Weather Bureau Promises Texas Relief

Well...
I Dunno,
But...

"We've always wondered about the seclusion of a man that we encounter daily. He has nothing at all to say to people and seems to withdraw deeper within himself when spoken to.

Well, this morning we think we found the answer. He enjoys conversation with himself, his own company, in other words. Sitting alone this morning, he was carrying on a spirited conversation with himself, gesturing with his hands as if to emphasize a point and then his shoulders shook in amusement at something he'd said to himself.

Maybe, he's got something. After all conversation with one's self in some cases could be more enlightening and entertaining than listening to some people.

We didn't see it, out people that told us about it. The "Train of Tomorrow" that will be on exhibition at the Dallas Fair passed through Ranger Monday afternoon.

It's the two story affair that has a streamlined observation section in the upper story of each car. We've seen pictures of it that show how we know.

Mrs. Margaret Perdue of 306 North Oak Street, Ranger has a clipping from the Archer City daily which warms her heart and we don't wonder. The man about whom the article is written is her son and the brother of Mrs. R. J. Rains and Miss Claudia Fay Perdue.

And here it is. We're finally getting around to writing of something that happened quite a while ago, last May, to be exact. We wanted to write it then but couldn't get the desired permission. The guy simply said no, and he might say no again if we asked him, but we feel he deserves what words of praise we can find to express.

You may remember that in the issue of the News of May 15, we announced that David Perdue was going to celebrate his birthday on May 29 with a theatre program, the net proceeds of which he was going to use for a worthy cause of his own choosing. He told us what the money was going to be used for but forbade us to make it known.

On the morning of May 19, his Royal theatre was seriously damaged by fire, and could not be repaired in time to celebrate his birthday. In fact it was closed for approximately 30 days. But Perdue, the man with the oversized heart, had already spent the money he anticipated taking in on his birthday party and the purchase delivered to its intended recipient. Perdue bought the gift and paid for it with money he never received.

The gift and recipient was a new wheel chair, for Dan Wallace, stricken with paralysis eleven years ago, since which time he has never taken an unaided step. We just thought you ought to know.

Plans are underway for a big community open house to be held at the Community Club house on Friday, February 13. The affair is being arranged by members of the Ranger Civic League under the direction of the club house committee.

This will be the opportunity for everybody in Ranger to inspect the club house and at the same time enjoy the entertainment which is being planned for the occasion.

Every man about town has asked us when they will be able to see the club house. So men as well as women and children here's your opportunity and be sure and take that date open for the big

Word Received Of Baby's Death

Mrs. Ven White of Ranger has received word of the death of her niece, Grace Ann Drienhofer, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Drienhofer of Falfurrias, formerly of Ranger. Services for the baby will be conducted Wednesday morning at 11 o'clock in Falfurrias.

National Guard Plane Crashes

Workers inspect damage to a supply building after a C-47 crashed during its take-off run at Andrews Field, Maryland. The pilot, 1st Lt. Charles Ryerson, Arlington, A., died in the crash of the transport, a District of Columbia Air National Guard plane. Injured in the crash were two crew members and Miss Dorothy Laurence, member of the Woman's Naval Reserve, a passenger. (NEA Telephoto).

QUARTERBACK CLUB FORMS '48 PROGRAM

The Quarterback Club's program for 1948 was outlined Monday night when the club met at the high school auditorium with a record crowd attending.

John Bates, president of the organization, presided at the meeting and expressed his appreciation for the large number present. After the minutes of the last meeting were read by Evis Landers, the program for bigger and better athletics for the year was given, and the goal of 600 club members for 1948 set.

Coach Onis Warden reviewed football prospects for 1948 and Coach Boone Yarbrough outlined the College's football program.

A film of a New York Giants football game was shown and narrated by Coach Sam Aills who explained the difference between professional and collegiate rules.

After the film was shown, refreshments were served and the membership discussed football and basketball in general.

To Press Tax Cut
WASHINGTON (UP) — Republican members of the House ways and means committee decided today to press for House approval of the complete $5,800,000,000 Kaitson tax reduction bill.

Elevator Riding Leads Forms Of Transportation

PHILADELPHIA (UP) — Americans will travel up and down skyscrapers and apartment buildings in record numbers this year as 5,000 new elevators, installed in recent months, go into service throughout the nation's metropolitan areas.

The new units, costing an estimated $50,000,000, boost the total number of lifts now in operation to nearly 400,000, according to a market study by SKF Industries, Inc. That represents an increase of 40 per cent in the nation's elevator census since 1927.

With more than 17 billion people a year being hoisted and lowered by this device, the study indicates that the elevator is now the most widely used mode of U. S. public transportation. Trains, for example carry an average of 792,734,141 passengers a year; street cars, 9,000,000,000; buses, 10,045,387,000; subways, 4,000,000,000, and airplanes, 13,000,000.

Accident Laid To Drink
DENVER (UP) — Traffic officials in Denver have found that during 1947 the great majority of fatal accidents on the city's streets were caused by drunkenness. During the first 11 months of the year 56 people met death—27 of whom were pedestrians. Police said 19 of the deaths were caused by drivers or pedestrians who had been drinking.

His Last Fire

He and another fire fighter were killed when a brick wall collapsed and buried them beneath tons of smoking debris. (NEA Photo).

EXPERT SAYS HELP EUROPE OR RE-ARM

WASHINGTON — John Foster Dulles said today that if Congress rejected the Marshall plan, the cost of re-arming America would make the $17,000,000,000 Marshall proposal look like a bag of peanuts.

He accused Russia of trying "by ever art short of war" to wreck Europe and urged Congress to set up a hard-headed aid to Europe plan that would bind the 16 western European countries together in a mutual aid pact to halt the march of Soviet dictatorship.

The Republican foreign policy expert told the Senate foreign relations committee that the Marshall plan was an essential step toward peace.

"If we do not take that step," he said, "we shall not get peace." He cautioned that the amount of aid to each country should be tempered by the degree of cooperation.

Dulles said it was his belief that without the emergency funds voted by Congress for entering aid to Europe last month—"Soviet dictatorship might today be on the Atlantic from Normandy to Dakar."

The GOP foreign adviser recommended for a defense pact clause in the Marshall plan came only one day after elder statesman, Bernard M. Baruch, urged a similar defense union.

NEW DELHI — A small bomb exploded outside a wall around a garden where Mahandas K. Gandhi was conducting his evening prayer meeting today. Gandhi was unharmed. The wall cracked and nine persons were injured.

Gandhi was finishing his brief speech when the explosion occurred. He exhorted his listeners to keep calm.

LOUISIANA CAMPAIGNING ENDS IN ROW

NEW ORLEANS — Four weary candidates for governor stepped down off the stump today and turned a rowdy campaign over to the voters in Louisiana's Democratic primary election.

The march to the polls brought an end to a bid for votes that near the end flashed back to the Louisiana scandals of 1939 and the days of Kingfish Huey Poinsett for its final punch.

The no-holds-barred race for governor ended in a storm of charges and countercharges finally involving two candidates in a million-dollar conspiracy suit.

Candidate Earl K. Long, brother of the late Huey, and candidate Sam Houston Jones, both former governors, engaged in a dispute that finally boiled down to the legal battle over their incomes while each was in office.

The other two candidates, U. S. Rep. James H. Morrison, and circuit judge Robert F. Kennon sidestepped the fracas. Estimates of the turnout at the polls ran as high as 500,000, with nearly 250,000 persons qualified to vote in New Orleans alone.

Evacuation Of Berlin Demand Rumor Is Denied

BERLIN — The Soviet representative on the four-power allied coordinating committee has disavowed a Moscow newspaper article demanding that the western powers leave Berlin, a reliable source said today.

This source quoted Lt. Gen. Lukyanchenko, the Russian representative, as saying the article was not officially inspired by the Soviet Union. The newspaper is the official organ of the Soviet Army.

The Soviet statement was made in response to a British request for an investigation of the circumstances surrounding the publication of the editorial. It was said Lukyanchenko declined to make the investigation for two reasons. He said the article was not officially inspired and that "distorted" accounts of its significance had been carried in the British-licensed German press.

At Least 28 Die As Steamer Sinks

SANTIAGO, CHILE — At least 28 persons were drowned last night when the heavily loaded river steamer Cautin capsized and sank in the imperial river, it was reported today.

One survivor said the deaths may total more than 100 of the approximately 350 persons aboard.

Reports from the neighboring town of Tuerco said police had recovered 28 bodies from the swift moving stream while others were believed to have been carried downstream.

Thursday night at 8:00 o'clock at the High School gymnasium in Cisco there will be held a district Golden Glove tournament for the district composed of Eastland and Stephens counties. Neil Day of Eastland stated this morning that much interest is being manifested in these bouts and that a good card is expected for the Cisco program.

Police Alerted To Watch For Barker Brothers

Chief W. G. Pounds of Ranger stated today that officers in this section have been alerted to be on the lookout for Paul and Houston Barker, believed to be operating in this area again.

The two men who are believed to be the pair that terrorized a part of California recently with a series of burglaries and one shooting scrape with officers, are believed to be the pair that robbed a couple of liquor stores in San Angelo last week. Texas Rangers trailed the pair to Cisco and there found abandoned the car in which the desperadoes had been riding. The same day a light 1941 Chevrolet sedan was stolen in Cisco.

However, Chief Pounds stated the officers believe the pair are now traveling in a Dodge. One of the men sometime ago was taken into custody by Ranger police after they found their car here loaded with burglary tools. He and a woman companion were taken and questioned by police. At the request of Dallas police the two were turned over to Dallas for questioning in connection with robberies there. When a revocation of the Barker's parole was slow in coming through, Dallas authorities released the man.

He then made contact with his brother and the two started on their trail of crime.

Anti-Trust Net Of Listening Post Planned

WASHINGTON — The justice department plans to operate a nationwide network of anti-trust "listening posts" if congress grants a request for an extra $5,000,000, it was disclosed today.

Officials of the department's anti-trust division said they hoped to open as many as 12 branch offices with special emphasis on the south and southwest, which they called the most glaring "blind spots" in the government's anti-trust operations.

Arabs, Jews Fighting
JERUSALEM (UP) — Private reports said today that 400 Arabs have crossed the Lebanese border and attacked the Jewish settlement of Yehiam, 10 miles east of Acre.

The reports, by telephone from Haifa, said that a battle was going on around the settlement.

Saint Of The Bread Line

Joseph Snyder, left, a bank clerk who won $230 on a radio program, passes out the money, plus $20 of his own, to the destitute in a bread line at New York's St. Francis of Assisi Church. He gave each man a dollar. Behind Snyder, Brother Lawrence hands out food. (NEA Telephoto).

TO SPEAK HERE

John H. Winters, executive director of the State Department of Public Welfare, will be the guest speaker at a joint meeting of the Rotary Club and Lions Club of Ranger at the Gholson Hotel Wednesday.

Mrs. Winters is to be in Eastland that day to attend an eight county meeting of welfare workers and has accepted an invitation to speak to the two clubs. He has been with the department since August 1943 and will have an interesting message to deliver to the clubs.

Exemptions Must Be Secured By 1st Time Voters

Neil Day, Eastland county tax collector, in conversation with Margerie Maddocks of the C. E. Maddocks Insurance Company, this morning stated that any person who became 21 after the first day of January 1947, may vote in this year's elections provided he has secured an exemption from the collectors office at Eastland.

No person qualifying under the above description will be allowed to vote without the exemption certificate. Such persons do not have to pay a poll tax this year but will be required to have the exemption.

Miss Maddocks also stated that out of a possible 1,100 voting strength, which is about the average number of taxes collected in election years, only 135 taxes have been collected at her office, which is giving the service as a courtesy to the people of Ranger.

January 31 is the deadline for paying the taxes.

In Minnesota, a domestic conservation license is not required to buy or sell raw furs taken from domestic-raised animals.

NEW NORTHER MOVING IN ON EASTERN U. S. FROM CANADA

Texans digging out from one of the heaviest snow falls in 20 years received warning assurance from the weather bureau in Dallas today that temperatures will rise and the snow is over, except for traces.

Warm air from the Gulf mixing with the cold air mass from the north was credited with bringing the rise in temperatures, with readings in the 40s expected tomorrow afternoon for North Texas and highs of 45 to 48 degrees anticipated in South Texas.

Meanwhile, a new cold snap rolled across the Canadian border today, destroying the hopes of frostbitten residents in the eastern half of the country for a respite from the seven day siege of frigid weather.

A survey showed that at least 85 persons died because of the low temperatures and inclement weather which have crippled the midwest and east for the past week.

Fourteen persons froze to death in seven states. Another died of exposure and two died of over-exposure in sub-zero temperatures. At least 68 died in fires caused by overheated stoves and furnaces.

The warning of a new cold snap spurred public officials in their fight to alleviate the nation's critical shortage of fuel oil.

Atlee Against Immediate Top Leader Meeting

LONDON — Prime Minister Clement Atlee today rejected any conference of top allied leaders at this time as inopportune.

A Laborite member asked Atlee in Commons whether he would take steps to bring about a conference between himself and the heads of other major Allied countries to "prevent any further deterioration in the international situation."

"While I am most anxious to take any steps which would lead to improvement in the international situation," Atlee replied, "I do not feel a conference of the kind suggested would be likely to advance matters at the present time."

WASHINGTON COLUMN

BY PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, (NEA)—The best treatment of Henry Wallace's third party candidacy for the presidency is to ignore it. Give it the old brush-off of silence now given to Gerald L. K. Smith and Father Coughlin, and first thing you know everybody will be unanimously paying no attention to Henry, and for all practical purposes he will be as dead as Huey Long.

Edson

But for the benefit of anybody who still takes him seriously, a few of Henry's precepts need to be nailed to the door and shot full of holes.

Wallace's top line seems to be that his will be the party of Peace and Prosperity. That listens well, but anybody thinking that Wallace has a monopoly on those two scarce commodities is wrong.

Peace and Prosperity are the two things everybody wants most. The point at issue, however, is how to get them.

Wallace calls for peace with Russia. Everybody is after that, too. At the end of the war, it was thought peace could be had. There seemed to be some indication that the Russians were willing to live and let live.

EVERY bit of American postwar international planning was based on the belief that there could be one world.

It was a beautiful prospect. But it took less than a month to discover that the Russians had no intention of co-operating.

As a means of maintaining peace now, Wallace calls for the creation of an "international police force stronger than the military establishment of any nation, including Russia and the U. S."

It is so happens that this very proposal has been stymied in the UN military staff committee for nearly two years. Who has stymied it? The Russian delegation, which refuses to allow the UN police force to have complements of aircraft or battleships representing a threat to Russia.

Wallace also calls for outlawing the atomic bomb. The same point applies here. The U. S. has proposed internationalization of the secrets of nuclear fission, with international control and inspection to see that there is only peaceful application of atomic energy. Again it is Russia that has blocked the goal.

The USSR has destroyed democracy in Poland and Hungary. It has delayed making peace with Austria, in Germany and Korea, it has thwarted attempts to create democratic unification. In the face of constant rebuffs of this nature, the U. S. has no other choice than to look to its defenses.

Wallace calls for the UN to plan and administer reconstruction of Europe, as a substitute for Truman Doctrine and Marshall Plan. This idea was tried before in UNRRA. It didn't work.

FURTHERMORE, the Marshall Plan is already open to any European nation—not just the 16 nations thus far signifying their intentions to co-operate. Soviet Russia and her seven satellites are welcome. Again, however, it is the USSR that has blocked this union of Eastern Europe with the West.

Wallace may be on sounder ground—politically—in his blasts at high prices. But he is woefully weak on saying what he would do to bring them down. He names no names and he has no real answers.

He is only kidding himself when he says that the U. S. now lives under a one-party rule, and that he aims to create only a second party, not a third. His trouble here seems to be that he imagines himself a reincarnation of Thomas Jefferson and Abraham Lincoln.

How else could you explain his references to his new movement as being parallel to creation of the anti-Federalist, Republican-Democratic Party of 1800 in Jefferson's time, and the then-new Republican Party of 1860 in Lincoln's time?

As a philosopher, Wallace has his value. He represents a point of view that probably needs to be expressed. But as a political leader he has already shown his incapacity. And when he goes so far as to call Eleanor Roosevelt lambasts him, as she has done, he must be way off base, even to the liberals.

SPORTS

BY MARK GRAYSON
NEA Sports Editor

NEW YORK—(NEA)—Of the three officials assigned to the Louis-Walcott fight, Ruby Goldstein alone was right—seven rounds for the challenger, six for the champion and two even.

And Reuben Goldstein was the only one of the three with the courage and good judgment to call it as he saw it, and give the decision to Jersey Joe Walcott.

Judge Frank Forbes' point total pointed to the Great Father of Camden, yet his vote went to Joe Louis.

Few good fighters make competent referees, but Goldstein is an exception proving the rule.

Ruby, the Priceless Jewel of the Ghetto in the late 1920's, broke in as a third man acting as a substitute at Fort Hamilton in Brooklyn while serving in the Army in 1942, applied for a New York State license, and has been active ever since.

By September of 1946, Goldstein, who believes his 40 years, had established himself as New York's finest.

GOLDSTEIN, who now carries his 170 pounds well, was the youngest of four children born in a cold-water flat on New York's lower east side. His father died when he was two-weeks old, his brave mother, who is still alive, raising her brood the best she could.

The late Hyman Cantor, widely known in New York as a boxing instructor, first saw young Goldstein as a skinny, brown-eyed kid in the gymnasium of the Educational Alliance on the lowest east side.

By the summer of 1925, competent critics called Goldstein, not yet 18, the slickest prospect they had ever seen.

Before he could box more than six rounds, Goldstein was the biggest New York box-office attraction outside of Jack Dempsey.

By June, 1926, after a string of spectacular knockouts, manager

Cantor was convinced that Goldstein, not yet 19, could knock out any lightweight he could hit.

Certainly he could hit Ace Hudkins, so that seasoned campaigner was brought on from Los Angeles for a six-round match at the Coney Island Stadium.

In the first round, Goldstein dropped Hudkins flat on his face with a right-hand punch to the chin, amid as wild a scene as the prize ring ever saw.

You wouldn't have given a plugged nickel for Hudkins' chances of getting up, but the lion-hearted Nebraska Wildcat climbed up the home boy's legs and hung on.

Hudkins weakened Goldstein with a body attack toward the end of the third, and hung him over the middle rope to dry in the fourth.

Goldstein had one more big chance, when Jimmy McLarnin knocked him out in the second round at Madison Square Garden, Dec. 1, 1929. A jam-packed arena roared as the Irishman's knees buckled under a right to the whiskers in the opening heat.

The crowd would have torn the old shed down had Goldstein knocked out McLarnin.

"I might have been rushed a bit, but Hudkins no doubt knocked a lot of fight out of me," beams Goldstein, now in the sales department of a national distillery.

Goldstein, who has a pretty wife and a three-and-a-half-year-old son, Herbert, has no regrets.

"I had two good chances and blew them," he says, "but I never lost my love for boxing."

That's why Ruby Goldstein calls 'em as he sees 'em and is New York's top referee.

MURDER AT MY HOUSE

By Rene Ryerson Mort

THE STORY: Lelphar asks more questions but tells me nothing except that the accident was actually a murder. He wants to know who mixed the drinks at the party. His men search my house. After they leave, I go down to the studio looking for Jeff. Before I find him, Liz Leyden remarks that Art's death certainly all thanks out nicely for me since it leaves Jeff free. I change my mind about seeing Jeff just then. The police might think we both had a motive for murder.

XVII

THERE was a double funeral for Avis and Art. From the newspaper descriptions it was the biggest thing of its kind ever held in Hollywood. Traffic was roped off or blocked around the church and the funeral procession that followed the two hearses to Forest Lawn was two miles long.

I sent flowers but I didn't go. I knew I would never be missed in the crush at Avis Vaughn's last public appearance.

I hadn't seen Jeff or heard from him since the night of the accident. But sometime during the two days between then and the morning of the funeral, Bob Lelphar had a talk with him. I didn't know that, however, until later.

It was the afternoon after the funeral that Jeff came over to my place. He looked almost ill. I suppose having to parade as the husband—legal even if estranged—before all those hundreds of curious eyes had been an ordeal.

"I'm sorry, Jeff," I said and took both his hands in mine. He said, "Well, it's over."

I asked him if he'd like to stay and eat with me—I happened to have an extra steak on ice. He looked grateful, said he hadn't eaten anything all day, and that he didn't feel like going out any more.

I love the kitchen in my house. It's designed like an old New England farmhouse kitchen with a scattering of gay rag rugs on the wide planked floor, potted geraniums in the window recesses, and a square deal table and two long peg-legged benches instead of chairs at the dining end of it.

But it wasn't as spic and span. That day as it might have been. There was a pile of unwashed dishes in the sink, dust on the furniture, and the floor needed mopping. Consuelo, my Mexican cleaning girl, only comes in for a half day twice a week. And she'd spent most of her time on her last visit at the scene where Avis and Art were killed, looking for souvenirs instead of cleaning my house. I apologized a bit to Jeff for the kitchen's appearance and for Consuelo.

He had an idea. "Say, maybe I could get you a full-time maid. Avis had a good one—Marie Maloney, her name is. She's still over at Avis' apartment sorting out her belongings. Want me to see if I can hire her for you?"

"That would be marvelous," I said. "Simply marvelous."

I grilled the steaks and mixed a green salad and set out a bottle of wine (I had driven down to the liquor store that day and replenished my stock of drinks), quipping, "Here's a little 'Suspense.'" And that reminded me that we had some suspense of our own to cope with.

I was a little breathless about it. "Jeff, do you know that the police think Avis and Art were murdered—that it wasn't an accident?"

Jeff didn't look at me. He looked down at the table. "Yes," he said. "I know."

Lelphar had suggested that I put my agile mind to work on the why and the how of Avis and Art being killed, and I had been doing just that for the last two days. The only tenable theory I had arrived at was that someone had tinkered with Art's car while it sat there in my driveway. Had done something to the brakes or the motor so that it ran away with Avis and Art when they started down the hill.

INEVITABLY that line of thinking had linked up with Jimmy Peters skulking around outside that night, watching Avis and Art together in my living room and too jealous to come inside. I had refused to go on from there. The idea of Jimmy Peters with his contagious smile and friendly eyes being the murderer was outrageous. But I couldn't quite forget, either, that a lot of boys were coming back from war with some unpredictable kinks in their characters.

But now, talking to Jeff, I remembered something else—something that had happened that fatal night and that I had entirely forgotten. The car lights that had shone along the driveway when I had been down in the kitchen fixing the sandwich tray; and how I had assumed that it was Jeff's car turning in from the street. And how he had come into the house for a good 10 minutes afterward.

All that rushed into my mind, as I looked at Jeff. And I felt as if someone had hit me in the stomach.

The question shaped itself reluctantly but stubbornly. I had to know. "Jeff, what were you doing that night—I mean between the time when you drove into my driveway and the time you came into the house?"

Jeff looked at me then. "I was sitting in my car thinking how nice and simple everything would be if only Avis were dead—and I were free to ask you to marry me."

He stated it flatly and unemotionally. A fact to be faced.

"Oh Jeff..." I stared at him while my mind spun groggily from the impact of his meaning and things clicked into place and there it was—the mystery solved. And Jeff the murderer!

A Dirty Deal, but They Like It

Even hogs are sharing their food with Europe. To save sorely-needed grain, Marie Massarotti, of Pueblo, Col., feeds these porkers a diet of coal mixed with rock salt. Although coal will not fatten hogs, it's a good conditioner and keeps them free of worms. At $3 a ton, coal is cheaper than corn at $4.50 per 100 pounds, and the hogs prefer coal.

Shorthorn Beef Auction To Be Held At Show

One of the feature events of the Southwestern Exposition & Fat Stock Show to be held in Ft. Worth, Jan. 30-Feb. 8, is the sale of Shorthorn beef cattle on February 4. Although an auction of Shorthorns is comparatively new at this show, current demand for bulls for cross breeding and for soppoth-females for foundation stock has brought out for this event one of the finest sale offerings seen in the Southwest recently.

Consigners include such widely known herds as those of Thomas E. Wilson, Chicago packer, the E. Divide Ranch of Colorado Springs, the Oklahoma A&M College, and the top name herds of Texas.

Demand for the "new look" Shorthorn has seen such a boom in the last six years that membership in the national association has doubled over the previous all-time total. Among the purebred Shorthorn breeders in this county are Coy Bargsley and C. A. Brown, both of Rt. 3, Ranger, members of the national association.

Back-Stage Behind The Curtains... in every organized business, there is a mass of preparation, profit, skill and expense before any thought can be given to profits from the finished product. For example, the cost of typing a 100-page abstract is a trifle compared to that of assembling, classifying and posting the records day after day, year after year, in preparation for your next order. The abstract, therefore, can't be cheap like dirt, but always there is safety and a saving in including it in every real estate transaction. WHEN YOU PLAN TO BUILD, REMODEL OR ADD NEW ELECTRIC APPLIANCES...

BE SURE Your Electrical Wiring Will Efficiently Carry the Load

Are you planning to build a home—add a room or wing to your house—completely electrify your kitchen—put in new laundry equipment—install an air conditioning unit for next summer? If you are, the first step should be to arrange for a complete check-up of your electric wiring system. Without adequate wiring facilities—enough circuits to provide plenty of outlets for your electrical appliances and electric wires large enough to satisfactorily carry the increased load—your whole plan for modernizing your home electrically may be upset. Electrical appliances can efficiently do their job of making housework easier and home life more comfortable only when they are provided with an adequate wiring system from which to operate.

When you plan to build, remodel or add new electric appliances, consult your electrical contractor-dealer about adequate wiring.

Cold? Here's A Good One

When people get hot, they always blame the weatherman. But Los Angeles weatherman H. W. Douglas, a towel easing his aching head, is getting more than his share of gripes, as southern California goes into its seventh day of a scorching mid-winter heat wave. The completely dry rain-measuring stick he's looking at tells Douglas there is no relief in sight. A disastrous drought burned by the intense heat forced citrus farmers to irrigate, something they had never done before in wintertime. (NEA Photo).

6% Of Population May Harbor Polio During Epidemic

During the peak of an infantile paralysis epidemic six per cent of the total population in the community involved may be harboring the polio virus, scientists at Yale University have discovered in studies supported by the March of Dimes.

This was disclosed today by Carl Elliot, County, chairman of the 1948 March of Dimes campaign in a report on research sponsored by the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis at the university—one of the 78 institutions in such March of Dimes research is being conducted.

Mr. Elliot, in calling upon local residents to join the battle against disease by whole-hearted participation in the January March of Dimes, presented a summary of some of the polio investigations going on at Yale. He said he had received report that:

Evidence on the numbers of "healthy carriers" in the total population grew out of a five-year study sewage in urban centers. Results indicated that polio virus was not a constant inhabitant of sewage but appeared only in connection with epidemics. The six per cent figure was computed

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Urban are spending today in Fort Worth. While there Mrs. Urban will attend market for E. L. Martin and Sons.

Tex Hargrave is in the Ranger General Hospital for treatment of injuries sustained while working on a drilling well at McCamey. He was brought from the Cooper Hospital in McCamey to the Ranger hospital. Extent of injuries to his back and neck had not been determined late Monday afternoon.

Mrs. Gladys George who has been the holiday guest of her brother, Hall Walker and her nephew, Wesley Walker, left today to return to her home in Palo Alto, California.

from the amount of virus present in sewage and the actual number of polio cases reported in the community.

In another experiment, Yale University scientists have set up an ingenious laboratory study of flies in relation to the transmission of polio. Flies were fastened to a lump of paraffin on a stick and were allowed to feed on polio virus obtained from human excrement.

Through this experiment the scientists demonstrated that the flies excreted the virus for as long as three weeks. Studies are continuing in an effort to determine whether the virus may multiply within the flies—a point which scientist have been eager to determine.

The incubation period in polio has also occupied the attention of Yale researchers. Formerly regarded as being from seven to 14 days, a much wider range has been suggested by the new studies—which now indicate that the incubation period may be as short as three days and as long as 35 days.
