PRICE FIVE CENTS No. 63

Russia Claims U. S. Had Part In Kidnapping

Well...
I Dunno,
But...

So you scorched yesterday! Well, you should have. It got up to 106 which is the peak for the season. Closest to that was 105 on June 5. But at that the general average is much cooler than for several years.

Today is Friday the 13th and just why it's supposed to be an unlucky day, we don't know but all the superstitious will tell you it is. But we've seen a lot of days when the luck was a lot worse than on any Friday the 13th.

A drastic change will be made Sunday in the daytime passenger train schedules through Ranger. We'd lay a little bet that for a time there'll be some train missing. Now for instance, the west bound train that has been running through here around 5 p. m. will pull into Ranger at 11:26 a. m. and the east bound that has been running about 12:30 p. m. will arrive here at 1:56 p. m.

With the change of the schedule, the new streamlined Eagles will be put into service. These are the super-duper Diesels that are the best word in comfort and speed. While the new trains may not bring out the populace like the first one that ran through here, we have an idea that there will be a good many curious ones at the station when the first Eagle comes through.

They tell us that when one gets to the stage where time seems to fly, they're getting' old. We must be in an advanced stage of antiquity, because this summer has been the very shortest one to us. Only three weeks until schools open here and over the state and it just can't be that we've had a full summer since they closed.

The Russians are all over the front pages again. Of all of the news received by the Times by wire today, every single story dealt with Russia, or Russians spies except one story.

Where there's so much smoke, there must be some fire. But we still think the FBI is the agency to handle the investigation and not a bunch of amateur sleuths in the persons of congressmen.

And frankly we think that the school teacher's jumping out of the window was prompted by her fear of what the Russians would do to her if taken back to Russia. The Russians are sure seem to want to get their hands on her, and very likely for "liquidation."

And you know those Russians are pretty clever at turning the spotlight. In order to turn public attention away from their intentions about the two school teachers, they have turned the heat on the United States Department of State, accusing them of having had a hand in "kidnapping" the two.

It occurs to us that if Uncle Sam wanted those two teachers for questioning, he wouldn't stoop to behind the scenes detention. The dear old Uncle has a very frank way of getting a hold of people he wants to talk to and that ain't by kidnapping.

Former Ranger Girl Named Miss Denver City

Word was received today that Sue Anne Wyatt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. O. Wyatt of Denver City formerly of Ranger, was named Miss Denver City, 1948, in a contest held there Wednesday night. The contest is sponsored by the Rhea Theatres each year and Miss Wyatt was sponsored by the Lone Star Boiler and Folding Company. She was crowned in appropriate ceremonies at the Theatre Wednesday night with the crown being placed on her head by Miss Denver City of 1947, Mrs. Jake Faulkenbury.

U. S. 3-CENT PIECE SHELVED, DIRECTOR OF MINT REVEALS

WASHINGTON (UP)—The likeness of Benjamin Franklin, which graces the new U. S. half dollar, almost showed up on a new three-cent piece instead.

The story has just been revealed by Nellie Taylor Ross director of the mint. During the war, Mrs. Ross said, there was a great demand for coins and the mint was considering issuing some new denominations.

Mostly wanted was a coin that would relieve the great demand for pennies. Copper, a scarce and much-needed material during the war, was being used to make pennies.

One of the new coins under consideration was a three-cent piece, and a design featuring the likeness of Franklin was prepared for it.

Then the bureau came up with the steel-jacketed "white" pennies in 1943. That eased the drain on the use of copper in coin-making. So the proposed three-cent piece was shelved, along with the Franklin design.

After the war, the bureau got around to changing the design on the half-dollar. The law requires that coin designs be changed no oftener than every 25 years. They are usually changed as soon as the limit expires.

In the case of the half-dollar, the 25-year period expired during the war and nothing was done then. But when peace came, the Franklin design was taken out of the files and put to work as a new half-dollar, instead of the three-cent piece for which it originally was created.

Mrs. Ross said the Franklin design was chosen because Franklin symbolized freedom "and there is so little of that in the world."

The reverse side of the design features the liberty bell. Mrs. Ross said that seemed to go hand in hand with the freedom idea.

The new coins were first distributed last April 30. So far, 7,035,414 new Franklin 50-cent pieces have been struck. This design will be coined for the next 25 years.

Former Cheaney Resident Dies

Mr. Scott died in Stamford this morning, and funeral services will be held there at 2:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

SPY HUNTER SAYS CURRIE WAS UNWITTING TOOL

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13. (UP)—A house spy investigator said today that former New Deal White House Aide Lauchlin Currie was the unwitting tool of a wartime soviet espionage ring.

This opinion was voiced by Rep. Karl E. Mundt, R., S. D., of the House Un-American Activities Committee after the soft-spoken Currie had denied testimony that he fed U. S. secrets to the ring. Another member of the New Deal government former assistant secretary of treasury, Harry D. White, also denied charges heard by the committee that he gave wartime information to Russia. White said the charges against him were "unqualifiedly false." He also denied that he ever was a Communist or a member of an alleged Red underground here.

The original accusations against Currie were made by Elizabeth T. Bentley, who says she was courier for a spy network that operated among U. S. government officials. She said ring members got information from Currie when he was administrative assistant to the late President Roosevelt. She said he was not a Communist, however. Under questioning by committee members, Currie said he knew Nathan Gregory Silvermaster and Dr. George Silverman, former federal employees, who were accused by Miss Bentley of being key figures in the alleged espionage ring. Currie said he also had a purely social acquaintance with Anatol Gromov former first secretary of the Soviet embassy whom Miss Bentley described as the spy network's payoff man. She said Gromov gave her $2,000 and told her his government had awarded her the Red Star medal.

National Guard Unit To Leave For Camp Sunday

Members of the Service Battery, 961st Field Artillery Battalion of the National Guard, headquarters in Ranger will leave Sunday for Camp Hood for a two weeks training period.

Commanding Officer Bruce Harris and Capt. Glen West, battalion motor officer, will head the group. Capt. Harris stated today that the group will leave here about 11:30 o'clock Sunday morning and will go to Camp Hood in their own motor units.

The Ranger unit has also furnished transportation for the units at Stamford, Stephenville, Sweetwater and Breckenridge, with trucks being sent to those places.

The two weeks training will be for all Guardsmen in Texas and between 8,000 and 12,000 men are expected to be at the camp.

There will be 38 men from Ranger at the camp.

It was pointed out that about 250,000 over the country will be taking this training and this is the largest number of Guardsmen ever to take part in the summer field training. This period of training is required by the National Defense Act.

College Medical Teams Fight Polio Outbreak

EVANSTON, Ill. (UP)—Northwestern University medical school operates one of the nation's four polio teams, on call to aid polio-stricken communities anywhere in the United States.

The team, headed by Dr. Emil D. W. Hauser, assistant professor of bone and joint surgery, consists of seven faculty members who specialize in bone diseases and physical therapy.

When an epidemic of infantile paralysis appears, the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis assigns the crew to duty and pays its expenses.

Crew members' duties include: Giving consultation to doctors in the community.

Teaching local nurses proper bed posture for patients and how to apply hot packs.

Instruction in techniques of muscle re-education and general exercises.

This is the Northwestern crew's fourth summer duty. The nation's other three teams are operating from Stanford and Harvard Universities and from the D. T. Watson school of physical therapy, at Leetsdale, Pa.

America's wide-spread interest in European affairs is indicated by a list of 1,000 periodicals prepared by British Publications, New York. The subjects most in demand are commerce, export, engineering, machinery, chemistry, textiles and legal publications.

Countess Tolstoy Appears As Witness

MRS. KOSENKINA HINTS FEAR OF SOVIET REPRISAL

NEW YORK, Aug. 13. (UP)—Mrs. Oksana Kosenkina, Russian teacher who jumped from the third floor of the Soviet consulate in fear of "slavery and death," kept her eyes shut tightly today when a Soviet official entered her hospital room. She refused to see the consul general.

The 52-year-old school teacher had asked police to keep Russian officials away from her room because "I fear them." However, Vice Consul Zet Chepurnykh was permitted to enter the room shortly before noon to tell her Russian Consul General Jacob Lomakin wanted to visit her.

Returning, the vice consul told reporters—

"I went to her room. I saw her for one minute. Her eyes were closed. She told me in Russian 'I don't want to speak to anyone. I don't want to see anyone.'"

Chepurnykh said that in view of Mrs. Kosenkina's statement, he doubted that Lomakin would make an attempt to visit her later today, as he had planned to do. Mrs. Kosenkina's doctor said she was fully conscious and that her condition was "serious but not necessarily critical."

The vice consul asked permission to place a Russian trained nurse in attendance at the teachers bedside, but hospital authorities told him they doubted if it would be possible because they were short on beds and had no place for the nurse to rest.

"It is possible," Chepurnykh told them, "that Mr. Lomakin will wish to have her moved to another hospital then, so that a Russian trained nurse or observer can be on hand if needed."

The hospital officials did not reply to that.

Wisconsin Scout Life Lures A French Youth

MADISON, Wis. (UP)—All last winter, Michel Benamov, 18-year-old French youth, heard tales of the glories of the Madison Boy Scout drum and bugle corps.

His friend, Jean Megy, was full of stories of the Madison group. Jean had served as their interpreter at the international Boy Scout jamboree in Moissons last summer.

Michel became obsessed with the desire to visit Madison and soon had a "pen pal" correspondence going with four or five young persons here.

Now Michel is in Madison, and is so "sold" on it that he will spend the entire summer here. He will return to his home in Marseilles in September to enter a French university.

U. S. AMBASSADOR DENIES GOVERNMENT IMPLICATED

Federalization Of National Guard Scored

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13 (UP)—A proposal to place the National Guard completely under federal control drew a cool reception from two legislators today.

Sen. Bourke B. Hickenlooper, R., Ia., a former state governor and guard commander, told a reporter that the recommendation made this week by a defense department committee was 'unwise.' He said it would deprive states of the troops they need for local emergencies, since governors no longer would have authority to call out the guard.

Sen. Elmer Thomas, D., Okla., a ranking member of a Senate appropriations subcommittee on the Army, also said that he is against the proposed change.

The committee made its recommendation for federalization of the guard in a report.

Quizz Program Conducted At Lions Club Meet

A quizz program on Lionism was conducted Thursday at noon at the regular meeting of the Lions Club at the Galsheim Hotel and first prize winner was Joe N. Graham who was presented a fountain pen. Lloyd Clem was winner of the consolation prize, a donkey pin-up game.

The program was arranged by L. L. Bruce and conducted by A. N. Larson.

R. V. Galloway, president presided at the meeting in which Dr. Carl Straley gave a report for the sight conservation committee, reporting that the committee had decided to buy glasses for a needy boy.

Fred Bonner was elected to membership in the club.

Kirk Pool At Gorman To Have Gasoline Plant

The Kirk pool is to have a gasoline plant in order that the gas of that area, along the Eastland-Comanche county line, will be utilized more fully.

The project was discussed Thursday at a meeting in the Connelley Hotel here, with a large attendance of operators having production in the pool.

While no estimate of the probable cost of such a plant was made public, an undertaking of this kind would call for a very substantial expenditure.

The meeting authorized the employment of an engineer to study the situation and made recommendation as to the steps necessary.

Extraction of the gasoline from the gas would add a considerable amount to the income of the Kirk pool.

It is understood that the plans call for a re-cycling plant. In other words, after the gasoline had been extracted, the gas would be put back in the ground. This would help conserve the natural lifting power of the oil, increase the recovery of the crude and would postpone the period when wells will have to be put on the pump.

Charges Of Aid To Spies Denied

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13 (UP)—Former Assistant Secretary of Treasury Harry D. White said today that accusations he aided a wartime soviet espionage ring are "unqualifiedly false." White said that "I am not now or never have been a communist or even close to becoming one."

MOSCOW Aug. 13. (UP)—Russian officials made it plain today that they were placing full responsibility on the United States Department of State for the "kidnapping" of two Soviet teachers in New York.

The official Soviet position was that an organized plot, with official connivance, produced the incident, to which the Russians were attaching increasing importance.

Some quarters saw a probability of official reprisals against Americans here if the case is not settled amicably. Already it was serving to inflame public opinion against American authorities.

The Soviet press gave prominent display to Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov's protest to Ambassador W. Bedell Smith. The press and radio stepped up an intense campaign of denunciations against American authorities, the New York police and the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13. (UP)—Walter Bedell Smith, American Ambassador to Russia, has categorically denied Soviet charges that this government was involved in the attempts of two Soviet schoolteachers to remain in the United States.

A state department spokesman said Smith's denial was given orally to Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov yesterday. It was made after Molotov protested the "connivance" of American authorities in the case of the two schoolteachers—Mikhail Samarin, and Mrs. Oksana S. Kosenkina.

A department spokesman said Smith reported that Molotov's protest was "vigorously worded."

Smith, it was reported, said he had not been officially informed by his government regarding the incident.

"But he categorically denied the allegation that the United States government or any of its agencies were in any way involved in illegal acts," the spokesman said.

Other U. S. Diplomatic officials regarded Mrs. Kosenkina's leap to freedom from the third floor of the Russian consulate at New York as a drastic defutation of Soviet charges that she and Samarin had been "kidnaped."

The state department spokesman said that Smith assured Molotov that "full and public investigation would be made followed by criminal or legal proceedings, if warranted against any violators of U. S. law."

You Have to Acquire a Taste For Cricket, Say the English

By HARRY GRAYSON
NEA Sports Editor

LONDON—(NEA)—Imagine a baseball club batting until 27 men are retired before the other side gets its ticks, and you have some idea of cricket.

Even the most rabid Englishman will tell you that cricket will bore you at first. You have to acquire a taste for it, it seems, like oysters and olives.

Cricket is England's summer national game. Every county and hamlet has a team. Players who stick out in cricket are the British counterparts of America's Bob Feller, Joe DiMaggio, Ted Williams and Stan Musial.

The Test matches, England's pick against Australia, staged on different fields, in series of five, each limited to five days, play to 35,000 persons a performance, with thousands turned away.

Cricket, like British football, or soccer, is much more world-wide played than baseball. It is played throughout the Empire, and is popular in Holland, Portugal, India, Argentina and Brazil.

The American's first impression of cricket is that a batsman may run on a foul ball. Actually, he is deliberately and very skillfully hitting the ball back and to either side of him.

This calls for enormous fields, much larger than any American major league baseball park. Lord's Ground in northwest London, the most famous of cricket grounds, has a playing field 576 feet long and 538 wide.

As the bowler bowls smack dab in the middle of this, between wickets, or home plates 22 yards apart, the bulk of the action is a considerable distance from the patient patrons, many of whom come equipped with field glasses. There are 11 on a side, each team having two innings, taken alternately.

The average game lasts three days. If one side has a substantial lead, say early in the second day, its captain can declare and run the risk of retiring the other side before it tops his team's total. If the other side fails to do this by the time limit, and still has batsmen left in the wicket, the match is a draw, and there are altogether too many of them to suit even the English.

There hasn't, for example, been a decision in a Test match with Australia at Old Trafford, Manchester, in 40 years.

The part of the match between the Players, or professionals, and the Gentlemen, or amateurs, that I saw, produced nothing exciting in the field.

A batter can stand there forever and hit what an American would call a grounder to an infielder, and not run, and nothing would happen. And at 4:15 all hands, the noble athletes and spectators, take time out for tea.

There must be a lot to cricket for the game to hold the avid interest of so many people. After suffering through it, however, an American knows why it has never caught on in the United States—and never will.

Truman's Anti-Inflation Ideas Take a Beating in Committee

By PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON—(NEA)—President Truman's anti-inflation program was groggy and on the ropes after a first-round encounter with Rep. Jesse Wolcott of Michigan, chairman of the House Banking and Currency Committee.

Ex-OFA administrator Paul Porter presented the case for the President's proposed new anti-inflation act, and took a terrible beating. Wolcott subjected Porter to a merciless cross-examination, without raising his voice. He took up Porter's statement and the President's bill and ripped into them, point by point.

One of the key points in the President's program is new authority to control consumer credit—meaning installment buying and charge accounts. During the war, the Federal Reserve Board had this power under "Regulation W." It was rescinded by Congress last year. The President now wants it reinstated.

Wolcott asked Porter if he thought the present inflationary situation constituted a national emergency. Porter said it did—and thereby fell into a trap. The rescinding law specified that the President might reinstate "Regulation W" if he declared that a national emergency existed. Porter apparently didn't know this power was already in the law. Five hours later, at his press conference, President Truman revealed that he didn't know this power was in the law, either.

The President alibied by saying that maybe Wolcott and the attorney general didn't interpret the law the same way. The President said he had to abide by the attorney general's opinions, but if it were found that he had the power to reinstate credit controls, he would use it. It cannot be expected that the President know and remember every provision of every law, but it is the business of his staff to know and to advise him on the use of such powers as he has.

Porter tried to explain that only temporary price regulations might be issued at first, subject to 30-day protest from the industries concerned, before being put into effect. Under Wolcott's probing, however, he admitted that the power to fix all prices would be there. Wolcott demanded to know just what would be controlled. Porter tried to put this off on later witnesses—Secretary of Agriculture Brannan and Secretary of Commerce Sawyer. He finally said that control of meats, dairy products, clothing, building materials, steel and non-ferrous metals "needed study." Allocations on meat and steel might be necessary, he said.

"You've had since last November to work out the details," said Wolcott coldly.

WOLCOTT had more leading questions on the President's proposals for wage controls. In what industries would they be used? Porter said temporary wage boards would be set up in industries whose products might be brought under price or allocation controls. "You are asking us to legislate the policy that broke the line in 1946," Wolcott said bluntly.

On the subject of attacking the causes of inflation, Wolcott asked Porter if he had any program for stabilizing the dollar. Porter said Federal Reserve Board chairman Thomas B. McCabe would answer that one.

Wolcott then went on to ask why the President hadn't asked for Federal Reserve Board authority to increase bank reserves, to tighten up the money supply. Porter had no answer.

"The President and the Federal Reserve Board now have the power to plunge the country into a depression," Wolcott said later. "By merely asking the Federal Reserve Board to do it, the President could see that no one could get a dollar of credit."

Wolcott wanted to know why these orthodox measures shouldn't be used to stop inflation before going back to a lot of controls that hadn't worked and that the President had killed in the past.

Do You Suppose Somebody Might Get Ideas?

Deaf Mute Talks His Way Into Jail

PORTSMOUTH, Va. (UP)—William Henry Jackson, a "deaf mute," is serving a year on a Virginia road gang because he talked too much.

Jackson, 29, of Buckeye, Ariz., stopped in a Norfolk County inn last February and identified himself as a war veteran whose vocal cords had been slit by the Japanese.

Also, he wrote on a slip of paper, his hearing was bad. C. C. Butler, the innkeeper, gave him a place to sleep and meals, Jackson set up show with a beggar's box in the inn. A church donated $10. Officer J. J. Kelly made a generous contribution.

Jackson liked Portsmouth and Norfolk County. He got a job as a truck driver part-time. He rode with another driver and drove while the regular driver was asleep. One night while driving the truck Jackson felt like singing. So he burst out with "My Wild Irish Rose."

The startled truck driver woke up. Jackson persuaded him not to say anything about it. Later, while he was driving alone, two policemen stopped him for questioning. They were strange policemen and Jackson talked to them.—just as he did. Officer Kelly walked up.

Jackson told his story at headquarters. He had feigned his dumbness "because my feet hurt and I needed money."

The judge sentenced him to one year for taking money under false pretenses.

Answer to Previous Puzzle

Nobody Loves Forever

By Margretta Brucker

XXXI
TWO days passed with no change in Mrs. Blake's condition. Two days in which Tom shut himself in his mother's room, taking complete charge of the nursing, coming down to meals Jessica prepared, but showing no interest in the food she struggled to cook.

On the afternoon of the second day, David called. Jessica talked to him in low, nervous tones, aware of Tom in the room above. David was indignant because she had not called him on Sunday. He must see her. Finally Jessica promised to meet him at the Mayflower the next afternoon if Doris would consent to look after Betsy.

Perhaps David could help her solve the mystery of Lucy's disappearance. He worked in the same office with Hugh Linton and knew him well. He would be able to ascertain whether Linton's secretary had gone away to find another job, wouldn't he?

For no letter had come from Lucy, no message. There were only Genevieve's hints that Lucy had gone away to find work in another city. Meanwhile, Jessica read the papers with mounting interest. All efforts to identify the girl at the hospital were unavailing. The girl herself refused to talk. She would live, although she did not wish to live. In fact, every precaution had been taken to prevent her from taking a life upon which she placed no value.

Again the papers published the picture of the ring. Her ring. She alone could offer a clue to its identity, thought Jessica. Would the ring identify the girl? She shrank from the thought and refused to acknowledge a growing conviction that the girl might be Lucy.

The next afternoon, when she set out to meet David, was clear and cold, and the air invigorating after her long stay in the gloomy house with Tom and

SHE began to explain about her fright of Saturday night, and her terror when the stranger brought Tom's mother home. Her relief when Tom appeared to take the responsibility from her shoulders. As she talked she saw David's face darken. It would be difficult to make him understand to see that she couldn't run off and leave Tom when he was in trouble.

She said, "There's no one else." "I thought there was a sister?" She looked up quickly and surprised an odd expression in David's eyes. He looked away hastily.

Jessica said, "Tom has a sister, Lucy. She was Hugh Linton's secretary."

She waited. David said nothing. Did he know? Did he guess that Lucy was not at home? Would Hugh Linton confide in David? She felt her throat tighten and her heart grow heavy. On the tip of her tongue was the question which might give her the answer to Lucy's disappearance.

Why did she hesitate now? Because she was a coward. She didn't want to burden her mind toward Tom's affairs. She wanted to avoid discussing Lucy. If she knew, really knew, that Lucy was that girl, she would add still another to Tom's heavy burdens. She would make her own responsibility greater.

All this ran through her mind in the few moments she and David sat silent. Then he asked, "Can you contact this sister? Didn't she leave an address?"

"How did you know that she was not at home?"

David moved impatiently. "Didn't you say that Blake was dependent upon you? That there was no one else?"

"Yes," she acknowledged but was not satisfied that David had not learned in some other way of Lucy's absence. Now she was doubting David, for the first time analyzing his simplest statement.

Against her will, Tom's troubles intruded and spoiled an afternoon to which she had looked forward with anticipation and pleasure.

It's a Long, Slow Process—
 . . . but we are gradually catching up with our work. The oil activity in so far as it relates itself to our business is about over. There has been a sharp decline each month since April which was the peak month on all classes of orders. Oil men estimate that 80 per cent of the country is now leased. If you are one of the 20 per cent who may need to use your abstract soon please file your order now.

Creeks Are Muscogees Post Office Decides

MUSKOGEE, Okla. (UP)—Some Oklahomans have wondered why the U. S. post office included the "Muscogees" as one of the Five Civilized Tribes on its Indian centennial stamp but left out the Creeks.
 Indian historians explained that the two are the same tribe. Creek is a translation of the Algonquin word "Muscogee." The tribe's dealings with the U. S. government were in the original name, so the Indian name was used on the stamp to be issued this fall.

Shaving Brush Designer Works Up To $2,000,000 R. R. Luxury Liner

By LEO TURNER
United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK (UP)—Henry Dreyfuss is a tall, good-natured fellow with a slow grin. He designed a shaving brush 20 years ago and decided he had found himself a career.
 "My wife and I were pretty excited about that shaving brush," Dreyfuss said. "I told her I would like to design a train. Ten years later I did."
 That was the 1938 version of the New York Central's famed 20th Century Limited.
 Around Sept. 15, the New York Central will put in operation Dreyfuss' latest dream train, a new 20th Century now being built at the Pullman Standard shops in Chicago in two sections costing $2,000,000 each.
 "It was two years on the planning board," Dreyfuss said. "It has everything we could think of. Industrial designing was a new profession when Dreyfuss jumped in. He took on anybody's problems. Today he designs ships, airplanes, typewriters, vacuum cleaners, telephones and other things.
 The 44-year-old Dreyfuss isn't a dreamer. He is a shirt-sleeved sort of a man who examines a thing from all angles to figure out how to make it look and work better.
 "A train is the hardest thing in the world to design," Dreyfuss said. "Each car is a long corridor, and a 'corridor' is difficult to make look attractive.
 The new Century will have car-to-car and car-to-station radio telephones that will enable you to talk to any point in the United States. It will have a barber shop, club cars, air conditioning, pneumatically operated doors and fluorescent lighting. The cars will have only roomettes and double bedrooms the partition of which can be folded back to form a drawing room.
 Dreyfuss and his crew design everything in each car from floor to ceiling.
 "The main thing is to make the cars look wider than they are, to give the impression of expanse the minute a person walks into one," he said.
 He covered the walls of the club and dining cars with shatterproof mirrors to give a feeling of width. Dining room tables are attached by cantilevers to wall benches and have no legs to trip passengers. Club, lounge and dining cars are broken with red-leather fins to minimize the 85-foot length.
 The observation car has the rear half raised three steps above the remainder to form the "look out lounge" where passengers have the sensation of looking down on the passing scenery. The forward portion, equipped with card tables, has a sunken room effect.
 Coal production in 1947 in West Virginia was 160,000,000 tons, the greatest ever reached in the nation's major coal state. It was an increase of 13,000,000 tons over 1946.

Policemen's Suspicion Seems Well-Founded

SPOKANE, Wash. (UP)—An Indian is trying to hold up the Coeur D'Alene Hotel, a tipster notified police.
 Four prowlers and 15 policemen descended on the hotel.
 There they found Joe Antonio pushing with all his might against the north side of the building. Antonio said he was trying to hold up the hotel so it wouldn't tumble into Trent Ave.
 Antonio was booked on suspicion of being drunk.

The Flag Is There to Stay

While the members of the 14th Constabulary Squadron hold field exercises in the Greenwald Forest near Berlin, the flag whips bravely in the wind above their camp. The U. S. has said it intends to remain in Berlin, and the maneuvers, within shooting distance of the Soviet sector, back up that determination. (Photo by NEA-Acme staff correspondent Jack Chittam.)

Area OIL News

EASTLAND COUNTY —

Eastland Area:
Not long ago an Eastland man received a long distance telephone call. The party at the other end of the line said: "In running the records, we have found that you own a part of the mineral interest in two farms not far from Gorman."

The Eastland man purchased the interest away back in 1929 and had forgotten all about it. The result was that he sold his holdings for $50 an acre — for the neat little sum of $8,000.

The highest tide the Eastland oil rush has yet attained was reached Thursday around noon when the Connellee Hotel lobby and coffee shop were so thronged that one could hardly get around.

They were operators, brokers, and other prospective investors from all parts of Texas and from other states.

The widening circle of drilling activities, coupled with the wide publicity that Eastland has been receiving, are credited with attracting the visitors who have been increasing in number for the past few weeks.

Magnets of interest include: The Aaron well, a short distance south of Eastland, which is reported as showing up favorably in the Duffer; the Homer Glover well on the Kurklin, which has encouraging signs in both the Lake and Marble Falls; the Tex-Harvey Oil Company well on city owned property near Lake Eastland which is delayed by a fishing job; the projected test of the Eastland townsite and the airport property owned by the City of Eastland; the Kirk pool to the southeast and the Leercay and Kleiner areas to the northwest.

Gorman Area:
Following are the operations report for Thursday on the Kirk Pool, Gorman:

W. B. Johnson Drilling Co. No. 1 Bob Koonce drilling at 2370 feet.

F. A. Gillespie and Sons of Tulsa Okla. will set surface pipe about Friday on their No. 1 Bud Waller.

J. M. Scott No. 1 B. P. Porter drilling ahead after casing off surface water which gushed out at 500 feet. Mr. Clendennin did a thing for the fee holder which is commendable. He thought so much of the artesian water which he had found that he got the company to allow him to fix the well so that if the fee holder ever wants to connect up the well and use the water for irrigation purposes he will be able to do so. This has taken a few days and some extra expense on the part of Scott Drilling Co. to rig this up for Mr. Porter, but we feel that they deserve this mention of their trying to be helpful and cooperative in the community. That water would help to raise alfalfa or some other field crop which demands a good supply of water as it is pure artesian water.

Commercial Production Co. No. 1 Lonnie Parks drilling at 2795 feet.

T. A. Kirk and Mellard have set pipe on their No. 1 Moseley, at 2938. They went on through the Marble Falls.

Henshaw Brothers No. 1 T. W. Pittman are running a Schlumberger at 2865. They also have gone through the Marble Falls and it does not look so good.

Hunter and Meilard No. 1 Blackwell drilling at 2600 feet.

Coast Oil No. 2 Della Graham set pipe Tuesday at 2870 feet. They will acidize Friday. The Production Man, Mr. Barron, reports that there was a very nice showing and they expect this well to be as good, if not better, than the No. 1 on this lease. We are glad Mr. Porter and associates, that you are striking it lucky on so many of your holdings. (Mr. Porter, you will remember, is the man who is having so much to do with renovating the Eastland National Bank Building and turning it into the Petroleum Building at Eastland.)

National Cooperative Refinery Association are cementing the hole which came in the tubing on the No. 1 Krel just as they started to acidize.

Mr. Collins has made location and dug pits on the Ellis Cosby 439 acre tract out of the North-west corner of the Eleanor Moore

2 CHICAGO CENTERS TACKLE NATION'S TRAFFIC WOES

CHICAGO (UP)—Traffic control and accident prevention are main courses at the world's largest traffic police school.

Fellowships and tuition scholarships are available to its specialized candidates and post-graduate work is provided through special conferences and extension service.

"Campus activities" take place at intersections and highway points where congestion and accidents have been systematically pooled.

Two separate but complementary organizations, the Northwestern University Traffic Institute and the Traffic Division of the International Association of Chiefs of Police, have developed this unique educational center.

Both are under the direction of Franklin M. Krel, a 20-year veteran in the field, who organized them under their separate sponsorships in Evanston, Ill., in 1936.

The institute has trained nearly 2,000 enforcement, judicial and other personnel, while the division has surveyed more than 60 cities, counties and state in the U. S., Canada and Hawaii since that time.

Trainees have come from Canada, Mexico, the Philippines, Panama and China.

The two organizations have united in attacking the traffic problems of today, particularly those which stem from urban growth and new industry.

The school program has included a survey in Comanche County, just South and west of De Leon.

ed, special courses for traffic police, judges and prosecutors, army transport personnel, motor vehicle fleet operators and high school safety instructors.

The new extension division, established in 1946, has extended "institute" training to regional, on-the-job instruction.

Services, available on request, have included traffic engineering, survey and reorganization programs, legal counsel, information and publications.
