WASHINGTON COLUMN *

Many Bills Propose Broadening Social Security

BY PETER EDSON NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON-(NEA)-There are now over 100 bills before Congress dealing with proposed changes in the social security law.
Seventy of these bills call for increasing old-age survivors' insurance, 41 for increasing old-age assistance. Twenty-seven want unemployment compensation formulas changed, while 13 cover aid to dependent children and one wants the government to pay maternity benefits.

benefits.
Out of all this confusion there is some possibility that action may be forthcoming—maybe this year, maybe not until next. There are three principal pressures in government to speed it up.

President Truman says he will send a special message to Congress on the subject. His budget message called for increasing benefit payments by $100,000,000 next year, covering all gainfully employed workers, increasing the maximum amount of earnings taxable. Present cost of the system is $750,000,000 a year, as against receipts from payroll taxes of $2,500,000,000. The balance goes into reserves for future payments.

COMMISSIONER ARTHUR ALTMEYER of the Social Security COMMISSIONER ARTHUR ALTMEYER of the Social Security Administration has already outlined his agency's recommendations. He believes the minimum benefit payable should be increased from $10 to $20 a month. The maximum paid to any one family should be $185, instead of the present $85? Workers should be permitted to earn up to $40 a month and still receive social security benefits. At the present time, no worker earning more than $14.99 a month can receive benefits. The retirement age and the survivors' age limit for women should be reduced from 65 to 60.

Finally, says Commissioner Altmeyer, the first $4800 of every covered worker's annual income should be taxed for social security, instead of only the first $3000, as at present. To pay for all these additional benefits, it might be necessary to levy a tax of from 5 to 8 per cent on this amount.

Altmeyer made these recommendations before the Senate Finance Committee's 17-member Advisory Council on Social Security. Chairman of this council is ex-Secretary of State Edward R. Stettinius, Jr. This is the third such council of private citizens assigned to study social security. It will report some time in March on three principal subjects—extending the coverage to more workers, increasing benefits to workers permanently disabled before reaching retirement age, changing the benefit payment formulas, by which the amount of money a beneficiary receives is calculated.

N June, the council will make a second report, covering possible

IN June, the council will make a second report, covering possible changes in unemployment compensation, the payment of eash sickness benefits for short-term unemployment on certified illness, and the rates of public assistance payments to the poor.

These two major reports of the Advisory Council on Social Security will go to the Senate Finance Committee, which set up the council last July and gave it $25,000 to conduct its study. Chairman of the committee is Sen. Eugene Millikin (R., Colo.).

Since social security matters are considered as taxation, and since the Constitution provides that tax bills must originate in the House, it is entirely possible that the reports to Senator Millikin may be stymied. That has yet to be worked out with the House.

Chairman Harold Knutson (R., Minn.) of the House, Ways and Means Committee, which handles tax matters, has so far shown himself interested only in cutting taxes. If he decider that nothing should be done about changing social security law, that will be that

That was the terse advice of fered today by George Clarke, managing director of the Texas Safety Association in urging motorists to keep the safety equipment of their cars in tip-top

"We are cooperating with safety authorities throughout the nation in a "Learn and Obey Traffie Laws" program during Feb ruary," Clarke said. "The lux tain equipment for safety, and it's there when the manufacturer lelivers the car. But it is up to the driver to keep it working

He said National Safety Council figures show that 18 per cent of all vehicles involved in fatal accidents are defective, and one out of seven with bad brakes.

The major safety equipment was listed as brakes, light, mir-ror, windshield wiper, horn and safety glass. Many of these items will wear out or become damaged with use, and the motorist must see that they are maintained in good conditioned.

"Periodic inspection by trained mechanics or inspectors is the answer," Clarke said. "Professional drivers, such as track drivers inspect their vehicles before every trip. That's a good idea for every driver, and it would save a lot of
