Report Claims Jewish Capture Of Jenin

Well... I Dunno, But !!

The 1947 Club, an enthusiastic group of young matrons and young ladies, wants to do its part for the Community Clubhouse and in order to do that they have been studying ways and means of making some money to spend on furnishings or whatever is needed.

Well, they've finally hit upon the plan of having a benefit bridge and forty-two. It will be on the afternoon of June 18 at 2:30 o'clock at the clubhouse and games of bridge and forty-two will be played. Prizes will be given to the high scorers and refreshments will be served. Admission will be $1.00.

This group of about 40 girls, in the short time since organization of the club have accomplished a lot and have a very strong organization. Already they have contributed toward the purchase of 100 chairs for the clubhouse and in other ways have helped.

Let's help them with their project, particularly since in the end it's the community that will benefit by the effort. It's good to encourage the young people to take an active part in civic activities.

Roney and Mrs. Jones spend endless hours working on the improvement of their lawn and the lots around it and results are telling. They have a beautiful flower bed with white rail fence that has literally been built out of a row of beds on the side of the creek that runs back of their house. Lots adjacent have been cleaned, grass mowed, a garden planted and an orchard. Personally, we set our eye on that field of corn out back of the house, roasting ears being one of our favorite dishes.

Yes sir, Roney and the Missus have sure done wonders and goes to prove what a little effort can do toward beautifying.

In the mail this morning was a note from Mrs. Addie Williams, thanking us for the quick and thorough coverage of Vanport, Oregon flood.

Her interest in the flood was spurred by the fact that she and her family lived there during the war years, along with the Baskin boys, Terrel Tarbin and the Fred Tibbles family.

She add, "It just doesn't seem possible that a beautiful city with its fine churches and recreation buildings, swimming pools, beautiful flowers and trees could be completely destroyed in thirty minutes.

Thanks, Mam, for the kind words.

Golf is really in the air and excitement over the tournament here this week-end has reached a new high.

One of the latest entries in the tournament is J. T. Hammett of Okra who just yesterday learned of the ruling of the golf board that would return him to amateur status after having been classed as a pro for several years.

J. T. has several times in the past been the champion of the Ranger County Club tournament.

The Ranger course is drawing many out-of-town players who have not qualified for the tourney and among those out on the course Thursday afternoon were Jim Hay, and Gene Lowry of Dallas, Chad Wilson, Jack Wilson and Jeff Graham from Knox City, Charles Van Geem, of Abilene, Bob Craig of Colorado City, Chick Ford of Abilene, Jim Brown of Cleburne and R. V. Cole of Abilene.

MARSHALL HITS AT CUTS IN ERP QUOTAS

WASHINGTON, June 4 (UP)—Secretary of State George C. Marshall asserted today that any reduction in European Recovery Program funds would alter the program "from one of reconstruction to one of mere relief."

Democrats in the House backed up Marshall's efforts to restore big cuts made in the program by the House Appropriations committee.

But there seemed little chance that the Republican-controlled chamber would grant the full amounts asked by the administration when it considers the $5,980,710, 228 bill later today.

The appropriations committee cut out $553,000,000 of actual money appropriations for all foreign aid programs. The reduction actually exceeds a billion dollars, however, because the committee specified that the money be spread over a 15-month period instead of 12 months.

Marshall just a year ago tomorrow suggested the multi-billion European Recovery Program. His statement today, which he permitted to be quoted, started an administration campaign to save it from reduction.

His brief statement said: "The position of the department of state and mine personally in the matter of foregoing spending has been stated a number of times and I don't think it requires clarification."

"The reduction proposed would I consider, alter the European Recovery Program from one of reconstruction to one of mere relief."

Asked whether the cuts made by the House Appropriations committee would have any effect on his attempts to reach a settlement in Europe Marshall reiterated that the cuts would be very serious as they pertain to Europe.

Democratic Leader Sam Rayburn led the floor fight in the House to increase the funds.

Tel Aviv—Israeli assault forces were reported unofficially today to have captured Jenin, northern bastion of the triangular Arab salient in north central Palestine which menaces the rich coastal plain comprising the heart of Israel.

Unofficial Jewish sources reported in Haifa that the army of Israel had won a three-day battle for Jenin. Such a victory would tear out the northern anchor of the so-called "dangerous triangle and endanger Arab positions over a broad sweep of Palestine.

The same sources reported that Israeli planes were bombing Tulkarm, the western anchor of the triangle.

The air assault was described as a softening up of the strong Arab base for a ground attack expected soon.

Intense and widespread fighting went on unabated while Count Folke Bernadotte, United Nations mediator, worked at top speed to find a peace formula acceptable to both Jews and Arabs.

Bernadotte was shutting by plane among the capitals of the Middle East and accumulating the views of chieftains of the warring states.

At a Cairo conference today the Swedish mediator hinted that the key to the truce plan was the issue of immigration to Palestine during any silencing of the guns. The Arabs feared the Jews would use a truce to pour manpower into Israel and strengthen their hand for possible future action.

Bernadotte said his task was to clarify and reconcile the different interpretations of UN plans for the truce, and he hoped it would not take long. Of necessary his press conference was short on information since his mediation efforts were continuing.

The fall of Jenin, if the unofficial report is borne out, would be one of the biggest Israeli victories. It is the key base of the northern section of the great stretch of central Palestine awarded to the Arabs under the UN partition plan.

WASHINGTON COLUMN

Housing Bill Was Football For Senatorial Rivals

BY PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON—(NEA)—After four years of involved political infighting, the Senate got around to okaying a long-range housing policy bill. And in so doing it delivered a sound spanking to a freshman senator who got too big for his britches.

The story is a classic example of how some of the most needed constructive reform measures get kicked around in this town. It begins back in 1944 when Sen. Robert A. Taft took chairmanship of a Senate Postwar Planning subcommittee on housing.

By dint of thorough research, Taft came up with some really constructive proposals. They were so good the Democrats tried to steal them. Senators Robert F. Wagner of New York and Allen J. Ellender of Louisiana rushed to introduce a bill including all of Taft's recommendations. Later the trio got together for joint sponsorship and the bill became known as the Wagner-Ellender-Taft housing bill.

When the GOP got control of Congress after the 1946 elections, it became rightly known as the T-E-W bill. It was passed by the Senate last year but the House did nothing.

The big fight is over public housing—government financing of low-cost housing for families unable to pay for decent shelter. One of the reasons given for House failure to act on the T-E-W bill was that this public housing situation needed investigating some more.

A Joint Congressional Committee on Housing was therefore set up to investigate during the past summer. Taft wasn't on it. Sen. Charles W. Tobey of New Hampshire was by seniority entitled to head the new group. But by some fast footwork Tobey was frozen out. Congressman Ralph Gamble of New York was elected chairman and Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy of Wisconsin vice chairman.

McCarthy, the freshman senator who defeated able young Bob LaFollette in the 1946 election, immediately set out to make a record for himself with an independent course of action. Reports from the Joint Committee on Housing began to flow from various subcommittees and individuals in amazing perplexity and sometimes contradiction.

Vice Chairman McCarthy put out a general report of his own. He also drew up some new legislation of his own. The impression was given that the T-E-W bill was now dead.

With some caustic comments that McCarthy had now had enough publicity on this issue, Tobey rejected the whole business. Not even Chairman Gamble would go along with it. McCarthy then tried what was described as a filibuster in committee.

While he was talking, the real report of the committee was brought up and passed around the table. A majority of the committee members present signed it and then walked out.

At this juncture, Sen. Ralph Flanders of Vermont stepped into the picture. He drew up a series of amendments intended to bring the original T-E-W bill into line with present conditions.

Senator Taft accepted the Flanders amendments in toto. When the housing legislation came to the Senate floor recently, however, Senator McCarthy insisted that his 13 long amendments to the old original T-E-W bill be considered. So the Senate took them all and approved them all.

The strategy was to let McCarthy have his day. As Senator Taft explained it, "Since the senator from Wisconsin (McCarthy) will not cooperate by working on the committee bill which I, as author of the original bill all he wants to do, I am willing to have him amend the original bill all he wants to do. He can have the original bill. He can rewrite the original bill. But then I shall ask the Senate to adopt the substitute bill. Of course, the effect of that will be to wipe out all his amendments."

In the end, Taft gave McCarthy a couple of minor amendments.

"Not here today?" they echoed blankly.

Madame Girard looked from one to the other.

"Didn't you know?"

"WHY, no. We certainly understood she'd be here," said Miss Helen.

Miss Alice's heart trembled.

"Helen, dear, what can have happened?" she gasped.

Miss Helen pursed her lips.

"This, of course, is Charlotte's influence."

"Charlotte?" queried Madame Girard.

"Her twin sister, Patience has been staying with her this week-end. But she was naturally to have come to you as usual today."

Madame Girard smiled understandingly.

"Well, I shouldn't worry about her," she said soothingly. "I expect she is having—how shall we say it?—a little razzle. You know what young girls are. They like to have some fun. I remember when I was in Paris—"

Madame Girard sighed reminiscently.

Miss Helen rose to her feet. She didn't want to hear what had happened to Madame Girard when she was a young girl in Paris. Paris, from all she'd heard, was a very wicked city.

She said goodbye rather abruptly and left the Academy, walking quickly down the steps and out into the street, cold wrath in every line of her figure.

Miss Alice followed nervously behind her.

"We'll go straight to Charlotte's flat," announced Miss Helen. "Luckily I have the address here with me."

THEY took a taxi. A commissionaire stepped smartly forward and opened the door for them as they drove up outside the main entrance to the block of luxury flats where Charlotte lived. Miss Alice looked about her with wide eyes as they entered the thickly-carpeted foyer and made their way to the lift.

"Flats here must be very expensive, Helen."

"I suppose Charlotte makes a great deal of money. It's very bad for her, I consider. I don't approve of young girls living extravagantly."

Miss Alice sighed. She only hoped that once they reached the flat they'd find Patience there with Charlotte.

But neither girl, it seemed, was in. The trim maid who opened the door said she was sorry but Miss Patience Mond either.

"I'm their aunt," said Miss Helen, stepping firmly into the hall. "I'd like to wait until they return. Alice, come along in."

The maid looked at them uncertainly.

"I'm not quite sure when they will be back, madam."

"Where have they gone?"

"Er—er—they've gone away for the week-end."

"Where?"

"Well, madam, Miss Carlotta doesn't tell me where she goes when she goes away."

By now Elizabeth was treading wildly. She'd guessed immediately who were her unexpected visitors. Miss Carlotta had said they were a couple of old tartars.

She showed them into the drawing room and offered to make them tea.

"Thank you. We'd like some," said Miss Helen coldly.

Elizabeth closed the door, and was just crossing the hall as the front door bell rang.

"Telegram for Mond," said the telegraph boy.

She lay the telegram on the hall table and went into the kitchen to put on the kettle.

Charlotte, entering the flat some short while later, picked it up, and went straight on into the sitting room with it still unopened in her hand.

She stopped dead as her aunt rose from their chairs.

"Heavens above!" she gasped.

Advices Visiting Destist Even Though Toothless

BOSTON (UP)—Even if you're toothless, you should see your dentist at least twice a year.

That's the belief of President James H. Maycock of the Massachusetts Dental Society.

"Because of the mouth is the source of nourishment through which all food must pass before it is digested, we must be absolutely certain that this part of our anatomy is healthy," he said.

He said twice-a-year examinations would lead to early discovery of any infections or other forms of unhealthy mouth conditions.

UN Tuberculosis Agency Seeking To Safeguard 50,000,000 Children

By DUDLEY HARMON United Press Staff Correspondent PARIS (UP)—The biggest public health project of its kind in history will be started shortly, United Nations officials have disclosed.

It will involve the testing of 50,000,000 European children for tuberculosis and the inoculation of some 15,000,000 of them.

The project is sponsored by the UN's International Children's Emergency Fund, which has European headquarters here.

Although east and west continue at loggerheads on most subjects, they co-operate in the ICEF. Both the Soviet Union and the United States are on its executive board, which has spent more than half of the $40,000,000 allotted it for war-stricken children.

Much of the aid has gone to Rumania, Poland, and other "iron curtain" countries, although the Soviet Union has applied for relief non-contributed funds.

The tuberculosis project will begin in about two months, ICEF officials told the United Press. A fund for $40,000,000 has been assigned to the program. Half of the money will be used immediately in Europe. The other half will be reserved for "countries other than Europe."

The program will test 50,000,000 children for positive or negative reactions to the disease. An estimated 15,000,000 expected to show susceptibility then will be inoculated with a serum called the BCG. Inoculation already is compulsory in Denmark, Hungary and other countries.

The Danish Red Cross has been carrying out such a program in Denmark. The Danish government has offered 2,000,000 crowns to the children's fund for continuation and extension of the program in collaboration with Sweden and Norway. The ICEF said arrangements will be made between the Danish Red Cross, the countries applying for the program and the ICEF itself.

The ICEF hopes soon to line up teams of doctors and organize equipment. It estimates that between 200 and 300 teams, each consisting of a doctor, two nurses and two secretaries, could do the job in about 18 months.

Tuberculosis in Europe increased severely as the result of World War II. According to the ICEF, Poland's death rate went up from 17.5 per 1,000, to 50. In Finland the death rate from tuberculosis increased about five per cent for all ages and "strikingly" among children.

3 Polio Victims Team Up In Watch Repair Venture

SCRANTON, Pa. (UP)—Three local men, classmates at the same school and crippled by the same disease, have combined their efforts to overcome their physical disabilities and developed them into what looks like a money-maker.

Bert and Wagstaff, A. M. Ruby and E. Harold McQuoran learned the watchmaking trade at Williamsport Technical Institute. The trio, all victims of infantile paralysis, realized a dream of five years when they opened their jointly-owned watch repair and jewelry store here.

Understudies Do Click It Seems

NEW YORK (UP)—The scene is familiar in Hollywood epics—the star falls ill or disappears or overacts. Loud screams for the understudy. There is the tense moment when the understudy goes on stage and then mighty cheers and rave notices in the press.

Phony? But it happens and happens and will keep happening as long as there is show business. Here are some current exhibits to prove it:

Item one is handsome Donald Richards, one of the stars of the hit musical, "Finian's Rainbow." Fifteen months ago an agent told him the singer at Chicago's Mayfair Room had fallen ill and why didn't he substitute? Donald did.

Sitting in the room was a talent scout for Burton Lane, composer of "Finian's Rainbow." Donald got the role. But lightning struck twice for him. Recently he doubled at the swank Waldorf-Astoria's Sert Room—got the engagement because the star, Jean Sablon, became ill!

Item two is Harvey Stone, one of the best of the new comedians. Harvey was a shoe salesman invited to attend a company party for the occasion failed to show up so Harvey was persuaded to do a little bit he had written called "How Not To Sell a Shoe."

A man at the party offered him a night club engagement and since then Harvey has gone a long way (from $500 to $5,000 a week, he says). President Truman invited him to entertain at the White House twice, and in the Army once.

Item three is Jerry Wayne who is riding to fame and what goes with it on the success of his recording of "You Can't Be True, Dear." Wayne was a guitarist. One night the singer failed to show and he sang a short chorus to break up the monotony of too much music in a program over a small New Jersey station.

He promptly got demands for more singing. Then came an even bigger break. A firm which had bought "You Can't Be True, Dear" wanted a test record and Jerry who just happened to be around, was asked to do it as a favor. His record was so good they kept it as the one to sell.

Huge Expenditures Foreseen In State For Home Building

That yet for a cottage small will result in huge outlays for housing this year in Texas.

The state's urban residents will spend a whopping $281,750,000 for new homes during 1948 and will construct a total of more than 58,150 dwelling units, according to estimates released by the Tile Council of America. In 1947, 52,866 units were built in Texas cities, at a cost of $225,403, Government reports reveal.

"Home builders can expect an increase not only in the quantity of new houses this year, but also in quality," declared Malcolm Schweiker, chairman of the Council's residential construction committee.

Easing of the construction situation has resulted both from acceleration of apprentice training and increased building material output, according to Mr. Schweiker. For example, 2,000 men are training as tile setters and tile production is at record highs. This promises enough tile and tile setters to satisfy the nation's mounting demand for bathroom, kitchen and other home installations of tile, he said.

"The number of apprentices is a record for the industry. With the other thousands of men training in masonry, carpentry work, plumbing and allied trades, they assure the construction field a good labor supply for 1948 and the years ahead," Mr. Schweiker declared.

About 550,000 of the 950,000 dwelling units to be constructed in the United States this year will go into urban area, the Tile Council estimates. Expenditures for new homes are expected to top $6,000,000,000, according to the Department of Commerce.

Lawrence, Mayor of Pittsburgh, and John Kane, Allegheny County Commissioner who nominated Mr. Truman for vice president in 1944.

VA Office Begins
Review Of 39,000
Trainees' Files

The Veterans Administration Dallas Regional Office has begun the review of 39,000 veteran trainees' files to accomplish necessary subsistence adjustments under terms of a new law which raises the ceiling for former servicemen receiving on-the-job training and provides increased benefits for part-time students. Allowances will be changed automatically by VA in some cases.

Leon P. Howell, Acting Manager of the Dallas Region, said nearly 10,000 forms had been mailed to veterans enrolled in on-the-job and combination on-the-job and school training to aid in determining the amount of adjustment necessary.

Heretofore, increased subsistence allowances—$75 a month for veterans with no dependents, $105 for those with one dependent and $120 for those with more than one dependent—were limited to full-time students in colleges, universities and schools. The new law gives proportional increases to the veteran who spends part of his time in class room to receive related instruction. It provides increases or adjustments retroactive to April 1, 1948.

The Acting Manager said the trainee status mailed to veterans in the 51 counties of the Dallas Region must be filled out and returned to VA before any adjustments in payment of subsistence allowance can be made.

Men taking on-the-job and combination on-the-job and school training will report to VA their average monthly compensation from productive labor. The employer will be required to furnish VA the present rate of pay and the objective of the trainee when his training is completed.

Howell emphasized that the sooner these reports are received, the quicker subsistence adjustments can be made. Reports received within two weeks may be reflected in checks issued shortly after July 1. Later arriving reports will be reflected in August and subsequent checks.

The Acting Manager said that compensation from productive labor reported by the job trainee and his employer would be accepted as the basis for adjustment. If the rates, however, are not in agreement with the veteran's records in the VA office, it will be necessary to submit the case to the State Approval Agency in Austin for final action. If the Approval Agency does not agree with the reported trainee and journeyman's wages as furnished by the training firm, it may be necessary at a later date to reduce subsistence in line with established ceiling.

The new law provides that veterans training on-the-job under the G. I. Bill are entitled to an earned income subsistence not exceeding $210 a month if there are no dependents, $270 if there is 1 dependent and $290 if the trainee has more than one dependent. Proof of dependency must be established by the veteran through documents showing he is the chief support of his wife, children or parents.

Veterans in job training only, VA pointed out, actually are entitled to the same maximum subsistence they formerly were—$65 and $90. The difference is that higher ceilings are now in effect for incomes plus subsistence if the combination of the two does not exceed the established objective wage as approved by the State Approval Agency.

Another provision may give additional subsistence to veterans who earn while they learn. Until the law was passed by Congress, veterans had to report regularly scheduled overtime pay as earnings. The new measure provides that any compensation paid by the employer or received by the veteran for productive labor performed beyond the standard work week is not to be reported.
