Truman's Loyalty Program Upheld By Court

SAYS GOVERNMENT HAS RIGHT TO FIRE EMPLOYEES ON SUSPICION

Acheson Denies Knowledge Of Communist High In State Department
WASHINGTON, March 22 (UP)—The U. S. Court of Appeals today upheld the constitutionality of President Truman's loyalty program. In a 2 to 1 decision, the court upheld the right of the government to fire employes for loyalty reasons. The court's decision was made in the case of Dorothy Bailey, former employe in the federal security agency who was fired from her job on grounds of having communist associations. The decision was written by Judge E. Barrett Prettyman. Judge James M. Proctor concurred. Judge Henry W. Edgerton wrote a stinging dissent in which he said to oust an employe as disloyal "on rumor and without trial" is to pay too much for protection against the harm such an employe might do. The majority admitted that Miss Bailey's case "is undoubtedly appealing."

FINGERPRINTS

Don't Lie

By Rupert Hughes
Copyright 1950 by Rupert Hughes
Dist. by NEA SERVICE, INC.

THE STORY: Private detective Martin Queripel is trying to clear Paul Moody, a young sculptor, of murder charges in the slaying of Wendell Palmer, the father of Moody's fiancée. James Stivers, police detective, claims fingerprints on the base of the telephone used to bludgeen Palmer to death are Moody's. At the police crime laboratory, Queripel examines the prints, and then re-enacts the crime, using another phone. Then he asks Stivers to compare prints he left with those found on the instrument used in the murder. Stivers does this and points out that "they ought to tell the story."

XXXXIII
MARTIN QUERIPHEL was so overwrought that he descended to a crude pun. "Yes, the fingerprints seem to tell the story. But things have a way of busting at the seams. By the way, could you have these prints of mine blown up the same size as those you took from Moody?"

Stivers nodded. "How long will it take?" Queripel asked.

"Well, we're pretty busy," said James Stivers. "How would tomorrow afternoon do?"

"Perfectly," said Queripel. "I'll be here at 3."

Stivers was curious to know the cause of Queripel's manifest excitement. He inquired:

"Could I ask just what you're trying to prove?"

"Certainly." "Well?"

"Ask me tomorrow at 3. I'll just beg one more favor. Get me a good print of that unidentified thumb near the mouthpiece." Stivers nodded. "Also a set of Detective Pete Kelso's fingerprints from his police car."

Stivers gasped: "Kelso? What do you know about Kelso—or care?"

"He was at the Palmer house, wasn't he?"

"I'll say he was! I came near kicking him out."

"Why?" Queripel restrained his eagerness.

"Oh, he was too damned—helpful. If there's anything I hate it's one of those helpful people."

"Whom was he really trying to help?"

"What do you mean by that?"

"He may be more helpful than he meant to be," was Queripel's cryptic evasion. "Tomorrow at 3. Thanks a million, and good day!"

And he was gone, leaving the name of Kelso sticking in Stivers' mind—sticking out of his memory—and sticking into his thoughts.

The first thing he did was to send for Kelso's fingerprint card in the police files.

As Queripel hurried to his car, he was so assen with excitement that one or two passers-by thought he had the palsy.

He reached his office in a state of thwarted frenzy. O'Hea was out and Queripel could hardly fit his key to the door. As soon as he was in his desk chair, he buried his brow in his clenched fingers as if to hold his aching skull together.

He was thinking so hard that when he recognized Timothy O'Hea's heavy step, he waved the man away. It was like waving away a wasp. When O'Hea's mighty hand fell on his shoulder, he pleaded: "Go away and let me think."

O'Hea said: "You wouldn't be thinking of Kelso now?"

"Of course. Who else?"

"You wouldn't care to know what I'm just learning about him and the info I'm gettin' off his ladybird, Nelda Croft? I'd ought to call her his ex-ladybird, for she's the ex-est ladybird I ever met up with. And she had the finest pair of black and blue eyes a lady ever boasted. Our friend pet said: "Let's get on with the reconstruction of the crime. You're the dead man."

"Thanks."

"I'm the murderer."

"That's better. Nice of you to confess."

"You're Wendell Palmer. You grab the handset off the telephone base. I seize the base. You twist it out of my hand by tugging your body—so. Now you dial the operator. You are going to yell 'Police' and give your address when she answers. I find myself back of you with no weapon thinks. I either have no gun or no time or perhaps no desire to draw my gun and die. I see the telephone base. I pick it up, lift it high in air with both hands and bring it down with all my might on your head before you can contact the operator. You fall on the floor and die."

"Can't we leave that to the imagination?" Stivers pleaded.

"Yes, but it leaves me, the murderer, with the telephone base like this. I put it down and quickly replace the handset while the operator's voice calls in vain. I am too excited to think of the fingerprints I've left on the base of the phone and my thumbs make no prints you see because only their sides touch the curve of the top of the base. See?"

"I see. I guess that was just about the way it was. You're some playwright and a real actor."

"Now," said Queripel, "I'll ask you to lift the eight fingerprints I've left on this telephone."

"This was a matter of only a few minutes, then Queripel studied the convoluted dust sticking to the tape. He compared it with the blown-up prints of Paul Moody's eight fingers.

"Not much alike, eh?" Stivers asked.

"Not much," said Queripel. "Now could I have another look at those Moody prints you took in his studio?"

Stivers fetched them out.

Stivers had to gloat a little: "They seem to tell the story, don't they?"

Marlin Queripel nodded his head and smiled.

SPORTSMANSHIP

Doak Walker, recipient of Collier magazine's award as football Player of the Year for Sportsman-ship, lived up to his award when he purchased Texas' first sheet of 1950 Easter Seals from a 4-year-old Benny Kaiser, Dallas, a victim of cerebral palsy. # FEAR-FILLED RUSSIAN HANGS SELF IN OKLAHOMA

CUSHING, Okla., March 22. (UP)—A terror-stricken Russian immigrant hanged himself because he thought he heard his name mentioned several times in radio broadcasts about the deportation of Valentin Gubitchev, authorities said today.

Prowska, 32, whom he married in a German displaced person's camp three years ago. They had been working as servants at Simon's house. Mrs. George Larrimore, a neighbor who speaks Russian and who befriended the couple, told authorities that Saij's eight years in German prisoner of war and DP camps had made him distrustful of police. Two weeks ago Saij saw a radio in a church and since had been listening to news broadcasts to "learn the truth."

He followed accounts of the Gubitchev-Judith Coplon espionage trial with intense interest, although he spoke only a few words of English, Mrs. Larrimore said. Saij became unduly alarmed every time he thought he heard his name mentioned in the Gubitchev broadcasts, but the often repeated word which struck terror in his heart was "spy."

Mrs. Larrimore said she had gone to the Saijs' nicely-furnished quarters on numerous occasions to tell them they had nothing to fear in the United States. When Gubitchev's conviction was announced on the radio, Mrs. Saij collapsed in fear that she and her husband also would be deported to their native Ukraine. A physician called Mrs. Larrimore in to console them. Saij became apprehensive last week when he saw the Simons packing to go on a fishing tour, and Mrs. Larrimore argued with the couple for 45 minutes to convince them that the Simons were not "fleeing the Gestapo."

Since that time the Saijs had become increasingly moody. When Mrs. Saij was told that her husband had committed suicide, she asked for a decent burial for his body. "Please do not throw him naked into a trench," she pleaded.

MARS TO PAY EARTH FIRST 'VISIT' IN TEN YEARS

By PAUL F. ELLIS
 United Press Science Editor
 NEW YORK, March 21 (UP)—The planet Mars is making its closest approach to earth in 10 years, but scientists insist that it's no basis for the new reports of flying saucers.
 Astronomers seem sure that Mars has an atmosphere, but very little oxygen—not enough to support life as is known on earth. However, "yellow" and "blue" clouds have been observed on the planet. They are so-called because they are picked up by observation through yellow or blue light.
 One expert said today that with Mars approaching earth to within 44,000,000 miles and about 123,000,000 of the sun that the planet's surface temperature might rise as much as 10 degrees.
 Irritation of Externally Caused PIMPLES
 To gently cleanse broken out skin, then soothe itchy irritation, and soothe healing—see time tested RESINOL OINTMENT AND SOAP
 When the sun-earth-mars line up in a row, it is called an opposite and the last occurred in 1939. At that time, however, Mars did not approach as close as it will in this opposite. The planet will even be closer in 1954 when only 35,000,000 miles will separate earth and Mars. That is the year when astronomers hope to make some real, scientific observations of Mars.
 The astronomers pointed out today that on Thursday, March 23, the planet Mars will be directly opposite the sun with earth in the middle. From that date on, the distance between Mars and earth will decrease until about March 28 when the planet of the "Martians" begins its usual retreat into its eccentric orbit.

HALF-CENTURY HIGHLIGHTS

HORSE AND BUGGY TO HELICOPTER is the story of the American Red Cross nurse in the Twentieth Century. Through the years since this vital nursing service was founded in 1910, Red Cross nurses have gone on their errands of mercy by whatever form of transportation presented itself. They have traveled on skis and snowshoes, mounted horses, paddled boats, driven "tin lizzies" through mud and snow and very often walked to visit the sick and injured in isolated or disaster-stricken areas. The "horse and buggy nurse" picture was made shortly before World War I. The "helicopter nurse" shot was taken a few weeks ago, when nurse Myrtle Wilson of St. Louis, Mo., went by Coast Guard "copter" to aid flood victims along the St. Francis River in Arkansas.
