Masaryk Lies In State

The body of Jan Masaryk, Foreign Minister of Czechoslovakia, who died in what the Communist government reported was a suicide leap, lies in state in the Cernin Palace in Prague. A two-mile line of mourning Czechs paid tribute to him. (NEA Radio-Telephoto).

DC-4 Airliner Reported Overdue

MINNEAPOLIS, Mar. 14 (UP)—Northwest Airlines reported today that one of its DC-4 passenger planes with 30 persons aboard is overdue at Edmonton, Alberta, on a non-schedule charter flight from Shanghai to New York.

NWA said the plane left Shanghai at 10:10 P. M. CST, Thursday and was due into Edmonton at 7 A. M. CST, today.

The plane last reported by radio to Anchorage, Alaska, between 1 A. M. and 2 A. M.

It was carrying 24 members of an American oil tanker crew and six crew members. Names of those aboard were not available immediately.

SEATTLE, Mar. 14 (UP)—Coast Guard headquarters received a radio message today from the Kodiak-Anchorage area reporting that Gulkana range station, 200 miles east of Anchorage, had spotted a fire on the side of Mount Sanford in the Wrangell Mountains.

The message said that a DC-4, possibly the missing Northwest Airlines plane with 30 persons aboard, had been reported over the station at 1:03 A. M. CST, last night.

SAD CZECHS PAY TRIBUTE TO MASARYK

PRAGUE, Mar. 14 (UP)—Sorrowing Czechs by the hundreds of thousands thronged the streets of Prague Saturday to pay final tribute to Foreign Minister Jan Masaryk in state funeral services on an heroic scale.

President Eduard Benes, who went into seclusion after the Communist coup, led the whole nation in mourning the beloved statesman who plunged to his death from a window of his foreign ministry residence Wednesday.

The new Czech regime headed by Communist Premier Klement Gottwald conducted the mammoth state funeral. Czechs from every walk of life joined in.

An estimated 200,000 mourners lined the course of the funeral procession through the streets of Prague. Trams and all kinds of vehicles still were pouring more thousands into the streets leading to Wenceslas Square, where the services began.

Even the byways leading off from the main thoroughfares were packed three deep for five hours before the start of the procession. Police ringed the square, posted five apart. Along the length of National Avenue they were spaced at 20-foot intervals.

The police, Boy Scouts and many civilians were black-armed peddling big pictures of Masaryk the son of the founder of the Czechoslovak Republic.

Factories and schools were closed.

Governors Meet To Condemn Civil Rights Program

WASHINGTON, Mar. 14 (UP)—A committee of rebellious southern governors met in closed session Saturday to complete a report condemning President Truman's civil rights program.

The report will be submitted to a conference of southern governors for consideration later in the day.

Gov. J. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina, chairman of the committee, declined to predict what action the conference would take on the report. Neither would he say whether the governors would recommend dropping Mr. Truman in favor of a presidential candidate more acceptable to southern Democrats.

But both Thurmond and Gov. Ben Laney of Arkansas, a committee member, said flatly, however, they wanted no part of Mr. Truman on the Democratic ticket.

Gov. Beauford H. Jester of Texas, third member of the committee, said he thought Mr. Truman might reconsider his racial discrimination legislative program when he finds out that the south means business.

But Laney said the "present leadership cannot carry the party to victory in November."

Co-Op Bank Directors To Meet In Abilene

A meeting for central west Texas stockholders of the Houston Bank for Cooperatives will be held in Abilene March 25, according to an announcement from W. N. Stokes, Jr., the bank's president.

The meeting will be held in the Wooten Hotel and will begin at 9:00 a. m. Directors, managers and interested members of farmers' cooperatives in the Abilene area are invited to attend the meeting.

There are 41 farmers' cooperatives within a 50 mile radius of Abilene and among this number are some of the oldest and most successful cooperatives in the state," Stokes said. "The cooperative gin at Rule was organized 34 years ago and the one at Monday recently observed its 33rd anniversary. Thirty-one of these cooperatives gin cotton for the members and others crush cottonseed, handle grain, operate frozen food locker plants and purchase farm supplies.

"The stockholders in the Houston Bank for Cooperatives are these business organizations of farmers. Few farmers operate on a scale large enough to justify ownership of a cotton gin or a grain elevator. Such facilities as are needed to furnish these off-farm services can be owned by 100 or 200 farmers cooperatively," Stokes pointed out. "These cooperatives have played an important part in the farmer's job of feeding and clothing the people of America and millions of less fortunate people in other lands."

Postmaster A. E. Crawley today issued a warning to the people of Ranger concerning "chain" letters and cards.

"The sending of these letters and cards through the mails is definitely against the law and persons doing so are subjecting themselves to prosecution," Crawley said.

He further warned against the practice of tampering with or destroying mail boxes. He stated that the postoffice has had several complaints about this recently. In such cases he pointed out those guilty are subject to local as well as federal prosecution.

Wheat Futures Take Big Jump

CHICAGO, Mar. 14 (UP)—Wheat futures jumped five to 7 1/2 cents a bushel at the opening of the Chicago Board of Trade Saturday after the government resumed its wheat purchases after a five week lull.

Wheat for May delivery showed the greatest amount of increase in the opening trading. Other grains likewise were higher.

The production marketing administration had announced that government wheat buying would be resumed today on a trial basis. Market analysts and Agriculture Department experts believed that the government action would probably not cause a rise in retail food prices.

Senior Boys, Faculty Men To Play Game Tues. It was announced today that a basketball game will be played Tuesday night at 8 o'clock between the senior boys of Ranger High School and male members of the faculty.

ALSO WANTS LARGER AIR FORCE TO COPE WITH CRISES

CHARLSTON, S. C. Mar. 14.—(UP)—Former Secretary of State James F. Byrnes—emphasizing he had no official information Saturday called for immediate reenactment of selective service and a much larger air force to meet the world crisis "that may exist four or five weeks from now."

He predicted that the Russians, under the guise of the Italian Communist party, might "act" in Italy before the April 18 elections.

He marked Finland off the books already.

"We have every reason to believe the Soviets covet control of Greece, Turkey, Italy and France" he said.

He foresaw "no armed invasion" of any of these countries. But he said there was "no important difference in the direct methods of Hitler in 1938 and the indirect methods of Stalin in 1948."

Byrnes spoke at the 105th anniversary of the famed Citadel Military College. It was his first speech in many weeks and came on the heels of President Truman's and Secretary of State George C. Marshall's grave warnings of a "very, very serious crisis."

Anderson To Be Senate Candidate

WASHINGTON, Mar. 13 (UP)—Secretary of Agriculture Clinton P. Anderson Saturday announced he will be a candidate for the Senate from New Mexico.

Anderson said that "if President Truman is willing, I will remain as Secretary of Agriculture until the summer adjournment of Congress." Adjournment is expected in June.

Anderson said his decision to run as a Democratic senatorial candidate in New Mexico's primary in June was made "reluctantly."

The stage was set for Anderson to run for the Senate several days ago when Sen. Carl A. Hatch, D., N. M., announced he would not be a candidate for re-election. Hatch said he wanted a federal judgeship.

Orders Attacks Given Jap Press

TOKYO, Mar. 14 (UP)—Gen. Douglas MacArthur has instructed his censorship division to permit the Japanese press to publish any American political attacks against him emanating from the United States, it was announced today.

Col. M. P. Echols, MacArthur's press aide, made public MacArthur's order after Kyoto. News Agency reported that Allied headquarters censors had suppressed some incoming cable copy from the United States reporting the activities of anti-MacArthur clubs.

Americans Rebuked For Export Faults

DALLAS, Tex. (UP)—Americans, because they never take time to learn and respect people of foreign lands, have taken a rear end place among the world's business men in the export business, a veteran exporter to Mexico believes.

Take it from Paul Brown, the exporter, the English, Swedish, Norwegian and Italian exporters have left Americans in a cloud of dust when it comes to dealing with Latin American countries.

"Americans seem to be the only people who do not know how to conduct themselves among foreigners," Brown lamented. "They have some foolish habits which antagonize foreign people. They flash their bankroll in the Mexican's faces and they show lack of tact and respect when in the presence of foreigners."

"And," he continued, "they think it is possible to learn about Mexico by a few visits to Mexico City, a few drinks with officials and a few visits to night spots.

Brown advised any company that hopes to do business in the southern republic to send their export manager to live and mingle with the people for at least six months.

The outline of the drive will be presented at the meeting and workers will be given their supplies. Mrs. J. Floyd Killingsworth who is chairman of the drive, stated that committee chairmen will be asked to select their own committee members.

Ranger's quota is only $1,500 and it is hoped that that amount can be raised with the greatest possible speed.

ARTIST FINDS COLOR IS AID TO MENTAL STABILITY

By Sally Gram Swing United Press Staff Correspondent PARIS (UP)—When they have the blues, many people tend to run to the nearest dimly-lighted bar, with its dark red leather seats and black tables.

"Some colors," he said, "have a definite effect on personality and moods. Perhaps the person who seeks solace in a restaurant or bar decorated in red would recover much more quickly if he went to a place painted brilliant blue or yellow."

Fillicier, a member of the famed school of Beaux Arts in Paris, is going to one of Paris' largest insane asylums to try out his theories.

The young painter will start redecorating the whole place with an eye to the psychological and medicinal properties of color.

"At the moment, when it comes to color consciousness, we are back in the Middle Ages," he said.

"Glove shops, living rooms, offices—all are painted a cream color with brown decorations. For all we know this may be pleasant, or on the contrary have a bad effect on the individuals who go there. That is just what I want to find out."

One of Fillicier's theories which would shock conventional educators, is that classrooms should be painted in strong dark colors instead of light cream or white tones.

"Deep soft red or a forest green should be conducive to learning," he said. "If you have light tones in a classroom, the student's mind wanders, whereas if he looks at a dark surface he has to concentrate on the book in front of him."

In the insane asylum, called Ville-Evrard, there is a special section for subnormal children. There Fillicier plans to paint one classroom a deep green and another a soft scarlet. The walls will be of those colors, with panels decorated with pictures.

"After six months, the doctors and I will make a survey to see in which classroom the students accomplish the most work," he said.

His experiments in color on the insane will include painting window panes blue, violets and green to see if colored light affects different mental diseases.

"White," Fillicier said, "is a tone which makes you wait. White is full of energy, but it is waiting for another color to start the motion. The most awful thing imaginable, however, is a hospital room in an insane asylum which is shiny."

"A person given to hallucinations can see forms and shapes jumping over the wall each time he moves, or the light changes. I am sure that for very sick people, flat white paint should be used on the walls."

After the patient who enters the hospital starts to recover, Fillicier proposes a series of different colored rooms which will accustom the patient gradually to normal balanced "color" life.

Congressional Group Approves Housing Program

WASHINGTON, Mar. 14 (UP)—A joint congressional housing committee Saturday approved a proposed public housing program calling for construction of 500,000 low-rent units in four years.

The group approved the controversial proposal over the heated opposition of its vice chairman, Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy, R., Wis. McCarthy said he will file a minority report.

Earlier the 14-men House and Senate group had agreed to ask congressional action to relieve the "acute shortage" of housing, but had split sharply over what action to recommend.

WASHINGTON COLUMN

Pattern for Third Round Wage Increases Gradually Emerging

BY PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON—(NEA)—Biggest optimism in Washington these days is in Cyrus S. Ching, director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service. In the next two or three months this newly reorganized and independent Service must meet head-on the threat of a strike in about every major industry in the U. S. Included are coal, steel, electrical, rubber, packinghouse, mine, mill and smelter workers. Fear that a third round of wage increases at this time will only push prices higher and make inflation worse is general. But Ching isn't worrying.

Ching draws his reasons for not being pessimistic from the American labor union record of the last 15 years. In the 1930's the country went through a major readjustment in its labor relations. It was just getting settled down when the war came along.

Collective bargaining was of necessity abandoned during the war. War Labor Board wrote the ticket for both labor and management for four years.

When the war was over and WLB was abolished, both labor and management found themselves thrown back on their own resources. They had a lot of trouble. But in this process both sides learned that strikes don't pay, says Ching. Because of that sad experience, he thinks they're both ready to settle this third round business by collective bargaining, with a minimum of strikes.

"I JUST don't believe we're going back into the '46 situation," says Ching. "Labor and management are both more aware of their responsibilities to each other and to the country."

"They have another responsibility—to the world—to show that as a nation we can settle these things peacefully at home. We don't look good trying to tell others how to behave if we can't do it ourselves. The success of the Marshall Plan depends on it."

Ching believes that out of the next wage settlement or two a pattern may emerge which will set the pace for other third round increases.

CIO textile workers have already won a 9-cent-an-hour increase in southern cotton mills. For northern cotton and rayon workers the increase was a flat 10 per cent. American Woolen workers got 15 cents an hour plus 4 cents for insurance.

Auto, electrical and steel workers made original demands for increases as high as 30 cents an hour. If they settle for less, the third round may not be so bad.

"THE trouble will come if the unions won't reduce their demands or if the employers put their feet down flatly and say they can't afford to increase wages unless they can later increase prices proportionately. GE happily indicated this policy."

As for writing a formula to arrive at peaceful settlement of these disputes, Ching admits it can't be done. But he has some new ideas. In the old U. S. Conciliation Service, the idea was that the government should not be called in until the last moment, when negotiations were stymied. Often it was not called in until there was a strike.

Ching has been trying to reorganize the Service on different lines. The intent of Congress in setting up the new Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service was to have it alerted to negotiations before they begin. That gives the FMCS commissioners a chance to move in on a situation before it reaches a crisis.

Ching will not talk about the specific moves that his 200-odd commissioners are being making to meet the coming third round negotiations. He is not bragging in advance that he will prevent any strikes in the coming months.

"There will always be fire bells to answer," he says. And: "If I knew in advance what John L. Lewis was going to ask for, I'd be wearing a halo instead of a hat."

Mack Believes Athletics Have Another Grove and Earnshaw

BY HARRY GRAYSON
NEA Sports Editor

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla.—(NEA)—Lefty Grove and Moose Earnshaw were Mr. Connie Mack's one-two, left-right pitching punch when the Athletics ran away and hid in 1929-30-31 and the daddy of managers believes he has their counterparts now in left-handed Leland V. Brissie, Jr., and Carl Scheib.

"I won't be at all surprised," says Mr. Mack, organizing the A's for the 48th consecutive year in West Palm Beach, "if young Scheib turns out to be an outfielder something on the order of a right-handed Babe Ruth. He has baseball instinct, hits the ball a long way."

The six-foot, four-and-a-half-inch, 204-pound, 23-year-old Lou Brissie wears a heavy protective brace on his left, or drag, leg as the result of a shell exploding near him in the Italian campaign, but a little thing like that didn't keep the plucky Presbyterian College lad from leading the South Atlantic League pitchers last year with a brilliant 1.91 earned-run mark, winning 23 games while losing only five. Brissie is blazing fast, and "Grove at the same stage of development had no part of his control," explains Mr. Mack.

Starting for the first time in 1947, Scheib, six-foot-one, 192 pounds, and only 21, shut out the Tigers, beat them on another occasion and trimmed the White Sox. The Pennsylvania Dutchman is a member of the strong-arm squad.

"Pitching is from 75 to 90 per cent of baseball, which down through the years Mr. Mack has held it in, the A's should again stir up trouble, with or without speed afoot."

Baseball men will tell you that as a group there is no superior staff. All but three contribute generously to Mr. Mack's youth movement. And the remarkable Phil Marchildon and Russ Christopher are not exactly old pappy guys at 32 and 30, respectively. The Bullfrog Dietrich is the old gentleman of the Philadelphia American League, story at 28.

Mr. Mack's pitchers can shut out the other side. Fowler, McCahan and Dietrich have recorded no-hit, no-run games, and the extraordinary Marchildon would have had one in Cleveland late last August had the umpire called a three-two pitch a strike with two out in the ninth.

Chick Galloway, the Athletics' one-time third baseman, coached Brissie in college, and the towering South Carolinian's father wanted him to pitch for Mr. Mack.

Scheib was signed six years ago while he was a 15-year-old Gratz, Pa. High School boy.

A woman grocer told a Reading, Pa., salesman about the neighborhood phenomenon, and the drummer was acquainted with one of Mr. Mack's bird dogs.

Mr. Mack has more unofficial scouts than you can shake a stick at.

OFFICE Nurse

By Adelaide Humphries
© by Adelaide Humphries, Distributed by NEA SERVICE, INC.

THIS STORY: Janice Hilary, efficient young nurse to popular and handsome society doctor Eric Holbrook, runs his office for him. Eric and Janice have fallen in love—although Eric already has a wife (who is away)—and Janice has a boy-friend (Ben Archer). Ben faces Janice with the fact of her guilty love, asks what she is going to do about it, she promises to come to some definite decision and let him know what it is.

MR. HILARY believed that Janice had been working too long; he thought she had come to the point where she needed a change. At least that was what he told her, after contriving to get her alone with him one evening after dinner.

"My dear, I want to have a little talk with you," he said, closing the study door to insure privacy. Graham Hilary was not a talkative man; he always found it difficult to discuss anything of a personal nature with any of his children. Besides, Mildred always attended to such matters. In this instance, however, his wife had urged him to be the one to talk with Janice.

"Yes, Father," Janice answered obediently, yet with a determined air, as she settled herself in one of the old leather chairs.

"How much did her father know?" What had her mother told him? Well, she couldn't have told him very much. Except that possibly Janice had been edgy for quite a while now.

Janice had never mentioned Eric to either of them. Not even after her talk with Eric the other day when he had told her for the first time that he was going to ask his wife for a divorce, that he wanted to marry her. It will tell them soon, she thought. But not now—not yet. I have to have a little more time to think things out myself.

"Hummm . . ." Mr. Hilary cleared his throat as he sat down in his chair, propping his feet up on the hassock. Mildred had told him what to say, but she had not told him how to say it. "It's just —er—" He cleared his throat again. "I want you to do something for me—me and your mother."

"I'd like to—if I can."

"It's nothing much—nothing you cannot do." Her father smiled reassuringly. "Your mother and I want you to go away for a little vacation. We feel that you have been working too long, and too conscientiously. We feel that the time has come, without your knowing, when it is imperative that you have a change."

"I—I'm not sure that I can do that." Janice's gaze faltered; she looked at her hands.

"But you must allow us that privilege," Graham Hilary's voice, once he found how to say what he had to do, could be firm as well as gentle. "I have decided to sell the house, Janice."

"The house? Our house? Oh, no, you can't, Father! Surely Mother won't let you. And if you are thinking of doing that for me—"

"But we're not." His smile was reassuring. "I know—it was hard for us at first to think of giving up our home. But it is too much for your mother. And since Allen is married and has a home of his own, and Albie has made plans to share an apartment downtown after the first of the year, your mother and I thought that if you'd JANICE saw, looking at him as he leaned forward to say this last, that his eyes were bright, even twinkling. That would be nice, she thought, a second honeymoon. She could not recall when her mother and father had been away together. It must have been years. Nothing must stop them from going. She smiled at him across the table, the lamplight dancing in her hair.

"I'll do what you ask, Father. I give you my word. I'll go away."

Having promised, she felt a wave of immense relief sweep over her. It would be good to get away from everything and everyone; by herself—all by herself—that was what she wanted.

"I thought," her father said, "that you might want to go with us. But your mother seemed to think—"

"Mother is right! Wasn't she always? Mildred Hilary must have known before Janice had that what her daughter needed was to go away by herself. "As though I'd spoil that second honeymoon!"

Graham Hilary cleared his throat; relief invaded him, too; he could tell Mildred that he had done what she asked.

"I'll tell Mother it's all settled, that you might want to go with us. But your mother seemed to think—"

To Resume Use Of Douglas DC-6

DALLAS, Tex. (UP)—The Douglas Aircraft Co. and five major operators—American, United, Pangara, National and Braniff—jointly have announced the resumption of service by the modified and greatly improved Douglas DC-6 within the next two weeks.

American Airlines will resume DC-6 service from coast to coast on March 15. United Air Lines will first place the DC-6's back on its San Francisco-Honolulu route March 21 and on its coast-to-coast route April 1. National Airlines plans resumption of service between Miami and New York March 20 and Braniff International Airways will announce early in April a specific date for resumption of Houston-San Antonio, Dallas, Kansas City and Chicago DC-6 service.

Ninety six of the big 300-mile-an-hour luxury planes were voluntarily grounded by airline operators last November following the accident to one at Bryce Canyon, Utah, and the emergency safe landing of another at Gallup, New Mexico.

Out of the investigation came a lengthy list of modifications, some designed to remove any possible hazards and others intended to incorporate various changes which would have been made routinely had the planes remained in service.

No major structural problems were involved.

INDUSTRY TO Fight Alcoholism

CHICAGO (UP)—The first Industrial Conference on Alcoholism, will be held here March 23, in an effort to bring to the attention of industry leaders the problem of alcoholic employees.

Dr. Anton J. Carlson, co-chairman of the conference, stated, "alcoholic employees now cost industry almost one billion dollars a year."

He said, "In most cases, when an employee is found to have alcoholic tendencies, he or she usually is fired. What industry does not realize is that they have invested time and money in these employees and that it is not necessary to fire them."

JUVENILE BURGLARS To Pay For Drinks

NANAIMO, B. C. (UP)—Seventeen juveniles received what they considered hard sentences from Magistrate Lionel Brewer when they admitted breaking into a bottling plant and stealing 250 bottles of soft drinks.

1. They shall pay the company out of their own earnings the value of the pup.

2. They shall not be on the streets later than 9:30 p. m.

3. They shall report to the probation officer once a week.

4. They shall attend Sunday School at least twice a month.

"If proper measures are taken, most of them can be rehabilitated and when that is accomplished, they make the best possible type of employee."

California's Sardines Caught Best In Dark

SAN FRANCISCO (UP)—Sardine fishing, California's $60,000,000 industry, is geared to the phases of the moon, according to Dr. Robert C. Miller, director of the California Academy of Science.
 Miller pointed out that sardine fishing is carried on in darkness, and "not only at dead of night, but in the dark of the moon."
 He explained that California fishermen locate schools of sardines by the luminescent streak they make in the water by stirring up microscopic organisms. On the other hand, he said, in Washington, Oregon and British Columbia, the sardine fishermen do their fishing in full daylight.
 Another strange fact, he observed, is that fishermen from Northwest who can find their sardines in daylight without much trouble, take to night fishing when they come to California.

Garden Lore

The Civic League will hold a Flower Show, School and Tea, at the Community Club House, Wednesday March 17. Mrs. Charles Cooper of Kilgore will give her opinions on the flower arrangements shown by Ranger women, so I will offer some hints.

Five period styles are, Flemish, French, Victorian, Colonial, and Greek Classical. The Flemish uses a bronze or metal container, with clusters of small fruit at the base of the vase. A number of rich toned flowers are used in a pyramidal effect, and sometimes a birds nest with its eggs is half hidden in the flowers.

The French takes a white urn mounted on a slab. Resting on the slab are clusters of grapes, and a light touch is obtained with gray colored flowers. The style is round.

The Victorian shows an ornate vase of that period. One selection is pink roses, delphiniums, and feathery green below the flowers. Sometimes a lily or so is used. The flowers are massed heavy on one side, lighter on the other, and drooping.

Colonial, the urn like vase should be white, flowers lavender lilacs, and white roses, or other white flowers of the pompon type. No foliage is used, save that which is on the lilac blossom branches.

The Greek Classical is just what it's name implies, simple beauty, using a Greek urn, with white lilies arranged in a symmetrical triangle, the buds accentuating, the triangle. Palm fronds are placed on each side of the neck of the container.

An inverted half-moon effect is achieved by using a pedestal container, with flowers in the middle of the dish, with a trailing leaf on each side.

Swirl takes a jug like vase, narrow leaves swirling from left to right, and only one large flower in the middle. Then there is the crescent moon and many other forms.

Care should be used to see that containers, foliage and flowers supplement each other instead of detracting.

Almost beautiful triangle design can be obtained by the use of one tall broad leaf, with a smaller leaf lower on each side, just below the leaves pink blossoms drooping on each side, all apparently held in place with a bow of florist ribbon the same shade as the leaves, and at the sides of the vase, rosette bows. The vase should be brown.

TO BE ENTERTAINED WITH HOBO PARTY

For the occasion, the basement of the church will be turned into a hobo jungle. All members of the department are invited to attend.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SERVICE
"Substance" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, March 13. The Golden Text is: "For ever, O Lord, thy word is settled in heaven. Thy faithfulness is unto all generations" (Psalms 119:89, 90).

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson - Sermon is the following from the Bible: "As for me, I will behold thy face in righteousness: I shall be satisfied when I awake with thy likeness" (Psalms 17:15).

The Lesson - Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "As God is substance and man is the divine image and likeness, man should wish for, and in reality has, only the substance of good, the substance of Spirit, not matter" (page 301).
