UN Warned Of Fighting In Palestine

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y., Mar. 19. (UP)—The United States told the United Nations Security Council today that "large-scale fighting" will start in Palestine if Great Britain pulls out its troops before the UN finds peaceful solution to the Holy Land question.

The warning was delivered to the council by American Delegate Warren Austin on behalf of the United States, France, China and presumably the Soviet Union. The extent of Russia's concurrence in the statement was not immediately clear.

Austin's remark was interpreted as an indirect admonition to Great Britain to remain in the Holy Land beyond the May 15 deadline it has set for terminating its mandate.

Austin asked the Security Council to take these two actions toward carrying out the UN plan for partitioning Palestine.

1. Make clear to Arabs and Jews and Great Britain that the Security Council "is determined not to permit the existence of a threat to peace in Palestine."

2. Take all steps within its power to "bring about the immediate cessation of violence and the restoration of peace and order in Palestine."

Twister In Two States Kills Nine

ST. LOUIS, Mar. 19. (UP)—Tornadoes, striking at scattered points in eastern Missouri and southern Illinois, today killed at least nine persons and injured more than 200.

Five persons were killed at Gillespie, Ill., which was leveled by the storm.

In addition, three persons were believed to have been killed at Bethalto, Ill., about 20 miles north east of St. Louis.

The twister struck first near Union, Mo., then arched over the Mississippi River north to St. Louis and struck with great force between Alton and Gillespie, Ill.

Winds of great velocity were reported at numerous other towns from Bonne Terre, Mo., north to points beyond Gillespie, a distance of about 80 miles.

At Gillespie, a town of about 5,000 population, Mayor Ted Frey reported that "the town was a mess."

Litchfield, Ill., was also reportedly hit. Telephone communications were destroyed there as well as at Hillsboro. The Southwestern Bell Telephone Co., said it was handling only emergency medical calls into Litchfield.

Rev. Carl Straley urged all members to be present at next week's meeting when a young man once blind and now sees will be the guest speaker.

The Red Cross chartered four planes at Springfield, Ill., to fly plasma to Gillespie.

MARSHALL SAYS VOTE FOR COMMUNISM TO FORFEIT AID

BERKELEY, Cal. Mar. 19. (UP)—Secretary of State George Marshall today served warning on Italy that it would forfeit benefits of the European Recovery Program if it voted Communist in next month's elections.

Addressing charter day ceremonies before the nation's largest institution of higher learning, Marshall said that the "present situation" in world affairs is "disturbingly similar" to the years of World War II in which he served as army chief of staff.

"Never before in history has the world situation been more threatening to our ideals and interests than at the present time," Marshall told students, faculty and visitors at the University of California, where he was awarded an honorary doctor of laws degree.

In an address which recalled his original proposal for the European Recovery Program last year at Harvard University, Marshall stated flatly "such concerted actions" as the newly-signed alliance of Great Britain, France and the Benelux countries "demand our cooperation and assistance."

Featured Players in Latest Un-American Spy Scare Cast

BY PETER EDSON

NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON—(NEA)—Dr. Edward U. Condon, National Bureau of Standards director, who is now on the Thomas-Rankin Un-American Affairs Committee griddle, has a strange story to tell about his relations with the other characters in this latest spy scare. Most important are Demetry I. Vinogradoff, Ignace Zlotowski and Helen M. Harris.

Vinogradoff, now 70, is employed at Bureau of Standards as advised on relations with foreign governments and scientists. He came to the U. S. after the Bolshevik revolution in 1917. He had been educated as an electrical engineer. He was sent to this country as purchasing agent for the old Kerensky regime.

When the Kerensky government was itself overthrown by Lenin, Trotsky, Stalin and their pals, Vinogradoff decided he didn't want to stick around. So he stayed in the U. S. and became an American citizen. He got a job with Westinghouse Electric Co. in Pittsburgh, and in time became manager of their international engineering department. Dr. Condon was head of Westinghouse Laboratories from 1937 to 1945, and it was there he first met Vinogradoff.

When Dr. Condon was made head of Bureau of Standards in November, 1945, he took Dr. Vinogradoff on his staff to advise on relations with foreign governments. The war had disrupted the international exchange of scientific information that has been carried on since the Smithsonian Institution first began it in 1849. Working through the State Department, efforts were made to re-establish contacts between American and foreign scientists, universities, laboratories and research institutions.

Early last year it became apparent that the Russians would not permit their scientists to communicate with the rest of the world. Vinogradoff was assigned to look into it.

Some letter was prepared for Dr. Condon's signature, notifying all foreign governments that on Jan. 1, 1948, no scientific material would be exchanged with any foreign government that did not send like material to the U. S. Russia did not reply to the notice. Since that time the lid has been on.

Dr. Ignace Zlotowski, the second character with whom Dr. Condon is accused of having associated, is a Polish physicist. He was sought in Paris at the outbreak of the war. He had been working with the Curies in France. Not being able to return to Poland after Germany overran his country, he came to the U. S. During the war he taught physics at Ohio State University and Vassar College.

AFTER the war he hooked up with the Polish Embassy in Washington. He was assigned as Polish observer for the atomic bomb tests at Bikini in the summer of 1946. It was on this trip that Dr. Condon met him.

Later Zlotowski was made adviser on atomic energy matters to Dr. Oscar Lange, Polish ambassador to the UN. Until Jan. 1, when the job folded, Zlotowski was Polish member of the International Atomic Energy Commission in New York.

Zlotowski was single, and in Washington liked to step out socially. One occasion he escorted to Dr. Condon's home, for a dinner party, Miss Helen M. Harris. At that time and until last November she was secretary to the American-Soviet Science Society. This was an organization started by a grant of $25,000 from all places—the Rockefeller Foundation. Dr. Condon had encouraged the work of this society. But when its grant was used up, the society went out of business.

Miss Harris was born in Poland of Polish parents. They brought her to the U. S. as a minor in 1931. She became an American citizen when her parents were naturalized and took the name of Harris. She now works as a secretary in the Polish Embassy in Washington.

Pesky and Stephens Vie for Red Sox' Shortstop Berth

BY HARRY GRAYSON
NEA Sports Editor

SARASOTA, Fla.—(NEA)—Johnny Pesky, the incumbent, and Vern Stephens, for whom Thomas Austin Yawkey paid the Browns all that dough, are both working at shortstop for the Red Sox as spring training rolls along at Sarasota.

John McCarthy's giant brown eyes will determine who will switch to Old Bay, and with no questions asked.

Under the winging of managers, the Boston Americans, the remarkable Ted Williams and all, will do as they are told in a lively manner. McCarthy isn't fooling, and they know it.

Case of the better Grandstand League stories is the many Hub baseball writers, thrown into close contact with him daily for the first time, trying to figure McCarthy. Thus far they have found Marse Joe much as he was while displaying the Yankees.

The Buffalo Irishman is obliging and courteous, but can't be pinned down. He answers questions, but never volunteers any information, and if replies leave the inquisitor and assembled scribblers just where they were when the subject was brought up. A stock McCarthy answer now is, "It's much too early to decide a thing like that."

Comparing the managerial tactics of McCarthy and Joe Cronin, the most pronounced difference the Boston scriveners have noticed is that the former of champions issues not nearly as many orders.

WHERE the round Cronin stood on the sidelines shouting instructions, the writer experience difficulty keeping track of McCarthy during practice. The old-head man relays commands through coaches Earl Combs, Del Baker and Larry Woodall.

McCarthy leaves veterans pretty much to themselves, concentrates on the younger fellows, and, at the moment, Pesky and Junior Stephens, for it is there that he must make an early and highly important decision.

McCarthy's phantom bunting game has the pitchers polishing their fielding and cutting down waistlines. The catcher checks the ball on the ground to the right or left of the plate, and yells, "First, Joe," or "Third, Boo." The pitcher scrambles in, fields the ball, and makes the throw quickly.

Joe takes advantage of the mid-day sun with but one practice session a day, and anybody not engaged in the work who speaks to him during that time gets a quick brush-off.

At this early stage his principal objective is to get Red Sox minds back on baseball, after fall and winter of clerking, running filling stations, fishing and hunting, just plain loafing and whatnot. His bones, though, eyes are never still, miss nothing, and he is a stickler for details. That is not the least reason why pernicious have followed McCarthy around.

Rooster Has Horns

ISAMBUL (UP)—Mahmet Tuzek, an Anatolian farmer, has a rooster named Mosko which he has refused to sell for $200 Turkish lira ($200). Tuzek thinks Mosko should earn a living for him as a sideshow attraction. Nature equipped the gray rooster's head with three-inch horns growing in curling fashion which makes look like a ram's head.

Misleading reports from California led Charles E. Hughes to believe that he had been elected president of the U. S. in 1916.

New Letter Shows Lincoln Heart

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UPI)—A hitherto unpublished letter telling how Abraham Lincoln found time to review the case of a captured Confederate soldier so he might spend Christmas with his family and has been discovered here.

The letter, an acquisition of King V. Hostick, collector of Lincoln documents, was written by T. M. Coombs while a prisoner at Ft. Delaware.

Letters sent to official Washington probably will meet with little attention. You persons in Washington are always engaged in business of more importance than the release of a prisoner whom you do not even know. However, I am pleading with you to allow me to take the oath of allegiance and be discharged so that I can spend Christmas with my wife and three children."

OFFICE 'Nurse'

XXVII
"MERCIFUL heavens!" Miss Willows gasped. The doctor's office, in all her long years of loyal service, had never been held up before.

"Oh!" Betty Jane groaned and caught hold of her patient, but it was the young nurse, and not the patient, who crumpled to the floor in a dead faint.

Dr. Holbrook started to step forward—then stopped. He was not looking at the man who held the pistol; his eyes were focused on Janice.

"Don't anyone move," the man said, as a holdup man should. Only this one did not look at anyone except Janice Hilary. As a matter of fact, everyone in the room, or in the doorways leading to the room, was looking at Janice.

If she was aware of this Janice did not show it. She did not seem the least afraid or thrilled or as though she might keel over. She took a step toward the man with a growl.

"What do you want?" Her voice sounded perfectly natural. She might have been addressing a patient who had just entered the office.

"You know what I want," the man said in a menacing growl, taking a step toward her.

"But she is no longer with us," Janice said. Her tone now was the reasonable, reassuring one a nurse would use with a patient who had gotten out of hand. "You know that she left some time ago."

"She is no longer with us," Janice said. Her tone now was the reasonable, reassuring one a nurse would use with a patient who had gotten out of hand. "You know that she left some time ago."

"But she is no longer with us," Janice said. Her tone now was the reasonable, reassuring one a nurse would use with a patient who had gotten out of hand. "You know that she left some time ago."

"Just this!" The two short words were followed by two staccato shots. The man turned and disappeared through the doorway swiftly and dramatically as he had entered.

"Janice!" This cry came from the room toward Janice, who now leaned against the desk, having fallen back those few brave steps she had taken forward. "Are you hurt?"

That was a useless question.

Anyone, doctor or not, could see that she was. The hand pressing against her side could not prevent the white blouse of her uniform from slowly turning to a deep red.

MISS WILLOWS came quickly from around her desk and put a firm arm around Janice's slender wrist. "Of course she's hurt!" she snapped—Miss Willows who had never snapped at Dr. Holbrook, her idol, before. "Do something. Don't just stand there."

She turned on Miss Susie Fox and Mrs. Smythe-Smith. "One of you ladies get some cold water and throw it in Betty Jane's face. We'll need her help, too. A fine time for a nurse to faint."

A fine time, she might have added, for a doctor to give way in his personal feelings. For Dr. Holbrook still behaved like a man in a stupor. He raised one hand to show Miss Willows—or anyone who cared to look—that he was trembling like the motor of an old model T Ford.

"I—you'd better send for Dr. Richards," he said, his voice trembling, too. He sank down in the chair

British Deaths Blamed On A Mystery Virus

LONDON (UP) — A mysterious virus which attacks the brain cells was blamed for 12 deaths in Britain during the past few months.

It was mentioned publicly first at an inquest on a month-old baby at Wednesbury, Staffordshire. A post-mortem examination showed that the child died from acute inflammation of the brain believed caused by a virus of unknown origin.

The same virus was blamed for the death of a Walsall, Staffordshire, policeman, who died within five hours after being attacked.

Walsall General Hospital pathologists, investigating the deaths said the virus was of the encephalitis group. Little is known about the group, they said.

Frank Cooper, coroner at Wednesbury, said there had been a number of other cases in other parts of the country during the past few months involving deaths of persons of all ages.

"Even with the best brains in the medical profession, no cure has yet been found," he said. "It has not been possible to isolate the virus which caused the disease."

Humble's Mobile Medical Unit Now In The Field

A mobile medical unit, newly completed by Humble Oil & Refining Company in Houston, rolled onto the highways this week on the first leg of a continuing journey to make free, voluntary physical examinations available to all Humble field employees.

Latest addition to Humble's program of preventive medicine, the mobile unit will visit over 300 field camps to serve about 7,500 Humble employees in Texas, Louisiana, New Mexico and Mississippi.

It will require about a year and a half to make the first tour of Humble camps, after which the unit will begin making return visits.

The new mobile medical unit is housed in a trailer van 34 feet long. Pulled by a truck-tractor, the unit will have an overall length of 44 feet and six inches. Total cost was about $20,000.

Divided into three main compartments—laboratory, X-ray room, and doctor's examining room—the Humble clinic-on-wheels is equipped with electric air conditioning and gasoline heating facilities. Transformers will enable it to tie into electric power wherever it stops.

Built into the trailer are a compact laboratory for performing blood and urine tests, complete equipment for making and developing X-ray pictures, an eye testing machine, fluoroscope, electro-diagraph, sterilizers, and all instruments and supplies necessary for diagnostic medicine.

Dr. Edward H. Martin, M. D., and Thomas Beckham, X-ray technician, who staff the unit, will be able to examine about 20 Humble employees per day with the facilities installed.

The Humble mobile medical unit will perform diagnoses only, and any ailments found will be referred to local physicians for treatment. However, the unit carries all supplies and equipment necessary for emergency treatment. First region on the big trailer unit's itinerary is East Texas. Early stops include Waco, Fort Worth, Dallas, and Longview.

RETONGA FAR AHEAD DECLARIES MRS. SHAW

Famous Medicine Did So Much For Her She Is Recommending It To All Her Friends, States Well Known Resident. Discusses Her Case.

More praise for Retonga comes in every day from happy and grateful men and women who have found relief through its use, often after years of suffering. For instance, Mrs. C. C. Shaw, well-known resident of 325 Arcadia Ave., South San Antonio, Tex., happily declares:

"Retonga did so much for me I am recommending it to all my friends. Poor appetite, sluggish elimination, gas and headaches kept me feeling miserable for a month. I got no high-strung. I could not even get a good night's sleep, and I felt so run-down and miserable most of the time it was an effort to turn my hand, as the saying is."

"Retonga gave me such splendid relief that I now enjoy every meal, my sleep is refreshing, and I don't feel tense and high-strung. The constipation and those terrible headaches are also relieved, and I feel lots better and stronger. Retonga is far ahead of any medicine in my experience."

If the first bottle of Retonga does not bring gratifying relief its small cost will be refunded without question. Retonga is intended to relieve distress due to insufficient flow of digestive juices in the stomach, loss of appetite, borderline vitamin B-1 deficiency and constipation. Accept no substitute. Retonga may be obtained at Oil City Pharmacy.
