American Civilian Missing In Soviet Zone

BERLIN, July 22. (UP)—U. S. Authorities asked the Russians today for a report on an American civilian missing in the Soviet zone for 48 hours and for an explanation of the arrest of two American military police who stayed into the Soviet zone.

The British Military Government charged today that two Soviet fighters "flew directly toward a York transport," veering away only at a distance of 100 yards.

The mysterious disappearance of the civilian and the arrest of the military police early today added new tension to the crisis over the Russian blockade of Berlin.

The Russians opened a propaganda attack on Gen. Lucius D. Clay, the U. S. Military governor. They asserted he had been recalled to Washington to be "rebuffed" for bringing on the Berlin crisis and to have his policy revised.

R. F. Goff, a U. S. Engineer from Pennsylvania, left Berlin by highway at 5:30 a. m. Tuesday to drive to Western Germany. He made the three hour drive to the Soviet exit check point near Helmstedt. There he presumably was turned back for lack of a "special visa" the Russians have demanded.

Goff never reached the American checkpoint on the outskirts of Berlin on the return journey. Examination of the records there showed an unexplained notation, "jailed by the Russians." U. S. guards at the checkpoint said they did not know who wrote the cryptic note.

The two military police were seized by Soviet border guards when they apparently crossed into the Soviet zone by mistake on the outskirts of the U. S. sector of Berlin.

Clay in Washington For Conference WASHINGTON—President Truman, after declaring that the chances for world peace seem excellent, met today with the national security council and top military leaders to hear from Gen. Lucius D. Clay a first-hand report on the Berlin blockade.

The White House said that "This is not in the nature of a crisis meeting."

The president at an earlier press conference declined to enter into any detailed discussion of the international situation, but he said he thought the overall chances were good, in fact, excellent.

Later in his news conference, during a second round of "peace" questions, the president said he thought the chances for world peace were just as good as they had ever been — that he was confident that the world would eventually reach a peaceful condition.

The security council includes Secretary of State George C. Marshall, Defense Secretary James Forrestal and the Secretaries of Army, Navy and Air.

Clay, U. S. Military governor in Germany, arrived here last night to give a first-hand account of the crisis stemming from the Russian blockade of Berlin.

RODEO STOCKMAN

Homer Todd of Fort Smith, Arkansas, well-known rodeo figure, will furnish the stock for the Jaycee Rodeo, July 28-31. Todd who is a steer and calf roper is among the leading rodeo producers in the country. His string of rodeo stock is known to be one of the greatest available.

Judge Collings Speaks Wed. At Rotary Luncheon

Dr. P. M. Kuykendall was program chairman at the Wednesday's Rotary Club luncheon, and presented Judge Cecil C. Collings, candidate for judge of the Court of Civil Appeals, who spoke on lawyers.

Judge Collings stated that in general practicing lawyers maintain high standards, and he also urged those present to serve on juries as it is the duty of every eligible citizen to do so.

Guests at the luncheon other than Judge Collings were the following: Clemon Von Raeder of Snyder, Congressman Omar Burleson and John Hardesty of Anson, George Lane of Eastland, Morris Little of Kansas, and John Winder, who was recently elected principal of Ranger High School.

Bank Will Be Closed Saturday

The Commercial State Bank will be closed to business Saturday and all persons with business to transact with the bank are asked to take care of it before that day.

Man Injured In Roping Contest In Eastland

Paul Hodges of west of Ranger is in the West Texas Hospital in Eastland receiving treatment for a broken collar bone and dislocated shoulder.

Mr. Hodges was injured Wednesday night while he was participating in a calf-roping contest in Eastland. The horse tried to jump a gate and Mr. Hodges was injured as a result.

Stiff Fines Proposed For Smoking In Bed

ROCKFORD, Ill. (UP)—The city council is considering passing an ordinance aimed at persons who smoke in bed.

CHARLES EATON KILLED IN CAR ACCIDENT

Charles B. Eaton, 529 South Dixie Street Eastland Meter Relay Engineer in the Transmission Department of the Texas Electric Service Company, was found dead in his wrecked car down a 30 foot embankment on U. S. Highway 99 near Jacksboro this morning about 5:00 a. m. by a passing motorist who called the sheriff at Jacksboro to investigate.

The body was carried to Hawkins Funeral home in Jacksboro and was to be carried later to Weatherford, the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank C. Eaton.

Mr. Eaton left Eastland Wednesday for Wichita Falls and was thought to be enroute home last night and was to go to Sweetwater.

Mr. Eaton was to attend a farewell party in Eastland Wednesday night in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Ammer who are moving to Monahan and notified friends he could not be present.

He had been with the company since April 27, 1936 and came to Eastland in June 1940. He died on his 40th birthday. Funeral arrangements were incomplete this morning.

Survivors are his widow of Eastland, and his parents, Mr. and Frank C. Eaton of Weatherford.

Orchids From England Prized

BANGKOK, Siam (UP)—The shipment by air of orchids from the cold climate of England to tropical Siam calls for an explanation of the "coas to Newcastle" trade.

The orchids are the result of hybridizations of plants originally taken to England from Malaya by Sir Hugh Low almost a century ago.

Sir Hugh, founded his orchid nurseries in 1830 and his successors, 87-year-old Stuart Henry Low and Miss W. Eileen Low, carry on. They manage nurseries at Crowborough, where hybrids are developed, from specimens collected from tropical regions all over the world. The hybrids are sent back to the orchid-producing countries to collectors and fanciers.

Worth from $4 to $2,000 a single plant, the orchids are packed in special boxes for air transport.

Candidate Capitalizes On Too Many Shirts

INDEPENDENCE, Mo. (UP)—Sheriff J. A. Purdome thought it might be a good idea if he bought some "T" shirts and distributed them to youngsters this hot summer weather.

He ordered 500. He got 500 dozen.

So Purdome gave a shirt to each boy and girl who called at his office here.

Each shirt bore the name "Purdome." He's running for office again. So the manufacturer's mistake just raised the number of times his name will appear on "T" shirts during the month before the primary.

Veteran Makes Plea For Doomed Pigeons

SAN FRANCISCO (UP)—A new suggestion on how to rid San Francisco's civic center of its troublesome pigeons has been made to Mayor Elmer Robinson.

Paul L. Widener, Tulsa veteran wants them exiled to Oklahoma.

Widener, who is starting a squab farm in a small way, wrote: "I don't like to think of you killing them. The pigeons would give me a big boost in my farm venture." He offered to pay freight charges.

RODEO PARADE TO FORM AT 3 JULY 28

Dr. Carl Starley, chairman of the rodeo parade announced today that the parade will form at 3 o'clock on the afternoon of Wednesday, July 28 at the softball field and will move out of the field at 4 o'clock.

The parade will move down Walnut street to Commerce, over to Main and up Main street to Marston and down Pine street to Commerce where it will disband.

Leading the Parade will be Mounted colors followed by Jaycees officers and visiting dignitaries and a chuck wagon from the K Ranch owned by Dr. P. M. Kuykendall.

Palomino Horses will be a feature of the first part of the parade. The Breckenridge High School band will be the leading band in the parade with bands from Ranger, Eastland, Cisco and Comanche also participating in the line of march.

Interspersed between the bands will be floats from the following Ranger Merchants; Peterson Floral, Arcadia Theatre, Hammila, Scotts, Joseph's, Montgomery Ward, E. L. Martin, J. C. Penny Co., Strongs Flower Shop, A. J. Ratliff, Commercial State Bank, Southern Ice Co., H & C Grocery, Craver Electric Co., Ranger Furniture Exchange, Coca Cola Bottling Co. of Eastland, Retail Merchants Association, White's Auto Store and others who care to enter the parade are invited to get their floats ready and be at the Soft ball park Wednesday.

The National Guard Unit under the command of Capt Bruce Harris will have all of their motorized equipment in the parade. The Boy Scouts under the direction of Scoutmaster Shockey will also participate.

The Parker County Sheriff's posse will ride in the parade and the Palo Pinto County Sheriff's posse has also been invited.

Featured in the parade will be a pony hitch from the Pope Trailer Co. of Ft Worth. The Calumet Indians who are featured in a Radio Program over WFAA daily will be in the parade with their sound truck.

All who can ride in the parade are invited to be in Western garb and ready with their horses at 3 p.m. Wed. so that the parade may move off on time at four o'clock.

Brannan Says U. S. Cotton Industry Good

DALLAS, July 22. (UP)—Agriculture Secretary Charles Brannan said today the U. S. cotton industry is "in good shape—better than far many years."

Brannan suggested an expanded world trade and more research as factors needed to keep the industry healthy. His ideas on the cotton situation were contained in a speech prepared for delivery before the ninth annual Cotton Congress.

Says Britain To Stand Pat With Russians

LONDON, July 22 (UP)—Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin told Commons today that Great Britain like the United States, "cannot be coerced" in dealing with Russia on the German situation.

In a brief statement in Commons on Germany, Bevin used some of the same words as Secretary of State George C. Marshall did yesterday in Washington.

Winston Churchill, leader of the opposition, at once pressed Bevin for a detailed statement on "the military aspect" of the situation.

Bevin said he was in close touch with the United States and French governments on the Berlin situation, and particularly on the next move in the light of Russia's rejection of a Western demand that the blockade be lifted.

Howard Oliver is the man that has the burden of general of the rodeo on his shoulders and under his direction the grounds have been prepared for the rodeo and other plans carried through.

NEW POOL IS DEVELOPING AT DUSTER

Close to the little community of Duster, in Comanche County, a pool is developing.

A total of four producers have been drilled. Two of these go back to 1934. They are on the north and there is a well, two and a half miles south, which was drilled in 1938. In between is the newest well, completed in June.

The newest well, drilled by W. H. Ezell of Alvin, came in for a 40 barrel in the Marble Falls at approximately 2,800 feet.

This is three quarters of a mile south of the two wells owned by the Empire Gas Company, which are primarily gas wells. The south ernmost well is owned by the Sells Petroleum Company of Gladewater and is making about 25 barrels a day on the pump.

The area is witnessing new activity. A mile north of the Empire wells, France & Gillespie on McMullen No. 1 on Sabanno Creek have the casing set in the Marble Falls. Two miles north of this test Clemens & Mellard on the Maurey are testing the Marble Falls. This well is some two and a half miles southwest of the Kirk Pool.

River In Ohio Floods But No Lives Are Lost

LANCASTER, O. July 22 (UP)—Between four and five thousand persons were driven from their homes here early today by a flash flood of the Hoeking River.

The Red Cross disaster service said there were no casualties and "everything was under control," although damages were expected to run to $300,000 or more.

JAYCEE PRESIDENT

Morris Newnham, who is manager of Ranger's Frozen Food Locker Plant, is president of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, the organization that sponsors the famous World Championship rodeo in Ranger each summer. R. B. Thomas, Jr., is secretary.

New Dealers Challenge The Wallace Party

PHILADELPHIA, July 22 (UP)—Some of Henry Wallace's former political associates accused his new party of being "an instrument of Soviet policy."

They challenged it "to declare its independence of Communism." The charge and challenge was voiced by the New Deal Americans for Democratic Action which is composed in large part of one-time Roosevelt administration colleagues of Wallace who no longer see eye to eye with him politically.

The Wallace party opens its first and founding national convention here tomorrow night. It will christen itself, nominate Wallace and Sen. Glen Taylor for President and Vice President, and adopt a platform calling for public ownership of key industries, peace with Russia, federal price controls and rationing of scarce goods.

The ADA views were offered to the new party's platform committee a day after Wallace heatedly protested the indictment in New York of 12 top American Communists.

The ADA, headed by former New Deal Price Administrator Leon Henderson, called on the Wallace party to endorse the European Recovery Plan, which Soviet Russia is fighting.

It saw no likelihood, however, that the new party would do any such thing. The ADA statement, presented by national executive secretary James Loeb, Jr., said: "We anticipate that the new party will once again demonstrate that as an instrument of Soviet policy it has sacrificed any claim to the support of independent liberals."

Ford Motor Co Grants Increase To CIO Workers

DETROIT, July 22 (UP)—Ford Motor Company and CIO United Auto Workers reached agreement today on a new pact providing a 13-cent hourly wage increase for 116,000 Ford workers.

The agreement, ending threats of a nationwide walkout in 46 Ford plants came in after a grueling 21-hour bargaining session which continued throughout the night.

In addition to the 13-cent wage increase, the agreement provides social security benefits amounting to an additional 3 1/2 cents.

Ford Motor Company officials estimated the cost of the wage and social security benefits at $32 million annually.

Well... I Dunno, But...

Well folks, here it is! The annual rodeo edition of the Ranger Daily Times. We hope that you like it.

We're awfully sorry but we were all mixed up about our days yesterday. Having missed four on the job, we got lost somewhere and practically everything we wrote Wednesday was written as if it were Thursday.

Two names of those taking cars on the rodeo motorcade were not included in the list Wednesday but Mace Oylar is taking the Morris Funeral Home car and Ralph Waggoner is taking a car for the Gholston Hotel.

We know you won't believe this but honest it's the truth. The Gholston Hotel is really undergoing a face lifting. For almost five long years we've lived in that hotel during the ownership of seven people and everytime it changed hands, the new owners were gonna redecorate the thing.

But like we always say we gotta see a thing to believe it and this is the real McCoy, with the third floor hall already re-papered and painted and the same being done elsewhere in the hotel. New rooms have already been placed in the present rooms and the newcomers, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wieser, have a whole pocket full of plans about other things to be done.

We guess that everybody knows by this time that what used to be the Interstate Theatres in Ranger are now the Garner Theatres. Down In Texas. The little round man, Brann E. Garner, and Burla, his wife recently bought the Arcadia and Columbia theatres from Interstate.

Brann says he'll have to go to work now but seein' he believein' with us and like we've said before he's a perfect manager in that he can get more things done without turning a finger himself than anybody we know.

Right now he's got Burla, June Ann Morton, Dorothy Bell Hightower, Billie Joe Eakin, Mrs. Joe Fleckenstein, Roy Lindsey, and Lloyd Almirre doing the pitch.

Heard today that Dan Taylor and Mrs. Taylor of Big Spring are coming to the Jaycee Rodeo. Dan is a calf roper and will enter the events at the rodeo. Mrs. Taylor was recently the Chesterfield Girl of the Month.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Eddy of Greenville, Pa. have bought tickets to the rodeo and Mr. and Mrs. Bill Jacques of Detroit will see their first rodeo here. They will be the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Jackson of Caddo while here and Bill says that the only type rodeo he's ever seen is the drugstore type.

Up in Amarillo over the week end we met a lot of mighty fine people. And on the way home something occurred to us. Do you know that practically everybody up there is related to somebody down here? And then we knew why they were such fine people.

An appeal is being made to the merchants of Ranger to place entries in the big kick-off parade on the opening day of the rodeo.

With the rodeo less than a week away, little time remains in which to get the entries ready and action will have to be taken at once. It would like to help the boys urge participation in this rodeo event. Ranger business people are the ones who will benefit from the rodeo and it seems that it's the least they can do to place an entry in that parade.

The rodeo parade is the thing that sets the pace for the rodeo and it's up to you to help make (Continued on Page Seven)

STATE REPRESENTATIVE

One of the most important offices to be filled in next Saturday's election is State Representative. The Legislature constitutes one-third of our State Government—a big one-third. Although one of the lowest paid of all of our public officials, a State Representative has more to do with the management of the State's affairs than any other public officer.

Our present Representative in District 107 is our own fellow townsman, L. R. Pearson, who has served us faithfully, and has made us an able and dependable Representative.

The Ranger Public Schools and the Ranger Junior College have especially benefited from his work and accomplishments in the Legislature.

Representative Pearson is the first and only Representative from Eastland County who was successful in amending the Equalization Bill, and thereby bring the Ranger Public Schools under this Act. The original Equalization Bill was enacted by the Legislature during the Ferguson Administration in the year 1914. At that time the bill was known as the "Rural Aid Bill." The title was later changed to the "Equalization Bill." Every Legislature has re-enacted this bill with certain changes and modifications from 1916 down to the present. The Ranger Public Schools were first brought under the operation of this Bill by an amendment there to filed by our present Representative in District 107. As a result, the Ranger Public Schools received in excess of $23,000 in cash from this Bill last year.

This year, the Ranger Public Schools have received in excess of $19,000 from this Bill and will receive several thousand dollars more before the school year expires. Also, from the Apportionment Bill enacted by the 50th Legislature, the Ranger Schools will receive $55.00 for each scholastic, the largest in the history of Texas. Our present Representative was very active and instrumental in the passage of these two Bills, and in securing this financial aid for our schools. The revenue received from these two Bills enabled the Ranger School Board to improve the school facilities and materially increase the salaries of our teachers which they so justly deserved.

Also, Representative Pearson was co-author of the Junior College Appropriation Bill in the 50th Legislature. This Bill raised the appropriation from the State to junior colleges from $75.00 to $100.00 for each junior college student. This has materially helped the Ranger Junior College and is worthy of the consideration of every voter interested in education.

All of these achievements were accomplished without any new tax bills being enacted by the last Legislature. With sixty-five million dollars cash now in the General Fund—the largest in the history of Texas—and with an estimated eighty-five million dollars in this Fund by next January, when the 51st Legislature convenes, apparently there is no necessity for any new taxes to be levied by the next Legislature. Our present Representative is committed to this program.

Also, Mr. Pearson has sponsored other sound legislation. The Equalization Bill above mentioned will come up for enactment in the 51st Legislature, which convenes in January, and we will again need the experience and good judgment of our present Representative at that time.

Airlines Policy Costs Too Much, London Decides

By ROY ROY BUCKINGHAM
United Press Staff Correspondent
LONDON (UP)—Britain's nationalized air lines are finding it hard to "fly British" and still make money.

All three—British Overseas Airways Corporation (BOAC), British South American Airways (BSAA) and British European Airways (BEA)—are in the red. One of the major reasons is that government dictum insists that, at all costs, they must fly British-made aircraft to maintain British prestige abroad.

The howl in the press and argument, however, has caused the cabinet to reconsider. It is believed the "fly British" policy will be scrapped temporarily until Britain can get her jet-engine passenger liners into commercial production, but that is several years off.

Irish Planes Bought

BOAC received special permission to fly Constellations on her North Atlantic route—London-Bermuda-New York—Montreal—and has six in operation. She bought five more (but for sterling, not dollars) from the Irish air line, Aer Lingus, and will put them on the Australian route.

Six Boeing stratofliners are on order, and probably will be delivered next year.

But the bulk of Britain's equipment are home-made Yorks, Lancastrians and Tudors. Britain's "fly British" policy has not been dictated solely by nationalism. It also has its economic side.

Constellations, for example, are said to cost around $1,000,000 plus. A few large orders take a big whack out of Britain's shrinking dollar reserves.

Canada in Market
If Britain can be persuaded to change her slogan to "fly Empire," Canadian Limited of Montreal expects to fill a lot of British orders.

Canada's president, H. Oliver West, is in London waiting to see what the cabinet will do. He has seen most of the top BOAC and government people.

Canada is seeking to sell the Canadian Four, a Canadian developed version of the DC 6. It is equipped with Rolls Royce engines and other British equipment, which will enable the Canadians to accept part payment in sterling. West told the government that they could pay about $100,000 of the price in sterling, which will cover the cost of the British equipment.

West says his plane is better and cheaper than the Constellation, besides being an "Empire product."

British airmen are pinning their eventual hopes on the jet-engine airliner, which is being rapidly developed by British engineers. It is said to be ahead of American competitors.

Nobody Loves Forever

By Margaretta Brucker Copyright by Arcadia House, Inc. Distributed by NEA SERVICE, INC.

THE STORY: David tells Jessica he loves her. She can't still the beating of her heart. "There's another word more important than love—loyalty," she replies. Then suddenly she is telling him all about her hasty marriage and its consequences. "You made a mistake, Jessica," David insists. "You took a schoolgirl infatuation for love." He asks if he may kiss her.

XVI
LATER you could puzzle over the impulse which made you allow a man whom you had met just twice to take you in his arms and kiss you. Later you might suffer shame and humiliation at your own weakness and hate yourself for disloyalty to your husband.

Not now. At the moment nothing mattered, for you were unable to think clearly and stilled the voice of conscience by giving as excuse the bitter loneliness which you had known for three long years.

Afterward, when Jessica tried to analyze that moment, she could remember best the sun, warm on her cheeks, the endless stretch of blue sky overhead, the wind tugging her hair, and then David's eyes, so blue and intense, holding her own. She remembered the comfort of David's arms around her and her sudden wild desire to have his lips upon her own.

Then the picture became confused. David had told her that he loved her. Did she love him? How could you be certain about love? It was so easy to be mistaken. Hadn't she been mistaken in the past about her love for Tom?

She must not think of the past. David had said, "Later we'll make plans, Jessica, not now. Don't spoil this moment. Just let's be happy."

She had had so little happiness, nothing but rebuffs and disapproval. She had wanted to laugh and cry and had clung to David while the tears blinded her eyes.

They were quiet during the return trip. The sun was sinking low as they approached the LUCY said nothing. She sat down, drank her tea and made no comment, but later, as they sat together in the living room, she said, "Please don't hurt Tom, Jessica."

"I know about David Gregory?" "What about David Gregory?" "He works in the same office—not that I really know him."

"Gossip!" said Jessica. "Not exactly. He's handsome and successful and has had advantages Tom never had. A fine education at an Eastern college. Wealthy parents. Tom had to work to help support us."

Jessica said impatiently, "Why must you compare Tom and David Gregory? Why is it wrong for me to want to do the things other girls do who are young?" She rose and tossed her book down on the table. "I owe something to myself," she said hotly. "I was young and silly, I grant, but Tom used every argument to persuade me to marry him. Then he brushed aside any obligation to consider my happiness when he left me. Now, whatever I felt for Tom Blake is dead."

She flung herself out of the room. But later, in the dark listening to Betsy's soft, regular breathing, she remembered Tom more clearly than at any time since their marriage.

She remembered how he had let her alone when she had told him it was useless for him to love her. She remembered the day she had taken her car and gone in search of him, and how even then he had been reluctant to get in the car until she insisted he come with her. Tom loved her then.

She sat up in bed, her fingers linked about her knees, and stared off into the darkness which shrouded the crib where Betsy slept. She had loved Tom once. Had she forgotten?

No, she thought stubbornly. I haven't forgotten. But love like that doesn't last. It's youthful infatuation and indifference to the future. David's love is quite different.

Well
I Dunno,
But

You know it's a funny thing but it takes time to do anything and take out four days of time on a job and it does things to you. But come what may, we just gotta tell you about the rest of the folks that have helped to make possible this fine edition of our paper. Now, for instance, people like to eat and despite the fact that people will tell you that a town is measured by the soundness of its banks, we think a town kind of likes to be known for the good places to eat. And one of those places in Ranger is the Gholson Hotel Coffee Shop. For quite a spell the Gholson Coffee Shop had a hard tussle with first one then the other trying to make a go of it. But now it's a sight to see how the folks flock into that place to get food and some of Mr. Ramsey's hot rolls. Now opened and operated by Mr. and Mrs. W. M.

JAYCEE TREASURER

James Ratliff is the man that has charge of the funds that belong to the Junior Chamber of Commerce and as treasurer of that organization, he is the man that will disburse the prize money after the big rodeo.

Ramsey, the shop is dealing out good things to eat with the assistance of Mrs. J. E. Talley, Betty Jean Peery, Mrs. E. O. Johnson, Mrs. Desie Harper, Bob Meldrew, John Blankenship, Wm. Harris, Laura Mae Eaves and Mrs. Opal Burnett.

Once heard it said that a man would sell his milk cow that fed his family to buy a new automobile and if that's the case you can get one at the Clarke Motor Company where Chryslers and Plymouths are sold. Like for instance, the brand new Plymouth that the Jaycees are riding around in. W. H. Clarke, Sr., is the head of the firm and W. H. Junior, helps sell. Others at the establishment are W. P. Hatfield, E. E. Reeves and D. W. Brown.

We've seen the time when the utilities companies were sure catching heck, but it took one in Ranger to furnish the town with a mayor. That's the Community Public Service Company of which Mayor Lee Dockery is manager. Of course, while the mayor is busy running the town he's gotta have some help to run his own job and kept busy at this task are Kate Kramer, Yirge Johnson and Jack Mace.

Like we just said, people like good things to eat and one of the favorite eating places in Ranger is the Gilbert Pastry Shop. They turn out all kinds of luscious things to eat and seem to like 'em. John Gilbert is the head of the place and is assisted some by M. D. Roultan, Jennie Gilbert, Jewel Mayhall and Mrs. Station Maddox.

Everybody has to have things for the home and auto, that is if you've got 'em, and helping in the task of keeping Ranger in such things are Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Bagwell who own and operate the White's Auto Store.

Hamilis, Inc., operated by "the girls" better known as Audrey Vonker, Gertrude Henry, Verna Lee Brown, Hildegard Larson, Gertrude Palmer, and Lil Johnson, really can put "that store in Dallas" to shame. They go about dressing women and girls hereabouts just like they stepped out of a fashion plate, new look and all.

Folks are still talking about that style show they staged for the benefit of the Ranger Civic League and out of which the League gained nearly $200 to help 'em with their new clubhouse. Yes sir, those girls sure know pretty clothes when they see 'em.

The Ranger Jewelry Company owned and operated by Mrs. J. R. Ervin has a whole parcel of pretty things that women like and men like to buy for women. There's jewelry, watches, pottery, china ware, silver and just lots of pretty things.

Maxine Dennis helps Mrs. Ervin in helping the customers find just the right thing.

"Fixit" is the key word at Vaughn's Fixit Shop and anything that's out of fix is just what Mr. Vaughn wants you to bring to him. His shop is located at Tarrant's Humble Filling Station.

M. H. Offield and his crew at the Ranger Hill Cafe and Filling Station get the first lick at incoming visitors from the east. Perched on the top of a scenic hill east of Ranger, the cafe makes sure that visitors will come again by feeding 'em good food and at the station they have a special brand of service and extra good products to entice the public.

The staff at the cafe includes: Helen Daskevich, Mrs. Morgan and Miss Pat, Mrs. Pinnell, Claude Harris, Opal Young, Tollie Woods and Mrs. Robinson and at the station are George Bolton, Arthur Mayhall, Winston Squyres and Mr. Offield.

Good steaks, honest there still is such a thing, can be had at the Steak House on Highway 80 where Ma Brown is boss. Mr gets a little help out of Ruth Alexander, Alta Louise Arnett and June Howard.

Robert Chandler is manager for the Ranger Duke & Ayres store, one of the most popular shopping places in Ranger. We especially like it 'cause you can get things for less than a dollar there.

Emilee Gordon, Pauline Roberts, Peggy Langdon, and Dena Sutton help folks that shop in the store.

They tell us that the chocolate milk shakes at H. R. Hicks' Arcadia Confectionary are especially good. Could be that or something else that makes people like that place and that keeps 'em goin' there.

Of course, H. R. doesn't have anything to do with the brand of drinks put out there but all the credit goes to Mrs. W. H. Gay and Jane Ann McMillan.

"Chicken Every Sunday" is a small dish as compared to the Lone Star Chicken Inn east of Ranger where golden brown fried chicken is served every day in the week.

This favorite eating place is owned and operated by Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Wallace and helping 'em are Christine Wallace, Nita Hill and Eddie Wallace.

Of course, everybody knows that the real boss at the 500 Cleaners is Richard, the young son of the real owners Mr. and Mrs. Lonnie Cozby.

Richard sits out front and philosophizes with passers by and then sure enough, the first time they think of having something cleaned they think of the 500.

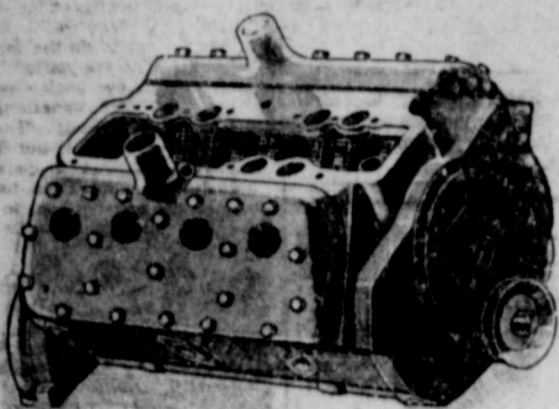

Others who assist Richard in keeping the joint going are Mrs. Johnnie Boyd, W. M. Reeves, Mrs. R. C. Everett, and Mrs. Murtie Cox.

Recording the family history of Ranger and surrounding territory in pictures is the business of the Capps' brother, Delbert and Hubert.

The boys have a great big studio over on Rusk street and make it their business to make you look pretty whether you are

The Tax Record of Two Men

PAT BULLOCK

Now a member of the State Senate and a candidate for re-election to a SECOND full term:

In 1941, Pat Bullock (Then a member of the House of Representatives) Co-authored and helped pass the Bill which increased the tax on OIL, GAS and SULPHUR. This was to pay Old Age Assistance, aid to dependent children, aid to the needy blind and to finance teachers retirement.

Since the passage of this bill Senator Bullock has successfully opposed all tax bills of every kind. He is especially opposed to a SALES TAX.

With a cash surplus of Ninety Million Dollars anticipated in the General Revenue Fund for the next session of the Legislature PAT BULLOCK is opposed to any new taxes.

These original Bills are on file in the Secretary of State's Office in Austin just as they were introduced by Mr. Sadler. A copy of these Bills by Harley Sadler, certified by the Secretary of State, has been mailed to each County Judge in the 24th Senatorial District. We suggest that you examine these Bills to verify the truth of the above statements.

The issue between these two candidates is clear. Senator Bullock opposes addition taxes, Mr. Sadler tried to tax the necessities of life.

This ad paid for by tax payers of the 24th Senatorial District who are opposed to further burdening the people with new taxes as long as there is a vast surplus in the State Treasury with which to meet the needs of our state.

HARLEY SADLER

Now a member of the House of Representatives and a candidate for the Senate.

At the last session of the Legislature Harley Sadler introduced House Bill No. 634 which levied the following taxes:

1. The Sadler Bill levied a Tax on all soft drinks whether served at the fountain or in bottles.
2. The Sadler Bill levied a TAX on TIMBER, LIME, SAND, SHELL, GRAVEL, and LIMESTONE, or building stone. (This would have increased the cost of building homes which are so badly needed).
3. The Sadler tax Bill would have levied a TAX on Gypsum from which WALL BOARD and other building materials are made.
4. At the previous session of the Legislature Harley Sadler introduced House Bill No. 174 which levied a TAX on Gasoline in Farm Tractors. (This would amount to the same thing as taxing a bushel of oats or other horse and mule feed).

... most abstractors were wondering where the next order would come from. Then came the gradual rise in the price of petroleum products, release of more building materials, and increased inflation which swelled the price of lands out of all reason. These factors and others contributed greatly to the demand for title work. But thru good times and bad—for more than 25 years—we have never thought it wise to sacrifice quality for quantity. or not. They're right cooperative about everything, too, helping to keep record of everything that goes on in the town through the click of their cameras.

Now if you've got a row to hoe, you can get the hoe at the Taylor Implement Company where Mr. W. F. Taylor and Mr. John Deere operate. O. B. Ahles and David Duncan help Mr. Taylor and Mr. Deere.

Ranger just wouldn't be the same old town without A. J. Ratliff and his SEEDS and FEEDS. The A. J. Ratliff firm holds down the east side of the business district and currently the heir, James Ratliff, turns a finger now and then when he's not Jay Ceasing. Others who deal out seeds and feeds are R. V. Mathena, O. M. Franklin and R. R. Reeves.

Ranger kinda claims the Premier Oil Refining Company products as its own. In fact, one of their oils is named for Ranger and Mr. and Mrs. L. J. McDonald who own and operate the McDonald Grocery and Premier Service Station at the entrance to the Premier Camp think Premier products are pretty good, too.

Anyway, they wanta give you a chance to see for yourself.

Dr. Carl Straley has the fanciest things in his office to make sure that people can't see good, so's he can sell 'em some glasses. Doc takes time out in between fitting glasses to help the Jaycees run their show and right now he's got his hands full roundin' up the big parade for the rodeo.

If you wanta know if some guy can pay you for what you sell him, you better check with Mae Bell Oyler and her Retail Merchants Association. The association, seriously, renders a fine service to its members and the men who direct its affairs are H. G. Adams, president; T. J. Anderson, vice-president; F. P. Brasher Sr., W. F. Creager, H. C. Henderson, A. J. Ratliff, J. F. Killingsworth, and Morris Newham.

The Southern Air Cafe, owned and operated by Mr. and Mrs. Sam

Savage has another "southern" to add to the cafe. It's southern hospitality and cooking that's just as good as any old black mammy ever turned out. Working at the cafe with the Savages are Laverne, Nicholson, Connie Saloir, and Mrs. Lance Powell.

Ever since we've been in Ranger, J. B. Houghton, Shorty to his friends, has been doctoring cars. So large has grown this business of the J. B. Houghton Repair shop that Shorty had to build a brand new building and take in J. B. Houghton, Jr., Bill Houghton and Tommy Perrin.

So long as W. W. Anderson with the help of Floyd Rodgers has that shoe shop, there's just no reason to go around with holes in your shoes. Not only does the shop repair shoes with genuine leather but it carries a line of belts and billfolds.

If you want pretty flowers, the City Floral Company, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Verne Peterson can supply your needs. Mrs. Peterson is the head knocker at the shop and helping her are David Jiminez, and Clara Mae Jacoby.

Ranger gets that good "Mrs. Baird's Bread" through the faithful service of Vance Blousser who gets assistance from Jess Searcy.

And nobody gets an earlier start than Vance. While the streets and sidewalks are still rolled up, Vance is up and at 'em.

During the lull between oil booms in Eastland county, J. E. Matthews, better known as Jimmie, kept faith and continued to operate his J. E. Matthews Oilfield Supply company. Now, that they've stirred up another boom, Jimmie and his crew are really dishing out the pipe and other supplies.

Bruce Harris is Jimmie's right hand man, and Carl F. Young and W. C. Bradford are also with the firm.

Got any old wrecks? Well, if you have you can get rid of 'em at Kirk Wheat's place. Known as Wheel and Sons, the dealers will buy just about anything that you want to get rid of. Of course, they

Big Ceremony To Mark Opening Of Games By King

By Robert Dowson.
United Press Sports Writer
LONDON (UP)—None of excitement in sports events during a feverish fortnight will beat the Olympic opening ceremony when it comes to color and grandeur.

Some 80,000 spectators will be waiting in the galleries for the arrival of the King, who will be accompanied to the tribune of honor by the president of the International Olympic Committee. While the King takes his seat the English anthem will be sung.

Then follows the mass parade of the national teams, which preceded by flags and shields indicating their nationality, will salute the King.

According to the traditional Olympic custom, Greece will be in the lead, the other national teams in alphabetical order, with the exception for Great Britain, who is sponsoring nation, will be last.

The team will make one round on the track and then march up in columns facing the honorary tribune.

The president of the organizing committee addresses himself to the King in a short speech whereby he asks the King to proclaim the games open. The King does so with the following sentence:

"I proclaim open the Olympic Games of 1948, celebrating the fourteenth Olympic of the modern era."

A fanfare of trumpets follows and a salute is fired while the last runner of the Olympic torch relay enters the Empire Stadium through the eastern gate, runs across the pitch and lights the Olympic flame which will burn until the games are ended. The Olympic flame which will burn and of pigeons are released. That will symbolize the act which took place at the classical games to let the country know that the Olympic games had started.

The team captain of the British team approaches the honorary tribune carrying the British flag. Flag bearers from all other nations around him will take the oath:

"We swear that we will take part in the Olympic games in loyal competition, respecting the regulations which govern them, and desirous of participating in them in the true spirit of sportsmanship for the honor of our country and the glory of sport."

After that moving ceremony the Olympic hymn will be sung, "Non Nobis Domine," by Rudyard Kipling and composed by Robert Quilter.

Hogs which are kept cool during the summer months eat better, gain faster and put on weight at less cost.

Many Never Suspect Cause of Backaches

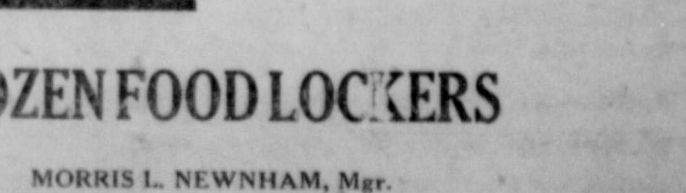

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 2 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 50 years. Doan's give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

FEEDING SPECIMAN

landowners of the Leeroy area were waiting, ready to lease their land. When the official of one company said that he was uninterested, the land owners went on to another until all the offices had been visited, then they sadly returned home. The oil company officials scratched their heads as they puzzled about the sudden "invasion" of landowners from a round Leeroy.

And that's how I started an oil boom which lasted from Saturday through Monday.

But like the character in the comic strip who was "born 30 years too soon," I was just ahead of developments by something like 25 years. Leeroy is now the scene of a revival of oil activity.

That cold, wind-swept day, I had been walking around on soil under which lay a treasure of deeper oil. Recently, six wells have been drilled in the vicinity—two of them in the townsite itself. In fact, one of these deeper producers is only 200 feet from where the old bank vault stood.

Well, anyhow I have a picture of the vault.

California's owns 2,968,376 passenger automobiles compared to 2,237,725 owned by New York. New York's population is almost 3,500,000 greater than California's.

The recent finding of oil again at the "ghost town" of Leeroy (on the Eastland-Stephens county line) after the spot had been deserted 20 years ago as "played-out" reminds me of the time that I started an oil boom at Leeroy—probably the shortest oil boom on record.

Leeroy sprang up about 1919 in a wilderness of wolves and mesquite when oil was struck. The C. and N. E. railroad, building from Cisco to Breckenridge, built through the town, which grew to a population of perhaps 6,000. Then dry holes were hit and the people moved on. The buildings were torn down; piles of rubbish and streets, rapidly being reclaimed by grass and brush, were the only reminders of the one-time boom town.

It was late in 1923 that a friend of mine and I visited the scene. I had in mind writing an article on the "phantom city." My companion had a box camera, which he set up on a tripod, and took pictures. A small brick vault stood all by itself—thousands of dollars had been stored there. The bank building had been torn down but the little vault was considered not worth the trouble of salvaging.

The sun was shining that Saturday but it was a deceptive sunshine, as though it mocked the hopes of which Leeroy was the graveyard. The temperature was cold and a strong wind added a penetrating keenness that was almost numbing.

Someone saw the two visitors and assumed that the camera on a tripod was a scientific device of some kind. So the report spread that Leeroy was being studied for further oil development. On Monday morning, when the oil company offices in Eastland opened, that pace a fast one, and this rodeo parade the biggest and best one ever staged.

Do you know that we've been so emerged in other things for the past week that we've not been able to keep up with the Russians. About all we've been able to gather in fleeting glances at the paper is that they're still trying to push us around. And like we've said before, we don't like that.

Victim Of Booby Trap Says He's Pretty Lucky

By Jack Gates

United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW ORLEANS, (UP)—A Japanese booby trap that blew off four fingers and almost blinded him put Joe Hattier, a former plumber's helper, in a "strange and beautiful world I might have never known." It is a world of music.

Joe is a piano player and the people who have heard him in concert say he is good, although he is minus a fourth finger on his left hand, half of his thumb, index and third fingers.

Before the war, Joe was a plumber's helper at a dollar an hour.

C. E. May, Jr., is vice-president of the Ranger Jaycees and is also vice-president of Region 12 of the Texas Junior Chamber of Commerce. He has been handling the publicity for the coming rodeo.

He had 20-20 vision and 10 fingers. Now he's going to be a music teacher.

Joe, who is 21 is a philosopher, believes he's better off in many ways for having picked up that Japanese booby trap while serving with a demobilization detail in the Philippines.

"If things hadn't happened the way they did, I'd probably still be a plumber's helper at a dollar an hour," he says. "I might never have had a chance to find out I could play the piano, and how much I'd enjoy it."

Recently the New Orleans Opera Guild, which has sponsored many talented young artists, presented Joe in concert. He was a hit.

His success story is that of a guy who forgets the bad breaks and plays up the good ones. The good breaks he talks about are a WAC sergeant who got him interested in music, a training officer who had faith in him and the law that made it possible for him to go ahead in the field he liked best.

When Joe was wounded, they put him in a hospital in Japan, then sent him to California. There he was told he'd never see again. But before he left he regained a little vision in one eye enough to lead the other blinded veterans to chow, and he discovered the hobby that would become his vocation.

Alvina Valles, Joe's teacher, says he has a photographic mind. "I made up special scores for him, white notes on black paper, so he can see them," Valles said. But he can't see so well, so he just looks a couple of times and then memorizes them.

"Only one time Joe gave me any trouble. For a few months before he got married, he couldn't get things straight. Soon as he got married he was okay."

Joe says his marriage has made his happiness complete, but he admits his wife has one complaint. "When we go to the movies," he grinned, "I have to sit in the first row. She says she comes out cross-eyed. But I'm lucky. I can't see well enough to be bothered by it."

Minnesota's famed Guyton Iron range was named after its discoverer, Cuyler Adams, and his son, C. E. May, Jr.

Why Not Elect A Ranger Man Sheriff

Jack White who is a candidate has lived in the County twenty-eight years, worked for one company for more than twenty-two years, has raised his family in Eastland County. Ask his neighbors what they think about him. Ask the boys who have worked with him. What better references could a man give? You will find they are all one hundred per cent for him.

He will handle the Sheriff's office in a dignified manner, fairness to all and favoritism to none.

Bright Child Usually Sturdy

CHICAGO (UP)—The extremely bright child is not usually a physical misfit.

In fact, he's more likely to be superior in size, strength, muscular control and general health to other children in his age group, says Paul Witty, professor of education at Northwestern University.

Writing for the National Parent Teacher, Witty says the idea that extremely bright children are "physically weak unsocial, bespectacled miffits has no foundation whatsoever." Witty cites a study which traced the careers of 1,500 "very bright individuals" from childhood into adulthood. That and other less extensive studies support the view that unusually intelligent children are usually physically superior also, he said.

Witty contends that one of the greatest shortcomings of today's school systems is their failure to recognize and conserve unusual ability and talent.

Rain In U. S. Upsets Ecuador Indians

NEW YORK (UP)—The unseasonably heavy rainfall in the eastern area of the United States during June had repercussions among the Indians of Ecuador.

The reason is that the rain slowed up purchase of the straw hats which are manufactured in Ecuador. Where previously the industry relied on steamers to reach the U. S. with their cargoes of hats, the rain upset the schedule and shipments are now being flown in large quantities to meet the belated demand.

Pan American-Grace Airways reports it recently flew out of Ecuador more than 25,000 pounds of Panama hats.

Hiroshima Police Taught To Dance For Democracy

By Earnest Hoherecht United Press Staff Correspondent

HIROSHIMA, Japan (UP)—If you are going to be a good policeman in this city, you've got to be able to dance the "boogie-woogie."

Everybody in Japan knows that "dancing is democratic," so there is really nothing strange about dancing lessons being included on the regular police training schedule here.

Hiroshima wants to be the most democratic city in Japan. It wants to be the peace capital of the world. Police Chief Shimono-san wants that his men promote peace and democracy by being able to both waltz and "boogie-woogie."

He explained this fully to the recruits and old-timers and then waved a baton to turn Higashi police station into a dancing school.

A hot combo ran through three numbers but nobody ventured out on the floor of the police station's auditorium where lectures on fingerprinting and jujitsu usually are given.

"What's the matter with you?" demanded the chief. "Don't you want to broaden your personalities? Now get out and dance—that's an order!"

Slowly the cops got into action, selecting partners from among the policewomen who were called in off their beats to aid in the new class work.

The cops were shy and didn't seem to get the idea, but at least a half dozen of the women law enforcement officials very evidently had been taking private lessons from American soldiers.

"Boogie-woogie! Boogie-woogie!"

They waved their hands, kicked up their legs and made sounds like: "Get hepped, Joe."

The chief asked the girls where they learned to dance. With GIs, maybe?

"Never happen," they assured him. "Never happen."

Anyways, the chief thought they were good and thanked them for coming over.

He plans to open up a photography class too.

"We always do things in a big way here in Hiroshima," he explained.

Wing Almost Censors Newspaper Edition

FREDERICK, Okla. (UP)—The Frederick Daily Leader almost missed a press deadline because of an unruly wind.

The wind didn't blow down power lines. It didn't cause the roof to fall in and ruin the presses. It didn't cause the window to fall down on a typewriter and jam the keys.

But it did blow the Leader's news items off a file hook and out into the streets. They couldn't be recovered.

The editor closed the window and the Leader made its press deadline with other copy, just a minute or two late.

Double Murder At Sea Mystifies Philippines

MANILA, (UP)—A strange shooting at sea heads the list of current cases in the Philippine constabulary's "unsolved" file.

A fishing captain sighted a small, neat sailboat bobbing aimlessly off the coast. Overtaking it, he found the corpses of a man and a boy.

The bodies were riddled with carbine bullets. Seven empty shells were scattered about the boat, but the carbine itself was missing.

There were no signs of a struggle. Robbery was dismissed as a motive when $25 was found in one of the dead men's pockets.

Their boat which bore the word's "You are always in my heart" in brightly painted letters, appeared on no official registry lists.

Officials said the small craft might have drifted several hundred miles before it was discovered.

These nine men along with Dr. P. M. Kuykendall, R. B. Thomas, Jr., Willard Swaney, the First State Bank at Rising Star, Eastland National Bank, First National Bank at Gorman, First National Bank at Cisco, First National Bank at Breckenridge and First National Bank at Strawn, have made possible through their donations and cooperation the calf scramble which will be staged for the first time in this part of the country at the coming Ranger Jaycees' World Championship rodeo.

The contest is to encourage the work of the FFA chapters in this area and was worked up by Dr. Kuykendall, Hall Walker and Thomas.

It is expected to be one of the most entertaining events of the rodeo.

The donors represent the following firms or professional offices, Wylie, Ranger Peanut Company; Anderson, Anderson-Pruet Chevrolet dealers; Martin, E. L. Martin and Sons, dry goods; Pruet, Anderson-Pruet, Chevrolet; Walker, Commercial State Bank; Dennis, Ranger Daily Times; Pearson, attorney and state representative; Ratliff, Ratliff, Feeds; Brashier, Ranger Furniture Exchange; Swaney, Swaney's Pharmacy.

AID OF OUT-OF-TOWN BANKS EXTENDS SCOPE

Through the efforts of Dr. P. M. Kuykendall, Hall Walker and R. B. Thomas, Jr., Ranger's first calf scramble has developed into the greatest attraction on the program for the Ranger Jaycees' third annual World Championship rodeo, July 28-31.

The scramble, which was originally planned as a special feature for Ranger Future Farmers, has now expanded to the extent that every FFA and 4-H member in this area may be able to compete for a calf.

Every bank in Eastland County has added their support to the scramble, along with the Breckenridge and Strawn Banks and have thus made it possible for some lucky boy from Rising Star, Eastland, Cisco, Gorman, Breckenridge, and Strawn to win a calf, in addition to all the Ranger boys.

These Future Farmers and 4-H members deeply appreciate the interest and enthusiasm shown by men such as L. R. Pearson, A. J. Ratliff, T. J. Anderson, C. B. Pruet, Willard Swaney, T. C. Wylie, Joe Dennis, Hall Walker, F. P. Brashier, E. L. Martin, and every rodeo fan may be assured of some good entertainment when those farm boys enter the arena," Thomas stated today.

Following are the rules which have been drawn up for the scramble:

1. Every participant must file a minor's release to relieve all parties of responsibility in case of any accident connected with this contest.
2. Qualifications for contestants:
 - a. Member of FFA and not older than 16 years as of July 28, 1948.
 - b. Must be in school.
 - c. Boys and calves will be placed in the arena as directed by arena director, Frank Mariam.
 - d. Boys will take into the arena a halter which must be placed on the calf in the proper manner (can not be used as a lariat.)
 - e. Each boy will attempt to catch and halter a calf without aid. The boy catching the calf must lead the calf to the gate.
 - f. If a boy has hold of a calf no other boy will be allowed to touch the calf until it breaks away.
 - g. Each boy will be given a reasonable time to halter and remove his calf, but if necessary the referees may require the boy to release the calf and let other participants try if he is slowing up the show too much.
 - h. At least two referees will be in the arena through out the contest and undue roughness, poor sportsmanship, or any action contrary to these rules automatically disqualifies any contestant.
 - i. Once each month the boy must make a written report to the Vocational Agriculture Teacher, and a complete summary submitted at the end of the year.

Bronze Friendship

along with a 250 word narrative on "What I have gained from Feeding My Calf."

10. These calves will not be allowed to be sold, traded or disposed of except by consent of the Calf Scramble Committee. The calf must be returned for exhibit at the Stock show the following year.

11. All participants will be notified when and where they will meet to enter the scramble.

12. This scramble will be held in accordance with the Inter-scholastic Ruling in order to protect each boy's amateur standing.

13. In the event that any boy fails to give his calf the proper care at any time during the feeding period the calf scramble committee reserves the privilege to reclaim the calf and transfer it to a more worthy boy.

Ranger Daily Times Nearing 30th Birthday

One of the oldest institutions in Ranger is the Ranger Daily Times the first edition appearing on June 1, 1919, and will be thirty years old next June.

The paper has been published without missing an edition since that time and has been one of the most ardent supporters of the annual Jaycee World Championship Rodeo.

Each year just before the rodeo, a special rodeo edition of the paper is printed and used in advertising the rodeos on the motor-cades.

Today you have the 1948 version of the rodeo edition and the people responsible for getting out this paper are: in the composing room, M. S. Wade, foreman and operator; Robert Lawson operator; Lillie Bains, operator; Pete Cogburn, make-up man; Rex A. Ernest, make-up; H. C. Berry, Pressman; Roy Patterson stereotyper; Charlie Blackwell, mailer and Jack L. Cogburn, job department.

In the office are Joe Dennis, business manager; Mrs. Ruth Ducker, editor; George Beighley, advertising; Carolyn Ducker, society editor; Mrs. Albert Jackson, bookkeeper; Inez Harrell, auditor, Mrs. Joe Dennis, circulation.

Ranger Clinic Helps Keep Town In Healthy State

Ranger is fortunate in having in its midst sufficient health centers to take care of the needs of the town and among such is the Ranger Clinic owned and operated by Dr. Calvin W. Harris and Dr. W. P. Watkins.

West Texas Clinic Hospital Being Air Conditioned

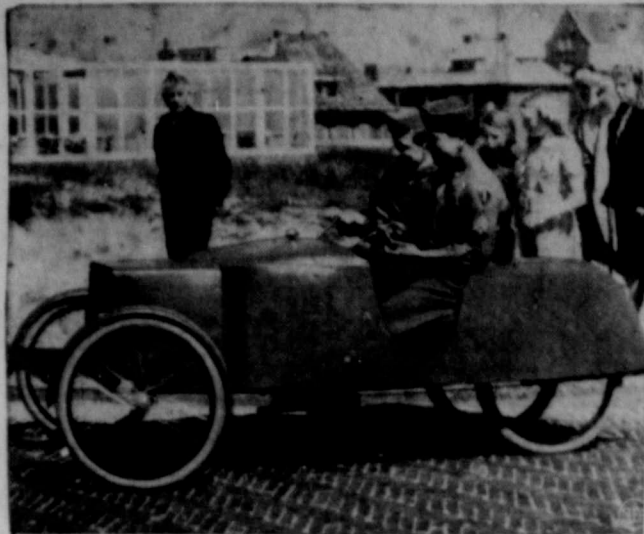

Ranger's West Texas Hospital and Clinic owned and operated by Dr. P. M. Kuykendall, and located on West Main Street, is in the process of being air conditioned to add further comfort to the patients that are treated and hospitalized there.

With a staff of 16, the institution offers complete hospital and laboratory facilities, including in the laboratory x-ray and electrograph facilities.

Through its years of service it has become widely known and draws patients, both medical and surgical from an extensive area.

Christian Ideals Urged As Guide In Business

CINCINNATI, O. (UP)—Young men interested in becoming "contented millionaires" are advised by Donald McDonald to share their profits with their employees, don't cheat business partners or competitors, and behave "like a Christian instead of a pagan." McDonald who is executive secretary of the Christian Business Men's Committee, likes to point to half a dozen or more widely-known millionaires in the CBMC as proof of the success of the formula. The CBMC was organized 11 years ago in Chicago by a group of industrialists who were worried about the methods of modern business men. Many of the members have daily prayer services in their offices and factories at which employers and employes gather to "ask God to show us the right way to do business." Such practices, MacDonald said, have made it possible for CBMC members to avoid strikes and labor troubles that in the past seemed "unavoidable."

"You can't go wrong when you make God your business partner," he added. The CBMC has 10,000 members in such widely scattered areas as the Philippines, England, Canada, China, New Zealand, and the United States. They recruit new members by inviting fellow-business men to lunch because "a lot of men will refuse to go to church with you, but not many turn down a free lunch."

Robert G. Le Fournier, president of an internationally known firm which builds land-leveling and scraping machines, is international president of the group. Officers and committee members include a diamond merchant, an attorney, a bank president, a doctor and the president of a lumber firm.

The officers and their committees visit prisons, support camps for boys and girls, teach and help support Sunday schools, and even reach on street corners to encourage people to "learn to give to God so you in turn will receive."

Aphids Are Pests To Humans But Not So To Ants

LINCOLN, Neb. (UP)—The life of an aphid is a happy one. The little insects, better known as plant lice, are having fun with gardens and trees in southeast Nebraska. In addition, although they have few friends among humans, the attention they get from the ants more than makes up for that shortcoming.

The ants simply love them. So do the ladybugs, for that matter, but in a different way. The ladybugs eat them. The ants keep them around, treat them well, wait on them, protect them and cajole them into providing aphid milk.

There is reason to believe the aphids and the ants get along well together. The average aphid is a parasite, anyway. If some big fat ant wants to do his fighting for him when the ladybugs come around, in exchange for some milk, it's all right with the aphid.

The ant is a smooth operator when it comes to getting the milk. He sidles up to an aphid, kicks up a leg and strokes the aphid's back.

The aphid likes that and soon makes with the milk.

The above information was obtained through the assistance of Harold Manter, professor of zoology, and Harvey Werner, professor of horticulture, at the University of Nebraska.

Manter and Werner have other fascinating facts about the aphid. They'll tell you, for instance, that all of them are females until autumn, when males start showing up. They add that the ants, come winter, take the aphid eggs into the ground to protect them from the cold. With the advent of spring the ants take the eggs out into the sun and wait for them to hatch.

Farmers and gardeners will tell you a few things about the aphid, too. The soft, greenish things, which are a tenth-of-an-inch long and not very tall, have ravaged Nebraska in great force. They have caused great destruction.

Although he leads a lazy life the aphid is a tough customer, Manter and Werner say. They are hard to kill and DDT won't do the job. It takes a solution of nicotine sulphate, and even then you've got to make a direct hit to do any good.

Roller Skate Device Fixes Flat Tires

NEW YORK (UP)—Ever find yourself in the middle of nowhere with a flat tire and no jack?

determined that it wouldn't happen again.

Mrs. George announced her antidote for that "get out and walk to the nearest telephone" business. She's invented a device called an "auto skate."

It looks like an elongated roller skate. It weighs 18 pounds and has six wheels, with a cradle in the middle. There is also a small detachable steel ramp.

When you get a flat all you have to do is:

Put the ramp in front of the flat tire. Attach the skate to the front of the ramp. Drive on. Detach the ramp. Drive to the nearest gas station.

At Celilo Falls on the Columbia River in Oregon, Indians still supply tribal ladders by spearing and netting Salmon in the same way their ancestors did.

Savings Receipts Top Billion-Dollar Mark

CHICAGO (UP)—The nation's savings and loan associations report gross savings receipts above the billion-dollar mark for the first time in history.

The United States Savings and Loan League announced that savings placed in savings institutions totaled $1,030,000,000 in the first three months of 1948, compared with $917,000,000 for the corresponding period last year.

However the cost of living and the greater availability of consumer goods were reflected by withdrawals of $754,000,000 during the three-month period, the league reported.

Siam Prepares 700-Yr.-Old Rites For Cremation Of Slain Monarch

BANGKOK, (UP)—Announcement that King Phumiphon Aduldej has been invited to preside over the cremation rites for his late brother has set in motion preparations for a ceremony which has remained unchanged since the 13th Century. The royal cremation has tentatively been set for next November.

After the pyre has been placed on the grounds, Buddhist leaders will supervise the erection of a throne for the present king and platforms for ranking nobles and religious dignitaries.

At the four corners of the grounds platforms will be erected on which stand artificial trees from which hollow wooden replicas of limes will hang. The wooden fruit will contain coins and notes which will authorize possession of certain lands, boats and houses in the kingdom and will be distributed among those attending the royal cremation. Notes will be redeemed by the national treasury.

One of the most important parts of the ceremony is the kindling of the Sacred Fire. According to ancient tradition, this fire should be started with lightning but in modern practice, a glass is used to magnify the heat of the sun's rays. In that manner, "a pure flame from the heavens" is obtained to set fire to the funeral pyre.

Final preparations for the cremation include the opening of the outer and inner urns in which the remains of the king have been placed. Silken robes and gold ornaments will be removed from the body on the morning of the cremation.

The king and members of the royal family will sprinkle the remains of the late king with coconut water. The remains will then be wrapped in white cloth and returned to the urn.

The grand possession will escort the royal urn to the cremation pyre, the king will take his place on the throne. The prince patriarch will preach to the assembled people and the 50 Buddhist lord abbots will chant prayers. At the conclusion of this portion of the rites, the king will mount the pyre carrying a wax taper, a stick of incense and a sandal flower, all lighted from the Sacred Fire. Members of the nobility will follow him in order of their rank.

At night, the king will light the pyre and it will smoulder until morning. Then the fire will be extinguished by consecrated water, symbolic of the rain which extinguished the pyre of the Lord Buddha.

The royal ashes then will be gathered and formed in the shape of a body. The head will be placed first toward the east, then to the west, and back again to the east,

WINDOW ROCK, Ariz. (UP)
—Nine women and twenty men are spending eight weeks this summer on the San Carlos Indian Reservation, digging into the remains of a long-departed civilization.

Dr. Emil W. Haurly, head of the university's anthropology department.
Early Indians of the region had no thought for the problems of an archaeologist. The Indians of one century built their pueblos (villages) on top of their predecessors' pueblos. So, archaeologists must take great pains in uncovering one ruin not to destroy one that might be under it.
During the field school in 1947 a 14th century pueblo was excavated and pit houses were found under it dating to the 1100's.

Last year the crew also started work on a 600-room pueblo which has one of the largest kivas ever found, measuring 50 by 55 feet. Kivas were rooms used for religious ceremonies and, possibly, lodge meeting by the pueblo inhabitants. Part of the work this year will be on that ruin.
One of the mysteries archaeologists and anthropologists are trying to solve is why the Indians left their idyllic pueblos and where they went.
Dr. Haurly says they had a "fairly advanced" culture and the region was well suited to farming. There was an abundance of fish and game evidenced by remains found in excavations.
Dr. Haurly favors the theory that cultural disintegration some time in the early 15th century caused the exodus. The noted Southwestern archaeologist believes that between 10 and 15 summers' work will be necessary to complete the piecing together of the area's history.

As to the destination of the Indians, who left the fertile area, the camp director believes that by tracing some marks painted on a stone slab found in the large kiva he may be able to establish a connection between the ancient Indians and some existing tribe.
He thinks it likely that the Zunis, who now live near the Arizona-New Mexico border, are descendants of the 14th century tribe.

Another of this summer's projects at the school is preliminary testing of a "pure" pueblo near Turkey Creek. The testing is necessary before any digging is started because the distinction between ancient adobe and "just dirt" is a fine one. Once destroyed, a section of a buried wall or floor can never be reconstructed. The diggers follow careful plans — haste is not the byword at Point of Pines.

This summer another type of exploration is to begin. Surface water storage basins, long since filled by sand and earth, were an early Indian precaution against dry spells. Some of those near the ruin will be investigated by trenching.

in Minnesota before discovering the virus in the culex tarsalis. Burroughs will continue to examine other possible carriers before going to work on control methods.

Bill Linderman, well known rodeo figure, holds on for dear life as this saddle bronc takes to the air in an effort to unseat the rider. Saddle bronc riding is one of the five main features of the Jaycees' World Championship rodeo due to open in Ranger July 28 and run through July 31.

Famous Dog Mart Makes Comeback In Old Virginia

By WILLIAM A. SHIRES
United Press Staff Correspondent
FREDERICKSBURG, Va. (UP)
—Dignified old Fredericksburg is going to the dogs, in a dignified sort of way.
The famous Fredericksburg dog mart, an institution of colonial days, is to be revived this fall. This staid city will re-live a colorful part of her history.
The dog mart idea was conceived in 1698, when a group of ambitious eastern traders decided it would be more profitable to trade with the Indians on a wholesale basis.

So the Indians and traders got together on the site of Fredericksburg for several days of bartering every fall. The Indians swapped furs and skins for knives, guns, traps and trinkets.
It wasn't long until the traders discovered that the Indians would trade more furs for a dog than for anything else they could offer. Since the dog was the biggest wampum the Indian knew, the traders stocked up on them to do their trading. Everyone was satisfied.

Later the traders began selling and swapping dogs among themselves, and Fredericksburg became known as the dog mart town.
Along with the Indian trading, the dog selling and exhibiting, the people held various contests and spectacles and turned the dog mart into a famously gay event.

But the everlasting dollar seemed the item that held the dog mart together and when the Indian tribes moved westward, the event faded into obscurity.
In 1927, the dog mart was first revived here and was held each fall until 1941 with various new features added every time.
The war stopped the dog mart, but it is to be revived this October in James Monroe stadium with a big dog show, an auction, rifle-shooting and fox-horn blowing contests and a historical-dramatic pageant.
There will be the traditional tribal ceremony and dance by the Pamunkey Indians, a tribe of a hundred or so that lives in King William County, Va. The Pamunkeys claim their tribe is racially pure and that they are direct descendants of Chief Powhatan, Pocahontas and her English husband, John Rolfe.

Roger The Frog Kids His Patrons And Makes Them Come For More

By HAYNES THOMPSON
United Press Staff Correspondent
PARIS (UP)—Roger Spahr, better known as 'Roger the Frog', is a restaurateur who makes a good living out of insuiking his customers.

He's one of the few, too, who opens his kitchen to anybody too poor to pay, such as hard-up youngsters and students in the neighborhood.

He's torn up orders and served what he thinks they ought to have. He has put almost every customer on the spot at one time or another.

Most of them love it. Those who don't, don't go back. His place, the "Grenouille" (frog) at 28 Rue des Grands Augustins, in the heart of the Latin Quarter, has been a favorite since he reopened it in 1930.

Roger was born in Paris in 1901. He grew up the hard way, an orphan. After World War I, he worked in the Ritz Hotel restaurant. Later he moved over to "Chez Rouzier" on the Place St.

STATEWIDE SYSTEM . . . Covering Texas from stem to stern is the recently organized Texas A. & M. College System, one of the largest educational and service organizations in the nation. Gibb Gilchrist heads the administrative setup for the System as Chancellor, with each of the four colleges headed by a president and each of the statewide services by a director. Units of the system include the A. & M. College of Texas, North Texas Agricultural College, John Tarleton Agricultural College, Prairie View A. & M. College, Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas Engineering Station, Texas Engineering Extension Service, Texas Forest Service, Firemen's Training School, Rodent Control Service and other agencies and services as may be authorized. Employing more than 5,000 people, the System expends an annual budget in excess of $25,000,000.

Michel.
By 1930 he had some money of his own. He decided to open a restaurant and run it in a way which combined all the things he'd been bawled out for doing at the Ritz and Rouzier.

Instead of going broke, he thrived. People have been packing the place since opening day. The highest priced dish on his menu is 200 francs (about 70 cents). Lobster, sold by weight, might run up to 300 francs, but that's the ceiling.

Frogs legs, which he frequently forces on you, are 150 francs.

Customers at the Grenouille get only two kinds of wine, one red and one white. If they want a long list to choose from, Roger tells them to go elsewhere. They stay. His flat price is 225 francs a bottle.
To most customers, the Grenouille looks more like an antique shop than a restaurant. Among the hundred-odd items hanging from the ceiling, all with their own story, are a French horn, a cow bell, a horse's mane, a bunch of onions and a woman's hat. The walls are plastered with clippings, diplomas and pictures.
Lunch begins at 12:30 and lasts as late as 4. Dinner starts at 6 and goes on until 1 a.m. Through out both Roger, dressed in an open shirt and a waist apron, moves from table to table shouting order, cracking jokes, insulting customers, and making them explain to everybody there who the young lady is.
Roger's final gesture is reserved for the ladies. As they leave he offers them one of his green miniature frogs, his trade mark.

They can have it, he tells them, for a kiss of thanks on the cheek. He poses his cheek, they bend over to kiss. In a lightning move Roger smacks them squarely on the lips.

He says only one woman has ever seriously objected to his trickery, and the rest of the customers were so enraged they nearly threw her out.

Modern Art Stumps Reporter But He Thinks Picasso Has Something

By DAN L. THRAPP
United Press Staff Correspondent
VENICE (UP)—The theme of this year's 24th Art Biennial at Venice is modernism.

It is art, undoubtedly, but to this uniformed reporter it is all very confusing.

Anyone can understand the style of olden, barbaric times when a tree looked like a tree and a nude could be luscious. But these modern things resemble little, if anything.

It was easy for even an amateur to appreciate the Belgian

Rene Guette's nudes, so realistic that priests of the Catholic faith are prohibited from entering the salon in which they hang. Some parts of the Austrian exhibit had the same appeal.

Joseph Turner's 50 great oils in the British pavilion also lent themselves to easy understanding, since, although they suggested "impressionism," they were more realistic than modern.

But unhappily, a great part of the show was devoted to works whose message was more cryptic. I found considerable difficulty, for instance, in catching the meaning of Paul Klee's free-hand checker-boards, one of which he called a "Picture of a City," and the other entitled, "Triple Time." His water color, "Upper Egypt," resembled a flattened rainbow, but seemed to have no deeper significance.

Sculpture presented the same difficulty. Henry Moore, of whom modest Pablo Picasso says: "He is the Picasso of sculpture," had quite an exhibit of sculpture and drawings. But how to interpret it?

Moore is the doughnut king of the sculptors. He whittles out stone or bronze figures and then bores holes in them. Sometimes he does it with wood. It would be easier to understand if it weren't for the titles which accompany his works. The key for matching titles and works is obscure. A slightly eroded boulder becomes a "Mother and Child." An upright slab is called "Figure," and possibly it is.

Peggy Guggenheim's pavilion is devoted to the history of the art of this century, and it's a pretty complicated history. The pictures on the wall are complicated, but she has extra hazards hanging from the ceiling. One looked like a wire entanglement and was supposed to be autumn leaves, or a metal composition, or something.

In another salon of her pavilion stood a folding screen. It was covered with little pictures snipped from magazine advertisements and pasted to it.

The wife of a visiting consul took one look at it and swooned. Attendants blamed the heat.

All roads at an art exhibit lead to Picasso, and at this season's Biennial, the Spanish master of painted puzzles had an exhibit of his own.

Picasso's professional history was said to be represented on those walls. There were examples of cubism, of the "blue period," and of whatever period Picasso is in now. Most looked as though they belonged to a period forgotten.

"You must look at Picasso to understand him," I heard a woman tell her puzzled escort. Her advice, somehow, caught hold.

I picked "Composition," to begin with. It wasn't very large. I stared at it for several minutes. Under the start it became transformed.

The lines which I had thought bizarre faded and color took over. All of what I had thought "childish drawings" became obliterated and from the picture I drew emotion which I cannot describe, but which compensated me for the staring I had done.

Small Town Boy Shows Them How

NEW YORK (UP)—The story of Frank Gannett is almost but not quite in the Horati Alger tradition. For this publisher had and has one ingredient that none of his fictional counterparts appeared to possess—he made his opportunities as he went along.

That perhaps is why Frank Gannett owns or controls today more newspapers than any other man in the United States. His story, and it is a fine chronicle in every way, is told in "Imprint of a Publisher" (McBride, $3.00), by Samuel T. Williamson.

It is the story of a small town boy who had an abiding faith in his own capabilities, who had a rugged honesty, and who respected the other fellow's ideas. Gannett carried those precepts into the world of journalism, of which his part today is 21 newspapers and six radio stations.

It is a far cry from his present eminence back to the day when Gannett begged and borrowed $20,000 to buy into the Elmira Gazette. But as he expanded, consolidated and merged through the years, Gannett never swerved from the cardinal principle that his newspapers must be independent.

There must be no such thing, he ruled as the Gannett chain, each of his editors must run an independent newspaper—independent politically and editorially. There was but one rule, which was that Gannett's newspapers must not carry liquor advertising. That stemmed from Gannett's youthful abhorrence of drink.

Only in Rochester, where he makes his headquarters, does Gannett hold the editorial reins. As editor and publisher of the Rochester Times-Union, he leaves his imprint upon its pages. But on his other newspapers, the editors in charge are the real bosses.

Although author Williamson is generally praise-worthy in assessing the worth of this outstanding publisher, he does not hesitate to criticize when he feels that such is merited.

For example, he points out that Gannett got into the radio game during its infancy, but not recognizing its potentialities, soon got out. Later, recognizing the value of radio stations to a publisher, he went back into the business again.

Iowa Goes All Out With Device To Protect Corn

By Richard Kunzman
United Press Staff Correspondent
DES MOINES, Ia. (UP)—Iowa is using the weapons of war to protect its famous corn.

Airplanes are spraying whole fields and townships with DDT to halt the spread of a $20,000,000-a-year enemy, the European corn borer.

Iowa State College research men have mixed radioactive phosphorus from the Oak Ridge, Tenn., atomic plant with regular fertilizer and planted two Wright County farms in an experiment to trace the route of phosphorus through plants.

That has a bearing on one of nature's most closely-guarded secrets—the conversion of plant food into green vegetable matter.

To protect the corn that made her the nation's No. 1 state in 1947 for per capita far income, Iowa has developed a state-wide communication system and a reliance on weather forecasting that suggests a war-time offensive.

Daily throughout the last three weeks of June, Iowa State College field men measured the height of corn in seven areas of the state, and the number of clusters of corn borer eggs on the corn.

The information was relayed by press and radio to Iowa farmers

Children Are Always Friends

At a baby beauty contest in New York, held to benefit the American Overseas Aid-United Nations Appeal for Children, youngsters of many nations demonstrated how to make international friendship work. Janice Henderson of Norway escorts Maureen Choy, left, and Priscilla Eng, all 2-year-olds, to the contest.

to advise them of the nearness of them time to arrange for DDT application. The daily "box score" reports on egg-laying were sent out during the egg-laying of the first flight of corn borer moths.

Weather forecasts also are important in the battle against the corn borer. To apply DDT effectively, a farmer should know the wind velocity, and probability of rain.

The weather bureau in Des Moines, in addition to its regular forecasts, issues a daily "agricultural outlook" to give farmers specialized weather information.

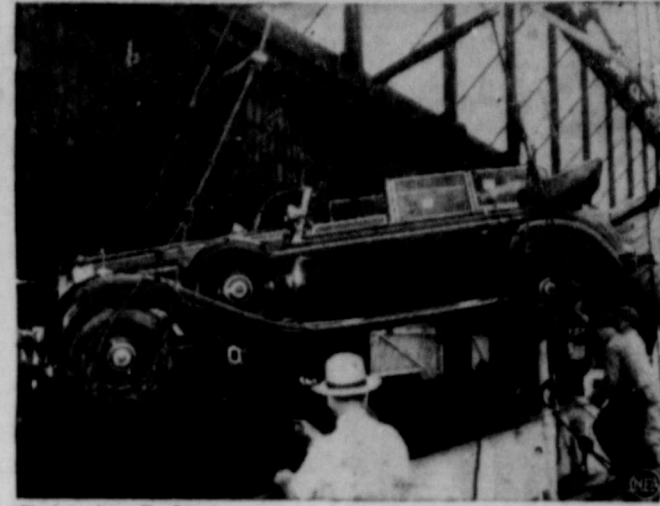

Entomologists say corn borer damage has increased "tremendously" in Iowa during the last two or three years. They warn that if the borer is not met with an all-out offensive, the damage probably will soon be "several times" the 1947 loss of $20,000,000.

Thanks for the Memory

A year ago, Nellie Mason left the Chicago advertising agency where she is employed on a year's vacation with pay. The novel idea was originated by the owner, M. Glen Miller, who gives each employe a year off after six years' work. Miss Mason toured the U. S., Canada and Mexico, and returns to work—after giving Miller a thank-you kiss.

Hitler's Auto Now Just a Used Car

Christopher G. Janus, managing director of a Chicago importing firm, waited two years for a new car, without any luck. Finally, he accepted a car from Sweden in payment for a shipment after Sweden clamped down on exporting dollars. It turned out to be Hitler's custom-built, ornate Mercedes-Benz, in which the Fuehrer rode in parades. It's shown being unloaded in New York.

Growth Setbacks Found Factor In Polio Spread

MINNEAPOLIS, (UP)—Children who have suffered temporary setback in growth are more susceptible to infantile paralysis than normal children, two University of Minnesota doctors believe.

Dr. Neil N. Litman and James F. Bosma studied 133 St. Paul youngsters stricken during the 1946 polio epidemic in Minnesota.

They found that two out of every three victims had experienced some type of growth failure during the preceding year.

The Litman-Bosma survey also indicated that children who are undersize and underweight are more susceptible to polio than normal children and that children in the stage just before puberty rarely contract the disease.

URGE COMMUNIST YOUTH TO WAR AGAINST RELIGION

By Walter Kolarz
United Press Staff Correspondent
LONDON (UP)—Three leading Soviet journals have so far joined the new anti-religious campaign recently started in the USSR.

They are the Uchitelskaya Gazeta, the teachers' paper; the popular scientific journal, Kultura I Zhizn (Culture and Life), and the organ of the Communist Youth League, Molodoi Bolshevik.

Both Moscow and Kiev radio have started to broadcast anti-religious propaganda included in those journals, in addition to special anti-religious lectures.

The most outspoken attack on religion made during the new campaign was in Molodoi Bolshevik, which called upon the members of the Communist Youth League to conduct "offensive anti-religious propaganda" by organizing lectures on scientific subjects dealing in particular with the origin of man and the universe.

The paper admitted that there was still a "backward section" among Soviet youth which has not yet overcome the prejudice of religion. The Communist Youth League was faced therefore with the task to educate the non-party youth in an atheist spirit, the paper said.

Molodoi Bolshevik described religion as an "anti-scientific reactionary ideology."

"Religion," the paper said "prevents people from being fully fledged builders of Communism and conscious and active citizens of socialist society. As the party and the Communist Youth League are fighting for complete victory of Communism in our land they cannot afford to be indifferent and complaisant toward religion."

Molodoi Bolshevik also warned the Communist Youth League members that they must not consider religions as a private affair and that any form of religious belief or "superstitions" are absolutely incompatible with league membership.

Both the Molodoi Bolshevik and the last issue of Kultura I Zhizn quoted the article of the Soviet constitution guaranteeing not only freedom of religion but freedom of anti-religious propaganda as well. They appeal to their readers to make use of the latter provision.

Kultura I Zhizn complained that in some areas the party authorities did not give enough attention to scientific education. The party, the journal added, must give a lead to atheist propaganda because religion is against science and anti-scientific teaching is contrary to Communist principles.

Sees Meat Prices Remaining High

ST. PAUL, Minn. (UP)—Meat prices will remain high throughout the summer and may rise even higher next fall.

That is the prediction of B. Frank Wells, president of the Western New York Retail Meat Dealers Association, who stopped here during a tour of the western and mid-western meat-raising states.

Wells said both cattle and sheep raisers seem to consider the present market unhealthy and apparently are afraid to invest in new stock. He said many livestock producers are out of debt for the first time and fear a market break would wipe out their savings.

"As a result, meat supplies are not what they could be and prices stay at their high level," he said.

He added that high meat prices will continue "as long as housewives are willing to create the demand and pay high prices."

Social Science Laboratories Thriving Business

One of Ranger's most original and thriving institutions is Social Science Laboratories, Inc., owned and managed by A. W. Warford, P. C. MacDonald and Hall Walker. The business grew out of the experience of Mr. Warford who used student maps, charts and projects in the teaching of social science courses.

Social Science Laboratories, Inc., Ranger, Texas, is an organization that serves schools throughout the south and southwest by furnishing maps and charts for student and teacher use in classroom work for geography, history, civics and government classes in both elementary and high school grades.

Organized in 1945, it provides all material free of cost to the schools by medium of advertising sponsors such as bottlers, creameries, banks, and bakeries.

States which are covered or partly covered with maps and charts include Alabama, Tennessee, Arkansas, Mississippi, Louisiana, Texas, New Mexico, Arizona, Oklahoma, and Iowa.

All map-projects are formulated by the research department of the Laboratories; special maps such as those on certain counties, on the oil industry, the packing industry, and transportation are pro-

Gholson Under New Management Being Improved

Ranger's Gholson Hotel, which became famous all over the country during the history making oil boom, was recently purchased by Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Wieser of Hillsboro.

Immediately after taking over operation of the hotel, the new owners began a series of improvements designed to make the hotel more attractive and comfortable for the guests.

New furniture and rugs have been purchased for the lobby where two huge standard fans cool the air. New rugs have already been laid in transient rooms and some painting and redecorating has been started.

They have been joined by their daughter, Mrs. Ralph Waggoner, and Mr. Waggoner and daughter, Meg, who will assist the Wiesers in operating the hotel. The Waggoners came here from Fort Worth.

Although superstition is gradually dying out in the United States, many hotel rooms, steamship cabins and houses sometimes skip the "unlucky" number 13.

Morris Funeral Home Continues Fine Service

Dignified and comforting services are conducted by the Morris Funeral Home, one of Ranger's two funeral homes.

The home which was established by the late James P. Morris, a past president of the Junior Chamber of Commerce and rodeo enthusiast, is now owned and operated by Mrs. Morris.

Other personnel of the home are Charles T. Bott, John T. McCleskey and Mace Oyler.

Besides burial service, the home carries burial insurance and has ambulance service.

One of the popular "hangouts" for visitors to the Ranger rodeo as well as for regulars in Ranger, is the Paramount Coffee Shop, located on North Austin Street.

Managers of the Coffee Shop are Mr. and Mrs. Ray Ward, the son-in-law and daughter of the owner of the hotel, Mrs. Julia Smith of Ada, Oklahoma.

Other personnel of the shop who

LIVESTOCK, WOOL BIGGEST ITEMS ON LIST OF PURCHASES

Ranger as an incorporated city was born as a result of one of the most spectacular oil booms in history, and though the town is on the verge of another oil boom, it no longer depends solely on this source of income.

Within the past few years farming and ranching interests have increased at an astounding rate around Ranger and the two have been responsible for bringing to the town a number of related industries, one of the most active of which is the bonded warehouse of C. P. Cloud and Son, with P. T. Smith as resident manager.

In the two and one half years that the company has had the house in Ranger it has done close to one million dollars in business. Livestock purchased in the period brought the biggest turnover of $241,000 while $216,000 has been spent for the purchase of wool. A total of $182,000 worth of mohair has been bought from raisers in this area and last fall alone the company purchased over $100,000 worth of peanuts.

Smith stated today that the company also buys furs and pecans but production in both was off last year.

Some ranch supplies are handed by the company, including such items as wool bags, and these items average about $4,000 each year.

Apparently the boundaries of Texas are the boundaries for the purchasing area of this up and coming firm. Besides the immediate Ranger area, the warehouse buys from such points as Graham, Weatherford, Sterling City, Palo Pinto, Hamilton, Hico and San Angelo, to mention only a few of the far away sections touched by this Ranger industry.

Smith is ably assisted in his work here by J. F. Donley, one of the men that pioneered in registered sheep and goat raising in this area and who is president of the West Cross Timbers Sheep and Goat Raisers Association whose fifth annual show and sale will be held in Ranger on August 20-21.

American piano manufacturers turned out 143,000 instruments in 1947.

Dry Cleaning Staff Ready For Rodeo Demands

A full staff will be on hand at the Ranger Dry Cleaners during the Jaycees' World Championship rodeo to keep the rodeo duds of performers and visitors ready for the big show.

Owned and operated by Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Culpepper, other personnel of the shop are: Mr. and Mrs. Jess Weaver, Mrs. Frances Blackwell, Mrs. Carrie Davis, Mrs. Anna Mae Mathis, Mrs. Dave Morgan, Carl Eakin, and Bailey Woods.

Three Men Keep Burton-Lingo Supplies Rolling

Burton-Lingo Lumber Company, one of the veteran building supply firms in Ranger, is headed by R. S. Balch, also a veteran in the building supply business.

Others employed by this firm, that keeps the supplies rolling out of the warehouses, are J. D. Nichols and W. T. Murray.

Even Iron Curtain Spares Babies, UN Food Relief Director Reports

PARIS (UP) — Countries behind the iron curtain are distributing United Nations food for children without discrimination, the executive director of the UN international children's emergency fund, Maurice Pate, reports.

He spoke on his return from an inspection tour of fund activities in Yugoslavia, Bulgaria, Hungary and Czechoslovakia.

Pate, who said he visited towns and villages as well as capitals, told a press conference that he noted "absolute determination to distribute food in accordance with the fund charter."

"That means without discrimination as to race, religion or politics," he added.

Since its organization a year ago, the ICEF has distributed powdered milk, fats, cod liver oil, meat and fish to 4,000,000 children in 12 European countries. It also operates in China and will shortly extend its operation to other far eastern countries.

Pate said the four countries he visited expect a bumper harvest. They hope to abolish bread rationing by the end of the year, although they will be short of milk for another two years.

Good Products, Superb Service At Texaco Sta.

Gasoline and oil and car service will be among the essentials during the Ranger rodeo July 28-31 and the superb products and services can be secured at the Texaco Service Station owned and operated by Deane Crawley.

Located on the corner of Main and Commerce Streets, the station sees Texaco products and is staffed by the following, Gorman Ierton, Arthur Camacho, George Camacho, and the owner.

R. H. Shackford, United Press specialist in diplomatic news, has covered more international conferences since the war than any other reporter.

Dutch Eye Treat

The situation is deplorable, according to ministry of education officials, who made a private check on schools and found 10 per cent of the teachers absent. In one prefecture, 60 per cent of the principals were playing hooky the day the officials dropped in unexpectedly. It's probably embarrassing for all concerned when the teachers and pupils meet on the street during school hours. Of course, there always is the possibility that they got together in advance and decided to go to a ball game.

High education officials give the teachers an "out" by suggesting that some of the instructors might have to skip school a few days each month and work at other jobs to make a living. However, it is admitted that even school teachers probably don't like being indoors when the grass is green and the water in the village pond is warm. The thing that really upsets the ministry of education officials is a report that teachers in one school have been throwing sake parties during school hours. Japanese sake is a potent rice wine that gets quick results when served hot.

Ministry of education officials said these sake parties have got to stop because it is undemocratic for women teachers to wait on male colleagues by serving drinks to them and "obeying their orders as though men were superior to women."

Much Ado About Nothing

NEW YORK (UP)—A small bulldog which frightened passengers by running back and forth and baring its teeth was responsible for an eight-car subway train being unloaded and taken out of service. A.S.C.P.A. officers, called on the theory that the dog had rabies, found that it was only frightened. They picked it up and carried it away.

Station Has 10 Year Night, Day Service Record

Ten years ago the Gulf Service Station on Highway 80 at the Main Street Crossing was opened by Edwin George, Gulf distributor in this area, and since that opening day the station has operated 24 hours a day.

Even during the depression the station was kept on this schedule for service and that record will be no exception during the Jaycee rodeo July 28-31. The station handles all Gulf products.

The wholesale company and service station personnel include distributor George; Claud Hearn, truck delivery salesman; Mrs. Claud Hearn, Bookkeeper and at the station, Homer Perry, manager, Harvey Dempsey, Luke Lane night attendant, David McCain and John Alexander.

Besides Mr. and Mrs. Brown the staff includes Robert Bundick, Raymond Smoot, Gene Gourley and Jim Taylor.

Beauty Shop Offers Trim Look To Rodeo Goers

The trimmest look possible will be the goal of Ranger women as well as visitors to the Jaycees' rodeo July 28-31 and this can be accomplished by the operators at Young's Beauty Shop, owned and operated by Mrs. Mary Young.

The modern shop on Main street is not only equipped with the latest and best but has in addition to Mrs. Young, two other capable operators, Aleta Tillman and Alberta Burns.

They invite Ranger women and visitors to seek their needs at their shop.

Green Rain Falls On Alabama

MOBILE, Ala. (UP) — When green rain fell here, one boy brought a bucketful to the newspaper office, just in case anyone doubted him.

After the downpour, sidewalks and streets for a four-block area bore a lime tint.

The weather bureau said the green rain could have been caused by some chemical being discharged into the air from an industrial plant.

However, others believed that army fliers from nearby Brookley Field had been experimenting. They theorized that some of the dye used by fliers who crash at sea to color the water and attract air rescuers had been dropped on a rain cloud.

House That Bulges Out Stumps City Fathers

NORTH YORK, Pa. (UP) — The base of the house measures more than the lot it stands on and the borough council is stumped.

The problem arose when the Veterans Administration, considering a loan for the tenant of the house, Earl N. Frey, decided that a quit-claim deed would be necessary to clear up the encroachment.

That's where the borough council got into the picture. The house overlaps on a public street. The council is not sure whether it has power to require public lands.

Here's Uncle Sam's Newest Man O'War

Incorporating lessons learned during World War II, the light cruiser USS Worcester, just completed in Camden, N. J., is the latest addition to the American fleet. The 17,000-ton ship, shown in the Delaware River, was named after the Massachusetts city which raised the $30,000,000 it cost. The Worcester, armed with six-inch guns, has a watertight hull. If hit below the water line, only the hold actually damaged would be flooded.

... And, at the finish, it's watermelon by a nose! Bobby Carl's freckle-spattered nose is usually an asset, but in watermelon season it's a decided drawback. Here, in Leesburg, Fla., Bobby demonstrates how a snub nose can interfere with one's watermelon-eating technique.

U. S. CULTURE IS HOPE OF WORLD'S CIVILIZATION NOW

By Joseph J. Baicich
United Press Staff Correspondent
FLORENCE, Italy (UP)—Giovanni Papini, Italy's greatest living literary artist, believes religion must transform man to achieve goodness through hard effort.

He described the United States in an interview as the "anticipation" of what future civilization should be.

The almost-blind author of "The Life of Christ," the famed work which marked his conversion to Catholicism, observed:

"The inner life of man must be changed to reduce human selfishness by one-third."

Noted as a tameless debunker of everything shoddy in life and letters, the 69-year-old Papini demanded "consistency between living and preaching."

He referred to his book, "Letter to Men by Pope Celestine VI" recently published in New York, and said he invented an imaginary Pope to speak to the various classes of people—the priests, philosophers, the rich and the poor—"to say things no living Pope ever had the courage to say."

In the book he maintains the necessity for the return to "integral Christianity."

"Man cannot improve by mere outward formal alteration," Papini said, pursuing his theme. "His soul must be transformed. Religion must make him new. It must not be only an exterior form and a social function. It must be a total living thing and carry out Christ's first intention."

"Modern science, especially biological sciences, can be a great aid to inner transformation," Papini said. "Although religion has not received as great an impetus after the last war as it did after World War I, good signs are visible which indicate that science will be put to the service of religion. Every epoch has had its apologetic foundation in philosophy of art. Today it is the turn of science to furnish the defense of religion."

"The great contribution to universal culture and science made by the United States, is one of the most wonderful phenomena of the present age. America's scientific passions has produced two mighty weapons for the liberation of man—the atomic bomb and the Mount Palomar observatory in California. The atom bomb will liberate him from the Communist nightmare, while the world's greatest telescope will bring new victories over the mysteries of the universe."

"We look with great hope not only to American literature, but also to American culture. After attaining world supremacy, the American people cannot fail from giving the world a distinct idea of their own. We believe they will give a new direction to spiritual life. The idea of liberty is not enough. Something more is needed. America does not have a distinct doctrine of its own yet."

Making his prediction about America, Papini said:

"The mixture of races in the United States, with the contributions of the various nationalities, will produce the greatest cultural achievements during the next 20 years. The United States are an anticipation of what future civilization should be—a result of collaboration of all the civilizations and nations."

Papini said he had never visited the United States although he had been invited several times to lecture there.

While Papini's failing eyesight first prevented him from traveling, now it is near-blindness which makes him newly desirous of going to the United States in the hope of finding an eye specialist who can help him. His left eye is totally lost and the right one is virtually useless.

She Almost Missed the Boat

Arriving at the pier moments after the ship sailed, Mrs. Moyson hired a tug and managed to catch it. Willing hands helped her aboard after she nimbly climbed the ladder from tug to liner.

Papini still works feverishly. He is preparing the "Life of Michelangelo" and his plans for a film story in which there will be "a world of goodness, and humanity can realize the best that is in it."

NEW PRODUCT FROM FORESTS, OIL WELLS

"NEOTRON" IS THE TRADE NAME

The Trade Name is "Neotron," and it is used for paneling walls (especially bathrooms, kitchens and offices), for table tops, drain boards and certain types of toys and plastics.

You wouldn't realize it to look at it, but this new product, manufactured on the outskirts of Houston, has its origin in the forests and in the oil wells of Texas. It is made of pigmented paper and bleached Kraft paper—products of the forest—and a resin which is obtained from petroleum.

J. S. Finger, one of the men behind the new company, did a lot of experimenting before he came out with his new product. In fact, he called upon the A. & M. College Texas Forest Service for help. E. D. Marshall, Chief of the Forest Products Research Laboratory at Lufkin, was glad to comply by furnishing technical advice and making certain tests on the type of products desired.

Piles of waste rice straw inspired the idea for the new product. After World War II, Finger decided to investigate the possibilities of making things out of this waste. The rice straw proved to have its limitations, so Finger turned his research to sawdust. This worked better, but the proper kind of press was too costly.

Finger, together with MacDonald Lynch who is president, formed the new company. L. M. Hockett was employed as chief chemist and is largely responsible for bringing the product to its present quality. L. W. Stahl is superintendent, and designed and built much of the equipment.

The secret of the new product is a process in which the pulp is impregnated with resin and molded into Neotron sheets under low pressure and low temperature.

By applying pigmented paper for the surface layer it is possible to make almost any kind of design in the finished product. A checked table cloth effect is most successful, while marble can also be imitated faithfully. Wood patterns are also reproduced, and when special techniques are used even the actual texture of the wood can be detected by rubbing one's hand over the surface.

The finished product has a high resistance to wear, heat, stain and water, and it doesn't require waxing. Finger claims his Neotron costs only about half as much as tile, in plastic. It is applied to walls or other surfaces through the use of a mastic and hand pressure, and easy to apply on the job. Workmen making installations point out that Neotron can

Little Red School House Passing Illinois Concludes After A Survey

By PAUL E. SVOBODA
United Press Staff Correspondent
SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UP)—
The "little red school house" is on the way out in Illinois.
"For sale" signs have been posted on hundreds of country schools. More are going on the block in the most drastic shakeup of the state system of public education in Illinois history.
Small school districts are being merged into larger ones, some of them embracing whole counties.
Before the school consolidation program got started three years ago, Illinois had more than 11,000 school districts. The number has been slashed to around 9,000 and educators hope to have it down to about 1,500 in the next few years.
Two Chief Aims
Behind the consolidation are two chief aims:

1. Better schools and better teachers for Illinois' rural school children.
 2. More efficient administration to get the most from the tax dollar.
- The movement slow getting started, shifted into high gear this year.
- The state school superintendent Vernon L. Nickell, said parents in smaller communities and on farms are beginning to realize that their children can have just as good an education as those in cities if they combine their tax dollars.
- Three years ago the state legislature passed a law permitting counties to set up survey committees. The committees had until last June to make final recommendations for merging school districts in their counties.

But many areas didn't wait for the committees to report. There now are 117 consolidated districts—called community school districts.

Nickell has predicted that Illinois will have less than 5,000 school districts by next spring—a cut of better than 300 per cent in three years.

Put it hasn't been easy. Educators and civic leaders have to fight "farmer stubbornness" to change; a fear of increased taxes, and the opposition of local politicians bent on maintaining the status quo.

Two things hurried the job. Most important was the shortage of teachers and the inability of smaller districts to match the higher pay scales in city schools.

The other was the example of successful consolidated schools. Mothers and fathers saw children in neighboring counties attending modern schools where they learned more than just the "A-B-C's."

One hurdle remains. The constitutionality of the redistricting law is being challenged in the state supreme court.

Stop Encouraging Them Birds, Gal

San Francisco's Mayor Elmer Robinson has decreed that pigeons and sea gulls around the city's public places are a nuisance. So feeding them in Union Square, like 3-year-old Susan Smyk of San Bruno, Calif., is going, is out. A city cleaning bill provides for trapping or killing the birds.

Thus far she has painted only flowers, either in pots or spread out on a table. She prefers the pots because so far she hasn't learned how to paint a table. "Mine simply look as if they were hanging in space," she said. Some of the pots also look as if they were hanging in space.

Thus far she has about 20 paintings to her credit and hopes to give a one-woman exhibition for charity when she gets enough. That will be difficult because she rather absent-mindedly gives them away to almost anybody who admires them.

Miss Lillie has been hung once in Hollywood, where she exhibited a painting of blossoms of a tree—they were pink and white and she isn't sure what kind of tree they came from. She signed that one "Blossoms by Daisy Peel" but no one knew who Daisy Peel was and she put her other name on it (Miss Lillie in private life is Lady Peel.)

Miss Lillie thinks she will dip paint brushes. Now she has only one which she dips variously in different colors, achieving a rather blurred effect which is considered excellent modern art because

She usually does her painting at night after performing in the Broadway revue "Inside U. S. A." She has no easel and paints while sitting on the floor with the canvas in one hand and the paint brush in the other. Her latest achievement is a painting of some lilacs which she says would "look good in a dark corner."

In one hot summer day, such as 50 barrels of water may evaporate from the surface of the leaves of a large elm tree.

She's An Artist, Beatrice Lillie Decides, And Starts To Prove It

By Walter Logan
United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK (UP)—Beatrice Lillie, the comedienne, has blossomed out as a painter of lilacs, geraniums and delphinium.

She discloses that she got her artistic start by decorating doorknobs in her country place in Surrey.

"From doorknobs to canvas," she said, "was only a logical step."

Miss Lillie, giving way to an urge to fill her country place with gaily painted knobs instead of the drab ones she was using, went to an ironmonger to place an order. There she discovered they had quit selling them during the reign of Queen Victoria.

So she took her brown knobs, dipped them in white paint, hung them out to dry and later covered them with sprays of forget-me-nots and other assorted flowers. The doorknobs presumably are lying where she left them. She decided at that point that she was an artist, went back to town and began painting on canvas.

Uranium Rush Is On In Alaska; Spurred By U. S.

By John J. Ryan
United Press Staff Correspondent
ANCHORAGE, Alaska (UP)—A $10,000 bonus offered by the Atomic Energy Commission to deposit of uranium has started Alaska's biggest "stampede" since the gold rush days of '98.

Prospectors roaming Alaska's wilderness have discarded their gold pans and sluice boxes. They're hunting the hills for signs of pitch-blende, gumite, carnotite and other uranium-bearing minerals.

B. D. Stewart, territorial commissioner of mines, said his offices have been besieged by prospectors seeking information on uranium. He said pamphlets prepared by the AEC giving methods of locating and recognizing minerals containing uranium are being distributed.

Gold Doesn't Pay
"The prospectors are hitting for the hills in great numbers, but they aren't looking for gold," he said. "With the price fixed and production costs soaring, you can't make gold mining pay."

"But a uranium strike would certainly pay. In addition to the bonus, the government is guaranteeing minimum prices and even paying transportation costs of the mineral in some cases."

Stewart said he expected the rush to hit full swing next summer when all prospectors will have assembled the necessary gear and studied up on methods of locating uranium.

"We know there are uranium bearing minerals in the territory, but we don't know how large the deposits are," he said.

If uranium is found in large quantities, future generations of Alaskans may reminisce on the "uranium rush days of '49."

Maynooth, Cradle Of Missionaries Sends Out For Financial Aid

DUBLIN (UP) — Maynooth College, which has sent Catholic priests throughout the world on missionary work, is in serious financial difficulties.

Established 153 years ago, the institution at the time of the disestablishment of 1870 was given a grant of $1,488,000 and has in the interval received various charitable bequests.

Its present financial troubles were outlined by Monsignor Patrick Boylan in an address at the center of Irish Catholicity.

Appealing to former students in all parts of the world and at home to come to the assistance of the college, he said it was not, as some erroneously thought, state-endowed.

Much of the state endowment given by the British of $1,488,

000 had been lost by fall off of investments, he said, and added:

"In many cases one would need some sort of financial radar to trace the survival of the various portions of that money."

Income which in 1932 was $73,104 fell in 1947 to $58,808. ment of investments but rather there was little hope of improvement was the contrary more likely.

There had been a fall in the number of students for the priesthood annually from 600 to under 500. The deficiency on the year's work in 1947 was $35,220.

"It is not a matter of just balancing the budget but at least $2,000,000 is needed for capital improvements," he said.

The annual show and sale for the West Cross Timbers Sheep and Goat Raisers Association will be held in Ranger on August 20-21 and for the first time visitors to the show will see a Border Collie Sheep Dog demonstration.

J. F. Donley of Ranger, president of the association, stated today the Collie show is one of the most fascinating exhibitions ever witnessed and the association feels fortunate in being able to secure the feature for the 1948 show. The performance will take place at the night show.

The show will be staged at the livestock barn at the Jaycee Rodeo Arena and Secretary M. C. Wilkinson of Ranger, stated today that registrations are coming in fast. Only registered sheep and goats will be shown and all animals entered must have registration papers with them.

P. E. (Pete) Gulley of Uvalde will be auctioneer for the sale and will also be judge of the goat division. Guy Powell of Kerrville will be judge of the sheep section.

The West Cross Timbers Sheep and Goat Raisers Association was organized in Ranger in 1943 with a number of Ranger men taking the lead in the organization.

Charles Bell of Brownwood, then vocational teacher in Ranger, Donley, Wilkinson, and Dr. Bob Hodges were among those who backed the organization of the association.

Following are the classes for the sheep and goat sections of the show and sale.

Quake Scatters Audience, But Pianist Plays On

United Press Staff Correspondent PARIS (UP)—In Ankara, a young pianist lit into a Brahms sonata with more than usual enthusiasm.

Suddenly out of the corner of his eye he saw the people in the back of the hall beat an orderly retreat. He kept on playing bravely, attacking the difficult second movement with even more gusto than the first, but people continued to leave.

Finally there were only three old men left sitting in the front row. Almost in tears, 21-year-old Julius Katchen started the fourth movement. "Maybe they just don't like Brahms in Turkey," he told himself. As the last notes sounded, he noticed with surprise that people were back in their seats, listening quietly.

"Guess what it was," Katchen asked me in Paris this week. "An earthquake!"

The chandeliers had started swinging dangerously in the back of the hall at the beginning of the sonata, and remembering that five people had been killed by a falling chandelier during an earthquake last year, they left the hall until the tremors ceased. That concert was the only time people have left a Katchen concert. Generally they don't let him leave until he has played at least six epicoes. In Amsterdam, Copenhagen, Berlin, Paris, and Athens the young American pianist has packed people into movie houses, operas, and concert halls to hear everything from Bela Bartok to Bach.

In his recent tour through Germans in Stettin in the only building big enough to house a recital left standing after the bombardment. It was a rickety music hall on the outskirts of town. Two thousand Germans traded cigarettes and went without meals to pay the price of admission.

Roy Ramsey of Tulsa, Oklahoma will be one of the performers in the Ranger World Championship Rodeo in Ranger on July 28-31. Ramsey who does a specialty act which is known as one of the Roman riding acts in the rodeo business, began his rodeo career as one of the Mounted Trooper Boys in Oklahoma.

He handles the two horses that he rides in the Roman act with as much ease as most people handle one horse. He has performed in rodeos in Los Angeles, Salinas, California, Tucson, Arizona, Houston, Dublin, Madison Square Garden and Ogden, Utah.

For every concert he gave to the Germans, Katchen played a free recital for American soldiers and D. P.s.

Katchen himself feels that playing good classical music to the Germans is one way to show them that chewing gum and movies are not the only things the United States has to offer.

Born in Long Branch, New Jersey, in 1926, Katchen started on the piano on his fifth birthday.

His grandmother once had been a concert pianist, and as a birthday present she set Katchen down at the piano and taught him the scale.

At 11, Katchen was hailed as a prodigy when he played a Mozart concerto with the Philadelphia Orchestra.

His parents yanked Katchen out of the prodigy run in his teens, and the boy went to Havertown College where he majored in Philosophy.

Now Katchen wants to launch his career in Europe before playing with the big American orchestras.

Fairy Godmothers Enlisted To Help Nervous Children

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah (UP)—By the time trees get red in Utah canyons again next fall, Therna Pettey will be in action. She will have called in her fairy godmother and scores of other helpful little creatures and characters of storybook fame to help her aid children.

The imaginative Mrs. Pettey from the Utah town of Holladay wants to help little children get over their nervous and emotional habits which psychologists call

She figured there'd be a whole legion of valuable helpers from fairyland who'd love to help but they've just never been asked.

The helpful "fairyland" cure will be personalized by real-life recordings from the fairy godmother and her helpers, telling the child that his particular habit will get him nowhere.

Records Go Over

She tried making a few records while she was on the west coast visiting her sister, the film star Laraine Day, and they went over big, she reported.

The first one she ever made was for Laraine's six-year-old daughter Angela. The six-year-old Angela had a nervous habit of biting her upper lip. So the godmother—or Mrs. Pettey, told her via a recording that faeries and brownies and the other small people who help good little children lace their shoes, wouldn't like it very much if she kept on chewing her lip.

And it worked. Laraine Day says her daughter no longer bites her lip.

When she came home Mrs. Pettey decided that here was a chance to help children get rid of their ties.

Mostly the records will help children in the three to six-year-old group. That is because they're more imaginative and because that's when most children start their bad habits, she said.

Jewish State Is Worried About Future Finances

By K. C. Thaler
United Press Staff Correspondent
LONDON (UP)—War operations have cost the young Jewish republic $20,000 per hour, according to Israeli sources.

War and defense expenditures at present consume some two-thirds of the total budget the sources added. They declined, however, to give an over-all figure of expenses to date.
Financial and economic foundations have been seriously shaken. Economic plans for the future of Israel will have to be reshaped on the basis of long-term planning and on the assumption of substantial United States financial assistance, the sources suggested.
Tentative estimates put the requirements for the next few years at well over $1,000,000,000 of which at least half is expected to come from abroad by way of credits, loans and investments.

Large scale industrial development will mark the immediate future once the political issue has been resolved. For some time to come imports will considerably exceed exports, Jewish sources added.

The settling of additional immigrants and their integration into Israeli economy will absorb several hundred million dollars, each immigrant accounting for the need of capital investment of between $2,000 and $2,500.

Palestine income under the British government was budgeted with little under $100,000,000, coming mostly from the Israeli part out of taxes and customs. Estimates are that Israel will be able to raise some $250,000,000 out of savings and other internal sources to cover war expenses and a similar amount from private Jewish sources abroad for investment purposes.

Vital imports are now being financed partly out of so-called purchases from the dollar area. Imports from the sterling area are to be paid for with sterling accruing from current Israeli exports. Palestine's sterling balances of some $100,000,000 were blocked by Britain last February.

Releases for individual transactions are conditional on proof to the British authorities that the funds are required "for a proper purpose" and that payment cannot be met out of current sterling earnings. Official sources said exports are continuing though they are impeded by hostilities and lack of transportation.

Development plans envisage expansion of food, textile and metal industries, many of which were established or enlarged during the war. There also may be the re-opening of the diamond cutting industry, which has been closing down as a result of political troubles. In 1946 the industry exported cut diamonds mostly to the United States to the value of $22,000,000.

Dependence on close economic and trade relations with neighboring Arab countries is not denied. The sources admitted that the economic life of Israel will be largely influenced by those rela-

Shrinking Timber Reserve Spurs U. S. To Action

WASHINGTON (UP)—A plan to speed timber growth by dumping low-cost fertilizer into forests is under consideration by the Agriculture Department's forest service.

Dr. Sol Boyk of Purdue University suggested fertilizing rapidly dwindling U. S. woodlands with chemically-treated sewage and garbage. In that way, more wood would develop in less time, he said. In addition, the plan would remove from rivers one of the worst types of pollution.

The forest service said it has fussed around with low-cost fertilizers for years but has never hit on one that seemed cheap enough to use commercially. If high lumber prices hold and Boyk has a developed satisfactory formula, his plan might work, the service thinks.

It was pointed out, however, that the whole forest fertilizer problem is still in the research stage. A single fertilizer could not be used everywhere because of differences in soil.

Some sort of scientific miracle is required if there is to be any lumber for homebuilders a couple of generations hence, a spokesman said. A tree planting record probably will be chalked up this year, but many of the trees won't be providing timber until the year 2018 or after.

Meantime, lumbermen are slashing away at U. S. Forest resources one and a half times as fast as they are being replaced by growth. Wholesale lumber prices rose 235 per cent from 1939 to May of this year. By about 1978 or 1988 saw-timber virtually will be exhausted the spokesman said.

Federal foresters have reported a lively post-war interest in replacing the nation's disappearing forests. Education in flood prevention and soil conservation can take large credit for the growing enthusiasm. Development of better planting machinery is another important factor.

The forest service expects 265,000,000 seedlings will find their way into the ground this year, compared to 122,000,000 in 1947. Last year saw a record 172,000 acres planted. But it was only a drop in the bucket when you consider the 75,000,000 acres of barren land in need of reforestation, the spokesman said.

The game of chess originated more than 5000 years ago in Hindustan.

N. Dakota Women Rise Up In Arms For Their Rights

By GLENN MARTZ
United Press Staff Correspondent
BISMARCK, N. D. (UP) — North Dakota women admit it's their own fault that more members of their sex are not represented in state administrative offices.

They say they've hidden their light under a bushel too long. Now they're doing something about it.

As a result the governor of North Dakota is going to learn things.

When Hettie Blythe, past president of the State Business and Professional Women's Clubs, can take time off from her classes at Valley City State Teachers College, she is going to present Gov. Fred Andahl with a "Who's Who Among Women in North Dakota."

The list, composed of names submitted by the state's business and professional women, has been compiled. It contains the names of more than 50 of the state's most outstanding women deemed eligible to administrative posts in state government.

Several other women's clubs in the state, including the University Women and P. E. O. Sisters have prepared similar lists for distribution among state department heads.

The idea developed when the governor was asked why he didn't appoint a woman to fill a vacancy on the state board of administration.

Andahl was quoted as admitting that he "wasn't too familiar with the talents of North Dakota women."

That's when women club leaders went into a huddle and decided to turn talent scouts.

Miss Helen Iorns of the state department of instruction, who is state chairman of the "Business and Professional Women's Policy Making Posts for Women Committee," immediately ordered a survey within the ranks of her organization.

"It was amazing to see how many illustrious names were submitted," she said. She added: "I only hope the men don't make fun of us. We are serious. We feel we have many women in the state who would do better in some administrative posts than men."

Kitten Stranded In Tree Is No Problem

CHICAGO, Ill (UP)—When Mrs. Clarence Ogden's kitten got stranded in a treetop it didn't take the fire department or the humane society to get it down.

Mrs. Ogden, who keeps nine cats, spent many hours teaching them to crawl backwards down a tree trunk. Normally, cats cannot climb down a tree because they try to come head first and cannot grip the bark.

When the kitten got stuck, Mrs. Ogden sent the mother cat up. The mother cat came down backwards per instructions, holding her kitten with her mouth.

Power and automatic machinery were applied to spinning cotton at Statesburg, S. C., though without permanent success, at about the same time Slater built his famous Pawtucket mill in Rhode Island in 1790.

Eight tons of flour are being loaded onto a U. S. Air Force C-57 transport at Frankfurt, Germany, for air shipment to blockaded Berlin. All food and medical supplies for Allied-controlled sectors of Berlin are being flown in because of the Russian blockade of land travel from the west.

FFA BOYS WITH OWN CALVES

Interest in livestock in Ranger is not confined to the men but is of keen interest to the Future Farmers of America Chapter here. Shown here are some of the FFA boys holding calves which they have fed in their projects. The boys enter the calves in shows in this area.

New Courts To Be Ready For Rodeo Visitors

Brand new and modern quarters will be available for rodeo visitors next week when Mr. and Mrs. G. O. Strong open their new tourist courts at the intersection of Strawn Road and Strawn Highway. The new courts will be opened just in time to accommodate the rush of visitors to the Jaycee Rodeo July 28-31.

The first American to engage in meat packing was William Pynchon, of Springfield, Mass., who in 1655 started to drive cattle to Boston.

It takes about 84 gallons of water to make one Lee Pre-Shaped hat.

Joseph's One Of Ranger's Oldest Firms

Joseph Dry Goods is one of the oldest institutions in Ranger, having been established during the oil boom days back in 1918.

The business was started on a small scale by D. Joseph and has been built from that to one of the largest department stores in Ranger.

It carries everything in ready-to-wear for men and women, boys and girls along with piece goods, luggage, accessories and many other items. The store also handles Maytag appliances.

Personnel of the store is as follows: Mrs. Ven O. White, Mrs. T. O. Rawls, Mrs. W. E. Adamson, Mrs. Myrtle Smith, Mrs. H. B. Getts, Scott Sutfody, Lee Roy Jacoby and Freddie Joseph.

Ranger Peanut Company Doing Big Business

One of Ranger's most thriving businesses is the Ranger Peanut Company, buyers and shellers of peanuts.

The company has a large shelling plant with a large warehouse in connection with. In addition to the warehouse at the plant another warehouse adjacent to the plant has been completed, more than doubling the storage space.

Additional loading docks have been built along the railroad back of the building, more than doubling the space for loading and unloading cars.

T. C. Wylie, owner of the company, is the active manager and is assisted by Mrs. Wylie in the office, J. E. Hogan and Floyd Nunnally. During the shelling season many more people are employed by the plant.

Locker Plant Is One Of Youngest Businesses Here

The Frozen Food Locker, managed by Morris Newnam, is one of Ranger's newest businesses, and it has provided the citizens with a means of storing foods safely and in large quantities.

The locker plant is located on North Austin, and the lockers are used on a rent basis. The plant also sells food from its own storage.

The personnel of the plant other than Mr. Newnam are the following: Mrs. Fay C. Mary Guess, Toy Funderburk, Richard Kelly, Allen Smith and Buddy Rogers.

Bees must travel an average of 150,000 miles to gather a single pound of honey.

SALES HELD THURSDAY OF EACH WEEK AT BARN

The Ranger Livestock Commission Business which was the first such business established in this part of the country has grown from a small beginning to a million dollar a year business and is one of the most important industries in Ranger.

The company which conducts weekly sales at the sales barn on Highway 89 East, the sales occurring on Thursday of each week, is now being operated by Joe Faircloth who has it leased from George Campbell.

Last week the sales totaled $44,000 which is about an average week and peak week totaled $65,000. All the way from 300 to 500 head of livestock are handled each week and buyers come from all over the state and from out of the state to the sales. Livestock likewise is brought from all over the country to be sold at the sales.

The firm was established in 1941 by Sig Faircloth and Abe Anderson and from this ownership it passed to George Campbell and P. T. Smith. Smith sold his interest to Campbell who recently leased the company to Faircloth.

The money that changes hands at the sales is handled in Ranger and merchants agree that the sales are one of Ranger's greatest business assets.

The sales barn is a spacious building with chutes and pens for stock on hand and a slaughter house is adjacent to the barn. Ample parking space adjoins the building and accommodates hundreds of cars and trucks that bring buyers to the sales each week.

Hogs which are kept cool during the summer months eat better, gain faster and put on weight at less cost.

Mystery Of Dry Cows Put Up To Sheriff

COLUMBUS, O. (UP)—The Franklin County Sheriff's office has been called to investigate the case of the dry cows.

Mrs. Ida Demestri complained to sheriff's deputies that when she goes to milk her cows, there is no milk.

Someone, she said, has been stealing into the barn in the middle of the night and milking the cows.

Pinball Machine Gremlins Make Life Interesting

By Rutherford Poats United Press Staff Correspondent TOKYO (UP)—Gags and gremlins and other little men inside the pinball machine are no jokes in Japan. The man inside the machine is standard equipment here.

The inner-workings of the post-war, upright machines are so crude that a little, stoop shouldered man is kept busy behind his bank of four to six boards, which usually are set up in a circular arrangement on the sidewalks of busiest streets.

Inside the tight, hot cubicle he shuffles around, handing out the ball bearings in exchange for tattered yen notes, helping the springs and levers work, and throwing in a little free tilting and pounding when things get jammed up.

Somehow the customers don't complain. For 10 yen (about five U. S. cents) they get 11 metal ball bearings and a game of Yakyu Pachinko (marble shooting base ball) that a fair to middlin' pinball artist can keep running for 15 minutes. The more conservative investor can put up fewer yen for fewer times at the imaginary plate.

If the grimy faced kids who are the most avid patrons get discouraged, the proprietor inside the tent-like cubicles behind the machine can easily jiggle the contraption around and let them win more often.

Inflation and the discontinuance of coin money have robbed the Japanese pinball business of the coin-in-the-slot convenience of its American counterpart. For the Japanese pinball magnate, it's a manual labor operation, with each sidewalk operator his own capitalist, mechanic, and money changer.

Prizes are pieces of candy and single cigarettes, paid in exchange for balls turned in by lucky players who get tired of winning and playing the endless game, whose only limit on "outs" scored is the number of balls the player can buy or win on extra base "hits."

Doctor Saves A Child's Leg By Near Miracle

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UP) — The story of how a sympathetic surgeon saved the almost completely severed legs of a little girl has come to light at Our Lady of Victory Hospital in nearby Lackawanna.

now five years old, and she runs and plays like any other child her age. But the first time Eleanor met the late Dr. Michael A. Sullivan several years ago it was different.

Playing on her family's farm near Buffalo, Eleanor became pinned beneath her father's tractor. She was taken to the hospital with her mangled legs dangling.

One leg was severed except for a section of muscle. The other leg was badly fractured. Doctors and nurses prepared for immediate amputation as Dr. Sullivan, then the hospital's chief of staff, studied the injuries.

Doctor Hesitates
"It's an awful thing to lose a leg," Dr. Sullivan said. "Let's let this little girl rest until tomorrow."

A special pillow was made for the severed leg and the wound was sprinkled with sulphur powder to prevent infection. After 24 hours during which nurses watched over Eleanor constantly, the operating room again was prepared for the amputation.

Dr. Sullivan hesitated. And although other physicians urged him to amputate he decided to

Candidate For The Office Of

ASSOCIATE JUSTICE OF THE COURT OF CIVIL APPEALS

AT EASTLAND

Judge Collings was born in Erath County, and after finishing his education began the practice of law in Abilene, during which time he made many close friends. He is capable, honest and diligent. He is young enough, age 48, to do the hard work of this position. He is old enough to be mature and sound in his judgement.

He is now a highly successful District Judge, now serving his 3rd term. If elected, he will make a highly satisfactory Appellate Judge. He is a Christian gentleman with a keen sense of justice asking for promotion.

We urge all of you to vote for Judge Collings in the July Primary.

BELLS YOUNG MODERN

Presenting the Candidacy of

COKE STEVENSON

Of Junction, Texas

for the UNITED STATES SENATE

FIRST, We all know our A B C s —

- A—That campaign promises and running the other fellow down don't mean a thing.
- B—That what a candidate can and will do after he is elected is all that counts.
- C—That what a fellow is likely to do after election is to be judged mainly by his past record.

NOW —

- * Coke Stevenson makes no campaign promises except honest and faithful service.
- * He is the only man in this race who has a well known record from having served the whole state of Texas, in the legislature as well as in the Governor's office.
- * That record is extra good or you wouldn't bump into somebody strong for Coke, town or country, and all over Texas, every time you turn around.
- * By the record he has done more for highways, farm-to-market roads (to get them started any way), pensions, school per capita, protection of farmers and ranchmen from predatory animals, and on down the lines, than anybody else in the race.
- * Coke Stevenson is a man of the soil and always has championed the cause of the farmer and cattleman.
- * He is the only man in this race who seems to attach any importance to constitutional and State rights.
- * He is the only candidate for the U. S. Senate that has a past record to show that something can be done about waste in operating the government, and who wants to talk and do something about the subject.

Are These Things Not Better Than Mere Promises?

If you think they are, then

We, the undersigned lawyers of Eastland County, hereby heartily endorse Judge J. E. Hickman for nomination to the first elective term of Chief Justiceship of the Supreme Court of Texas. Judge Hickman is now serving as Chief Justice, having been appointed following the death in January of this year of Chief Justice Alexander.

Never before has there been a Chief Justice from this section of Texas, and Eastland, Stephens, and Erath Counties should take great pride in giving him an almost unanimous vote July 24 as each of the three counties can justly claim him for their own as he resided in and practiced law in each of the counties and was on the Court of Civil Appeals at Eastland for many years, each of the three counties being part of the Eastland Court of Civil Appeals District.

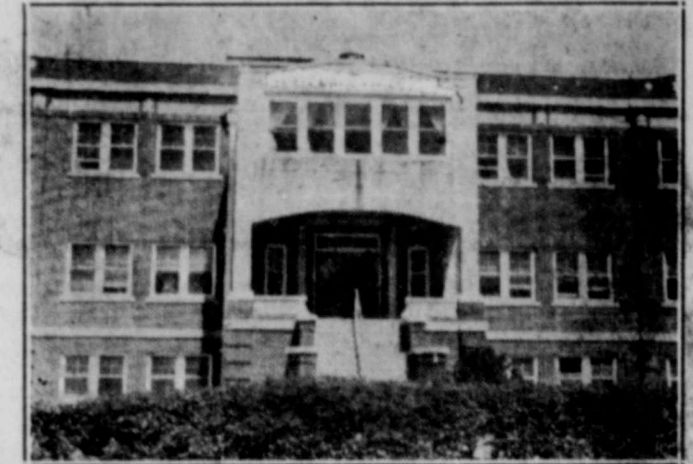

All who are acquainted with him know him to be an outstanding judge, a good citizen, and a fine Christian gentleman. These combined should make him an ideal public servant.

Respectfully submitted,

Despite Blockade, Children Get Fed

Children in Berlin's hospitals, cut off from fresh milk and eggs by the Russian blockade, are eating a diet of powdered milk and eggs. The American authorities released the powdered foods, which this 5-year-old girl victim of bone tuberculosis samples at Zinnwald Hospital. (Photo by NEA-Acme staff correspondent Erich Engel.)

Sinclair Agent Ranger Booster

Bells From All Over In Priest's Collection

NEWPORT, R. I. (UP)—Collecting bells from all over the world is the hobby of the Rev. Edward A. Higney, 80, pastor of St. Joseph's Catholic Church. Father Higney began his collection some 25 years ago with the 50-cent purchase of a small hand bell in Gibraltar. He added another in Paris and after that he had bought a third one in Quebec, word circulated that he was a bell collector. Since then he hasn't paid for a single chime and has received more than 300 bells as gifts from friends, relatives and strangers throughout the world.

Evergreens Hard Hit By Fickle Weather

ST. PAUL (UP)—One more thing that can be blamed on the weather is the apparently dead condition of evergreens around the north central states. Raymond Wood, extension forster at the University of Minnesota farm school, said rapidly-changing weather is to blame for evergreen needles turning brown and seemingly dead. Wood said there is no remedy for the trouble, but added that further injury may be prevented by shading the south and southwest sides of trees especially seedlings. Trees not too severely injured will recover, he believes.
