl."

At the foot of the stairs, Happy found George beside her, holding her hand, keeping her back a little. Joyce, with a glance over her shoulder, went on up the stairs and Happy colored a little at Joyce's look.

"I hope you're going to like it here, Happy," said George softly and earnestly. "Half as much as I like having you here."

For a moment he looked very much as though he might bend his handsome head and kiss her. But then he stepped back, with a tender, amused smile, and said lightly, "Good night, Happy, sleep well!"

She nodded, murmured something, and went swiftly up the stairs.

Son, Mother Complains

LONDON (UP)—Six year old Richard West's mother wished the police would not be so kind to her son.

When Richard was found wandering 200 miles from home, she asked police to lock him up and put him on bread and water to make him realize that he had done wrong. The request was refused.

Mrs. West said: "Richard has run away so many times that I have lost count and I blame the police. Through mistaken kindness, they have given him such a good time that he feels encouraged to do it again."

Cock Pheasant Burglar Lands In Jail Cell

GREEN BAY, Wis. (UP)—Mr. and Mrs. Elmer H. Delfosse returned home to find a living room window broken and called police to investigate a burglary attempt. Police found the "burglar" sitting on top of a picture in the living room.

It was a large cock pheasant which resisted arrest by ruffling his feathers and acting quarrelsome. The pheasant was taken to the city jail to be held until its injuries from housebreaking heal, after which it will be released.

Voice With Smile Doesn't Date

FRIENDSHIP, Tenn. (UP)—Did you ever listen to the telephone operator who has "a young, sweet voice" and wonder if she might not be your dream girl?

You should hear "Miss Alice," the Friendship telephone operator.

Many romantic young fellows have tried to "date" "Miss Alice"—as she is affectionately called—with no more to go on than her voice.

"Miss Alice" tries to discourage those telephone mashers a n d there's a reason. It's not that she is bad looking, but she's 75-year-old Mrs. J. A. Bertson.

SANCTUARY
 The man with the collar turned backward . . . the priest . . . tells me that I am looking for a creed . . . some sort of belief which I have not yet found . . . and said I am sad because he does not understand. And I had such faith in his understanding. . . the man with the collar turned backward.
 Because this man is so very human . . . and so very fine. However, if that be my cross . . . one more cross to bear . . . I give the man with the collar turned backward . . . credit for the courage of his convictions.
 Yes, I am sad.
 Sad in a world of mixed creeds . . . mixed beliefs . . . divers religions . . .
 All of us have a dream . . . cannot I have mine?
 The dream of a sanctuary . . . away from the milling throng . . . whether it would be called a church, I do not know or care. A place where tired hearts might go . . . into the beauty of the sanctuary . . . where beautiful flowers grow . . . where birds sing . . . where the world's greatest music might be heard . . . and where a great, silver cross hangs . . . and silver candles gleam . . . and white and red and blue ones.

Mike Munn, six, points to Captain McCurry's position on the blackboard. His dad, Biggie, is the Spartans' head coach. Forest Evashevski, Jr., also six, is the son of Michigan's former All-America blocking back now drilling the Green and White backs.

A place where one might refresh his soul . . . where, if one wished . . . one might look up from one's meditation to see this man's eyes . . . but only . . . if he understood . . . priest, if one wished . . . to a place where one could go, without the of rest . . . to pray . . . and to be quiet.

Because there is no such place . . . I rest within my own sanctuary . . . content. And as long as the creeds, the mixed beliefs, the divers religions exist . . . just so long shall so many of us rest within our own sanctuaries. For you see, we, too, hold the Keys

Three Columbuses Get Mixed Up

COLUMBUS, Ga. (UP)—Columbus police were pleased but puzzled by the flood of congratulatory messages they received by way of Columbus, O., law enforcers.

It seems that when Marvin Plack, public relations director of the University of Mississippi, visited Columbus, Miss., he over-parked and found a ticket on his car reading: "Stay as long as you please, but be reasonable about parking."
 He neither received a court summons nor a fine. He was so impressed with the idea he sent it along to a national magazine which identified the town merely as Columbus.
 Now, the messages are on their way to the right place—Columbus, Miss.

They reported in the Journal of Pediatrics that the new drug is "safe and efficient."
 FORT WORTH, Tex. (UP)—The President's food program plus the housewife's temperament have the bakers here in a quandary.

Fort Worth bakers claim that Tarrant County hogs daily dine on good fresh bread that would gladden the hearts of many a starving European or Asiatic.

The reason for the waste, the bakers claim, is that it is impossible to guess when the housewife will decide to buy bread. If she skips buying, out goes today's bread, for it can't be sold when slightly hard.

PHILADELPHIA (UP)—Hollywood's loss of foreign markets may cause an increase in movie admission prices throughout the country, according to Lynn Farnol, advertising and publicity director of Samuel Goldwyn Productions.

Speaking before the 15th Richard Club here, Farnol described England's 75 per cent tax on imported films as a major blow to Hollywood productions. He said 80 per cent of the film industry's overseas profits had been wiped out.

Farnol said the price rise was necessary if American screen entertainment was to maintain its present level.
